GANNETT PLEDGES $50,000

A $50,000 pledge toward the establishment of a Marshall University medical school was announced last weekend by the Frank E. Gannett Newspapers Foundation, Inc.

Making the announcement was N.S. Hayden, president and publisher of the Huntington Publishing Co., a Gannett Newspaper subsidiary.

The grant is contingent upon passage by Congress of a bill authorizing medical schools for communities which have both a state university and a Veterans Administration hospital, and selection of Marshall and Huntington to receive federal funds for such a school.

Hayden said once the bill is passed and Marshall is selected as a site for a medical school, the $50,000 will be given to the university "with no strings attached."

At the direction of the West Virginia Board of Regents, Chancellor Prince B. Woodard has submitted a letter to the Veterans Administration requesting the establishment of such a medical school at Marshall.

"We feel establishment of a medical school at Marshall University is one of the most significant and far-reaching events in the history of the Huntington area," Hayden said. "And, as a newspaper with deep ties to the community, we feel it an obligation and a privilege to participate in some small way to the growth of the community."

He added, "It has been the history of the Gannett Foundation and Gannett newspapers to put their money to work so that it can benefit the most people in the best possible way. Assisting in the establishment of a medical school in a state where doctors are so badly needed fits in well with this tradition."

Commenting on the pledge, Marshall President John G. Barker said, "I am delighted by the generous contribution offered by the Gannett company and I pledge that we will make the best possible use of it. I am equally pleased with the company's demonstrated interest in helping the university to grow and to better serve the people of this region."

Morell resigns

Dr. R. W. Morell has submitted his resignation as dean of the College of Business and Applied Science and has asked to be re-assigned to full-time teaching and research duties for the remainder of the fiscal year, President John G. Barker announced.

Dr. Barker said Ernest W. Cole, assistant dean of the College of Business and Applied Science, has been appointed acting dean to serve until the appointment of a permanent dean.

Dr. Barker said the search for a new dean will be started immediately.

HERD ON THE AIR

Marshall University sports fans can now see and hear various reports on the Herd via various radio and television programs.

WHTN-TV, Channel 13 in Huntington, carries "Marshall Football Highlights" each Saturday preceding the ABC-NCAA college football game of the week. Marshall head coach Jack Lengyel is on hand, along with filmed highlights of the past week's game and special guests.

"Marshall Sports," hosted by Joe McMullen, director of athletics, may be viewed each Tuesday, 9:30 p.m. on WMUL-TV, Channel 33 in Huntington. The show features all Marshall sports with a different coach each week as guest.

The program is also being shown on WWVU-TV, Channel 24 in Morgantown, 10 p.m. each Thursday and on WSWP-TV, Channel 9 in Beckley, 8:30 p.m. each Friday. Sports fans may also watch Mountaineer Sports, featuring West Virginia University, 10 p.m. each Thursday on WMUL-TV.

On radio, all Marshall University football games are carried on the Marshall Sports Network with Bob Wagner, the "Voice of the Thundering Herd." Besides originating station WKEE in Huntington, MU fans may also listen to the games on WVAF (Charleston), WCAW (Charleston), WBTH (Williamson), WLOG (Logan), WJLS (Beckley), WPAR (Parkersburg), WIRO (Ironton), and WNXT (Portsmouth).

Marshall fans may also listen to "Marshall Sports," a 15-minute radio show 5:30 p.m. each Friday on WEMM-FM in Huntington.

Journalism Department activities

The faculty of the Department of Journalism detailed through comment and slides its academic and extracurricular programs at a meeting Sept. 21 of the Ohio Valley-Kanawha Chapter of Sigma Delta Chi, professional journalism society.

The news media representatives, many of whom are graduates of the Marshall journalism program, were informed of the addition this year of degree sequences in broadcast journalism and public relations as well as development of new courses in the three undergraduate and graduate sequences, according to George Arnold Jr., assistant professor of journalism.

