1973 HOLIDAYS ANNOUNCED

President John G. Barker this week announced the designation of 11 paid holidays for employees of Marshall University in 1973.

Under a policy bulletin from the West Virginia Board of Regents dated Oct. 3, 1972, the president of each state college or university is permitted to designate no fewer than eight holidays nor more than 11 holidays each calendar year.

Marshall University holidays for 1973 are:

January 1 - New Year's Day
February 19 - Washington's Birthday
April 20 - Good Friday
May 28 - Memorial Day
July 4 - Independence Day
September 3 - Labor Day

November 22 - Thanksgiving Day
November 23 - Day after Thanksgiving
December 24 - Day before Christmas
December 25 - Christmas Day
December 26 - Day after Christmas

Holidays already scheduled for the remainder of 1972 are: November 7, Election Day; November 23, Thanksgiving Day; November 24, day after Thanksgiving; December 22, day before Christmas (scheduled for Friday, since Christmas falls on Monday); December 25, Christmas Day; December 26, day after Christmas.

Library schedule

Although Election Day, Tuesday, Nov. 7, is a university holiday, the Library will be open its full schedule of hours from 7:45 a.m. until 11 p.m., according to Dr. Kenneth T. Slack, director of libraries.

"The rationale followed for remaining open is that this is near the time when term papers are being written, students will not be spending the entire day in casting their ballots, and the fact that no classes are held that day will make this time highly favorable for preparation of term papers and review of materials looking toward the day of final examinations," said Slack.

The same rationale and requests from many students have dictated the decision that the Library "close only on Thanksgiving Day during the Thanksgiving holidays," said Slack. The regular schedule will be maintained for Friday, Saturday and Sunday, Nov. 24, 25, and 26, in order to accommodate students who are finishing term papers and preparing for final examinations.

GRADUATE RESEARCH

The Graduate School Research Needs Committee is attempting to identify the research needs of all faculty teaching graduate courses. The committee invites all those who are interested in obtaining research facilities of any kind to send in suggestions showing the facilities needed, approximate costs, and any other relevant information.

Suggestions should be sent to Dr. Joe Khatena, Graduate School Research Needs Committee, Department of Educational Foundations, Room 345 of Old Main, by Thursday, Nov. 2. It should be noted, however, that the work of the committee is exploratory and at present has nothing to do with funds already available.

Please attend!!!

According to a recent survey made by the Chesapeake and Potomac Telephone Company, Marshall University personnel are not making the most economical use of the telephone system, said Joseph C. Peters, vice president for business affairs.

Therefore, C & P Telephone Company conducted a one-hour training session yesterday for University personnel. If you did not attend the training session, you are encouraged to attend a second one-hour session Thursday, Nov. 2, at 3:20 p.m. in Smith Hall Auditorium (154).

The telephone company indicated that there is a serious need for faculty and administrators to attend the training session as well as secretarial and clerical personnel.

Clinic awarded $500

The Speech and Hearing Clinic has been awarded $500 by the West Virginia division of the American Cancer Society, according to Dr. Robert D. Olson, Chairman of the speech department.

The money is to be used by a graduate student in speech pathology and audiology for directing the Lost Chord Club activities in the Tri-State area.

Anice Townley of Huntington is the recipient of the $500. She will be responsible this academic year for conducting the monthly meetings and writing the club's monthly newsletters.

Miss Townley received her undergraduate degree in English from Radford College and is in her second year of graduate studies in MU's department of speech.

Lost Chord Club members include persons who have had laryngectomies or persons who are interested in the problems of laryngectomees. The club is a national organization with international affiliations.

Dr. Vincent Lustig, director of Marshall's speech and hearing clinic, said "We're very appreciative--the award is supporting one more effort on the part of Marshall University to be of service to the community."

Dedication planned

The Marshall University campus memorial to victims of the 1970 jetliner crash will be dedicated Sunday, Nov. 12, at 3 p.m. in the plaza of Memorial Student Center. The ceremony will take place just two days before the second anniversary of the crash which claimed 75 lives.

The memorial, a sculptured fountain created by internationally-known artists Harry Bertolia, will be presented by Marshall President John G. Barker.

Bertolia, who lives near Philadelphia, plans to attend the ceremony.

Featured speaker at the ceremony will be Marshall alumnus Larry Tippett of Huntington, a member of the Marshall Foundation Board of Directors.

The invocation and benediction will be delivered by the Rev. Fred Warren, president of the Huntington Ministerial Association. A musical selection, "Sanctus, Hosanna!" by Andrea Gabrioli, will be presented by the department of music.

The dedication ceremony will be open to the public. Special invitations are being sent to families of the victims, as well as to state and local leaders.

