Faculty, staff achievements, activities. . .

DR. WARREN L. DUMKE, associate professor of physics and physical science, attended the spring meeting of the Ohio Section of the American Physical Society, April 12-13, at the University of Cincinnati. The meeting featured a symposium on "Solid State Physics."

DR. JOHN L. HUBBARD, associate professor of chemistry, attended the 189th National Meeting of the American Chemical Society at Miami Beach, Fla., April 28-May 2. He was chairman of a session of papers on "Organophosphorus and Organometallic Compounds" in the Division of Organic Chemistry.

"Evil Empire," an article written by WILLIAM DIEHL, professor of journalism, was published in the Spring 1985 issue of The Masthead, quarterly publication of the National Conference of Editorial Writers. The article deals with criticism of newspapers and handling of the traditional role as defender of the public's right to know.

multi-million dollar campus development program with private funding – a project that won wide acclaim, both in the community and educational sector.

From 1977 to 1980 he was vice president for administration at University of South Florida in Tampa and was executive director of the University of South Florida Foundation.

Before going to Florida, Scott was vice president for administration at Shippensburg (Pa.) State College. He also served as liaison with legislators, external agencies and community leaders.

He held a number of positions at Illinois State University in Normal from 1960 to 1974, including assistant vice president for administration. He also served a four-year term on city council in Normal and taught courses in the College of Education.

He served in the public schools of Illinois from 1950 to 1958 including positions as a high school teacher, elementary principal, a district supervisor of elementary schools and was a superintendent of schools for joint school districts.

Scott received his doctorate in administration and higher education from the University of Colorado, master's degree in public school administration from Western Illinois University and bachelor's degree from Carthage (Ill.) College.

Scott is a native of Carthage. He and his wife, Joyce, have one daughter, Nicole, age nine. He also served in the U.S. Navy.

Professor of management, Dr. Kademani, dead at 55

Dr. Gurubasappa Kademani, 55, of 1611 Campbell Drive, Huntington, former chairman of the Department of Management, died May 22 in St. Mary's Hospital after a long illness. Burial was in Woodmere Memorial Park.

Dr. Kademani, who was born in Hubli, India, had been a member of the Marshall faculty since 1973. He received his Ph.D. degree from the University of Georgia.

Survivors include his wife, Sudha Mogli Kademani, and a son, Meghanad. Contributions in his honor are being made to the Marshall University Foundation for the College of Business Scholarship Fund.

MARIA CARMEN RIDDEL, assistant professor of modern languages, attended the 12th Annual Conference of Latin American Studies, April 17-21, in Albuquerque, N.M.

DR. CHONG W. KIM, chairman of the Department of Management, presented a paper, "Some Problems of Korean Multinational Corporations in the U.S.," at the Second Annual Pan-Pacific Conference, May 11-15, in Seoul, Korea. He also was chairman of a paper session.

DR. JOHN W. FOSTER, associate professor of microbiology, was an invited speaker May 16 at Cornell University. His topic was "Genetics of NAD metabolism/Global control in Salmonella typhimurium."

Regents through allocations to Marshall.

"Obviously, we are very pleased the Board of Regents has expressed this level of confidence in Marshall University," President Dale F. Nitzschke said. "Although CERI will be independent from Marshall's Center for Regional Progress, I'm certain the two centers will be able to complement their respective efforts – to the benefit of the entire state."

Nitzschke said plans are being developed to implement the transfer of CERI to Marshall under the leadership of Dr. Robert F. Maddox, associate vice president for academic affairs and dean of the Graduate School. A full-time director will be employed soon, he said.

Ginsberg said the Regents' resolution takes into account the recent creation of a new State Department of Commerce and legislation providing for specific involvement of institutions of higher education in the work of the Governor's Office of Economic Opportunity. He said CERI will work with the institutions in ways that will be complementary to those of the new agency.

Maddox said CERI will emphasize providing expertise from faculty members throughout the state to specific problems, basic and applied research, and employee training needs of businesses and industries.

"We're excited about the opportunities CERI opens up throughout the state," Maddox said. "Assignment of that responsibility places Marshall University in the hub of a program that can have a tremendous impact on West Virginia's economy in the months and years ahead."

