GOVERNOR BREAKS GROUND FOR MARSHALL FACILITY

Governor Arch A. Moore, Jr. turns the first spade of earth for Marshall University's Fine & Performing Arts Center during ground-breaking ceremonies Wednesday, April 13. Construction of the $13.4 million first phase of the project is expected to be underway this summer and completed in about 18 months. Phase I will feature a state-of-the-art theater with 600 seats and a smaller, experimental theater for MU drama students. The complex will be located on the south side of Fifth Avenue, opposite Marshall's Memorial Student Center.

Honorary degree will be awarded to Emerson

Mrs. Roberta S. Emerson, who retired earlier this year as director of the Huntington Museum of Art, will be awarded an honorary Doctor of Humane Letters degree at Marshall University's 1988 Commencement ceremonies, according to MU President Dale F. Nitzschke.

Roberta Emerson

Commencement is scheduled for Saturday, May 14, in the Huntington Civic Center, beginning at 11 a.m., and will be open to the public.

"Through her life and her career, Roberta Emerson has had a profound effect on the cultural life of West Virginia and this entire region," Nitzschke said. "We are very pleased that Marshall University can recognize her tremendous contribution to our quality of life."

A native of Indianapolis, Ind., Mrs. Emerson has lived in Huntington since 1943. During her 16 years as director of the Huntington Museum of Art, formerly Huntington Galleries, the museum has grown from a staff of five operating with an annual budget of $125,000 to a staff of 30 and a budget of $1.25 million. She has coordinated financial campaigns which have left the museum debt-free, with a $4.5 million endowment.

"As a result of her efforts, the Huntington Museum of Art has grown to become a nationally recognized cultural and educational center for the entire region," Nitzschke said.

Actually, her association with the museum dates back to 1953 when it officially opened. While her children took advantage of the art opportunities it offered, she became an art history lecturer and a trainer of volunteers. She continued her relationship with the museum over the years and was named its director in 1971.

Mrs. Dorothy Polan, a long-time member of the museum's board of directors, noted recently, "When she stepped in, we were a small, unknown museum with a

Researchers from U.S., England to lecture here

High-ranking officials of the national medical research organizations of England and the United States are serving as visiting professors to the Marshall University School of Medicine this week and next.

The scientists are meeting with students, faculty and community physicians, according to Dr. Robert B. Belshe of the Department of Medicine.

Dr. Alan Hay, director of the antiviral research laboratory of England's Medical Research Council, is at Marshall this week.

An authority on the action of virus-fighting drugs, Hay is spending much of the week conducting viral research with School of Medicine and Veterans Administration researchers. Because the British government will soon begin testing AIDS vaccines, he is looking closely during his visit at the techniques used in Marshall's AIDS vaccine testing program.

He will make a presentation to Marshall scientists Fri-

Forms approved for MU course changes

(The following summary of the minutes of the April 15 meeting of the Marshall University Academic Standards and Curricula Review Committee was submitted by Jane Fotos.)

Dr. Mahlon Brown, chairman, announced that Marjorie Keatley will be the Community College representative to the Student Grade Appeals Committee. He also announced that he will represent ASCR on the Core Curriculum Committee.

Percussion Ensemble will perform April 26

Marshall University's Percussion Ensemble will "Go for Baroque and Kodo, Too" during the group's concert on Tuesday, April 26, at 8 p.m. in Smith Recital Hall.

The Kodo reference in the concert's title refers to a group of Japanese drummers who were featured in this year's Marshall Artists Series, according to Ben F. Miller, director of the Percussion Ensemble.

The program will begin with Warren Benson's "Rondino" and George Frock's "Three Asiatic Dances." A special feature of "Stompin Thru the Rye" by Thomas L. Davis will be the use of a marching machine.

Two avant-garde works, "Interactions for Vibraphone and Percussion" by John Bergamo and "Quaternion" by Ron Delp, will conclude the first half of the program.

The second half of the concert will feature various pieces from the baroque period.

The concert will be open to the public free of charge.

very fine facility. She's not only seen the expansion of the facility, but of our aspirations."

Mrs. Emerson studied at Northwestern University, the University of Chicago, the Art Institute of Chicago and, in 1965, received her A.B. degree in English from Marshall University. She also has taught art appreciation and the history of European paintings at Marshall.

