Six faculty members receive NEH funds

Six Marshall University faculty members have been awarded funds for summer study and research by the National Endowment for the Humanities, Dr. Noel J. Richards, MU vice president for academic affairs, has announced.

They are Dr. Bruce Ardinger, assistant professor of English and writing director; Dr. Paul A. Balshaw, professor of music; Dr. Bradford R. DeVos, associate professor of music; Dr. Dolores W. Jacome, assistant professor of modern languages; Dr. John W. Mead, associate professor of music, and Dr. Stephen Winn, assistant professor of sociology/anthropology.

Mead, who earned his Doctor of Musical Arts degree from the University of Kentucky, received a summer research grant to study logs and journals of 19th Century sailing ships. He will be seeking verse and songs to expand and update a compilation of whaling songs prepared previously by Gale Huntington.

The remaining five faculty members have been awarded fellowships to attend seminars for college teachers for eight weeks this summer.

Ardinger will study "The Functions of Discourse in Science and Literature" at Michigan State University. The seminar will be conducted by Professor Fred E. Carlisle. Ardinger, who joined Marshall's faculty in 1971, earned his Ph.D. degree from Kent State University.

Balshaw, who holds a Doctor of Musical Arts degree, from the Eastman School of Music, will study "The Oratorio in Germany: 1775-1875" at the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill with Dr. Howard Smither. Balshaw has been at Marshall since 1965.

A specialist in music history, DeVos will study "Music in Medieval Life and Culture" with Professor Richard Hoppins at Ohio State University. Joining Marshall's faculty in 1967, DeVos holds a Ph.D. degree from Boston University.

25 summer research grants are awarded

The Marshall University Research Board has awarded 25 faculty members Summer Research Grants of $1,200 each,

Dr. Paul D. Stewart, board chairman and MU Graduate School dean, has announced.

The recipients were honored Wednesday (May 3) at the Research Board's annual dinner meeting at Memorial Student Center which featured Dr. Morris L. Norfleet, Morehead (Ky.) State University president, as speaker. His topic was "Faculty Research: Mental Exercise or for Real."

Committee election results are announced

Results of the faculty election to fill expired terms on university committees have been announced by the faculty secretary Robert H. Eddins.

A total of 271 ballots were cast, according to the registrar. Francis Aldred, professor of history, was re-elected as Marshall's representative to the Board of Regents Advisory Council of Faculty.

Elected to committee seats were:

Student Conduct and Welfare--Leo Imperi, Music Department.

Athletic Committee--Mary Marshall, HPER; William Westbrook, sociology.

Public Relations and Publications--Elizabeth Barker, nursing education; Robert Barnett, HPER, and Hymen Hart, English.

Memorial Student Center Board--Lorraine Duke, English.

Hearing Committee, professor rank--Joan Adkins and Robert Gerke, English; Edwin Cubby, social studies, and Jack Jervis, curriculum and foundations.

Hearing Committee, associate professor rank--Daniel Babb, chemistry; Carolyn Karr, social studies, and John Meade, music.

Hearing Committee, assistant professor rank--Dolores Jacome, modern languages; Mary Marshall, HPER, and Donna Spindel, history.

Hearing Committee, instructor rank--John Baker, English; Rod O'Donnell, HPER, and Kathryn Roberts, nursing education.

Faculty Service--Robert Maddox, history.

Commencement and Honorary Degree--Frank Riddell, social studies; Carl Johnson, curriculum and foundations, and Claire Horton, sociology/anthropology.

