Evaluation task force seeks suggestions

The Task Force on the Evaluation of Academic Personnel requests that faculty and students provide the group with general concepts or specific suggestions for the Task Force to consider.

The following is a statement of purpose adopted earlier by the Task Force which should be a guide for setting down your thoughts:

"The Task Force on Evaluation is charged with devising systematic procedures to gather information which shall be used as the sole set of criteria: (1) for retention, promotion, tenure and salary determination; (2) for development of academic personnel—faculty, chairpersons, deans and the academic vice president; and (3) to insure equitable treatment of all academic personnel in regards to items (1) and (2)."

Written comments should be directed to the Task Force chairman, Dr. Paul D. Stewart, Graduate School dean, by Sept. 20.

Other members of the Task Force and the constituency represented include: Bonnie Douglas, Nursing; Wayne Elmore, Science; Walter Felty, Council of Chairmen; Guru Kademani, Business; Harold Lewis, Education; Stuart Thomas, Faculty Personnel Committee; Donna Spindel, Liberal Arts; Cathy Bingham, Community College and Rex Johnson, Student Body.

"Please feel free to speak to any of us in addition to making your written comments," the dean said.

NIBS head to speak on Thursday

Gene C. Brewer of Washington, D.C., president of the National Institute of Building Sciences, will be among the speakers for a one-day seminar on "Area Building Needs" to be held at Marshall University on Thursday, Sept. 7.

Also appearing on the program will be state labor leaders, area builders, and city, state and federal building officials.

Sponsored by Marshall's College of Business and the Home Economics Department in cooperation with the Woman's Club of Huntington and the Junior Department, Woman's Club of Huntington, the seminar is open to Tri-State Area builders, architects, engineers, building code officials, people who work with federal building programs and consumer representatives. Also in attendance will be representatives from the Governor's Task Force on Building.

The program has been developed to provide NIBS with local input on the building industry's needs, according to Dr. Carole A. Vickers, MU professor of home economics, who is one of two Huntington area women named to the Institute.

Dr. Vickers serves on the executive committee of NIBS Consultative Committee. Mrs. Charlene Sizemore of Huntington is a member of the NIBS board of directors.

Something new for some of you

Graphic Services' Campus East Copy Center opened during the summer and is providing duplicating services to the eastern portion of the campus.

Georgia Childers, Graphic Services supervisor, said the new copy center is utilizing an operator-controlled Total Copy System to produce copies of originals. A Total Copy System is a combination of an electrostatic copier which makes masters for running on an offset duplicator. "This system has proved to be our most acceptable method for producing copies in the 11 to 500 copy range," Mrs. Childers said.

The copy center is located in the basement of the Community College at 18th Street and Virginia Avenue and is reached most easily via the 18th Street elevator.

"This is the first time people in our area have had an opportunity to discuss their concerns about the building industry with NIBS top personnel," Dr. Vickers said.

NIBS was established by congress in 1974 as a nonprofit and nongovernmental agency to give the building industry the opportunity to set and implement its own performance standards.

Following a 9 a.m. registration in Memorial Student Center Room 2W22 and a welcome by MU President Robert B. Hayes, there will be a panel discussion on "What Are Our Building Needs" with Dr. Vickers as moderator.

Appearing on the panel will be Joseph A. Kowalski, assistant to the Huntington planning director; Jeff Herholdt, director of the Fuel and Energy Office, West Virginia Office of Economic and Community Development; John Paul Childers, executive vice president, Childers Construction Co.; William G. Powers, president, Huntington Trust and Savings Bank; Joseph W. Powell, president, West Virginia Labor Federation, AFL-CIO, and Jane Theiling, director of Charleston's Consumer Protection Department.

The NIBS chief executive will speak at the 12.30 p.m. luncheon with Dr. Sara Anderson, MU College of Business dean, presiding.

Persons interested in attending the seminar should contact Mrs. Sizemore at (304) 523-4558. Seminar attendance will be limited to the first 100 persons registering.

Faculty/staff party

All current, retired or former faculty and staff members and their guests are invited by President and Mrs. Robert B. Hayes to the Faculty/Staff Reception and Dance to be held Friday, Sept. 8, from 8 to 11 p.m. in the Multi-Purpose Room, Memorial Student Center. Music will be provided by the Gentlemen III.

ANNOUNCEMENTS...

The Athletic Department is looking for part-time coaches to assist with the men's and women's basketball programs as well as a head coach for the women's golf team. Anyone interested in coaching these sports should contact Joe McMullen or Linda Holmes, 3190.

