

11-16-1989

MU NewsLetter, November 16, 1989

Office of University Relations

Follow this and additional works at: http://mds.marshall.edu/oldmu_newsletter

Recommended Citation

Office of University Relations, "MU NewsLetter, November 16, 1989" (1989). MU NewsLetter 1987-1999. Paper 157.
http://mds.marshall.edu/oldmu_newsletter/157

This Article is brought to you for free and open access by the Marshall Publications at Marshall Digital Scholar. It has been accepted for inclusion in MU NewsLetter 1987-1999 by an authorized administrator of Marshall Digital Scholar. For more information, please contact zhangj@marshall.edu, martj@marshall.edu.

NEWSLETTER

MARSHALL UNIVERSITY • OFFICE OF UNIVERSITY RELATIONS • HUNTINGTON, WEST VIRGINIA 25701 • November 16, 1989

Marshall receives $90,000 in software

Battelle, an international technology organization headquartered in Columbus, Ohio, will provide Marshall University with two free copies of its computer-aided design and manufacturing software, "ToolChest," valued at a total of $90,000.

"ToolChest" currently is being used by more than 130 firms in the United States for designing and manufacturing precision parts, molds, patterns and dies, according to Robert W. James, vice president for marketing and business development in Battelle's Advanced Materials

Business Group.

Marshall will use the software in its "Factory of the Future" program to teach students how to operate modern factories, according to Dr. Robert F. Maddox, Marshall's executive assistant to the president for research and economic development outreach.

"America is facing a great technological challenge in the world today, and Marshall and other institutions are helping to meet that challenge," said James. "By providing the latest CAD/CAM technology in the marketplace, we at Battelle hope to help Marshall University continue to produce tomorrow's technology leaders."

Battelle serves industry and government agencies by developing, commercializing and managing technology and offers a wide range of scientific and technical capabilities to clients in more than 30 countries.

"We are delighted to be able to work with Battelle in making the 'Factory of the Future' a reality," said Maddox. "This partnership with Battelle will positively enhance our academic program and our ability to work directly with business and industry."

School of Journalism gets Dow Jones grant

The Dow Jones Newspaper Fund has awarded the Marshall University School of Journalism a $3,000 grant to help conduct a 1990 summer workshop for minority-group high school students who are interested in becoming journalists.

The Journalism School will select 25 high school students from West Virginia, Virginia, Tennessee, Ohio and Kentucky and bring them to Huntington next June 17-30 for two weeks of intensive education and practice in journalism.

The faculty for the workshop will include such persons as Angela Dodson, a Marshall graduate who is editor of the Living section of the New York Times; Jim McMiller, assistant city editor of the Huntington Herald-Dispatch; Wally Warden, managing editor of the Williamson Daily News; Frazier Smith of the Cincinnati Enquirer; Betty Bayea of the Louisville Courier-Journal, and Jack Deutsch, political reporter for the Charleston Daily Mail.

Dwight Jensen, acting director of the School of Journalism, said the school sought the grant because "we consider it essential to bring more minority-group people into journalism schools and into the journalism profession. We especially want to attract top-flight black, Hispanic, Asian-American and American Indian students from the area we serve."

Dean of Liberal Arts Deryl Leaming - who, as former director of the School of Journalism, initiated the school's efforts to increase minority-group enrollment - said, "One of our goals in the School of Journalism over the past several years has been to increase the number of minorities studying journalism. The Dow Jones grant, along with our other efforts, will help us realize that goal. I am delighted to hear that Dow Jones has awarded this grant to the Marshall School of Journalism."

Students selected for the workshop must have completed their junior or senior year of high school before
(Continued on page 2)

Froehlich appointed associate dean in COE

Dr. Larry G. Froehlich, formerly associate professor in Marshall University's Division of Vocational, Technical and Adult Education, has been named associate dean for academic programs in Marshall's College of Education, according to Dr. Carole A. Vickers, dean of the College of Education.

Prior to joining the Marshall faculty in 1985, Froehlich was director of the West Virginia Vocational Curriculum Laboratory. He previously served as a research assistant at West Virginia University and an adjunct faculty member at West Virginia Institute for Technology.

He received an associate degree in business administration from Cuyahoga (Ohio) Community College, a bachelor of science degree in marketing education and a master's degree in educational media from Kent State University, and a doctoral degree in education administration from West Virginia University.

Froehlich has been affiliated with the Association for Supervision and Curriculum Development, the American Vocational Association, the Association for Educational Communications and Technology, the West Virginia Vocational Association, the West Virginia Educational Media Association, Phi Delta Kappa professional fraternity in education, and Kappa Delta Pi education honor society.