Also guests at the early evening picnic at the Huntington Police Recreation Farm were Dr. William K. Easley, vice president for academic affairs, and Dr. George J. Harbold, dean of the College of Arts and Sciences, and their wives. Dr. Harbold gave a progress report on the search for a Department of Journalism chairman.

Registrars to meet

Marshall University will be host for the annual meeting of the West Virginia Association of Collegiate Registrars and Admissions Officers Oct. 4-6.

Robert H. Eddins, Marshall registrar and president of the association, said more than 40 representatives of all public and private colleges in West Virginia are expected to attend. All sessions of the convention will be held at the UpTowner Inn.

ODELL GRAVES HOSPITAL FUND

Marshall University football player Odell Graves, his wife Mary and one-year-old daughter Marcie were involved in a serious automobile accident on Aug. 27. Since that time, hospital bills amounting to more than $5,000 have accumulated.

The Huntington Civitan Club has organized a special "Civitan-Odell Graves Hospital Fund" to help defray these medical expenses. Persons wishing to contribute to this fund should mail their donations to:

CIVITAN - ODELL GRAVES HOSPITAL FUND
P.O. BOX 1262
HUNTINGTON, WEST VIRGINIA

"We trust many of our athletic department friends will wish to contribute to this worthy cause," said Joe McMullen, Marshall's director of athletics.

Checks should be made payable to "Civitan - Odell Graves Hospital Fund."

News and notes around the campus...

IMPERI APPOINTED

Leo V. Imperi, associate professor of music, has been appointed chairman of the 1972-73 United Fund Drive on Marshall's campus, President Barker announced.

Professor Imperi said, "Our campus United Fund Drive is in the organizational stage. If you are asked to assist, please be cooperative. Dividing of the work involved means no strain for anyone. Many thanks!"

Koontz is co-director

David E. Koontz, associate professor of curriculum and instruction, and Joseph Flaherty, West Virginia Department of Education, are co-directors for a national teachers' clinic to be held in Charleston Oct. 1-4. The topic of the clinic is "Emerging Roles and Responsibilities in Teacher Education Centers" and is sponsored jointly by the National Association of Teacher Educators and the West Virginia Association of Teacher Educators.

Clinic participants will be taking a close look at the West Virginia Teacher Education Center, hearing from three of the nation's leading educators, observing preliminary efforts at adopting modern technology to teacher education, and learning about efforts to research the effectiveness of the collaborative efforts between colleges and public schools by talking with researchers who have worked in this field.

Support the Herd

Tickets for Marshall University's four remaining home football games are on sale at the Gullickson Hall Athletic Ticket Office. The office is open Monday through Friday 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. On the four Saturday game-days, the Fairfield Stadium ticket office opens at 9 a.m.

The Thundering Herd hosts Northern Illinois Sept. 30, followed by the tough Miami Redskins on Oct. 7. Coach Jack Lengyel and his charges entertain Western Michigan, Oct. 21 for Homecoming and wrap-up the 1972 home season with Kent State on Nov. 4.

Tickets for adults are $4 per game and youth (high school age and under) $2. Special $1.00 youth general-admission, end-zone tickets are available the day of each game, beginning at 9 a.m. at the Fairfield Stadium ticket office.

Rotary Speaker

RONALD E. GAIN, assistant professor of biological sciences, was the guest speaker at the Man Rotary Club on Sept. 21. The topic presented was "The Hazards of Sewage - Contaminated Drinking Water."

Human Rights Forum

The members of the Marshall University community are invited to attend a meeting sponsored by the Huntington Critical Issues Committee on Wednesday, Oct. 4, at 7:30 p.m. The meeting will be held by the Junior League Community Center, 617 Ninth Avenue in Huntington, according to Dr. Richard O. Comfort, professor of sociology.

The purposes of the Human Rights Forum are:

Presentation of a summary of the proposed Human Rights Ordinance;

Statements in support of a Human Rights Ordinance by community organizations and institutions;
