12-8-1978

Marshall University News Letter, December 8, 1978

Office of University Relations

Follow this and additional works at: http://mds.marshall.edu/oldmu_news_letter

Recommended Citation
http://mds.marshall.edu/oldmu_news_letter/92

This Article is brought to you for free and open access by the Marshall Publications at Marshall Digital Scholar. It has been accepted for inclusion in Marshall University News Letter 1972-1986 by an authorized administrator of Marshall Digital Scholar. For more information, please contact zhangj@marshall.edu, martj@marshall.edu.
More faculty and staff achievements, activities

(continued from page 3)

faculty members attending the meeting were DR. DOROTHY HICKS, DR. WAYNE TAYLOR, and DR. ROBERT CASE, associate professors; MRS. ELLA SMITH and JACK COOK, assistant professors.

DR. WARREN W. WOODEN, associate professor of English, is the author of a review of James E. Ruoff’s "Crewell’s Handbook of Tudor and Stuart Literature" in the current issue of The Literary Research Newsletter, Vo. 3, no. 3 (Summer, 1978), pp. 135-137.

DANIEL F. O’ROANON, Community College assistant professor, is the author of "Fossils and Fossiers," published in Well-Being Magazine (Vol. 34), a West Coast-based publication about alternative health methods.

ROBERT L. LAWSON, Community College administrative assistant, participated in the West Virginia Continuing Education Conference held Nov. 9-10 at Camp Virgil Tate.

DR. WILLIAM M. SCHMITT, assistant professor of Family Practice, attended the Cook County Post-Graduate Course on "Advances in Neurology," held Nov. 12-18 in Chicago.

DR. FREDERICK D. HICKS, associate professor of anthropology, attended the 35th meeting of the Southeastern Archeological Conference, held Nov. 9-11 in Knoxville, Tenn., where he consulted with archeologists on methods for strengthening Marshall’s course offerings in archaeology and prehistoric anthropology.

DR. ROBERT C. OLSON, professor of speech, conducted a workshop on "Coordinating Services for Children with Speech, Language or Hearing Problems" for the special education teachers and speech-language pathologists in Fayette County on Dec. 6.

DR. EUGENE Q. HOAK, professor of speech, presented a program on American humor at the Nov. 9 meeting of the Fellowship Club of St. Luke United Methodist Church. On Nov. 12, Hoak spoke on a collection of poems on the topic "Hi, Ho—Modern China Says ‘Hello.’" He also completed the seventh of his education-related murals recently, one commemorating the work of former Beverly Hills Junior High School choral director Mrs. Irene Parsons. It was the fourth of his to be painted for the school. Among his other murals are: one in the Shakespeare Room of the Marshall Library and another one, designed for teaching purposes, in the Latin Room at Huntington High School.

DR. WILLIAM A. MCCOWELL, associate professor of counseling and rehabilitation, presented a program, "The Hospice: An Approach to Dealing with the Dying," to the Regional Funeral Directors Association on Nov. 15. He also spoke to the Crooked-Kenova PTA on "Communication: The Way to Effective Relating" on Nov. 20.

Note: Items to be published in "Faculty and Staff Achievements and Activities" should be submitted to the Office of University Relations so later than one month after the activity or achievement.

members of the two groups, summarized the sense of the meeting as follows:

"There appeared to be a general or majority consensus that institutional budgetary processes should involve appropriate faculty input; included in this notion was faculty representation on the institutional team making budget presentations to the Board of Advisers.

"It was understood that [the Chancellor] was to supplyensusative school data and request institutional reactions to what the data reveals. (Paid date is now being constricted.)

"Discussion of panel statement processes included endowment of faculty involvement.

Frank Aldred, advisory council representative

Deadline nearing

Applications for Summer 1979 Marshall University Research Grants must be submitted to the Graduate Office by Dec. 18.

Directory distribution slated to start Monday

Copies of the Faculty-Staff Directory for 1978-79 will be distributed to faculty and staff members of the university beginning Monday, Nov. 11, beginning Monday. University personnel desiring copies may pick them up from the office.

Student directories also are ready for distribution, according to Rhonda D’Egidio, student activities/organizations advisor. Student directories may be obtained at the main desk and in the Memorial Student Center lobby. Multi-copy requests should be made to the Student Government Office, Ms. D’Egidio said.

NSHA members help

The Marshall University Chapter, National Student Speech and Hearing Association, and the two area service groups to sponsor a Christmas party for handicapped children Saturday, Dec. 9, from 2 to 4 p.m. at the Knights of Columbus, 1429 6th Avenue.

The Marshall students will assist the Cabell-Wayne Easter Seal Society and the Knights of Columbus in arranging for the party which will be highlighted by an appearance of Santa Claus, clowns and a magician. Gifts will be distributed to the children.

