Harless elected chairman of Board of Advisors

James H. "Buck" Harless of Gilbert has been elected chairman of the Marshall University Institutional Board of Advisors for 1989-90. He succeeds A. Michael Perry of Huntington who resigned to accept an appointment to the West Virginia Board of Trustees, governing board for the state's new university system.

David G. Todd of Huntington was re-elected vice chairman. The election was conducted during the advisory board's September meeting on the Marshall campus.

MU President Dale F. Nitzschke also announced the West Virginia Board of Trustees has appointed Mrs. Bea Nelson Orr of Logan to the advisory board for a term ending in 1993. The Board of Trustees also appointed Todd to a new term ending in 1993. Two additional appointments are pending, Nitzschke said.

"I'm very pleased Buck Harless has accepted the chairmanship of the Marshall University Board of Advisors," Nitzschke said. "He has contributed in many ways, over many years, to the advancement of education at all levels throughout West Virginia. He is a tremendous asset to Marshall University and to its advisory board."

A prominent timber and coal operator, Harless also has been active in banking and shipping. He has served on the advisory and foundation boards of West Virginia University and holds (Continued on page 2)

Six women will be featured in Yeager Symposium

Six outstandingly successful women will be featured in Marshall University's third annual Yeager Symposium--"Women and Leadership"--Thursday and Friday, Oct. 12-13.

The symposium, sponsored by Marshall's Society of Yeager Scholars, is being funded in part by the Huntington Herald-Dispatch and the Gannett Foundation.

United Way campaign offering incentives

Marshall University employees who make a contribution to the 1989 United Way campaign will be eligible to receive a variety of gifts, according to Dr. Don Robertson, chairman of the campaign's Incentive Committee.

Prizes will include two Marshall University season basketball tickets, a weekend at the Radisson Hotel, a pass for a dinner cruise on the West Virginia Belle, an electric coffee maker from Stone and Thomas, 10 pairs of tickets for Marshall Artists Series performances and two tickets for a theatre performance.

Robertson said the university department or division that contributes the most (based on a formula that includes number of employees, percentage of employees making contributions and amount of contributions) will receive one graduate assistantship for the 1990-91 year.

All "Fair Share" givers will receive a United Way "Be A Hero" T-shirt.

Other prizes currently are being developed for the MU campaign and Robertson said one contributor will receive a number of West Virginia lottery instant winner tickets.

All university employees who make a contribution to (Continued on page 2) according to Yeager Scholars Director William N. Denman.

Featured speakers for the symposium are:

-Dr. Ancella Bickley, retired vice president of West Virginia State College. Currently a visiting professor in Appalachian black studies at Marshall, Dr. Bickley is directing a special study of black history in the Ohio Valley.

-Dr. Barbara E. Kovach, professor of management in the Rutgers (N.J.) University School of Business and author of eight books and numerous articles on human behavior and organizations.

-Jane C. Pfeiffer, management consultant and former chairman of the board of the National Broadcasting Co.

MU 'yard sale' planned

Marshall University will hold a "yard sale" on Wednesday, Oct. 18, to allow all university departments to sell surplus supplies and equipment, according to William J. Shondel, director of purchasing and materials management.

Seventy percent of the proceeds from the sale will be given to the departments whose material is sold.

Persons who want to enter supplies and/or equipment in the sale should contact Carol Skaggs in the Receiving Office for tags to be placed on the sale items.

the United Way campaign will be eligible for the prize drawing which will be held the last of November.

“We have established a number of incentives for people who give to the United Way campaign at Marshall University and we hope to develop some additional incentives,” said Robertson, “but the biggest incentive to give should be the knowledge that you will be helping many less fortunate people throughout the Tri-State.”

Marshall’s goal for the 1989 United Way campaign is $45,000.

A campaign captain or co-worker will be contacting you and providing information about the United Way and how you can make a contribution.

To obtain further details about the incentive program contact Dr. Don Robertson, 696-2282.

must be written on the tags. If you wish to set a minimum price for an item, that amount also must be written on the tag. Shondel said sellers should try to be realistic if minimum prices are noted.

Unless indicated on the tag, anything that does not sell will be turned over to State Surplus for final disposal.

Plant Operations will be able to pick up heavy items, however due to limited manpower, smaller items should be taken to the Receiving Office by the seller.

To obtain further details contact Ms. Skaggs, Shondel or Barbara Smentkowski in the Purchasing and Materials Management Office, 696-3157.

Disorders workshop set

Marshall University’s Office of Student Health Education Programs will sponsor a one-hour “Eating Disorders” workshop on Thursday, Oct. 26, at 3 p.m. in Harris Hall Room 139.