Retired mathematics teacher, Berfitt Jordan, dead at 70

Berfitt Jordan, 70, of 1416 Charleston Ave., a retired member of the faculty of the Department of Mathematics, died Saturday in Cabell Huntington Hospital. Burial was Monday at Mount Zion Cemetery near Milton.

Professor Jordan joined the faculty in 1960 and retired in 1980 as an associate professor. He taught at Jaeger and Point Pleasant high schools before coming to Marshall. He received the bachelor's and master's degrees from Marshall.

Survivors include his wife, Francis Vaughan Jordan; three daughters, Linda Brobst of Huntington, Diana Hodges of Bridge City, Tex., and Nora Dee Jordan, at home; and two sons, Robert Jordan of Salem, Ore., and Charles Jordan of Milton.

Center to aid industry moving here

The Regents Center for Education and Research with Industry (CERI) will be transferred to Marshall and the university will assume responsibility for operation of the statewide program, Dr. Leon H. Ginsberg, chancellor, has announced.

He said the board was making an initial allocation of $100,000 to Marshall to operate the center.

"CERI was established by the Board of Regents in 1983 to foster contributions from the state's colleges and universities toward West Virginia's long-term economic development," Ginsberg said. It has operated from the board's central office in a cooperative relationship with the state's public and private colleges and universities. "It is more appropriate for the center to be campus centered with all of the resources available," Ginsberg said.

"Although the center will be located at Marshall, it will extend to all the campuses and will have staff in several counties, including Cabell, Kanawha and Ohio, and will continue to work with colleges and universities statewide," he added.

He said CERI will be operated as a separate entity on campus and will receive funding from the Board of

New vp for advancement named

Dr. Keith L. Scott of Canoga Park, Calif., has been selected as Marshall University's vice president for institutional advancement, President Dale F. Nitzschke has announced.

Scott, currently vice president for university advancement at California State University-Northridge, will assume his duties as soon as possible, Nitzschke said.

"I am extremely pleased that Keith Scott has accepted the offer to head one of Marshall University's most important divisions," Nitzschke said. "Beyond the fact he is a mature, greatly-experienced administrator, he has a most attractive personality. I believe the many people in our region who will be working with him truly will enjoy the experience."

As vice president for institutional advancement, Scott will be responsible for supervision of the offices of Development, Alumni Affairs, University Relations and Student Recruitment. He also will serve as executive director of the Marshall University Foundation, Inc.

Dr. Scott

Scott originally went to the Northridge campus, located in the Los Angeles area, in 1980 as vice president for administration and development and was appointed vice president for university advancement in August 1983. At Northridge he was a member of the university's Senior Executive Group. He created and directed a

Classes set Saturday, June 29

Saturday, June 29, will be a class day for students and faculty as a make-up day for an extended Independence Day holiday.

The university will be closed Thursday and Friday, July 4 and 5. While classes will be conducted Saturday, June 29, university offices will not be open that day.

Journalism accredited, ups standards

The W. Page Pitt School of Journalism has been awarded national accreditation and tougher admissions standards will go into effect this fall, according to Director Deryl R. Leaming.

Leaming said the Accrediting Council on Education in Journalism and Mass Communications announced accreditation for six years following a thorough review of the journalism program including an on-site visit by a four-person team in February.

"We were inspected specifically in our news-editorial, broadcast journalism and public relations sequences, and we also were examined for 'unit accreditation'."

Leaming explained. "That means every part of our work was reviewed."

The program was accredited in the news-editorial sequence only before the latest accreditation process.

As for the new admission standards, Leaming said before being admitted to the journalism program incoming freshmen and transfer students must complete 30 academic hours including English 101 and 102 and Journalism 101 and maintain at least a 2.25 grade point average. Applicants also must pass standardized English, grammar and typing tests.

TINY:

'Voice of Marshall' hanging it up . . .

President Dale F. Nitzschke called her the "real voice of Marshall." All of you on campus probably know her as the "may I help you" lady.

She's Juanita Mae Moser, but if that doesn't "ring a bell," then "Tiny" no doubt will.

Tiny - she's five feet tall - will be answering her last Marshall telephone call June 28 as she will be retiring after 13 years as the telephone switchboard operator and 17 years total as a Marshall employee.

"Many might think the basketball and football broadcasters are the voice of Marshall, but this lady truly is the voice of Marshall," President Nitzschke said in introducing Mrs. Moser at the Commencement luncheon in May honoring retirees.