Receiving grants for summer research work were: Dean A. Adkins, assistant professor of biological sciences; Dr. Joan Adkins, professor of English; Dr. Phillip Balsmeier, associate professor of management; Dr. Robert Barnett, assistant professor of health, physical education and recreation; Dr. James Bruce, assistant professor of political science; Dr. Leonard Deutsch, assistant professor of English;

Dr. David Duke, assistant professor of history; Dr. Michael Galgano, associate professor of history; Dr. Robert Gerke, professor of English; Dr. Mary Hight, assistant professor of biological sciences; Dr. Guru Kademani, associate professor of management; Dr. John Larson, associate professor of chemistry; John McKernan, assistant professor of English;

Dr. Steven Mewaldt, assistant professor of psychology; Dr. John Plott, associate professor of philosophy; Dr. Howard Price, associate professor of chemistry; Dr. Darrell Schmidt, assistant professor of mathematics; Dr. Michael Seidel, assistant professor of biological sciences; Dr. Karen Simpkins, assistant professor of sociology/anthropology; Dr. Katherine Simpkins, associate professor of curriculum and foundations; Dr. Howard Slaatte, professor of philosophy; Dr. Donna Spindel, assistant professor of history; Dr. Wayne Taylor, associate professor of health, physical education and recreation; Dr. Warren Wooden, associate professor of English, and Dr. David Woodward, professor of history.

Applications for the awards were solicited last fall and selection was made earlier this spring by faculty committees established by the research board.

Also recognized during the dinner were faculty members who had received grants from outside sources during the 1977-78 academic year.

Cultural events head appointed

Mrs. Nancy Payne Hindsley has been appointed coordinator of cultural events at Marshall University, Dr. Richard G. Fisher, vice president for student affairs, has announced.

In her new position, Mrs. Hindsley will have direct responsibility for operation of the Marshall Artists Series, a broad program designed to bring cultural enrichment to Marshall students and to the people of the region.

A member of the Marshall staff since 1972, Mrs. Hindsley has been serving as advisor for student activities and cultural events.

"Nancy Hindsley has been extremely successful in developing the student activities office and in working with all elements of the community and the student body," Fisher said. "As supervisor of the former Artists Series advisor, she took on the additional responsibility of direct operation of the Artists Series when he resigned several months ago. She has done an excellent job in maintaining that program.

"Since we consider the Artists Series to be of extreme importance to the cultural life of the campus and the entire region, we have asked Mrs. Hindsley to become the full-time coordinator of cultural events in order to further strengthen the program," Fisher added.

The change will mean a slight modification of the Division of Student Affairs organization. Mrs. Hindsley's former position is being changed to that of coordinator of student activities and organizations. The university now is advertising for a person to fill that position, according to Mary-Ann Thomas, associate dean for student life.

Dr. Lloyd to study in Greece this summer

A Marshall University teacher is one of 40 educators selected to study in Greece this summer at The American School of Classical Studies.

Dr. Charles O. Lloyd, assistant professor of classical studies, will participate in the American School's summer session, June 17-Aug. 1, in Athens with field trips to archaeological sites throughout Greece.

The program is designed to provide scholars of all ages the opportunity to gain first-hand knowledge of the archaeological sites and to work under experts in the field.

Lloyd, a Huntington native who joined Marshall's faculty in 1972, will be studying with secondary school teachers, college and university teachers as well as graduate and undergraduate students.

The class will study sites representing various periods of Greek civilization, including Pre-Historic, Mycenaean, and Classical.

Lloyd also had the opportunities to participate in two National Endowment for the Humanities sponsored seminars: "Greek Values, Greek Society and the Interpretation of Greek Texts" at the University of Chicago or "Rome and the Sea" at the American Academy in Rome.

New York City gallery to show Cornfelds' work

A Marshall University assistant professor of art and his wife will show their work in a New York City gallery this month.

Wall hangings by Michael and Melissa Cornfeld will be on display May 5-31 at Mirage Galleries, Ltd., 132 Greene St., in New York's Soho District.

Twenty pieces will be exhibited with representation equally divided between the two artists, who also own and operate an art shop, My Mother's Warp, in Huntington.

"Most of the pieces are rather large," Cornfeld said, "reflecting our interest in textures. We've done a lot with double weave techniques and twisting and overlapping strips for depth," he explained. "Our work is somewhat sculptural because it is in relief."