Following the ceremony, a reception for invited guests will be held in the alumni lounge in Memorial Student Center.

Professors on panel

Dr. Simon Perry and Dr. Paul D. Stewart, professors of political science, served as discussants on two panels at the meeting of the West Virginia Political Science Association at Morris Harvey College on Oct. 13 and 14.

One panel dealt with the teaching of political science in West Virginia; the other with the transition of governors in the state.

Others attending were Soo Bock Choi, professor of political science, Harold Neely, associate professor of political science, and Troy Stewart, instructor of political science.

Marshall grad honored

Mrs. Eloise Pope of Milton, a Marshall graduate, has been named Teacher of the Year for Cabell County. She was selected by the executive committee of the Cabell County Education Association from several outstanding teachers nominated by their fellow educators.

Mrs. Pope, who has been teaching in rural communities for 41 years, will retire at the end of the 1972-73 school year. She has taught for three years in one room schools, ten years at Salt Rock Elementary, 13 years as a teaching principal at Morris Memorial Elementary School, operated in conjunction with Morris Memorial Crippled Children's Hospital, and 16 years at Milton Elementary.

Mrs. Pope refers to herself as an "old fashioned teacher" saying, "I believe in loving children and disciplining them as long as one is fair about it. If you are fair about it, they won't resent it. Without discipline, you can not teach."

William Michael Brenner, instructor in the speech department, is one of Mrs. Pope's six grandchildren.

Students excused

The following students are excused from classes today to attend a one-day soils seminar on lateral earth pressures at the Rowntowner Motor Inn in Ft. Mitchell, Ky.:

Gregory C. Broxterman, Richard L. Cone, Domenico Chianesi, Larry W. Davis, James A. Dudley, James A. Eppley, Ronnie D. Gilkerson, John S. Smith, and Michael T. Wilson.

Management Conference

The 28th Annual Management Conference will be held on Marshall's campus Saturday, Oct. 28, in Smith Hall, according to Paul Collins, director of community services.

The conference, sponsored by the Tri-State Chapter of the National Management Association, will focus on the basic elements of effective management. The four major sessions include "The Various Roles of Management," "An Effective Leadership Pattern," "Providing a Climate for Motivation" and "Effective Goal Setting."

Registration will be held from 7:45 to 8:30 a.m., followed by opening remarks and a welcome by Dr. John G. Barker, president of Marshall.

The featured speaker for the day's activities will be James H. Healey, president of Management and Business Services, a management consulting firm, and adjunct professor of continuing education, The Ohio State University.

Healey holds B.S. and M.S. degrees from the University of Connecticut and a Ph.D. from Wharton School of the University of Pennsylvania.

Miss White hospitalized

Miss L. Marie White, author of "Metamorphose of Old Main" and former assistant registrar and retired director of records for the MU Alumni Office, is a patient at St. Mary's Hospital in Huntington recovering from a broken hip and arm sustained from a fall Saturday, Oct. 21.

Cards may be sent to Room 546, St. Mary's Hospital.

A reception honoring Miss White, planned for Sunday, Nov. 5, has been postponed, according to Dr. Donald K. Carson, director of university relations.

Physics teachers here

The Appalachian Section of the American Association of Physics Teachers will meet here Saturday, Oct. 28, according to Dr. Donald C. Martin, chairman of the physics and physical science department.

Dr. John G. Barker, president of Marshall, will deliver the welcoming address to the expected 70 college and high school physics teachers from West Virginia, southeastern Ohio and western Maryland.

Registration will begin at 9 a.m. in Room 100 of the Science Building. Several scholarly papers will be presented during the all-day meeting.

Participating from Marshall will be Dr. Wesley Shanholtzer, assistant professor of physics; Dr. Glenn Tuckef, professor of science education; Dr. Thomas J. Manakkil, associate professor of physics; and Dr. Warren Dumke, associate professor of physics.

Dr. Shanholtzer is the vice president for college teachers of the Appalachian Section of AAPT and president-elect.

MU withdraws MAC request

Marshall University has withdrawn its request for reinstatement to the Mid-American Conference and will continue to operate for the present as an athletic independent, President John G. Barker announced Wednesday, Oct. 18.

Dr. Barker said he had met with the Athletic Committee and that the committee had endorsed his proposal to withdraw Marshall's application for reinstatement to the MAC. He then asked that the committee assist and advise Athletic Director Joseph H. McMullen in considering three possible courses for Marshall's athletic future.

-Continuing as a major independent.

-Seeking membership in another existing athletic conference.

-Joining with other universities of similar size and capabilities to form a new athletic conference.

