General faculty meeting set Tuesday

There will be a general faculty meeting at 4 p.m., Tuesday, April 20, in Old Main Auditorium. The annual Spring elections of various faculty to the standing faculty committees will begin at that time by receiving nominations. Because the number of positions to be filled are numerous this year, this notice is being provided to motivate and encourage the presentation of a wide selection of nominees.

In this Spring election by the faculty at large, nominations are received and ballots are distributed and collected during the following week. This has been the standard procedure for some years. The vacancies are as follows with the name indicating the person now serving in the position:

- I. A. (All four year terms)
 1. Student Conduct and Welfare Committee - Professor J. D. Folsom
 2. Faculty Service Committee - Professor Elma Chapman
 3. Commencement and Honorary Degrees Committee - Professor Frank Riddel
 4. Commencement and Honorary Degrees Committee - Professor Carl Johnson

Plan summer activities with conference/facilities manager

Departments and organizations planning seminars, workshops or other similar events on campus this summer should contact the Conference and Facilities Manager's office, Old Main 112, by April 26, according to Melanie Glover, managers.

"Housing accommodations and meeting space are rapidly filling up for this year's conference season," Mrs. Glover said. "Even tentatively scheduled events should be placed on the conference calendar to assist us in university-wide planning," she added. "Anyone with questions may call me at extension 3125," she said.

CAMPUS ANNOUNCEMENTS...

New techniques in working with learning disabled (LD) children will be explored in a one-day spring conference scheduled Saturday, April 17, at Marshall University's Memorial Student Center.

Speakers for the conference include Suzanne Stevens, author of "The LD Child: Ways Parents Can Help," and Dr. Joyce Steeves, adjunct professor at Johns Hopkins University and consultant to the Jemicy School, a college preparatory school for dyslexic children.

The conference, which is co-sponsored by the MU College of Education and the Huntington Area affiliate of the West Virginia Association for Children with Learning Disabilities, is designed not only for educators and psychologists, but also for parents of LD children.

'ROMEO AND JULIET' TICKETS AVAILABLE

Tickets for Marshall University Theatre's production of "Romeo and Juliet" are now available at the Theatre Box Office, located in Old Main 107.

One of Shakespeare's best-known plays, "Romeo and Juliet" will be presented by an all-student cast at 8 o'clock nightly April 21-24 in Old Main Auditorium. The romantic tragedy, directed by Dr. Elaine A. Novak, MU professor of speech, will feature Dan Henthorn of New Martinsville as Romeo and Kendra Lanette Egnor of Huntington as Juliet.

Reserved seat tickets at $2.50 each may be purchased weekdays between 1 p.m. and 4 p.m. Ticket orders also may be placed by telephoning the box office, 696-2306. MU students with Activity Cards will be admitted free.

Marshall journalism students sweep awards at convention

Students in the W. Page Pitt School of Journalism at Marshall University won more awards than those from any other school at the Region IV, Society of Professional Journalists/Sigma Delta Chi Convention April 2-4 at Michigan State University in East Lansing.

With six awards including three first places, Marshall won two more certificates than any other school in the four-state area of Michigan, Ohio, Western Pennsylvania and West Virginia.

Marshall's first-place finishers were Meria Dawson Broomes, Huntington freshman, news photography; Kathy Young, Huntington senior, radio spot news, and Doug Sheils, Huntington senior, television spot news.

Steve Hauser, Charleston senior and editor of the university newspaper, The Parthenon, placed second in editorial writing, and Todd Meek, Huntington junior, was third in feature photography. In the category that drew the most entries (58), Michael Bailey of Kenova placed third in feature writing.

New to the campus are:

TERRI GRIMMETT, secretary, Student Activities; JEAN JORDAN WELLS, secretary, Music Department, and KAYE ANDERSON, reading specialist, Special Services.

Welcome to Marshall!

ODK LEADERSHIP AWARD

A Marshall University student, Kelly Kearfott of Follansbee, has been selected as Omicron Delta Kappa (ODK) Province V Leader of the Year.

The 20-year-old graduate student will be one of 12 ODK province leaders competing for ODK's National Leader of the Year Award which will be announced later this spring, according to Mrs. Nancy P. Hindsley, Marshall's ODK advisor. ODK is a national leadership honorary.

Candidates from 17 colleges and universities in Ohio, western Pennsylvania and western West Virginia vied for the Province V title. Nominees are judged on leadership potential as shown through scholastic achievements and campus and community involvement.

FACULTY RECITAL TUESDAY

Marshall University's Music Department will present a faculty chamber recital at 8 p.m. Tuesday, April 20, in Smith Recital Hall.