He has been a member of numerous committees at
(Continued on page 2)

Marshall Faculty Senate holds meeting

(The following report on the Oct. 26 meeting of Marshall University's Faculty Senate was based on minutes submitted by Joseph Stone, secretary.)

The Faculty Senate meeting was held Oct. 26 at 4 p.m. on the 8th Floor of Smith Hall with 34 senators present.

Absent were: Chuck Roberts, Roscoe Hale, Linda Spatig, Bill Palmer, Steve Mewaldt, Howard Aulick, Mitchell Berk, Andrew Burger, Prathapa Chandran, Ed Johnson, Dan Peterson and Judy Sortet.

The minutes of the previous meeting were approved as submitted.

The chair made the following announcements:

1. The new senator from the School of Medicine is Ed Johnson.

2. The chair announced the results of the election. All proposals and amendments were approved by the faculty by wide margins.

The Executive Committee took the following actions since the previous senate meeting:

1. Stone was appointed to the Yeager Scholar Steering Committee.

2. Olson, Bady and Mewaldt were appointed to the Bylaws and Constitutional Review Subcommittee. Several items were referred to the subcommittee.

3. The committee tabled at-large appointments to the Core Curriculum Committee until additional nominees are submitted.

The chair announced that the video teleconference titled "Recruiting and Retention of Minority Faculty" will be made available by President Nitzschke for faculty viewing. The time will be announced later.

A proposal to tape Faculty Senate meetings was discussed. There were a few concerns expressed and, therefore, the chair referred the issue to the Bylaw Subcommittee for further study and recommendation to the Executive Committee.

The chair informed the senate of a special meeting of the Executive Committee called by President Nitzschke Oct. 23.

It was announced that the Executive Committee had recommended to the University Calendar Committee that the time period for submission of final grades be changed from 9 a.m. on Monday to 4 p.m. on Monday. The senate endorsed the recommendation.

The chair informed the senate that President Nitzschke has made available additional money for research. This one-time grant was referred to the Research Committee to be made available for those projects unfunded due to insufficient Quinlan funds.

The meeting with PEIA was successful and it has been suggested that such meetings be continued on a regular basis and that ERISCO be invited to attend.

The problem of communicating with the faculty and providing an efficient mechanism for obtaining faculty input was discussed. The Executive Committee recommended to the senate that the various senators within a college form a caucus and assign a certain number of faculty within that college to each senator. Each senator, therefore, would be responsible for communicating with his/her assigned faculty members.

Standing Committee Recommendations:

1. SR-89-90-3 (SCW)—One senator was concerned that although university recognition requires groups to sign a statement of non-discrimination based upon sexual orientation, ROTC does discriminate on such basis.

It was pointed out that ROTC is not a recognized student organization and therefore is not required to go through the recognition process. The senator requested that the SCW Committee investigate the matter.

Upon motion duly made, seconded and passed, the senate approved the recommendation as submitted.

2. The senate approved the following recommendations: SR-89-90-5 (SCW), SR-89-90-6 (SCW), SR-89-90-8 (AP), SR-89-90-9 (ASCR), SR-89-90-10 (ASCR).

The senate considered Student Senate Resolution #5 submitted by the Student Government Association.

The majority of the senate felt that endorsement of this resolution would constitute a violation of academic freedom. Although the senate was most sympathetic with the students' concerns with the high cost of textbooks, the senate felt that the quality of the textbook must be the primary concern. The recommendation was defeated.

Robert Sawrey gave a report on the ACF. He seeks faculty input on recommendations for the higher education agenda for the 90th legislative session.

He announced that the Board of Trustees would visit MU on Dec. 13, and encouraged all faculty to attend.

The chair referred to the Faculty Personnel Committee a request which was given to Sawrey from a COLA faculty member.

The meeting adjourned at 5:08 p.m.

Associate dean named

(Continued from page 1)

Marshall and has written several educational articles for journals and professional publications. He also has produced video programs and workshops on subjects related to education and has served as a consultant for several major corporations and educational systems.

J-School gets grant

(Continued from page 1)

next June 17, must show an interest in and an aptitude for journalism, and must submit letters of application and indications that their parents or guardians support the application.

Excused absences...

Absences have been excused by the respective college deans for the following:

NOV. 10-11—Tim Dolin, Andrea Nance, Shawn Powell, Andy Hayden, Maribeth Brooks, Maureen Mack, Cindy Stout, Ron King, Kristy Stratton, Pam Kohl, Joyce Merritt, Jesse Hingson, Craig Moore, Chris Stadelman, Eric Adams.