Active in a wide range of organizations devoted to promotion of the arts, she was recognized in late 1987 by the Huntington Herald-Dispatch as "Citizen of the Year" and in early January by the Charleston Gazette-Mail as "West Virginian of the Year." Mrs. Emerson and her husband, Attorney Robert K. Emerson, are the parents of three grown children.

day on how the antiviral drugs amantadine and rimantadine work.

Dr. Richard Wyatt, associate to the director of the United States' National Institutes of Health, will begin his visit Monday, April 25. On Tuesday, he will speak at medical grand rounds at St. Mary's Hospital on "The National Institutes of Health: Past, Present, and Future."

At noon Tuesday, he will present an informal seminar for medical students on educational and research opportunities for students at the National Institutes of Health. He will focus particularly on the Howard Hughes Research Foundation, which takes students to Washington to participate in research activities.

on the College of Education student-teacher placement issue was referred to the Standards Subcommittee.

Dr. David Wilkin asked that the credit by examination information in the catalog be reviewed as it relates to the Community College. This matter also was referred to the Standards Subcommittee.

The Appeals Subcommittee presented the revised Appeals Procedure for review. It will be circulated and voted upon at the next meeting.

The Curriculum Subcommittee presented the revised Course Change-Addition-Deletion form for consideration. Dr. Leonard Deutsch asked ASCR to consider whether a requirement for graduate level courses to have letters from colleges where there may be questions of infringement or duplication of courses at the undergraduate level be included in the form. After a lengthy discussion, it was moved to approve the form as presented.

The Curriculum Subcommittee presented reports and recommendations from two meetings, March 24 and April 7. Action was taken to approve 22 course changes.

Symphonic concert set

Marshall University's Symphonic Band will present its annual spring concert on Wednesday, April 27, in Smith Recital Hall.

The program will feature four MU students in Paul Jennings' arrangement of "Vaudeville Spectacular." Jennings, a former MU student, arranged the work which contains songs frequently heard during the vaudeville era.

From vaudeville, the performance will go to Broadway with James Christensen's arrangement of "Best Broadway Marches."

Other works will include "Overture to a New Era" by Caesar Giovannini, "Patriotic Pageantry" by Warren Barker, "Dedicatory Overture" by Clifton Williams, "Chorale and Shaker Dance" by John Zdechlik, "Symphonic Dance No. 2" by Clifton Williams and "Military Escort" by Harold Bennett.

The concert will be open to the public free of charge.

MU Staff Council will meet April 22

The Marshall University Classified Staff Council will meet Friday, April 22, at 1 p.m. in Memorial Student Center Room 2W37.

Members who cannot attend the meeting should contact a member of the Classified Staff Council Executive Board prior to the meeting.

The agenda will include: call to order; roll call; introduction of guest (Mack Jarrell); reading of minutes; reports from the Election, Service Award and Service committees; report from the BOR Advisory representative; a layoff committee update; discussions on absenteeism, directories, disability, sick leave, and announcements.

Mayor names Smith and Choi to board

Dr. Carol A. Smith, vice president for academic affairs at Marshall University, and Dr. Soo Bock Choi, professor of political science at Marshall, have been appointed to the City of Huntington Affirmative Action Advisory Board by Mayor Robert R. Nelson.

Both will serve two-year terms on the board, which was established in 1973 to hear complaints against the city by employees or the general public regarding violations of the city's affirmative action policy and make recommendations to the mayor in an effort to eliminate any condition that does not comply with the policy.

MU Choral Union will give two performances

Marshall University's Choral Union will give two performances featuring John Rutter's "Requiem" and Beethoven's "Christ on the Mount of Olives."

The first performance will be held Sunday, April 24, at 3 p.m. in Smith Recital Hall and the second performance will be held Monday, April 25, at 8 p.m. in Smith Recital Hall.

"Requiem" is scored for an orchestra of strings, harp, timpani and wind instruments, with a soprano soloist and chorus. Karen Curaan, senior music education major, will be the soloist.

The "Requiem" performance will be presented in memory of the late Dr. Wendell Kumlien, former director of choral activities at Marshall, who died last December.