"It's been a great job," Mrs. Moser said in an interview. "I like the people, I like talking to them and I like helping them. I love Marshall and while I'm ready to retire, I hate to leave because Marshall has been good to me."

She said her husband, Raymond, retired more than a year ago as parts manager for a truck sales company and they look forward to traveling, including visiting their son, his wife and their two grandsons in Evergreen, Colo. Their son is Dr. William Scott Moser, a metallurgist. Gardening at home also is high on her agenda.

The job has become much more demanding over the years as student enrollment has almost doubled since she first came, Mrs. Moser said. She now handles 1,500 to 2,000 calls a day including placing 300 on the long distance Dial Automatic Internally Network (DAIN).

Mrs. Moser said one of the most difficult times was when she first took over the job during a series of bomb threats and she was the first to receive the calls.

Mrs. Juanita Mae "Tiny" Moser at console

Her advice to her successor: "Be patient. Really get to know the campus and people and have a good ability to remember names and numbers so you can be of greater help to callers."

She put the interview "on hold" for a minute. "Let me get these calls - they're stacking up," she said, returning to her console tucked away on the second floor of the Sorrell Maintenance Building.

"Marshall - may I help you," she responds once again.

17 retirees' service totals 252 years

Seventeen faculty and staff members, including a professor distinguished in plant studies, are retiring at Marshall University this year.

Dr. Howard L. Mills, professor of biological sciences with a specialty in botany, joined the Marshall faculty in September 1951 and has been involved in research, ranging from how to grow vegetation to prevent the spread of the African desert to cultivating orchids.

The retirement list includes three well-known Marshall personalities who earlier announced plans to retire. They are Dr. Robert W. Coon, vice president and dean of the School of Medicine, nine years at Marshall; Marvin E. Billups, director of personnel, 14 years, and Nancy P. Hindsley, coordinator cultural events, 13 years.

The retirees, who have a combined total of 252 years of service with the university, were honored at the Commencement luncheon May 11 at Memorial Student Center.

Other faculty members retiring are Robert J. Dils, associate professor of physics and physical science, after 21 years of service; Dr. Talmadge R. Huston, associate professor of family and community health, 11 years; Mary S. Kopp, assistant professor of nursing, 18 years;

Dr. Milton Rosenbaum, distinguished visiting professor of psychiatry, seven years; Walter Sawaniewski, associate professor of English, 22 years, and Margaret D. Vass, assistant professor of education, 27 years.

Other staff members retiring include Martha Allenbaugh, registered nurse, pharmacology, after two years; Reathel Blankenship, building service worker, 10 years; Mary B. Brown, storekeeper, Department of Chemistry, 16 years; Homer Curry, carpenter, six years; Marilyn Kooiker, secretary, Department of Speech, 10 years; Russell McComas, routeman in plant operations, 15 years, and Juanita Moser, telephone operator, 17 years.

HELP - Give us the envelopes, please

Do you have more campus mail envelopes than you need and would like to reduce your stack?

Well, Accounts Payable Division of the Office of Financial Affairs has sent out a request for campus mail envelopes. Thomas Dorsey asked that any department with extras to send them to Accounts Payable, Old Main 202, or call extension 6488.

Chamber 10 riverfront concert today

The third annual Chamber 10, Huntington Chamber Music Festival, will be a highlight of the area's summer arts scene providing quality programming for local chamber music lovers, according to Director James McWhorter, instructor of music.

A subscription series of five evening concerts in Smith Recital Hall and an afternoon concert at the Huntington Galleries are scheduled, along with the return of last year's popular noontime "Brown Bag" concerts with a new addition, the "Twilight Concert," at Harris Riverfront Park in downtown Huntington.

The first free concert will be the "Twilight Concert" at 6:30 p.m. today, June 13, at Harris Riverfront Park. The public is invited to bring a picnic supper, lawn chairs and the entire family to hear Handel's "Water Music" and other works by Bach and Roman featuring Marshall music faculty members Patricia Green, violin, and Ted Heger, oboe.

Other free "Brown Bag" concert series at noon are scheduled Monday, June 24, at Johnson Memorial United Methodist Church; Monday, July 1, at B'nai Shalom Temple and Monday, July 8, at the Cabell County Public Library.

