Directory data requested

Full-time employees of Marshall University will find enclosed with their next paychecks a new form devised by the Computer Center.

The purpose of this form is to facilitate publication of the Faculty-Staff Directory this year and in the years ahead. This form will replace the "little green card" used in the past by the Office of Informational Services in compiling directory information.

The new forms in most cases already list existing directory data for employees. These employees should review the forms and make corrections where necessary. Many new or relatively new employees will receive blank forms and these should be completed. In either case, the forms should be returned to the Office of Informational Services by Sept. 20 for inclusion in this year's Faculty-Staff Directory.

Persons who work at Marshall but who are not included on the Marshall payroll, such as personnel in food service or members of the Campus Christian Center staff, are encouraged to obtain directory forms from the Office of Informational Services (Old Main 115) in order that they might be included in the directory.

"While the new system may be more cumbersome at the outset, we believe it will facilitate speedier, more accurate production of the directory over the long haul," C. T. Mitchell, director of informational services, explained. "By logging this basic data in the Computer Center and keeping it updated, we hope to be able to provide members of the Marshall University community with essential information—such as office locations and telephone numbers—when they need it."

Collins to head University Relations

Paul H. Collins, a veteran administrator at Marshall University, has been appointed acting director of the Office of University Relations, effective Sept. 21.

The announcement was made by Dr. Robert B. Hayes, interim president of Marshall.

Collins, a member of the Marshall administrative staff since 1949, will succeed Dr. Donald K. Carson who is leaving Marshall to become dean of students at Memphis State University in Tennessee.

Collins also has been appointed to succeed Carson as a Marshall representative on the Huntington Civic Center Advisory Committee. Dr. Hayes said he had recommended Collins be named to that position because "we want to retain close involvement with Civic Center developments."

Currently serving as director of community services, Collins has held a number of administrative positions during his career at Marshall, including director of educational research and field services, director of adult education, administrative assistant to the president, director of admissions, director of continuing education, and acting vice president for academic affairs. He holds faculty rank as an associate professor of education.

A native of Pocahontas County, W. Va., he received his A.B. degree from Glenville State College and his M.A. from West Virginia University. He has done additional graduate work at Harvard University and at the University of Virginia.

He taught in Pocahontas County public schools for four years and served as a high school principal in Greenbrier County for four years. Collins has been on active duty with the U.S. Navy in two wars, serving in the Pacific Theater from 1944 to 1946 and in Hawaii and the Far East from 1950 to 1952. He is active in the U.S. Navy Reserve and holds the rank of captain.

In announcing the appointment, Dr. Hayes said, "Paul

Collins is one of our best, most versatile and most experienced administrators. He has been closely associated with the work of the Office of University Relations during the past two years, assuring us of a smooth transition. He has turned in an excellent performance in each of the many positions he has been called upon to fill here, and I am very pleased that he has agreed to accept this new challenge."

Collins is married to the former Georgia Frazier, a teacher at Huntington's Gallaher Elementary School, and they are the parents of two daughters, Mrs. Karyl Bodine and Mrs. Kay Ketchum.

Inco contributes $6,000 to MU

Officials of the Huntington Alloy Products Division of International Nickel Co., Inc., have presented Marshall University a check for $6,000 to finance the annual Inco Scholarships in science and engineering—an increase from the $5,400 figure of last year.

Making the presentation were William J. Moore, Inco personnel manager, and Gary Wilson, personnel development coordinator. Interim President Robert B. Hayes accepted on behalf of Marshall.

The scholarships, administered by the Marshall Financial Aid Office, are earmarked for students from Cabell, Lincoln, Mason, Putnam and Wayne counties in West Virginia and Boyd and Lawrence counties in Kentucky.

Dr. Hayes noted that the scholarship fund is one of several ways in which Inco assists Marshall, including sponsorship of summer research programs, matching of employee gifts, and a major contribution to the "Forward Marshall" campaign.

SINGERS SOUGHT

All members of the Marshall University faculty and staff and their spouses who enjoy singing are cordially invited to join the Marshall University Choral Union, according to Dr. Paul Balshaw, director. The first rehearsal and organizational meeting will be held in Smith Music Hall Room 150 on Monday, Sept. 16, at 7:30 p.m. Anyone who would like to join and sing is invited to attend.

The Choral Union is a mixed chorus of students, faculty and townspeople who meet each Monday evening to sing the great masterworks of the large-scale choral literature. There are no audition requirements. Dr. Balshaw said the program this fall will be a "Centennial Concept" featuring the music of Charles Ives and Gustav Holst. For the performances, to be given Dec. 8 and 10, the Choral Union will be joined by the Marshall University Community Orchestra and soloists.

Dr. Balshaw said new members of the faculty and staff are especially invited to participate.