Beethoven's heroic oratorio "Christ on the Mount of Olives" is a dramatic setting of the Biblical story and features three soloists: Jeffrey Price singing the leading role of Jesus, Linda Eikum-Dobbs singing the role of Seraph, and Paul Balshaw singing the role of Peter.

Tickets for the performances will be $5 and $3 for students and senior citizens. Marshall students with valid identification and activity cards will be admitted free. Tickets will be available at the door and at the MU Music Office.

Marimba to be featured

Cort McClaren, director of percussion at the University of North Carolina, Greensboro, will present a marimba recital at Marshall University on Thursday, April 28, at 8 p.m. in Smith Recital Hall.

McClaren is an active soloist, clinician and composer. He received degrees from Wichita State University and the University of Oklahoma.

He has performed with the Greensboro Symphony, the Wichita Symphony, the Oklahoma Symphony and the New American Ragtime Ensemble. Currently he performs with the Rokoko-Duette, a marimba-trombone duo.

McClaren will present a varied program including "Two Mexican Dances for Marimba" by Gordon Stout, "Etude for a Quiet Hall" by Christopher Deane, "Torse III" by Akira Miyoshi, selections by Tchaikowsky, and his own arrangements.

The recital will be open to the public free of charge.

Dr. Smith has been vice president for academic affairs at Marshall since January 1986. She received her undergraduate degree in nursing from Boston College and her master's degree in nursing from Boston University. She received her doctorate in organization and administration from Boston College and held administrative positions at Boston College, the College of Our Lady of the Elms, Duquesne University and Carnegie-Mellon University.

A member of the Marshall faculty since 1963, Choi received his undergraduate degree from Stetson University, his master's degree from the University of Kentucky and his doctorate from the University of Maryland. A native of South Korea, he attended the Seoul University Law School and taught school in Korea. He also taught at the Vox Institute of Languages and the Berlitz School of Languages in Washington, D.C. He has been named an Outstanding Educator of America and has written articles for numerous professional publications.

Faculty Senate to meet

The next meeting of the Marshall University Faculty Senate will be held Tuesday, April 26, at 4 p.m. in Corbly Hall Room 105.

The agenda will include recommendations from standing committees, a report from the BOR Advisory Council of Faculty representative, "A Modest Proposal" update, and a report from the Social Work Committee.

COS open house set

Why do hot water pipes freeze first? Where shouldn't you build a house? How can you sound like Donald Duck? Can you save the Starship Exeter from a strange disease? Can you make a hammer out of mercury?

These and other interesting questions will be answered when Marshall University's College of Science holds an open house on Friday, April 29, from 1 to 7 p.m. in the Science Building Annex, according to Dr. E.S. Hanrahan, dean of the college.

Various other topics such as laser holography, fiber optics, nuclear magnetic resonance and superconductivity will be discussed and explained through experiments and displays.

Hanrahan said there should be something for people of all ages, including chemical magic tricks.

Being held in conjunction with National Science and Technology Week, the activities will be open to the public free of charge.

To obtain further details contact the Marshall University College of Science, 696-2372.

Art exhibit scheduled

Linda Anderson of Huntington, a candidate for the master of arts degree in art, will exhibit her work in Birke Art Gallery April 26 through May 1.

There will be an opening reception from 7 to 9 p.m. on Monday, April 25, in the gallery. The reception will be open to the public.

Ohio Valley alumni to meet in Parkersburg

Alumni and friends of Marshall University will host the fourth annual Mid Ohio Valley Banquet on Saturday, April 30, at the Hotel Blennerhassett in Parkersburg.

A social hour will begin at 6 p.m., followed by a program at 7 p.m. and dinner at 8 p.m.

Linda Holmes, director of the MU Alumni Association, will be master of ceremonies. Marshall President Dale F. Nitzschke will give the keynote address.

Dr. Soo Bock Choi, professor of political science, and Dr. James Harless, director of admissions, also will represent Marshall at the meeting.

Dr. Sam Clagg, who has been associated with Marshall as a student and professor for more than 45 years, will be a special guest.

Tickets will $15 and are available from the MU Alumni Office.

Fulbrights available

The Council for International Exchange of Scholars (CIES) has announced the opening of applications for lecture and research awards abroad.

More than 300 research grants and 700 lecturing awards will be available in more than 100 countries. Grants will range in length from three months to full academic years.