NOV. 14-20—Rhonda Yoho.

NOV. 16-20—Linda Cometto, Sara Simpson, Lynette Beladonna, Stan Elkins, Tondra Messerian, Julie Tice, Jill Murrell, Juli Hale.

Children's College gets scholarships

Scott/Taylor Community Center, Eighth Avenue and 16th Street, Huntington, recently provided scholarships for 10 area youths to further their educations by attending college—Children's College, that is, at Marshall University's Community College.

Officers of Scott/Taylor Community Center recently presented a check to cover the students' tuition to Children's College to Robert L. Lawson, director of continuing education at Marshall's Community College. The scholarship recipients range from kindergarten students to fifth-graders.

"This is a great way for a community center or organization to provide services to young people in the community," said Lawson. "Children's College has been designed to be both educational and enjoyable for students in kindergarten through high school.

"Scott/Taylor provides a number of services to young people in the area and came up with this unique way to provide educational opportunities for students who might not otherwise be able to take advantage of them."

Carolyn Meadows, Scott/Taylor development chairwoman, said the center currently has 10 children who are regular members and each child was given a scholarship to Children's College.

"We are a United Way agency and primarily funded through the United Way," said Ms. Meadows, "however, we did not use United Way funds for this project. We had fund-raisers and solicited funds from community residents in order to sponsor this project."

Scott/Taylor Community Center provides various services to the community and children. The center provides after-school recreation, tutoring programs, classes in subjects such as art and cooking and sewing, and purchased a computer students can work with.

"Basically, we are just a community center," said Ms. Meadows, "but we try to give area children something to do, try to help them in school work and try to provide educational opportunities for them."

Any child in the community can go to the center and participate in the activities. Ms. Meadows said there is a $1 per year membership fee and children must have their parents' permission to attend.

"This is the second year we've sponsored students in Children's College," explained Ms. Meadows. "Last year we had 10 students and nine of them successfully completed the program. This time we're going for 10 out of 10."

She said the center hopes to be able to raise more money next year to expand the Children's College scholarship program and sponsor more students.

To obtain further details about activities at Scott/Taylor Community Center call, 525-4861. To obtain further details about Children's College contact Marshall University's Community College, 696-3113.

Kellogg offers grants

The W.K. Kellogg Foundation will award up to 50 fellowships to professional men and women in the earlier years of their careers who are interested in developing interdisciplinary and cross-cultural perspectives on contemporary human and social problems.

The awards for the three-year program will include $35,000 for the development and completion of the learning plan and $5,000 for travel.

The deadline for applications will be Dec. 15.

To obtain further details contact the Marshall University Faculty Senate Office, 696-4368.

Lunchbag seminar set

The Marshall University Women's Center will sponsor a lunchbag seminar titled "Self-Defense Techniques for Women" on Wednesday, Nov. 22, from noon to 1 p.m. in Prichard Hall Room 143.

To obtain further details contact the Women's Center, 696-3112.

Senior to give recital

Crystal Carhart Hendricks of Point Pleasant, a senior music major at Marshall University, will present a flute concert on Tuesday, Nov. 21, at 8 p.m. in Smith Recital Hall.

Her program will include "Concerto in G Major" by Stamitz, "Sonata in E-flat major, BWV 1031" by Bach, "Trio in G Major, Op. 24" by Kummer, and "Airs De Ballet D'Ascanio" by C. Saint-Saens.

She will be assisted by Matthew Jewell on piano and flutists Sonya Bowman and Christie Reynolds.

The concert will be open to the public free of charge.

VTLS service affected

Due to the installation of equipment, there will be limited access to the Marshall University Libraries' VTLS System Nov. 21-22, according to Josephine Fidler, director of libraries.

The installation will primarily affect the accessing of library holdings.

Library gets ERIC

Marshall University's James E. Morrow Library recently obtained ERIC, a bibliographic database sponsored by the United States Department of Education, on CD-ROM.

The database, available in the library's Media Department, consists of "Resources in Education" (RIE) and the "Current Index to Journals in Education" (CIJE), according to Josephine Fidler, director of libraries.

Data is available from 1966 to the present, with quarterly updating.

A tutorial disc has been provided so users can learn ERIC searching techniques.

Marshall faculty/staff achievements

Dr. ROBERT P. ALEXANDER, dean of the College of Business, has been selected as a voting member of the Resolutions Committee for the National League of Cities' annual Congress of Cities which will be held the last of November in Atlanta. The committee, one of the most powerful in the NLC, will meet Nov. 27 at the Georgia World Congress Center in Atlanta to review policy proposals and prepare the 1990 National Municipal Policy.