DANFORTH NOMINATIONS

Faculty members are urged to nominate seniors or have seniors contact Dr. Paul Stewart, Graduate School dean, in order to be considered for a Danforth Fellowship 1979-80. Nominations should be in to the dean by Sept. 20. "Outstanding students, primarily in the arts and sciences disciplines, who aspire to the doctorate for college teaching are the persons being sought," the dean said.

NEWCOMERS

New to the campus are:

ROBERTA MITTELMAN, administrative assistant, Vice President for Administration; DOLORES L. COOK, admission/records officer II, College of Liberal Arts; VINCENT D. PEREGO, ROBERT N. HUFF JR., DANNY L. PARSONS, DOUGLAS W. SHAULIS and ROCCO A. NARCISE, police officers, Security; SAMUEL J. AQUINO, storekeeper, Receiving Department, and LAWRENCE W. BOTTS, building service worker, Plant Operations.

Welcome to Marshall!!

Sally Ann Howes cast as 'Sound of Music' lead

Sally Ann Howes, British and American stage and film star, will play the leading role in a lavish new production of "The Sound of Music," one of the highlights of the Marshall University Artists Series' 1978-79 season.

Mrs. Nancy P. Hindsley, Marshall cultural events coordinator, said she was informed this week of the selection of Miss Howes for the role of Maria von Trapp in the musical production.

Miss Howes has starred on Broadway in "What Makes Sammy Run?" and "My Fair Lady." During the past season she starred in "Hans Andersen" at the London Palladium. She is best known in this country for her role opposite Dick Van Dyke in the popular movie "Chitty, Chitty Bang Bang."

"The Sound of Music" will be staged in the Keith-Albee Theater next April 4 as the closing event on the community segment of the Artists Series season. The season will open Oct. 19 with a "Viennese Gala" by the Tonkuenstler Orchestra of Vienna, followed Nov. 20 by a Pittsburgh Ballet performance of "The Nutcracker." The Columbus Symphony, one of the nation's top regional orchestras, will appear Feb. 20.

"The Sound of Music" has enjoyed great popularity, running nearly four years in New York and sweeping the Tony Awards in the 1959-60 season. The show toured for three years and broke existing records in London with a 5½-year run at the Palladium. A motion picture version of the story ranks high among the movies' all-time audience totals.

Mrs. Hindsley said nearly all of the 1,200 available season memberships for the community segment of the Artists Series have been sold. Most of the remaining seats are located in the balcony. Balcony seats for the season are priced at $22, with a special $11 rate available to young people. Orchestra and loge seats for the season are $28. All seats are reserved. Season memberships may be obtained by calling the Artists Series office, 696-6656.

The university is a corporate member of AAUW. Any woman who holds a baccalaureate degree from an accredited school is eligible for membership.

ASHLAND ART SHOW

Mrs. June Kilgore, associate professor of art and departmental chairman, has a one-man art show at the Ashland (Ky.) Area Art Gallery which will continue through Sept. 14.

Mrs. Kilgore has 26 pieces on display, including etchings, drawings and paintings. Gallery hours are 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. weekdays and special showings may be arranged through Jeanne Broughton, the curator, for individuals or groups.

Justice Dept. trial attorney to head legal assistant program

A trial attorney for the U.S. Department of Justice has been named coordinator of the Legal Assistant Program of the Community College of Marshall University.

Daniel Patrick O'Hanlon of Washington, D. C., who has worked for the Justice Department since 1974, will begin his duties this fall.

His appointment was announced by Dr. Paul D. Hines, vice president and dean of the Community College.

"Mr. O'Hanlon's experience with legal assistants will bring a valuable asset to the program," Hines said. "We are pleased that an attorney with his background has accepted this position to develop a quality program."

The Legal Assistant Program prepares graduates as paralegal specialists who work under the direct supervision of an attorney. The program, begun in 1976, was developed in cooperation with The West Virginia State Bar in accordance with American Bar Association guidelines.

O'Hanlon, 30, earned his bachelor's degree from Marquette University in 1970. He received his Juris Doctor degree cum laude from Arizona State University in 1973.

He was a special prosecutor with the U.S. Attorney's Office in Washington in 1975 and was a law clerk for the U.S. District Court in Tucson, Ariz., in 1973 and 1974.

His academic honors include winning the American College of Trial Lawyers Jury Summation Competition, the Order of Barristers Award for outstanding achievement in oral advocacy, and high scholastic honors.

He is married to the former Kathleen Estes of Tucson. The family will reside in Huntington.