Basic eligibility requirements are U.S. citizenship, a terminal degree, college teaching experience and for some assignments fluency in a foreign language.

Application deadlines vary according to country. The deadline will be June 15 for Australia, India and Latin America; Sept. 15 for Africa, Asia, Europe, and the Middle East; Nov. 1 for institutional proposals for a foreign scholar-in-residence; Jan. 1, 1989, for Administrators Awards in Germany, the United Kingdom and Japan, and Feb. 1, 1989, for travel-only awards for France, Italy and Germany.

To obtain further details contact CIES, 11 Dupont Circle NW, Washington, D.C., 20036-1257, or Dr. Terrence McQueeney, Marshall's Fulbright adviser, 696-2745.

Lunchbag seminar set

The Marshall University Women's Center will present a lunchbag seminar titled "Child Abuse" on Wednesday, April 27, from noon to 1 p.m. in Prichard Hall Room 143.

Laurie McKeown, coordinator of the Cabell County Child Protection Team, will discuss the causes, preventions and treatments of child abuse.

To obtain further details contact the Women's Center, 696-3112.

Secretaries to get free gift

Marshall University's Bookstore will provide a free gift to MU secretaries on National Secretaries' Day, Wednesday, April 27.

All secretaries, clerks and employees of similar rank will be eligible to receive a free potted plant by visiting the bookstore April 27. Identification cards may be required.

Marshall University President Dale F. Nitzschke presents a plaque to Dr. Dorothy E. Hicks as he welcomes her into membership in the Marshall Foundation's prestigious John Marshall Society. She has been a professor of health, physical education and recreation at Marshall for 19 years and also has served as chairwoman of the former women's physical education department, an associate athletic director and coach of the women's golf team. Membership in the John Marshall Society is based on a gift of at least $10,000, a pledge of $15,000 over a 10-year period or a deferred contribution of $50,000 or more.

MU workshop scheduled

Marshall University's Office of Purchasing and Materials Management will hold its last "Basic Purchasing Seminar" of this fiscal year on Tuesday, May 10.

This will be the last opportunity of the year for new secretaries and other individuals to learn about purchasing and materials management procedures, according to William J. Shondel, director of purchasing and materials management.

To obtain further details contact the Office of Purchasing and Materials Management, 696-3157.

Committee discusses grad faculty status

(The following report on the Feb. 25 meeting of the Marshall University Graduate Committee was submitted by Dewey D. Sanderson.)

The committee discussed various technical aspects on wording in the Graduate Catalog, but changes were deferred until a later time.

Since all graduate faculty are to have their graduate faculty status re-certified by November 1988, the question has arisen as to what is there to motivate faculty members to attain and keep graduate faculty status.

One motivating factor could be the reduction in teaching load, but the administration says the university cannot afford this.

It was suggested that perhaps one or two faculty per college who showed exemplary performance would be awarded a reduced teaching load.

The committee will be discussing the graduate faculty status issue with MU President Dale F. Nitzschke at a later date.

No formal action was taken by the committee at this meeting.

Wellness Walk will be held on campus

"Forgetting Fashion for Getting Fit" will be the theme for a two-mile Wellness Walk on the campus of Marshall University beginning at noon Thursday, April 28.

Walkers will meet at the Memorial Student Center Plaza and walk two laps of a course through the MU campus, according to Carla LaPelle, coordinator of student health education programs at Marshall.

Wolfe going to Norway

Carl G. Wolfe, a graduate history student at Marshall University, has received a $1,000 scholarship from the Sons of Norway International, Minneapolis, Minn., to study Norwegian history, government and politics for six weeks at Oslo International Summer School.

A native of Beckley, Wolfe will study in Norway from June 25 through Aug. 5, according to Thor Bryn, vice president of the Sons of Norway International.

"We are very pleased at Carl's success," said Dr. David Woodward, chairman of Marshall's History Department. "We believe an international cross-cultural experience should be a part of every student's work. This scholarship is a feather in his cap."

To obtain further details about the scholarship or international study programs at Marshall contact Dr. Clair W. Matz, director of the university's Center for International Studies, 696-2465.

IBM seminar scheduled

Representatives from IBM will be in the lobby of Memorial Student Center on Tuesday and Wednesday, April 26-27, from 9 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. to demonstrate the IBM Personal System 2.

