Speakers set for Black History Month

Appearances by a commissioner on the United States Commission on Civil Rights and a world renowned classical pianist will highlight Marshall University's observance of Black History Month this February.

Dr. Mary F. Berry, a commissioner on the United States Commission on Civil Rights and a professor of history and law at Howard University, will be a guest speaker at Marshall University on Thursday, Feb. 5, at 7:30 p.m. in the W. Don Morris Room in Memorial Student Center.

Her presentation will be the opening activity for the university's observance of Black History Month, according to Kenneth E. Blue, associate dean for student affairs at Marshall.

"Dr. Berry lectures on issues that go to the root of the American ideal, including education and the struggle for equal opportunity in our society," said Blue. "She has spent a great deal of time and energy toward working for a more fully realized interpretation of the Constitution and the Bill of Rights."

Ms. Berry has written several books on constitutional history and civil rights laws and was recently reinstated to her position on the Civil Rights Commission by a federal court, after being dismissed by President Reagan.

She is a former president of the American Historians Association and previously served as the United States assistant secretary for education in the Department of Health, Education and Welfare. She has received numerous honorary degrees and awards in recognition of her work.

"Dr. Berry is a very dynamic speaker and she has an enormous amount of knowledge to share regarding human rights," Blue said. "I look forward to her sharing that knowledge with the university and the Huntington community."

Her presentation at Marshall is being sponsored by the Minority Students' Office, Delta Sigma Theta Sorority, Inc., and the Marshall University Student Government Association.

Classical pianist Natalie Hinderas will present an informal discussion at the piano on "Women and the Arts" at Marshall University on Monday, Feb. 9, at 10 a.m. in Smith Hall Room 150.

Ms. Hinderas has built a reputation for pioneering the music of black classical artists through performances, lectures and narrations from the stage. She has emerged as an artist of international stature and has been called "one of the great pianists of our era" by the San Francisco Chronicle.

She has performed as a soloist with the Philadelphia Orchestra, the New York Philharmonic, the San Francisco Symphony, the Los Angeles Philharmonic, and the symphonies of Detroit, Chicago, Pittsburgh and Miami, and has performed major recitals throughout the United States, Asia, Europe and Africa.

A professor of music at Temple University, Ms. Hinderas has performed as a soloist with the Philadelphia Orchestra, the New York Philharmonic, the San Francisco Symphony, the Los Angeles Philharmonic, and the symphonies of Detroit, Chicago, Pittsburgh and Miami, and has performed major recitals throughout the United States, Asia, Europe and Africa.

Teacher recruitment consortium scheduled

Representatives from 115 school systems will be on the Marshall University campus to interview prospective teachers on Wednesday, March 4, from 8 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. in Memorial Student Center, according to Linda Olesen, assistant director of career planning and placement at Marshall.

"Marshall, Ohio University and Rio Grande College formed a Teachers' Recruitment Consortium three years ago in order to sponsor such massive programs," said Ms. Olesen. "This approach is popular with both students and employers because of the convenience of having everyone together in one central location."

Last year representatives from school systems as far away as California, Florida and Delaware attended the recruitment consortium, and Ms. Olesen said the attendance should be as good this year.

Graduating seniors and alumni from Marshall, Ohio University and Rio Grande are eligible to participate in the daylong program and arrange interviews with a number of school systems.

The deadline for registering for the recruitment consortium will be Thursday, Feb. 5. Students and alumni must file their credentials and references with the MU Placement Center and register by that date to be eligible to participate.

To register or obtain further details contact the Marshall University Career Planning and Placement Center, 696-2371.

Sesquicentennial school competition will be held

Marshall University will sponsor a School Competition in Writing, Art and Photography for students in grades 7-9 and 10-12 as part of its 1877 Sesquicentennial Celebration.

The theme for the competition will be "One Hundred Fifty Years of Value in Education."

Students will be asked to write essays, poems and short stories and submit art works and photographs on one of the following subjects which deal with the past, present and future: "Memories of Marshall: What was Life Like at Marshall in the Past?"; "Impressions of Marshall: What has Marshall University Influenced Your Future?" and "What will Marshall University be Like in the Year 2000?"

First place winners in each field will receive $50.

second place winners will receive $25 and third place winners will receive $10.

Lynne Mayer, assistant to the president at Marshall and coordinator of the competition, said students who would like to participate in the competition may contact her if they have questions or wish to visit the campus to meet and interview faculty and staff members or students, or research subjects in the university's library.

"If a student is interested in a particular subject or field, I will be glad to arrange an interview on the campus with a faculty or staff member in their area of interest," said Ms. Mayer. "Campus tours also can be arranged and a video of campus activities will be available by contacting the Admissions Office at 696-3160."

Submissions must be postmarked by Feb. 27 in order to be eligible and should be sent, along with an official entry form, to the Sesquicentennial School Competition, Marshall University, Huntington, W.Va. 25701. Entries also may be turned in at the university's Public Safety and Security Office on Fifth Avenue.

Winning entries will be compiled in a publication and sent to all winners and participating schools. Winners will be announced during the university's Alumni Banquet on April 25.

To obtain entry forms or further details contact Ms. Mayer, director of planning and assistant to the president at Marshall University, 696-6796.

Overseas positions available

The Overseas Programs Department of Boston University is seeking visiting faculty to serve one-year appointments in Europe, according to Dr. Clair W. Matz, coordinator of Marshall University's Center for International Studies.

Matz said each semester approximately 1,200 students enroll at 55 sites in Germany, Belgium, England, Scotland, France, Italy, the Netherlands and Spain. "If you are due a sabbatical or other leave of absence, such an appointment may be right for you," said Matz.

Participants must be a United States citizen, hold a doctorate or terminal degree, have graduate teaching experience and must have demonstrated teaching skill in the discipline.

To obtain further details contact the Boston University Overseas Program, 143 Bay State Road, Boston, Mass. 02215, 617-353-3028, or the Marshall Center for International Studies, Old Main Room 320-L, 696-6412.