A favorite concert group will again perform when the Marshall Artists Series in conjunction with Chamber 10 presents the Charleston String Quartet at 8 p.m. Monday, June 17, in Smith Recital Hall. Works will include Schubert, Bartok and Beethoven.

Violinist Charles Sherba, concertmaster of the Charleston Symphony Orchestra, will join McWhorter and Marchant in a program of Beethoven, Brahms and Dvorak in the third evening concert Wednesday, June 19.

Headlining the fourth evening program Tuesday, July 2, will be baritone Paul Balshaw, dean of the College of Fine Arts, and Charleston Soprano Renay Conlin, performing music by Ravel, Debussy and Schumann. Also on the program will be Charleston Symphony Conductor Thomas Conlin, piano, and MU faculty members Dr. James Taggart, piano, Dr. Deborah Egekvist, flute, and McWhorter.

Woodwind repertoire will be the feature of the Thursday, July 11, evening concert with varied works for winds and piano including Villa-Lobos, Nielsen, Beethoven and Poulenc played by Klif Hodgkin, bassoon, and Marsha Palmer, horn, Charleston; Christopher Philpotts, oboe, Cincinnati, Karin Edwards, piano, Milwaukee, Wis., and MU music faculty members Dr. Donald Williams, clarinet and Egekvist.

The final in the subscription series will be a 3 p.m. performance Sunday, July 14, at Huntington Galleries, with music by Bach, Reinecke and Tcherpnin. Musicians include Joseph E. Line, harpsichord, McWhorter, Williams and Egekvist, all of the MU music faculty.

Half-price tickets available for Forum Series

Live ragtime music, a one-woman play depicting the life of one of America's best known poets and film visits to such places as the Swiss Alps, Ireland and along the route of the Orient Express will be featured on Marshall University's 1985-86 Forum Series.

Nancy P. Hindsley, MU cultural events coordinator, said the Forum Division, Marshall Artists Series, will feature eight programs including six film lectures, a musical show and the play about poet Emily Dickinson.

Season memberships for all eight Forum programs are available at a cost of $30 for adults and $15 for youth age 17 and under. Marshall faculty and staff members may buy tickets for one-half regular price and retired faculty members are admitted free.

The opening program, Sept. 19, will feature a film lecture by Andre De La Varre Jr. He will provide the narrative for a tour of Switzerland from the highest summits of the Alps to the semitropical resorts of southern Switzerland.

On Oct. 18, Clay Francisco's film lecture, "Americans in Paris," will retrace the past and enjoy the present Paris.

"The Orient Express," a film-lecture story of one of the world's most glamorous and renowned trains as captured by Kathleen Dusek, will be presented Nov. 1.

The Dec. 3 presentation will switch from trains to travel on the mighty Mississippi back into a time and place where the plantation aristocracy lived like princes.

The Manhattan Rhythm Kings will come to campus Jan. 28, singing, dancing and playing a variety of instruments.

On March 3, William Stockdale will take Forum-goers on a film tour entitled "Ireland - Gems of the Emerald Isle."

Ken Creed's travelogue film, "Alaska - A Tourist Spectacular," will be presented April 3.

Closing the Forum's 1985-86 season April 30 will be the one woman play, "Belle of Amherst."

Footpath concert Saturday

Footpath Dance Company of Cleveland, in residence on campus through June 22, will present a full company concert at 8 p.m. Saturday in Old Main Auditorium.

The company, which also was in residence here last year, is sponsored by the Institute for the Arts with assistance from the West Virginia Arts and Humanities Council, Department of Culture and History. Concert tickets are $4 general admission and $2 for students under 18.

Information is available in the Institute office, Old Main 112.

U Theatre play June 27

Marshall University Summer Theatre will present the production "Come Back to the 5 and Dime, Jimmy Dean, Jimmy Dean" June 27, 28 and 29 in Old Main Auditorium.

Other summer productions will include "The Elephant Man" July 11, 12 and 13 and "Mrs. McThing" July 25, 26 and 27. Auditions for parts for the first two plays have been conducted and tryouts for "Mrs. McThing" will be July 1 and 2.

COLLEGE OF EDUCATION

It's going to be tougher to get in and out

More demanding requirements for both admission and graduation in teacher education for new students will be in effect with the fall term in the College of Education, according to Dean Allen Mori.