The MU Bookstore is the Education Order Center for IBM. Bookstore staff will be available to accept orders and provide price information.

To obtain further details contact the MU Bookstore, 696-3622.

Theatre production set

The Marshall University Theatre will present "A Thousand Clowns" by Herb Gardner at 8 p.m. Wednesday through Saturday, April 27-30, in Old Main Auditorium.

The play tells the story of an ex-writer of comedy for children's television programs who turns into a cheerful New York City non-conformist.

Tickets will be $4 and will be available at the door and in Old Main B23.

To obtain further details contact the MU Theatre Box Office, 696-2787.

Help Wanted

Wanted: Faculty and staff to act as food service helpers from 10 to 11 p.m. on Tuesday, May 11, in Twin Towers Cafeteria. Applicants must be able to serve breakfast foods, bus trays, toast bread and pour coffee for students during the second annual Midnight Breakfast sponsored by the MU Student Housing Office. Please call 696-6765. The application deadline will be Friday, May 6.

The activity will be open to the general public. There will be no registration fee, although participants are urged to register by contacting Ms. LaPelle, 696-4800, or Nicole Norian, 696-2594.

T-shirts will be presented to the first 100 persons who register and complete the walk and other prizes will be given to persons who complete the walk. Refreshments will be served after the activity.

"The message is that walking only requires comfortable shoes, so forget fashion and take a step toward fitness," said Ms. LaPelle. "This event is meant to stress wellness as a way of life."

The walk is being sponsored by the MU Employee Assistance and Wellness Program and the Office of Student Health Education Programs.

In the event of rain on Thursday, April 28, the activity will be postponed until Tuesday, May 3, at noon.

Workshop is designed for minority business

A Minority Business Workshop designed to assist women and minorities in developing business marketing plans will be held at Marshall University on Wednesday, May 11, from 8:30 a.m. to noon in Harris Hall Room 136.

Topics will include market planning, obstacles to market planning, the development of marketing strategies, writing the document and implementing the plan, according to Robert L. Lawson, director of continuing education at Marshall University's Community College. "The purpose of the project is to assist minority persons in learning how to develop marketing plans to make their businesses more competitive and improve their success rate in obtaining financing," said Lawson.

Guest speakers will include Beverly McKinney, marketing director for First Huntington National Bank, and Cynthia L. McClung, president of Ad Fluences.

There will be no charge for the workshop. The project received support through a grant written by Daniel L. Twehues, assistant professor of business technology at the MU Community College, and funded through the Marshall University Foundation.

Participants will receive workbooks and continuing education certificates.

To register for the program, being sponsored by the Community College's Continuing Education Office and Business Technology Department, contact Robert L. Lawson, Marshall University Community College, 696-3011.

Senior recital planned

Terry Lawson of Ravenswood, a candidate for the bachelor of fine arts degree in music performance at Marshall, will present her senior organ recital on Friday, April 29, at 8 p.m. at the Johnson Memorial United Methodist Church, Fifth Avenue and 10th Street.

The recital will be open to the public free of charge.

Marshall faculty/staff achievements

THOMAS A. LOVINS, director of recreational sports and fitness activities, was honored at the 39th annual conference of the National Intramural-Recreational Sports Association held April 7-12 in Hollywood, Fla. He was recognized for outstanding leadership and service to the association as a state director. He also presented a paper titled "Special Events--Innovative Programming."

Dr. DAVID P. SWAIN, assistant professor of health, physical education and recreation, had three articles published in the book "Medical and Scientific Aspects of Cycling," which was released this month. The articles were: "Is there an optimum body size for competitive cycling?," "Prediction of oxygen consumption from heart rate during cycling," and "Metabolic requirements of riding windload simulators as compared to cycling on the road."

Dr. JOHN VIELKIND, associate professor and chairman of philosophy, directed the local arrangements for the spring meeting of the West Virginia Philosophical Society held on campus March 25-26. Dr. SARAH FOWLER, assistant professor of philosophy, presented a paper titled "What is Right and Wrong with the Theory of Art in Plato's 'Republic.'" Dr. HOWARD SLAATTE, former professor of philosophy, read a paper titled "The Betrayal in American Education," and was presented a plaque in recognition of more than 20 years of service to the West Virginia Philosophical Society. He is a past president of the organization.
