Ashland Oil gift to aid clinic

Ashland Oil, Inc., Monday presented a gift of $150,000 to Family Care Outpatient Center, an affiliate of the Marshall University School of Medicine.

Announcement of the gift was made by Orin E. Atkins, chairman of the board and chief executive officer of Ashland Oil, during an address to the Huntington Rotary Club. Atkins called Marshall President Robert B. Hayes to the speaker's lectern to present him the $150,000 check.

"Ashland Oil is pleased to be involved in helping develop facilities that will provide needed medical education and family health services to citizens of the Tri-State region," Atkins said. "This project is both positive and imaginative. We hope Ashland Oil's donation will serve as a challenge to others to support this and other worthy projects that contribute to our quality of life. We must also move together to attract and retain the caliber of people needed to deliver these valuable services."

In acknowledging the gift, Hayes noted, "As has been the case so often when Marshall turned to the community for assistance, Ashland Oil and Orin Atkins are in the forefront of this latest effort to provide quality educational programs and other services for our people. Marshall University and this community owe them a deep debt of gratitude for their unyielding support over many years.

An Ashland Oil spokesman said the $150,000 gift was the largest single charitable contribution in the company's history.

Family Care Outpatient Center is being operated in the former Doctors' Memorial Hospital at 1801 Sixth Ave., one block from the Marshall campus, by a non-profit corporation chartered by four Marshall administrators.

Dr. Olen E. Jones Jr., Marshall executive vice president, is serving as president of Family Care Outpatient Center, Inc. The center currently is providing service from 8 a.m. to 8 p.m. seven days a week but eventually will become a 24-hour operation.

WSAZ-TV news film donated by Andrick

See it now:

-John F. Kennedy filing to run in the 1960 West Virginia presidential primary election. . .

-Walt Walowac leading the Marshall Thundering Herd fast break down the basketball court. . .

-Governor William C. Marland addressing a joint session of the West Virginia Legislature. . .

-The hectic hours following the Silver Bridge collapse. . .

These and thousands of other events in the history of the state and region have been captured on film by the cameras of WSAZ-TV over the last quarter-century. Now they are available for viewing by Marshall University students and faculty, as well as researchers elsewhere, through Marshall's James E. Morrow Library.

WSAZ-TV's Huntington news film library, dating back to 1951, has been donated to the Marshall archives by George R. Andrick, general manager of the region's pioneer television station.

Under the arrangement, WSAZ-TV is retaining film from the past five years, and will transfer an additional year's film to the Marshall library annually.

Andrick said WSAZ-TV long has been aware of the film's historical significance and that it must be preserved for use by students and researchers in the future. "Marshall and WSAZ-TV serve generally the same region and I am very pleased we were able to arrange to have the news film housed there," Andrick said.

Marshall President Robert B. Hayes termed the acquisition "highly significant" for Marshall. "For the past two years we have been involved in an exciting oral history project. The gift from WSAZ-TV now provides us with a visual history program. We are delighted that Mr. Andrick and WSAZ-TV selected Marshall as the recipient of this extremely valuable record."

The collection occupies 90 linear feet of special shelving in the library's archives, prepared by members of the university's buildings and grounds staff.

Marshall Director of Libraries Kenneth T. Slack said the

Registration Monday

Marshall University will conduct registration for second summer term Monday in the Multi-Purpose Room of Memorial Student Center.

The hours will be from 8 a.m. to noon and from 1 to 3 p.m. All fees must be paid at the time of registration.

To enter registration, students must have a time card which can be obtained from the Registrar's office during registration hours.

Late registration will be Tuesday and a late fee will be assessed persons registering at that time.

Classes begin Tuesday and continue through Aug. 20.

Circle Aug. 31

President and Mrs. Robert B. Hayes will host the annual Marshall University faculty-staff reception and dance on Tuesday, Aug. 31, from 8 to 11 p.m., in the Multi-Purpose Room, Memorial Student Center. All Marshall personnel, their spouses or guests, are cordially invited to attend.

Announcements...

Marshall University has been commended by the Huntington Jaycees for services to the community and support of the Jaycees' program.

