Barbara James retiring

Barbara R. James, coordinator of the Regents Bachelor of Arts Degree program (RBA) at Marshall University, has announced her retirement from the university effective March 31.

The RBA is a nontraditional program designed for the adult student. College credit counting toward the degree requirements may be awarded to students in the program for documented learning resulting from work or life experiences. It is a native of Nitro and graduate of Dunbar High School. James has been a member of the Marshall staff since 1965. Prior to accepting a position at Marshall, James served as secretary to the director of the West Virginia University Hospital.

She worked in several offices at Marshall including admissions, adult education, extension and the MU Foundation until she was officially named coordinator in 1990.

To be eligible for awards employees must have completed 15, 20, 25, 30 or 40 years of service to Marshall University by May 1, 1997. If you know of anyone who has been left off this list contact Joe Wortham, 696-5402.
Former professor dies
Carolyn Clyde Fore Dwight, 82, of Huntington died in At­lanta, Ga., Thursday, Feb. 6.

She was professor of business administration at Marshall from 1938 to 1966 and professor of economics and business adminis­tration at Middle Georgia College, a unit of the University of Geor­ gia, from 1967 to 1977. She also taught at the University of California at Northridge in 1966.

Prior to college teaching, she taught at Vinson High School and Huntington High School.

She graduated summa cum laude from Marshall and was the first woman to receive the master's degree in business adminis­tration for 58 years.

She was the granddaughter of Marshall employees. She also was elected by the staff to serve as their representative on the Faculty Senate to meet the central office of the State College and University Systems of West Virginia in Charleston.

She was married to the late Charles Eugene (Gene) Dwight, 88.

Survivors include: two daughters, Beverly Gail Dwight of Atlanta, Ga., and Marilyn Dwight Rife of Chillicothe, Ohio; a son, Stephen Fore Dwight of Tampa, Fla.; two grandsons; two nieces; four nephews; two nieces, eight grandchildrens and three great-grandchildrens.

Faculty revive journal
Two Marshall University psychology professors, Dr. Pamela L. Mulder and Dr. James W. Moore, have become editors of The Journal of Rural Community Psychology (JRCP).

For more than a decade, the journal was published by the Cal­ifornia School of Professional Psychology at Fresno.

However, increasing publication costs and the small, relatively static subscription base eventually resulted in a decision to cease publication.

Mulder and Moore will make the JRCP available as an on­line journal in both multimedia and text only versions beginning the middle of this year.

The editors are seeking publishable manuscripts for consider­ation and would like to hear from individuals who would be in­terested in serving as reviewers or people who would like to subscribe to the journal.

They strongly prefer to receive submission via e-mail or on disc. All review work will be done electronically. For details read the "Guidelines for Authors" on the JRCP WWW site: http://www.marshall.edu/jrcp.

To obtain further details contact Mulder, 696-2770, or Moore, 696-2776, or send an electronic inquiry to: JRCP@MARSHALL.EDU.

Library contributors to be listed in newspaper
More than 500 Marshall employees and retirees who donated to The Library Fund were recognized in The Herald-Dispacth on Feb. 10.

Unfortunately, several name were inadvertently omitted or misspelled in the ad. Those include: W. Blake Boiling, Carmela B. Brown, Charlie K. Braun, Mary Perry Madison, Stephanie Adkins Neal and Carol A. Spetch.

"Dr. Gilley wrote to all employees on Nov. 11 indicating his intention of publishing the names of employee donors. He said Frank P. Justice Jr., Marshall vice president for development, "The advertisement will be published later in the Charleston Gazette and we want to make all necessary corrections to the list before that ad is published."

If you were listed incorrectly or if your name was omitted, please call the Office of Records and Research for Development at ext. 4578.

Faculty and staff may still make a gift or pledge to The Lib­rary Fund to make your name appear in the 1997 list. For details, call the Development Office (ext. 6440) for a pledge form.

To make an outright gift of cash, send a check payable to The Marshall University Foundation Inc, to the Foundation's office (ext. 6440) on a pledge form.

For details on how to make your gift via MasterCard or Visa, call the Foundation office (ext. 6264).

Faculty Senate to meet
Marshall University’s Faculty Senate will meet Thursday, Feb. 27 at 7 a.m. in the Dining Area on the second floor of Memorial Student Center.

The agenda will include: approval of minutes of 1/30/97; an­nouncements; report of university president; ACE report; six standing committee recommendations to approve: an addition of a medical withdrawal to the list before that ad is published.

Guyer’s book published

Guyer, an educator for more than 40 years, shares the stories of those she has known and worked with throughout her career.

She has helped many students, from elementary school to col­lege and even professional school, and that their learning prob­lems were not unusual, that they could learn, and that they were intelligent, even gifted people.

In the book she profiles eight people she has known and worked with professionally since founding the H.E.P. Program and before. They have all overcome incredible obstacles to achieve success in their fields and their home lives.

The book will be available through the Marshall University Bookstore.

Lunchbag seminar slated
A lunchbag seminar titled “Not For Ourselves But For Oth­ers” will be presented Wednesday, Feb. 26, at noon in Prichard Hall Room 143.

Shannon Ewing, a graduate assistant, will discuss the Hun­tington Equal Suffrage Association from 1915 to the 19th Amend­ment. The seminar is open to the public free of charge. To obtain further details contact the Marshall University Women’s Center, 696-3112.