The workshop, developed by St. Mary’s Hospital, will be presented by Norman Zinger, director of the hospital’s psychiatric programs, according to Carla Lapelle, coordinator of Marshall’s student health education programs.

The program will be open to the public free of charge. To obtain further details contact the Marshall University Office of Student Health Education Programs, 696-4800.

reporting team for the Baltimore Evening Sun.

Dr. Bickley, Dr. Chapman and Ms. Wooton all have earned degrees from Marshall, Denman noted, and Dr. Chapman also is a former Marshall faculty member.

Denman said General Chuck Yeager, for whom the Society of Yeager Scholars is named, will participate in symposium activities.

Following is the schedule of speeches, all of which will be open to the public. All will be in Marshall’s Old Main Auditorium.

—9:30 a.m. Thursday, Brigadier General Evelyn P. Foote, “Leadership: One Woman’s Point of View.”

—11 a.m. Thursday, Jane C. Pfieffer, “Our Brother’s Keeper: Leadership and Social Change in the 1990s.”

—2 p.m. Thursday, Dr. Ancella R. Bickley, “Toward a New Definition of Leadership.”

—9 a.m. Friday, Dr. Barbara E. Kovach, “The Rutgers Experience: Developing a Leadership Program.”

—11 a.m. Friday, Dr. Sara Chapman, “Toward a New Humanism in Academe.”

—1 p.m. Friday, Suzanne Wood Wooton, “Increasing Social Awareness Through Journalism: Consciousness, Compassion, and Commitment.”

Saturday, Oct. 14, the National Board of Directors of the Society of Yeager Scholars will have its annual meeting at Marshall. It will be the 42nd anniversary of the flight in which Yeager broke the “sound barrier” in his Bell X-1.

Excused absences...

Absences have been excused by the respective college deans for the following:

SEPT. 28-30—ROTC Cadets who participated in training exercises at Lake Vesuvius, Ohio.
MU enrollment continues to increase

Marshall University's Fall Term enrollment is a record 12,580 according to preliminary figures released by Registrar Robert H. Eddins.

Overall, enrollment is up about 2 percent from last fall's 12,348 students -- and full-time enrollment is up 4 percent, Eddins said.

The total easily could have been higher, Marshall President Dale F. Nitzschke said.

Library tours slated

The staff of Marshall University's James E. Morrow Library will hold a reception and conduct guided tours of the library for new faculty and staff and other interested members of the university community on Thursday, Oct. 12, according to Josephine Fidler, director of libraries.

The reception will be held from 1 to 4 p.m. in the Hoffman Room in the Special Collections Department.

Tours will start at 1:30 p.m. and 3 p.m. Each tour will last 50 minutes and will cover all major departments.

The main purpose of the event is to welcome and acquaint new members of the university community with the library and library staff.

The activities are being organized by a committee chaired by Dan Glavasic and members of the Public Relations Committee, Laurie Hildreth, Ann Crawford, and Bahiyih Farydoon-Nezhad.

Persons who plan to attend should contact the library staff at 696-2343 prior to Oct. 10.

Videoconference set

A videoconference titled "Initiatives in Teacher Education" will be held at Marshall University on Wednesday, Oct. 18, from 1 to 2:30 p.m. in the Memorial Student Center Alumni Lounge.

A panel from the West Virginia Higher Education Task Force on Teacher Education will discuss current teacher education issues with Dr. Donald J. Stedman, staff director for the North Carolina Task Force on Preparation of Teachers.

The conference will focus on preparing for NCATE accreditation, strategies for improving the teacher education curriculum, and ways of attracting good students to teacher education programs, according to Dr. Rainey Duke, assistant provost at Marshall.

Dr. Larry Froehlich of Marshall's Department of Vocational Technical and Adult Education will moderate a panel titled "What are the Implications for MU NCATE Review?"

Persons interested in attending the videoconference should contact Sharon Bolinger, 696-5442.

Lunch seminar scheduled

The Marshall University Women's Center will sponsor a lunchbag seminar titled "Finishing Ourselves: Life With or Without a Man" on Wednesday, Oct. 11, from noon to 1 p.m.

To obtain further details contact the Women's Center, 696-3112.

"Classrooms and residence halls are overflowing and other campus facilities are taxed to the limit," Nitzschke said. "We simply don't have enough faculty, staff and facilities to meet the demand we're encountering. Consequently, numbers of potential students have become discouraged and I'm sure many have gone elsewhere."

Nitzschke noted Marshall's enrollment has increased 11 percent over the past five years. "Our resources have not kept pace with that kind of growth," he added.