Christopher Spencer, immediate past president of the Huntington Jaycees, recently presented a Certificate of Appreciation and a plaque "for meritorious service" to Marshall President Robert B. Hayes commending the university for its support.

The awards were given "in recognition of all the help that the university has given us throughout the years," Spencer said. "Marshall has really been great to us," he added.

NICHOLS ON PANEL

Dr. James O. Nichols, institutional research and planning director at Marshall University, has been invited to chair a panel discussion at the 1976 Southern Conference on Institutional Research.

The invitation to participate in the meeting, scheduled for Oct. 28-29 at Georgia State University, Atlanta, was extended by Dr. Jerry Baudin, institutional research director at Louisiana State University.

Dr. Nichols will lead the discussion on "Changing Mission of the Institutional Research Office" with representatives from the Parkersburg (W.Va.) Community College, the Christopher Newport College of William and Mary and North Carolina State University joining him on the panel.

GIFTED CHILDREN

-An introductory course on gifted children has been added to the offerings for second summer term at Marshall University.

"The course, entitled 'Introduction to Gifted Children,' was added to provide an opportunity for interested individuals to take a beginning class in this, the newest certification area offered under the Special Education Program," Dr. Daryll Bauer, director of Marshall's Special Education Program, said.

The class, open to regularly-admitted students, should be of particular interest to parents, teachers and school administrative personnel.

It will be taught by Dr. George Schena, who recently was named coordinator of Marshall University's Gifted Program. Dr. Schena earned his doctorate from the State University of New York at Buffalo. He also served as a consultant for gifted children programs in the Buffalo area public school systems.

WEILL FUND ENDOWED

A gift to establish the Dr. Herman N. Weill History Essay Endowed Fund has been received by the Marshall University Foundation, Inc., from the late Dr. Weill's family, according to Jack C. Phillips, foundation executive director.

A check for $2,000 was presented to the foundation by Mrs. Weill, the former Dagmar Korneck, Phillips said.

The gift will ensure the continuation of an essay contest which Dr. Weill, who was professor of history here at the time of his death in March, personally established two years ago.

Dr. Weill also served as dean of the MU Graduate School from July, 1972, until August, 1974.

The money will be invested and the interest accrued will be used for prize money for Marshall students writing the best essays on a topic selected by the Department of History.

Other contributions to the fund may be made by earmarking checks payable to the Marshall Foundation for the Dr. Herman N. Weill History Essay Endowed Fund.

Committee to help international students

Marshall University is attempting to establish a Tri-State International Hospitality Committee, Dr. Richard G. Fisher, MU dean of students, announced.

The committee would assist the university in developing an ongoing program for helping international students at Marshall and people from other nations coming into the region to adapt and learn about life in America.

"Our direction for an international education program isn't just to see that the student gets a degree, but also to help him experience as much as America as possible while in our country," Dr. Fisher said.

One responsibility of the committee members would be to serve—or find others to serve—as host families for new international students enrolling at Marshall this fall.

"The predominate social unit is the family and we feel the best way for people from other countries to learn about us is through the family," Dr. Fisher said.

"We would like to have families invite the students into their homes for an evening and/or show them around the Tri-State," he added. Dr. Fisher emphasized that there would be no financial commitment involved on the host family's part either to the university or the student.

"We just want to encourage families to bring these people into their homes to visit, perhaps take them to church and get them into social situations," he added.

Anyone interested in helping may contact Dr. Fisher by calling him at (304) 696-6420.

Those people contacting him will receive a letter explaining the program and a brief application form which will include a country preference selection so that family interests can be matched to students, Dr. Fisher said.

Play tryouts set

Tryouts for Mary Chase's Pulitzer Prize-winning comedy, "Harvey," will be held Monday, July 19, in Smith Hall Room 154 at 3 p.m. and again at 7 p.m., according to Dr. William G. Kearns, director.

The comedy, the last production in University Theater's Bicentennial Summer Festival, will be presented Aug. 12-14.

The cast includes roles for 6 men and 6 women. All students are welcome to tryout, Dr. Kearns said.