Dr. Paul Lutz named to development position

Dr. Paul F. Lutz of Logan has been appointed assistant director of development at Marshall University, effective Dec. 18. He will succeed Edwin N. Vimon, who resigned earlier to enter private business.

Announcement of the appointment was made by Dr. Bernard Queen, director of development and executive director of the Marshall University Foundation, Inc.

Holder of two degrees from Marshall, Lutz presently is an assistant professor of geography at Southern West Virginia Community College in Logan.

A native of Ironston, Ohio, Lutz graduated from Huntington High School in 1961 and received his A.A.M. degree in history from Marshall in 1964. He earned his M.A. degree in history from Marshall and his Ph.D. in history from West Virginia University in 1977.

He began his teaching career in 1970 as an instructor in the Marshall branches at Logan and Williamson. The branch. The branch became the independent West Virginia Community College.

He also was a part-time instructor at West Virginia University while earning his degrees.

He has served three years as the Southern West Virginia Community College faculty’s elected representative to the West Virginia Faculty Advisory Council. He also served as chairman of the Faculty Senate’s Salary Committee. He has been active in community programs in Logan and is a member of a number of professional and civic organizations.

In his new role at Marshall, Lutz will be involved in the raising and management of private funds to enhance the university’s programs.

"I am very pleased that Paul Lutz has agreed to accept this challenging new assignment," Queen said. "His knowledge of Marshall and his objectives, his outgoing personality and his positive approach will be real assets to the Office of Development and to the Marshall Foundation."

Lutz is married to the former Mary Seaman and they are the parents of two children.

MARBHALL UNIVERSITY

OFFICE OF UNIVERSITY RELATIONS • NEWS BUREAU • MARSHALL UNIVERSITY • HUNTINGTON, WEST VIRGINIA 25701

Merger could close MU meat school doors

A legislative subcommittee’s recommendation that the first two years of all medical education programs in the state be consolidated at West Virginia University has dealt a “severe blow” to the Marshall University School of Medicine, according to Dr. Warren W. Coon, dean of the school. "The merger of both teachers and students is a viable goal, but it is up to Marshall to prepare to admit our third class," he noted. That the first group of students admitted to the Marshall School of Medicine after Lutz’ appointment to faculty was the last Friday, Dec. 18, students selected for the third class. They are scheduled to begin their studies next September.

"Also, we have just been invited by a team from the Liaison Committee on Medical Education (LCME), which will make its report to the full accrediting committee shortly," Coon said. "Any change in our current pattern would jeopardize accreditation of this school."

"The LCME would not accredit two-year schools of medicine. Acceptance of the subcommittee’s resolution would, in effect, close our doors," the dean warned. "The most we could hope for would be to have a branch of WVU here, similar to the Charleston program."

Members of the subcommittee met last month with LCME officials in Washington, D.C. According to published accounts, the subcommittee’s report will be submitted to the full LCME soon.

Students’ class project wins Stuart competition

Eight former and current students, who teamed up to write "Vulcan – A Novel Approach," will share the $200 first price prize in the 1978 Jette Stuart Awards competition. The awards, sponsored by the Second National Bank of Ashland, Ky., and named for the distinguished regional author from Jackson County, are administered at Marshall by the Office of Student Affairs and encourage writing excellence on Appalachian themes, according to Dr. W.E. Mitchell, MU professor of English and department chairman.

The awards were presented by G.B. Johnson, president of the Second National Bank; and the awards were held at the university recently David Peyton, staff writer for the Huntington Herald-Dispatch, was the guest speaker.

Sharig first place honors are Sandy Hatten, Terry Curtis and Pia Cummings, all of Huntington; Rick Ramuli, St. Albans; and Jack Thomas, Hamlin.

Jette Stuart, who was the great grandmother of the late General Henry W. "White," White, Hamlin, and Nancy Nelson, Charleston.

The place effort was a class project for a political novel course taught by Elmire Taylor, MU assistant professor of English. The students visited the McCoy County community PARTY TIME!

A Christmas party for all university employees—current and retired—and their families will be held by President and Mrs. Robert B. Haynes on Thursday, Dec. 20, beginning at 8 p.m. in the Old Main搂room. All regular employees and members of the faculty will be honored and appreciated during this event.

"We encourage you to attend," Haynes said. "We are pleased to have this opportunity to recognize and thank those who have contributed so much to the university over the past year."

Thursday’s festivities will feature a complimentary dinner and a program of music and entertainment. There will be music, light refreshments and an appearance by Santa Claus.

"The event will offer an excellent opportunity to visit with friends and colleagues and to celebrate the Christmas season," Haynes said. "We look forward to seeing you there."
Faculty and staff achievements, activities...