Many of the hangings are outgrowths of Cornfeld's 1975-76 sabbatical leave, when he and his wife studied textile and fabric design at the Liverpool Polytechnic in England where they worked at tapestry looms and dobby (multi-harness) looms.

A Marshall faculty member since 1967, Cornfeld earned his Master of Fine Arts degree from Carnegie Institute of Technology.

The Cornfelds have also exhibited their work in the Huntington Galleries, Marietta (Ohio) Crafts National, Mint Museum in Charlotte, N.C., Helen Winnemore Gallery of Contemporary Crafts, Columbus, Ohio, and elsewhere.

Faculty and staff achievements, activities...

DR. RICHARD O. COMFORT, professor of sociology/anthropology, is one of 60 persons selected to participate in the GIST Project, sponsored by the National Interfaith Coalition on Aging. Funded by the Administration on Aging, the 15-month project is designed to increase participants' knowledge of gerontology, to improve university and seminary curricula relative to this area, and to increase gerontological education within the religious sector. As a participant, Dr. Comfort will attend several conferences and will be provided materials on how to improve curricula here.

DR. STEPHEN WINN, assistant professor of sociology/anthropology, has had a paper, "The Nature of Swedish Corporatism: Toward the Assessment of Competing Views," accepted for presentation at the annual meeting of the North Central Sociological Association to be held in Cincinnati May 18-20.

DR. HOWARD C. PRICE, associate professor of chemistry, and members of the Marshall Chapter of the American Chemical Society--Eddie Bragg, J.D. Burdette, Steve Crum and Bob Hess--presented a lecture-demonstration on "Chromatography, Cyrogenics and Cryptics" at Symmes Valley and Huntington East high schools on April 20 and 28.

DR. ROBERT CASE, assistant professor of health, physical education and recreation and departmental chairman, has been selected as one of the 1978 Outstanding Young Men of America. The 1978 edition of Outstanding Young Men of America will include a brief biographical sketch of Dr. Case and a record of his accomplishments.

DR. WARREN W. WOODEN, associate professor of English, is the author of an article entitled "Michael Drayton's 'Nymphidia': A Renaissance Children's Classic?" in Children's Literature, vol. 6 (1977), pp. 34-41.

DR. THOMAS MANAKKIL, associate professor of physics, participated in the second of the two sessions of a short course on "Black Holes and Cosmology" at the University of Maryland, March 23-24. The course was conducted jointly by the National Science Foundation and the American Association for the Advancement of Science.

DR. DAVID FIELDS, assistant professor of mathematics, spoke on "Pythagorean Triples" at Winfield High School on April 20.

DR. W.C. SISARCICK, associate professor of mathematics, gave a talk entitled "Careers in Actuarial Science" on April 13 to students at Gallia Academy High School, Gallipolis, Ohio.

GEORGE M. FRISCH, Community College occupational safety and health program coordinator, is serving as a discussion leader of a refresher course for safety specialists, who will be taking the Certified Professional Safety Examination. The workshop is sponsored by the American Society of Safety Engineers.

DR. DERYL R. LEAMING, director of the School of Journalism, is one of 14 American journalism educators selected to participate in a week-long magazine seminar in New York City. The seminar, which begins May 8, is sponsored by the American Society of Magazine Editors. Leaming will meet with senior editorial staff members from various magazines, including Time, Fortune, People, Ms., Glamour and Popular Science.

Seminars offer enrichment...

"Borges and the New Fiction in Spanish America" is the seminar topic to be studied by Dr. Jacome at Princeton University with Professor James E. Irby. Dr. Jacome, a faculty member since 1972, received her Ph.D. degree from the University of Kentucky.