Admission standards have been raised from 2.0 to 2.5. All candidates for admission also will have to pass preprofessional skills tests measuring reading, writing, mathematics, speaking and listening, Dr. Mori said.

Students will have to maintain the 2.5 grade average throughout the program to be certified by the college. Graduates also will have to pass a comprehensive test in their major to show mastery of content.

The dean said more emphasis will be given to classroom experience as students will be placed in the public schools earlier, starting with the first two education courses.

Additionally, student teachers will be much more closely supervised due to national accreditation and state policies as well as additional standards set by the college, he said.

In the past, 24 student teachers were assigned to one Marshall faculty supervisor and about four faculty visits were made during the semester of student teaching the senior year. He said the college's goal is to reduce the student-teacher ratio to 12 to 1 and state certification standards could require as many as 12 visits.

Dr. Mori said closer checks will be made to make sure supervising teachers within the school systems are good role models for student teachers.

The college also is revising courses and has extensive plans to reorganize the departmental structure of the college to place more emphasis on teacher education and to provide greater leadership in developing creative approaches in preparing future teachers.

But while it will be tougher to get in and out of the program, Dr. Jack Maynard, associate dean, said the college will provide greater help to students in advising and testing. He also said the college will be recruiting students who are more likely to succeed.

Deutsch, Kim to head English, management

New chairmen have been named for the Departments of English and Management, according to Dr. Alan B. Gould, acting vice president for academic affairs.

Dr. Leonard J. Deutsch has assumed new duties as head of the English Department and Dr. Chong Kim, who had been serving as acting chairman of the Management Department, is the new chairman.

Deutsch, a member of the faculty since 1970, now heads the largest department on campus in terms of number of faculty members and student enrollment.

Gould said Deutsch was recommended by the English faculty with final approval given by President Dale F. Nitzschke. Dr. David E. Stooke, associate professor of English, had been serving as acting chairman and will return to duties as a full-time faculty member.

The Department of English has 28 faculty members and offers classes for about 3,000 students a year.

Born in The Bronx, N.Y., Deutsch received the bachelor's and master's degrees from City College of New York and the doctorate from Kent State University.

Gould said Kim, who had been acting chairman for the past year, was selected following a national search.

He received his doctoral degree from The Ohio State University, master's degree from Miami (Ohio) University and bachelor's degree from Yonsei University in Seoul, Korea.

Before joining the College of Business faculty in 1977, he taught at Rider College in New Jersey, was a graduate assistant and associate at Miami University and Ohio State and taught English in a Korean Army school. He also was a lieutenant in the Korean Army.

Faculty salary guidelines available from chairpersons

Copies of the Board of Regents' GUIDELINES AND INTERPRETATIONS regarding faculty salary increases for 1985-86 have been placed in the hands of each chairperson.

If you have questions after having examined this material, contact me at Ext. 6780.

The Department of Finance and Administration must approve expenditure schedules before contracts for 1985-86 can be distributed. F&A's submission deadline for these schedules was June 11. Based on past experience, board staff members think it unlikely contracts will reach us before July 15.

Maddox, Woodward authors of new book

A reference book on World War I written by two Marshall University historians is being published as part of a 14-volume series, "Wars of the United States."

The book, compiled by Dr. David R. Woodward and Dr. Robert Franklin Maddox, is entitled "America and World War I: A Selected Annotated Bibliography of English-Language Sources." The general editor of the series, Dr. Richard L. Blanco, has described it as "the best annotated selection of printed data in English on the stirring era between 1914 and 1919." The book is being published by Garland Publishing.

Woodward and Maddox cover subjects ranging from war film and literature to civil-military relations to women and the war. In addition, they devote much of the book to the home front.

Maddox, at Marshall since 1966, is associate vice president for academic affairs and dean of Marshall's Graduate School, as well as acting director of development.

Woodward, who joined the Marshall faculty in 1970, is chairman of the Department of History.

Mabee writes book on interpreting Bible

The chairman of Marshall University's Department of Religious Studies is the author of the first in a series of books dealing with interpretation of the Bible.

The 151-page volume, "Reimagining America, A Theological Critique of the American Mythos and Biblical Hermeneutics," was written by Dr. Charles Mabee.