DR. BERTRAM W. GROSS, assistant professor of speech, attended the meetings of the Speech Communication Association and the American Forensic Association, held in Minneapolis on Nov. 25.

DR. ROBERT F. GODFREY, NEAL G. ADKINS and KYLIE G. McMULLEN, associate professors of accounting, HENRY MAUSER, assistant professor of accounting, and C. EDMON PAULEY JR., instructor, attended the annual faculty seminars presented by Arthur Anderson & Co. in Cincinnati on Nov. 7. The speaker, Dr. Arthur Wysit, managing director of the company's Principles Group and professor of accounting at the University of Illinois, discussed development and issues in the accounting profession.

DR. ROBERT D. GLUECK, associate professor of speech, was elected chairman of the regional committee representing legislative councilors from Delaware, District of Columbia, Maryland, Pennsylvania, Virginia and West Virginia, at the American

Frank Byrne named acting sports info head

Frank Byrne, a former assistant sports information director at Southern Methodist University, has been named interim sports information director at Marshall University.

The appointment, effective immediately, was announced today by Athletic Director John H. McMullen.

"We will begin the search for a permanent sports information director immediately," McMullen said, "and we hope to be able to fill the position on a permanent basis by early spring."

McMullen said Frank Giardina will continue to serve as associate director of sports information.

MU library announces holiday/break schedule

The James E. Morrow Library will maintain its regular schedule through Tuesday, Dec. 19. The library's hours during the holiday and semester break will be as follows:

- Monday - Thursday: 8 a.m. - 5 p.m.
- Friday: 8 a.m. - 12 p.m.
- Saturday: CLOSED
- Sunday: CLOSED

Excused absences...

Absences have been excused by the respective college deans for the following:

- NO. 26-Women's Basketball Team
- DECEMBER 13-ANNETTE E. THORN, secretary

NEWCOMERS

New to the campus are:

ANETTE E. CAMPBELL, secretary III, Community College of West Virginia; TERRY WOCZYNSKI, medical lab technician; TERRY KINCAID, clerk. Accounting; BELINDA GRACE PERGER, clerk, Buildings and Grounds; RALPH A. FLORA, grounds labor, Medical School; HARVEY HILL, grounds labor, Maintenance; CLIFFORD DRAN, phlebotomist, Medical School; BASIL CARROLL, building service worker, Plant Operations; and ERIC BLAKELEY, grounds labor, Buildings and Grounds.

Welcome to Marshall!

Use of MU facilities explored by committee

The Physical Facilities and Planning Committee met on Nov. 16. Discussion and recommendations for the naming of Building B was deferred for one week. The scope and make-up of an existing subcommittee set up to deal with the non-parking use of parking facilities were expanded to cover all university facilities used or rented for non-university functions. The University Planning Council draft of the university's Statement of Role and Scope for the Period 1979-1984 was discussed. The next meeting of the committee was set for Dec. 7.

Respectfully submitted,

PHIL THOMAS

Physical Facilities/Planning

Speech and Hearing Association (ASHA) convention Nov. 17-22 in San Francisco. As chairman of the committee, he will serve on the resolutions committee which will draft legislation to be acted upon during the 1979 ASHA convention in Atlanta. Olson is one of two legislative councilors from West Virginia.

LARRY K. BELKNAP, assistant professor of HPER, was awarded professional certification as a registered park and recreation professional in West Virginia during the annual meeting of the West Virginia Recreation and Parks Association, held at Oglebay Park in Wheeling, Nov. 14-17. He also was elected secretary of the association.

MRS. OLIVE HAGER, assistant professor of HPER, was elected president-elect of the West Virginia College Health and Physical Education Association during its annual meeting in Wheeling on Nov. 16-17. DR. DON WILLIAMS, professor of HPER, presented a paper entitled "Coaching Certification" and DR. MARY MARMULA, assistant professor of HPER, discussed "Alternative Careers in Physical Education" at the conference.

DONALD CROUSE, assistant professor of HPER, became vice president of the General Division of the West Virginia Association of Health, Physical Education and Recreation, during the annual meeting at Oglebay Park on Nov. 17-19. DR. BETTY ROBERTS, associate professor of HPER, was a panelist for the discussion of professional preparation in physical education.

DR. ROBERT BARNETT, assistant professor of HPER, and DR. PATRICIA EIDEMAN, assistant professor of HPER, presented research at the meeting. DR. MARY MARMULA, assistant professor of HPER, editor of the WVAPA Journal, distributed copies of the publication to the 250 members attending. Other HPER

(continued on page 4)

Appalachian topics encouraged (continued from page 1)

Tomich, which hoped into national prominence when residents approached Russia for foreign aid to rebuild the only bridge into their community. Each student wrote a chapter. Ms. Taylor said.