Two ensembles will be featured, the Marshall Trio and the Kinsbury Wind Quintet, with assistance from Dr. Michael Cerveris, professor of music, and Mari Epling, director of the department's Music Preparatory Program, on piano.

The program, which is free and open to the public, will include Mozart's "Trio in E Major," Prokofieff's "Sonata for Cello and Piano," Persichetti's "Serenade No. 3 for Violin, Cello and Piano," and Poulenc's "Sextet for Piano and Wind Quintet."

IRTS INTERNSHIP WINNER

Anthony G. Crutchfield, a graduating senior at Marshall University, is one of 11 students selected nationally to participate in a summer internship in broadcasting.

Crutchfield, the son of Mr. and Mrs. John C. Crutchfield Sr. of Roanoke, Va., was chosen by the International Radio and Television Society (IRTS) to spend eight weeks this summer working with network personnel in New York City.

The broadcasting major was one of 1,100 students who competed for the internship and was one of 25 selected to attend the IRTS Faculty/Industry Seminar and College Conference held earlier this year.

SPRING CONCERT SET

Marshall University's Symphonic Choir will present its spring concert at 8 p.m. Thursday, April 22, in Smith Recital Hall.

Closing a four-day tour of high schools and churches in West Virginia, Ohio and Kentucky with this concert, the choir will present a program of sacred and classical works, folk songs, spirituals and Broadway show tunes, according to Dr. Wendell Kumlien, choir director. The program is free and open to the public.

ELECTION RESULTS

The Graduate Faculty has elected the following representatives to four-year terms on the designated committees: Francis K. Aldred, University Council, and Dan K. Evans, Academic Planning and Standards Committee.

WANTED: Academic scholarship support

Marshall University's efforts to recruit academically-outstanding students are paying off—and the Marshall Foundation needs $56,636.

Foundation Executive Director Bernard Queen has announced the launching of a special fund drive to raise additional money earmarked for academic scholarships.

"For some time now, Marshall has been making a strong effort to recruit 'stars' of the classroom, just as our Athletic Department attempts to attract outstanding athletes," Queen said. "While the academic recruiting work does not receive as much publicity, in many ways it is as intense as the efforts of the coaches in various sports.

"As part of the academic recruiting, we offer scholarships covering tuition and registration fees to students achieving a grade point average of 3.5 or more and a score of at least 21 in the American College Testing (ACT) program," Queen said. "The Marshall Foundation has provided the money for those scholarships.

"The recruiting effort has been particularly successful this year. Figures compiled by Student Financial Aid Director Edgar Miller indicate an increase of 43 percent

Residency training for med school graduates

Results from the National Residency Matching Program show 11 members of the Marshall University School of Medicine's 1982 graduating class will take their residency training within West Virginia.

All of the 23 students in the class were accepted into excellent graduate training programs, according to School of Medicine Dean Robert W. Coon. "We are also very proud to be sending students to some of the nation's most prestigious medical training centers as well," Dr. Coon said.

"It is particularly gratifying to have three of our graduates going to Bowman Gray School of Medicine—one of the most highly respected schools in the nation," he added.

"Since we are still a new school, our graduates need to demonstrate to themselves and others the quality of our program and we need the exchange with residents from other schools in our own program lest we become too isolated or inbred. This would be imperative even if we were a long-established school," the dean said.

Of the 11 students selecting residency programs within West Virginia, 10 will study at Marshall and one in Wheeling. The remaining students have selected graduate training programs at Ohio State University Hospitals in Columbus; the University of Kentucky Medical Center in Lexington;

William Shands Hospital-University of Florida at Gainesville; Strong Memorial Hospital in Rochester, N.Y.; University of Connecticut Affiliated Hospitals in Farmington; the Greater Baltimore Medical Center and Cincinnati General Hospital-University of Cincinnati. One another student will take his residency training with the U.S. Navy.

in academically-outstanding high school seniors applying for Marshall scholarships. This flood of applicants exceeds the money the Foundation has available for that purpose, so we're going out to raise more," Queen said.

"We need another $56,636 and we will beat the bushes until we get it. Marshall wants those outstanding students. They enhance the university and they offer our state its best hope for the future," he added, "so we are calling on the alumni and friends of the university to help Marshall meet this challenge through a special fund drive."

Contributions may be sent to Marshall University Foundation, Marshall University, Huntington, W.Va. 25701. Donors may note "Special Fund" on their checks to earmark the gifts for the academic scholarships, Queen said.

A successful drive will increase the amount of money available for academic scholarships from $321,404 to $378, 040, permitting the university to assist 661 academically-outstanding students during the 1982-83 term, Queen said.