Published by Mercer University Press of Macon, Ga., the book is now being distributed to bookstores. Dr. Mabee also is editor of the series entitled "Studies in American Biblical Hermeneutics" and said a second volume, written by another author, has been accepted for publication. It is a study of New Testament theologians.

Termining the series experimental, he said the books are designed to bridge the gap between specialists who interpret the Bible and interested critical readers.

"The idea behind the first book is that the Bible is 'America's book' and yet problems persist about how one goes about reading the Bible," Dr. Mabee said. "This is seen in the modern context in which so many viewpoints exist - fundamentalists, evangelicals and liberal biblical interpreters."

Home economics chairperson selected for national lecture

The chairperson of the Department of Home Economics has been selected in national competition to deliver the American Home Economics Association Commemorative Lecture in Philadelphia June 24-27.

Dr. Carole A. Vickers was selected for the honor by the Awards Committee of the 33,000-member AHEA. Carolyn Townsley, chairman of the Awards Committee, said Dr. Vickers will receive $2,000, a commemorative plaque and the opportunity to present a lecture at the AHEA Annual Meeting and Exposition in Philadelphia.

The title of Dr. Vickers' lecture will be "Effective Public Policy: A Question of Attitude." The lecture also is scheduled to be published in the Journal of Home Economics.

Purchase orders for food required

Effective July 1, all food service orders at campus facilities must be accompanied by a purchase order number and requisition, according to Ray Welty, director of auxiliary services.

Welty said the requisition should indicate the approximate number of persons to be served and the estimated dollar value to be encumbered.

He also said each department that regularly uses campus food service is encouraged to establish an open charge requisition for such orders as coffee and doughnuts.

New blood donor hours announced

The American Red Cross Blood Center in Huntington has changed its donor hours to make giving blood more convenient, according to Jeanette Rowsey, public relations director.

Hours are 1 to 4 p.m. Monday and Tuesday, 2 to 6 p.m. Wednesday and Thursday and 9 a.m. to noon Friday. Ms. Rowsey said walk-ins are accepted and babysitting and transportation can be provided. Information is available at 522-0328.

Upward Bound program re-funded

Marshall has been awarded a $150,537 grant by the U.S. Department of Education to continue the Upward Bound program through May, 1986, according to Jacquelyn Hersman, director.

Part of the Division of Student Affairs' programming since 1973, Upward Bound provides educational support and experiences for disadvantaged high school students who show potential for successful post secondary education.

Ms. Hersman said the Marshall program serves 60 students during the academic year and 50 students who come to campus in the summer. It serves seven schools in Cabell, Wayne and Mingo counties.

News Letter on two-week schedule

The Marshall University News Letter publishes every two weeks in the summer with the deadline for submission of copy 10 a.m. Tuesday the week of publication.

The News Letter is distributed every other Thursday during the summer. Deadline for submission of copy for the June 27 issue is 10 a.m. Tuesday, June 25, in Old Main Room 102, Office of University Relations. Telephone number is 696-6453.

Sortet completes doctorate

Judith Pinson Sortet, associate dean of the School of Nursing at Marshall University, has been awarded a doctorate in education administration, according to Dr. Alan B. Gould, acting vice president for academic affairs.

Dr. Sortet, who has been at Marshall since 1981, received the degree from West Virginia University in cooperation with Marshall University and the West Virginia College of Graduate Studies.

The title of her dissertation was "Perceptions of Nursing Education Administrators and Nursing Service Administrators Regarding Associate Degree and Baccalaureate Degree Nurses in Hospitals." She received associate and bachelor's degrees in nursing from Marshall and a master's degree in nursing from The Ohio State University.

Staff advisory group to BOR reports

NOTE: The following report on the May 14 meeting of the Advisory Council of Classified Employees to the West Virginia Board of Regents was submitted by Kenneth R. Reffeitt, Marshall representative to the council.

The Advisory Council of Classified Employees to the Board of Regents met May 14, 1985, in the Conference Room of the Drain-Jordan Library, West Virginia State College, Institute.

The meeting was called to order at 9 a.m. by Clifton Neal, chairman. Four new council members were introduced.