Despite the fact West Virginia's high schools are continuing to graduate fewer students each year, Marshall's freshman class enrollment increased from a record 4,003 last fall to 4,268 -- a 6.6 percent increase -- this fall, Eddins said. "During each of the past few years, we've been anticipating a possible decline in freshman enrollment because of the declines in our high schools, but it just hasn't materialized," Eddins said.

Marshall's total enrollment exceeded 12,000 for the first time in the Fall Term of 1987-88.

NEH grants will be discussed at workshop

Carl Dolan, program officer for the National Endowment for the Humanities, will present a grant workshop at Marshall University on Tuesday, Oct. 17, at 9 a.m. in the Memorial Student Center Alumni Lounge.

The workshop has been designed to give area organizations and individuals information on how to obtain grants from the NEH, according to Dr. Robert C. Barnett, MU grants officer.

Barnett said Dolan has been charged with developing a better geographic distribution of NEH grant funds, which means more grant money should be coming to West Virginia, Ohio and Kentucky.

The NEH awards more than $150 million in grants each year to colleges and universities, libraries, museums, school districts, private schools and scholars. Marshall was the recipient of a $145,000 NEH grant last year.

Dale Parson, coordinator of the Humanities Center for the Humanities Foundation of West Virginia, also will participate in the workshop which is open to all interested persons free of charge.

Personal conferences for proposal reviews can be arranged. To schedule a personal conference or obtain further details contact Barnett at Marshall University, 696-3094.

Health topic announced

Marshall University's Office of Student Health Education Programs will sponsor a Self-Care Seminar titled "Coping with Kids and Classes" on Tuesday, Oct. 10, from 12:30 to 1:30 p.m. in Memorial Student Center Room 2W37.

Teresa Scardino of the MU Psychology Department will discuss how children and spouses can more easily adjust to the demands college places on a person.

To obtain further details contact the Office of Student Health Education Programs, 696-4800.
First faculty meeting of semester is held

(The following report on the Sept. 21 Marshall University general faculty meeting was submitted by Joseph Stone, secretary.)

The faculty of Marshall University met Sept. 21 at 4:45 p.m., proper notice having been given pursuant to the Faculty Constitution. The meeting was held in the auditorium of Old Main following the State of the University address by President Nitzschke.

Kathryn Chezik presided at the meeting and Joseph Stone acted as secretary. The chair called the meeting to order, delivered welcoming remarks, and called upon the academic department chairs to introduce new members of the faculty.

The chair opened the floor for nominations for the positions on the Institutional Hearing Panel. Upon motion duly made and seconded the faculty unanimously approved the following motion:

"Current members of the Institutional Hearing Panel elected under the interim procedures shall retain their seats and their terms shall be recalculated in compliance with the new policy."

The floor was opened for nominations to fill two vacancies at the associate professor level for the Institutional Hearing Panel.

Upon motion duly made and seconded, the following persons were nominated: Karen Simpkins, Pam Gardner and Lee Erickson. Upon motion duly made, seconded and unanimously passed, the nominations were closed. The chair directed the secretary to prepare and distribute ballots to the general faculty.

The chair submitted to the faculty various constitutional amendments which had been recommended by the Faculty Senate. Upon motion duly made, seconded and unanimously passed, the faculty directed that the proposed amendments be submitted to the general faculty for ratification. The chair directed that the secretary prepare and distribute appropriate ballots to the general faculty.

The chair recognized several members of the faculty for the purpose of making announcements.

The chair announced that an attempt is being made to bring members of the PEIB to campus to discuss with the faculty, in an open forum, concerns about the insurance program.

There being no further business to come before the meeting, upon motion duly made, seconded, and unanimously passed the same was adjourned at 5:15 p.m.

Clagg writes section

Marshall University Professor Emeritus Sam E. Clagg is the author of the Encyclopaedia Britannica section on West Virginia, scheduled for printing in early 1990. In fact, the retired Department of Geography chairman has been affiliated with the famed encyclopedia since 1974 when he first prepared its section on West Virginia.

Dr. Clagg said the 1990 version brings the West Virginia story up to date, incorporating developments over the past few years.

A prolific writer, Clagg has long been considered an authority on West Virginia geography. He is the author of a dozen books ranging from fact books and atlases about West Virginia, Ohio and Virginia to a biography of legendary Marshall Coach Cam Henderson. His newest book, "The Marine Way," is scheduled for publication in November.

A native of Huntington, Clagg has been associated with Marshall University since 1939 when he arrived on campus as a freshman football player. He has served as a football and wrestling coach, long-time professor and chairman of geography, chairman of University Council, the ranking faculty committee, for 15 years, member of the West Virginia Board of Regents and as Marshall's acting president in 1983-84.