Second prize, $100, was awarded to Beverly Childers, Poca, Ohio, for a group of poems and a short story "Flatlander." Honorable mention awards of Jesse Stuart volumes, contributed by Stationers, Inc., were presented to short story writer to Thomas Hughes, Hamlin, for "Dreaming" and "New Neighbors"; Lenore Savage, Flatwood, Ky., for "Fist Time," and Karl Jaid, Kenova, for "Dark Night."

'Thundering Word' team places third at Miami U

Marshall University's "Thundering Word" Individual Events (IE) team placed third among 15 teams competing in the Tournament at Miami University of Oxford, Ohio, last weekend (Dec. 2-3).

Six of the eight team members placed in the final competition, according to Dencil Backus, MU speech instructor and team coach.

Mark Hickman, Lewisburg senior, placed first in poetry and its informative speaking, while Paula Wells, Huntington freshman, took second in informative speaking.

Mark Hickman, Lewisburg senior, placed first in poetry and its informative speaking, while Paula Wells, Huntington freshman, took second in informative speaking.

Fourth place finishes were earned by Carol Proctor, Huntington senior, and team coach.

Six of the eight team members placed in the final competition, according to Dencil Backus, MU speech instructor and team coach.

Mark Hickman, Lewisburg senior, placed first in poetry and its informative speaking, while Paula Wells, Huntington freshman, took second in informative speaking.

Fourth place finishes were earned by Carol Proctor, Huntington senior, and team coach.

The group's resolution, however, would increase costs, he said.

"A capital outlay of nearly $9 million has been projected to gear up West Virginia University's facilities to handle the additional load," Coon said. "At the same time, WVU estimated it would need another $1.8 million annually for its basic sciences programs-$400,000 more than the total cost of the basic science programs at Marshall and the West Virginia College of Osteopathic Medicine.

"This means the state would be spending more money, not less," Coon added. "Perhaps the subcommittee should take another look."

Monday's resolution may have other negative effects, Coon said, including damaging the Marshall school's fund-raising efforts among private foundations.

VA funding jeopardized (continued from page 1)

they were told that if consolidation of the medical schools took place the LCME "may feel that Marshall would then be only another medical school and this alone could rescind accreditation."

Coon noted that the subcommittee's study was initiated to see if costs of the state's medical education programs could be reduced by consolidation. The group's resolution, however, would increase costs, he said.

"A capital outlay of nearly $9 million has been projected to gear up West Virginia University's facilities to handle the additional load," Coon said. "At the same time, WVU estimated it would need another $1.8 million annually for its basic sciences programs-$400,000 more than the total cost of the basic science programs at Marshall and the West Virginia College of Osteopathic Medicine.

"This means the state would be spending more money, not less," Coon added. "Perhaps the subcommittee should take another look."

Monday's resolution may have other negative effects, Coon said, including damaging the Marshall school's fund-raising efforts among private foundations.

VA funding jeopardized (continued from page 1)

they were told that if consolidation of the medical schools took place the LCME "may feel that Marshall would then be only another medical school and this alone could rescind accreditation."

Coon noted that the subcommittee's study was initiated to see if costs of the state's medical education programs could be reduced by consolidation. The group's resolution, however, would increase costs, he said.

"A capital outlay of nearly $9 million has been projected to gear up West Virginia University's facilities to handle the additional load," Coon said. "At the same time, WVU estimated it would need another $1.8 million annually for its basic sciences programs-$400,000 more than the total cost of the basic science programs at Marshall and the West Virginia College of Osteopathic Medicine.

"This means the state would be spending more money, not less," Coon added. "Perhaps the subcommittee should take another look."

Monday's resolution may have other negative effects, Coon said, including damaging the Marshall school's fund-raising efforts among private foundations.

VA funding jeopardized (continued from page 1)

they were told that if consolidation of the medical schools took place the LCME "may feel that Marshall would then be only another medical school and this alone could rescind accreditation."

Coon noted that the subcommittee's study was initiated to see if costs of the state's medical education programs could be reduced by consolidation. The group's resolution, however, would increase costs, he said.

"A capital outlay of nearly $9 million has been projected to gear up West Virginia University's facilities to handle the additional load," Coon said. "At the same time, WVU estimated it would need another $1.8 million annually for its basic sciences programs-$400,000 more than the total cost of the basic science programs at Marshall and the West Virginia College of Osteopathic Medicine.

"This means the state would be spending more money, not less," Coon added. "Perhaps the subcommittee should take another look."

Monday's resolution may have other negative effects, Coon said, including damaging the Marshall school's fund-raising efforts among private foundations.