The following agenda items were presented and action taken as noted:

1. Minutes of April 2 meeting were approved with minor corrections.

2. Mr. Neal reported on the May Board of Regents meeting, concluded the previous day. Mr. Neal intervened before the classified portion of the personal services budget was adopted by the board and secured a delay of their action until we met. He stated we needed to make a recommendation that day to the executive committee (officers) of the BOR concerning the disposition of the surplus in classified personal service appropriations. There is $1.5 million additional monies above the 5 percent general salary increase and the $36 per year increments for years of service. However, the Regents already have ear-marked $400,000 of this amount, leaving $1.1 million for which classified council is to make a recommendation. After a lengthy discussion a motion was made to recommend that entry level minimum salaries be raised only 5 percent and that continuing employees be given an additional one-half of one percent for each three years of service in West Virginia public higher education, covering years three through 18

Staff council positions filled in May 16 voting

Representatives to the Classified Staff Council were elected in voting May 16, according to Sherri Noble.

Also, in April 15 voting, Kenneth Reffeitt was elected as Marshall's representative to the state-wide Advisory Council of Classified Employees to the West Virginia Board of Regents and Eugene Crawford was elected as a member of the Marshall Institutional Board of Advisors.

Winners of staff council positions in the May 16 campus voting were:

School of Medicine/Nursing Division-Professional/Administrative Group - Charles Gilbert and Elizabeth Nickell; School of Medicine/Nursing Division-Office Personnel Group - Panda Benford, Ann Henson and Peggy Theis;

Student Affairs Division - John Morton; Support Services Division-Skilled Crafts/Service Maintenance Group - Charlotte Ball, Barbara Phillips, Christine Qualls, Mildred Williams and Ruth Workman.

Ms. Noble said in some divisions only enough nominations were received to fill openings so those nominated automatically were elected:

Athletics Division - Donna Mohr; Financial Affairs Division - Nina Barrett and Gloria Rickman; Institutional Advancement Division - Georgia Childers;

Support Services Division-Technical/Paraprofessional Group - Priscilla Kell; and Support Services Division-Office Personnel Group - Jackie Paul

No nominations were received for the Academic Affairs Division-Professional/Administrative Group.

(maximum 3 percent). The motion carried and Mr. Neal was to present our plan to BOR executive committee who would make the final decision by May 24.

3. Legislative update was presented by Mr. Neal and Pam Pratt of the College of Graduate Studies, legislation chairman. All expressed disappointment that the governor had vetoed the classified salary schedule. A copy of the governor's complete message explaining his veto was distributed. Sen. Burdette remains committed to getting a schedule through early in the next session to allow for an override of a possible veto.

4. Summer meetings of council were planned for June 12, July 16, and Aug. 13 in Charleston.

5. Paul Martinelli, West Virginia University member, was appointed chairman of a committee to study the way advisory council members are elected at each campus throughout the system.

6. A report on Policy Bulletin 35 was made by George Gaumont, Shepherd College member, who stated that at some campuses nine-month employees were not given credit for a full year's service while at other schools they were. Each member is to report how it is being handled at his/her school.

7. It was agreed to hold a 30-minute executive session of our council before the next meeting for the election of officers for the new year.

8. In regard to the severe weather policy proposal by the Council of Presidents, Mr. Martinelli and Ken Reffeitt of Marshall were appointed to attempt to clarify some of the wording as to intent.

9. Shift differential was discussed at length, but there seemed to be little interest due to the complex bookkeeping involved with employees working one shift while schools are open and a different shift when schools are closed.

10. An agreement was reached that council see a tentative appointment form before July 1 and that same be uniform throughout the system and that each employee's pay grade be listed.

The meeting adjourned to reconvene Wednesday, June 12, in Charleston.

U Council acts on titles

In accordance with section XII of the Constitution of the Marshall University Faculty (The Greenbook 1983-84, p. 32) entitled "Procedural Amendments," University Council is providing the faculty with the following position title changes within the administration: Provost to Vice President for Academic Affairs, Vice President of Business Affairs to Vice President for Financial Affairs, Vice President for Administration to Vice President for Support Services, Director of Informational Services to Director of University Relations, and Dean of Student Affairs to Vice President for Student Affairs and Dean of Students.

University Council

They never missed a day . . .

Five building service workers in housing have received certificates for perfect attendance during the 1984 calendar year, according to Ray Welty, director of auxiliary services.

They are Clarence Martin, Laura Nance, Jerry Stowasser, Rachel King and Charles McKinney. Welty said 15 other workers were cited for missing five or less days due to illness.