Seminars planned

The Office of Community Services is sponsoring a series of two-day seminars under the Occupational Safety and Health Act for business and industry in Southern West Virginia. "All seminars are designed to aid business and industry in understanding and complying with the provisions of the federal law," according to Paul Collins, director of community services.

The seminar, "Management's Responsibility under OSHA," begins at Concord College today and is the first in this series of intensive continuing education programs. Other colleges brought together with Concord and Marshall in a consortium arrangement are West Virginia Institute of Technology, West Virginia State, and Bluefield State College.

The next seminar will be held on Marshall's campus Nov. 10 and 11.

"The Diary of Anne Frank"

The Huntington Community Players will present the Pulitzer Prize-winning play "The Diary of Anne Frank" on Oct. 27, 28 and Nov. 2, 3 and 4 at the Abbott Theater on West 14th Street.

Curtain time is 8 p.m. There will also be a special matinee on Sunday, Oct. 29, at 2 p.m.

Featured in the cast are Joe Church, Jan Phillip, Elaine Novak and Donald Weed, with Paul Osbourn directing.

Reservations for the play may be made by calling 429-3705 from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. Tickets will also be available at the box office.

Jones named

Dr. Charles I. Jones, chairman of the vocational-technical education department, has been named to the National Career Education Professional Personnel Development Resource Panel.

The panel is under the National Center for Occupational Education and has the responsibility of establishing the goals, objectives and priorities for career education personnel.

Career education is a job-oriented program designed to provide students from kindergarten through adulthood with competencies in choosing skills appropriate to the manpower marketplace and the students' own interests and abilities.

Dr. Jones is also on the National Program Planning Council for Career Education which is under the auspices of the American Vocational Association.

Rights Ordinance

Members of the Marshall University faculty will vote on three matters as a result of Tuesday afternoon's faculty meeting. The balloting involves selection of a new member of the Public Relations and Publications Committee and election of a temporary replacement for Charles Bias on the Athletic Committee. In addition, faculty members will vote on a resolution submitted by Dr. William Sullivan favoring passage of a city ordinance which would establish a Huntington Human Rights Commission. The ordinance will be included on the Nov. 7 general election ballot.

Ballots have been placed in faculty mail boxes and are available in the registrar's office. Completed ballots must be returned in person to the Academic Affairs Office by 4 p.m., Nov. 1.

Copies of the Human Rights Commission ordinance are available for examination in the Academic Affairs office and a copy has been placed on the Mail Room bulletin board.

Marshall Artists Series

Marshall Artists Series, Baxter Series, presents The Royal Philharmonic, Wednesday, Nov. 1, 8 p.m., Keith-Albee Theater. The orchestra will perform "Leonora Overture No. 3" - Beethoven; "Violin Concerto in D minor" - Sibelius (Teiko Maehashi, soloist), and the "Symphonie Fantastique" - Berlioz. Tickets will be available at the theater box office 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. and 7 to 8 p.m. the day of the performance.

Marshall Artists Series, Convocation Series, presents Robert De Gaetano, pianist, Thursday, Nov. 2, 11 a.m., Old Main Auditorium. De Gaetano will perform "Italian Concerto" - J. S. Bach; "Scherzo No. 2 in B flat minor" and "Nocturne in C sharp minor" - Chopin, and the "Sonata No. 7 in B flat major" - Prekofiev. Admission is free. De Gaetano will conduct a brief informal workshop on the stage immediately following his concert.

All-Activities Calendar

An up-to-date calendar of university events is maintained by the Office of Student Activities and Cultural Events. Entries and inquiries should be directed to this office or by calling extension 6770. "Prior to each semester, a calendar is published for general use and can be obtained at the information desk in the Memorial Student Center lobby," according to James A. Martin, coordinator of student activities and cultural events.

Conduct workshop

Dr. Pauline M. Harvey, assistant professor of special education, and Dr. Katherine W. Simpkins, associate professor of educational foundations, conducted a half-day workshop for teachers of exceptional children in the Ironton city schools, Friday, Oct. 13.

The workshop, held in Kingsbury Elementary School, centered around "programming of learning activities" and "modifications in reading instruction for children with special learning problems."

United Fund Drive

Our United Fund Drive is supposed to end on October 31. So far we have approximately $3000. Our goal is $12,000. Some have contributed as high as $150. We need a $25 average from faculty and staff, and our goal would be reached easily.

Thanks again.

Insurance Meeting

Representatives of the West Virginia Public Employees Insurance Board will be on the Marshall University campus today to explain the new group insurance plan for Marshall employees.

Joseph C. Peters, Marshall vice president for business, said meetings will be held in Old Main Auditorium from 11 a.m. to noon and from noon to 1 p.m. to outline the new insurance program and its benefits. He urged that all full-time employees of the university attend one of the meetings.