Dr. W. BLAKER BOLLING of the Department of Management has had an article titled "Another Look at Escort Services" accepted for publication in Hospital Topics. BOLLING also chaired the "Management History Session" at the Southern Management meeting held Nov. 8-11 in New Orleans.

Dr. CAROLYN GUNNING, dean of the School of Nursing, recently served as the parliamentarian for the semi-annual meeting of the American Association of Colleges of Nursing and was elected to the Nominating Committee for the Southern Council on Collegiate Education for Nursing.

JAMES MOLONEY, assistant professor of mathematics, attended the regional meeting of the American Mathematical Society held Oct. 28 at Ball State University, Muncie, Ind.

Dr. WARREN L. DUMKE, professor of physics and physical science, attended the annual meeting of the American Crystallographic Association held July 23-29 at the University of Washington, Seattle. As part of the conference, he attended a "hands-on" one-day workshop on utilizing "Molecular Dynamics" for analyzing macromolecular crystal structures.

Professors ROBERT GERKE, ELIZABETH NORDEEN, A.E. STRINGER, WILLIAM SULLIVAN, JOHN TEEL, and ERIC THORN of the Marshall University English Department attended the fall meeting of the West Virginia Association of College English Teachers held Oct. 27-28 at North Bend State Park. STRINGER gave a poetry reading. TEEL read a paper titled "Harriet Prescott Spofford and the Canon of American Literature." GERKE was elected president of the association for 1990.

Dr. DERYL R. LEAMING, dean of the College of Liberal Arts, was a visiting lecturer at the University of South Carolina Oct. 27.

Dr. LAWRENCE BARKER, professor in the Division of Counseling and Rehabilitation, and Dr. DONALD HALL, associate professor in the division, presented a paper titled "Ethical Concerns for Counselor Consultants" at the annual meeting of the Southern Association for Counselor Education and Supervision held Oct. 27 in Orlando, Fla.

Dr. LOIS BLACKBURN, assistant professor of music, Dr. JOHN H. MEAD and Dr. DONALD A. WILLIAMS, professors of music, presented clinics in strings, brass and woodwinds, respectively, at the West Virginia Collegiate Music Educators Association Conference held Nov. 5-7 at Fairmont.

Dr. CLAIR W. MATZ, professor of political science, attended the National Conference on the United States and the United Nations Nov. 9-11 in Washington, D.C. He was one of four West Virginians attending this consultation, which was sponsored by more than 100 official and non-governmental groups working for more effectiveness in the United Nations.

AIDS proclamation signed

Marshall University President Dale F. Nitzschke has signed a proclamation declaring November to be "AIDS Awareness Month" at Marshall University.

Citing the threat of AIDS to university students, the proclamation urges students "to make a personal commitment to learn more about the causes and effects of AIDS, their risks, and their responsibility to prevent its spread."

Fellowships available

Applications for White House Fellowships are available in the Marshall University Provost's Office, according to Dr. Rainey Duke, assistant provost.

White House Fellowships provide gifted and highly motivated individuals firsthand experience in the process of governing the nation.

The program seeks to draw people from all sectors of life—business, government, the arts and the academic world.

Eleven to 19 one-year fellowships will be granted to individuals who will be full-time employees of the federal government working in the executive office of the president or in an executive branch department or agency.

There are no basic educational requirements or specific professional categories or requirements.

Applications must be postmarked by Dec. 15.

'Hamlet' is scheduled

The National Shakespeare Company will perform "Hamlet" for the Marshall Artists Series on Monday, Nov. 27, at 8 p.m. in Old Main Auditorium.

To obtain tickets or further details contact the Marshall Artists Series Office, 696-6656.

Seniors' clinic planned

Marshall University's Health, Physical Education and Recreation Majors' Club will sponsor a Senior Citizen Walk and Fitness Clinic on Wednesday, Nov. 29, from 8:15 a.m. to noon in Henderson Center.

Participants 55 years of age and older will begin the activities with a 30-minute walk at their own pace and then have breakfast in the Big Green Room in Henderson Center.

After breakfast there will be sessions on exercise, fitness and diet, along with blood pressure checks and health information materials. Various door prizes will be awarded throughout the event.

The cost of the program will be $5 prior to Nov. 29 and $8 the day of the event.

To register or obtain further details contact the Marshall University Health, Physical Education and Recreation Department, 696-6490 or 696-2927.