He's now president of Marshall's Emeritus Club, an active group composed of Marshall retirees, and works out of a campus office every working day – and most weekends.

Lahoda receives grant

Dr. Steve Lahoda, interim chairman of Marshall University's Computer Science Department, has received a $12,000 software grant from the AT&T Corporation.

Lahoda said the grant will enable the MU Computer Science Department to more effectively utilize the AT&T 3B15 computer.

Reference hours resume

The Reference Department in Marshall University's James E. Morrow Library will resume regular service hours on Monday, Oct. 9, according to Josephine Fidler, director of libraries.

Reference hours will be: Sunday—1:30 to 9:30 p.m.; Monday through Thursday—8 a.m. to 10 p.m.; Friday—8 a.m. to 5 p.m., and Saturday—9:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m.

Shevory edits book

The preface to the book, edited by Dr. Thomas C. Shevory, former assistant professor of political science at Marshall, mentions several Marshall personalities and is the first book in modern times to make the explicit connection between the famous Chief Justice and Marshall University, according to Shevory, who now is an assistant professor at Ithaca College.

"A John Marshall Symposium" was held to celebrate the bicentennial of the U.S. Constitution and Marshall University's sesquicentennial.

The original idea for the symposium was suggested by former MU professor Dr. Richard H. Rosswurm, who now is director of education for the West Virginia Supreme Court of Appeals in Charleston.
MU Research Committee holds meetings

(The following reports on the Sept. 21 meeting of the Marshall University Research Committee and a special session held the same afternoon, were submitted by Marjorie Keatley secretary.)

Members present for the regular meeting were: Kathleen Bledsoe, Gregg Davis, Leonard Deutsch (ex officio), Lee Erickson, John Hubbard, Marjorie Keatley, Bryan Larsen, Giovanna Morton, Ermel Stepp, Tracy Soltesz, Paul Whear, and Kevin Willison.

Discussion of the Queen Application Form led to a motion by John Hubbard to remove Fred Reenstjerne’s name and add Kathleen Bledsoe as the Library representative. The motion was seconded by Lee Erickson and approved by acclamation.

The corrected form will be submitted to the Faculty Senate for inclusion in the agenda for the Sept. 28 meeting. A recommendation form will be attached for approval by the senate and the president.

Discussion ensued regarding the committee’s involvement in reviewing NEH applications. Dr. Deutsch recommended that the committee accept the charge to be involved in the selection process if multiple applications are received.

Dr. Deutsch discussed the direction of the university toward a research orientation and the necessity for release time for faculty involved in research.

An ad hoc committee needs to be established to deal with this issue. Dr. Stepp suggested that this be an agenda item for the next meeting.

Dr. Stepp made a motion that the committee meet once a month for an hour to look at position papers relating to the exchange of research on campus. The motion was seconded by Kathleen Bledsoe.

The meeting adjourned at 3:50 p.m.

The Research Committee reconvened in special session at 5:20 p.m.

Members present were: Gary Anderson, Kathleen Bledsoe, Gregg Davis, Lee Erickson, John Hubbard, Marjorie Keatley, Bryan Larsen, Giovanna Morton, Tracy Soltesz, Ermel Stepp, Paul Whear, and Kevin Willison.

Bryan Larsen discussed the procedure used in the past to select Quinlan applications for funding.

Ermel Stepp announced that the amount of money available in the fund was $15,564.67. This amount does not reflect funds encumbered but not used by previous Quinlan recipients.

Using this figure as a guide, $7,800 was proposed by Anderson as a spending limit for the current set of Quinlan applications.

Beginning with the highest score possible on the applications, each college representative submitted names for consideration at that score.

Twenty-one applications were selected and Paul Whear made a motion that these applications be funded. Gary Anderson seconded the motion.

Lee Erickson asked that special consideration be given an application from his department.

Dr. Whear withdrew his motion and Anderson his second of the motion.

Erickson made a motion that applications with a score of 14 or higher be funded as well as the application from his department. Giovanna Morton seconded the motion.

The motion carried.

Dr. Whear suggested that an itemized listing of costs be attached to future applications to aid in evaluation. The committee agreed this would be helpful.

The special session adjourned at 6:20 p.m.

Small Business Center will offer workshops

Marshall University’s Small Business Development Center will sponsor a series of seven workshops designed for existing and potential small business owners and managers during the fall semester, according to Elaine Whitely-Hayslett program coordinator for the center.