The University of California at Los Angeles is where Winn will study "Culture and Politics in Europe During the Period of the Liberal Crisis: 1890-1933" with Dr. Robert Wohl of UCLA's History Department. Winn came to Marshall in 1974 and holds a Ph.D. degree from Washington State University.

"These summer seminars offer an invaluable enrichment experience through which teachers not only are able to increase their knowledge, but also are given the opportunity to study under noted authorities in their fields," the vice president said.

Excused absences...

Absences have been excused by the respective college deans for the following:

APRIL 25-28--Linda Ray, Jolinda Whitten and Terri Bartlett.

APRIL 28-29--Women's softball team members.

Tennis for fun class will be offered by CC

"Tennis for Fun," a non-credit class designed to help people learn basic tennis skills, will be offered from May 15-26 by the Community College of Marshall University.

Two class times are available to accommodate various individual schedules, according to Robert L. Lawson, continuing education director of the Community College.

Rod O'Donnell, MU physical education and health instructor, will teach a class Mondays through Fridays from 10 a.m. to noon. An evening class from 5 to 7 p.m. Mondays through Fridays will be taught by Don Williams, head of Marshall's physical education division.

Basic terms such as volley, backhand and lob will be explained and demonstrated.

Participants are asked to bring their own tennis rackets, tennis shoes and one can of tennis balls. They should bring the equipment the first day and meet in Room 123, Gullickson Hall, to register and pay the $25 fee.

Interested persons are asked to reserve a place in class by calling Lawson at (304) 696-3646 because a limit of 16 players per class has been set, Lawson said.

Special summer school for LD youth available

Marshall University's Curriculum and Foundations Department will sponsor again this year a learning disabilities summer school for elementary and junior high level students.

The program, scheduled June 14-July 15, will be offered weekday mornings at Meadows Elementary School, located at 16th Street and Washington Boulevard.

Each child will receive one-to-one assistance by a graduate student in Marshall's learning disabilities program, according to Dr. Barbara Guyer, coordinator of Marshall's learning disabilities program.

Registration for the summer program ends Friday, May 12. Additional information and registration forms may be obtained by calling Dr. Guyer, 2340.

MU first state host to national speech event

The Marshall University Speech Department is hosting the 105th meeting of the Interstate Oratorical Association this weekend (May 4-6) in Memorial Student Center.

This is the first time this contest has been held in West Virginia, according to Maureen Milicia, MU assistant professor of speech. "The Interstate is one of the oldest traditional speaking events," she said.

Approximately 36 students from 18 states will be competing for first and second placings as top college orators. Representing Marshall will be Connie Day, Chesapeake, Ohio, senior.

Preliminary rounds begin at 9 a.m. on Friday. Semi-final competition is scheduled for 9 a.m. Saturday and the championship rounds will start at 1:30 p.m. The awards ceremony will be held at 3 p.m.

The competition rounds and the awards program are open to the public, according to Miss Milicia.

At a dinner Friday evening, MU President Robert B. Hayes and Dr. Dorothy Johnson, Speech Department chairman, will welcome the oratorical contest participants to the campus.

Want to learn to drive? OAS seeking non-drivers

Individuals wishing to learn how to drive an automobile will have an opportunity to do so this summer and next fall through the Marshall University Department of Occupational, Adult and Safety Education.

As part of its Traffic Safety and Driver Education course, the department accepts a limited number of non-drivers who then are instructed by the driver education student teachers.

This summer, the course will be conducted Monday through Friday from 10 a.m. to 11:45 a.m. in Harris Hall Room 446, along with two hours of driving each week.

The driver training is open to community residents as well as Marshall students, according to Dr. Allan Stern, course instructor. Individuals wishing to learn to drive must register at the university for Safety Education (SED) 385, section 1482 as an audit student. The fee will be $36.50 and enrollment will be limited to 20 students.

The same course will be offered during the Fall Term, meeting three days a week from noon to 1:45 p.m.

Interested persons may obtain details from Dr. Stern at 696-2381.