“The workshops will include a number of topics that small business owners and potential business owners and managers need to know about,” said Ms. Whitely-Hayslett. “We have tried to cover subjects that are major concerns and aren’t always addressed elsewhere. Topics that should be covered before a business has to deal with them.”

Programs are:
- “Recordkeeping in a Small Business,” Oct. 17, 6:30 to 9:30 p.m., Memorial Student Center Room 2E11;
- “Business Tax Workshop,” Nov. 2, 6:30 to 9:30 p.m., Marshall University Research and Economic Development Center (1050 Fourth Ave.);
- “Selling to the Government,” Nov. 8, 9 a.m. to 3 p.m., Marshall University Research and Economic Development Center;
- “Crime Prevention for Small Business Owners,” Nov. 9, 5:30 to 7:30 p.m., Memorial Student Center Room 2E11;
- “Exporting: The Key to Extra Profits,” Nov. 14, 8:30 a.m. to noon, Marshall University Research and Economic Development Center;
- “Credit and Collections,” Nov. 28, 1 to 4 p.m., Memorial Student Center Room 2E11;

All of the workshops will be instructed by professional business people who specialize in the specific subjects to be covered, according to Ms. Whitely-Hayslett.

The programs will be open to interested persons free of charge.

To obtain further details contact the Marshall University Small Business Development Center, 696-6798.

Counseling available

The Marshall University Counseling Clinic, operated by the Department of Counseling and Rehabilitation, offers free counseling services to MU employees and their families, according to Professor Lawrence Barker of the Division of Specialized Allied Studies.

The clinic offers personal, family, marital and educational counseling services. All services are confidential.

Located in Harris Hall Room 357, the clinic is open Monday evenings and Tuesday afternoons and evenings.

To obtain further details or make appointments contact Barker, 696-2916, or Dr. John Smith, 696-2917.

Employee achievements

Dr. WLODZIMIERZ OGRYCZAK, H. Paul Kizer Eminent Scholar in Computer Science at Marshall, recently had two papers published in Aspiration Based Decision Support Systems—Theory, Software and Applications. The papers were: “A Generalized Reference Point Approach to Multiobjective Transshipment Problems with Facility Location” and “Solving Multiobjective Distribution-Location Problems with the DINAS System.”

Dr. ROBERT BICKEL of the Educational Foundations Department recently had an article titled “Post-High School Opportunities and High School Completion Rates in an Appalachian State: A Near-Replication of Florida Research” published in the latest edition of Youth and Society.

Dr. CLAIR W. MATZ, professor of political science, was the keynote speaker for the third annual Peace Advocates Workshop held Sept. 30 in Reading, Pa. His address, “Building the Machinery of Peace,” was based on his work on United Nations affairs. MATZ is a native of Reading. The workshop is annually sponsored by the United Methodist Churches in eastern Pennsylvania.

Several Marshall women, faculty and staff, participated in the program of the annual fall conference of the West Virginia Association of Women in Higher Education held recently in Clarksburg. Dr. RAINEy DUKE, assistant provost, served on a response panel; QUEEn FOREMAN director of human resources and affirmative action, made a presentation titled “The Impact of the Chief Executive Officer on Women’s Issues”; DONNALEE COCKRILLE, coordinator of women’s programs, and JANICE McNEARNEY, special projects coordinator in the Community College, served on a panel that discussed “Campus Child Care, Parental Leave, and Sexual Harassment”; Dr. NELL BAILEY, vice president/dean of students, represented the American Council on Education’s Office of Women and facilitated a discussion on “The New Agenda for Women” and its implications for women in higher education in West Virginia.

Dr. MARY COURTNEY-COLLINS, instructor in the Department of Marketing, was the official delegate representing The Pennsylvania State University at the inauguration of President Robert J. Dillman of Fairmont State College held Sept. 24. A graduate of West Virginia Wesleyan College, Dr. COLLINS received her master’s and doctoral degrees from Penn State.

Professors W. JOSEPH McCoy, CLAIR W. MATZ and TROY M. STEWART JR. attended the 23rd annual meeting of the West Virginia Political Science Association held Sept. 22-23 at Ogletown Park in Wheeling. STEWART is the outgoing president of the association. McCoy chaired a panel on “Efficiency and Economy in State Government.” MATZ chaired a panel on “U.S.-Soviet Relations in the Era of Glasnost.” Dr. PAUL D. STEWART, emeritus professor of political science, was one of the founders of the West Virginia Political Science Association.

Degree nominations sought

Nominations for honorary degrees should be sent to Carl S. Johnson, chairman of the Marshall University Functions Committee, Jenkins Hall Room 113L.

A vita and other supporting information to justify serious consideration should be included with the nomination.
