Autonomy loss concerns voiced professionals do not appreciate the prerogatives of their position being delegated to non-professionals - no matter how well-intentioned this purpose may be. "I am convinced that a person in higher education expect to function without guidance and restraint - but it is to say that the advisory system which presently exists is almost without exception subject to the will of others. Educational professionals should be exposed. Educational administrators have restraints enough in terms of fiscal and physical resources without stripping them of their own. This comity - the ability to think, plan, and program in theory and in practice - is so eminently well qualified. In the final analysis this is the educator's sacred ground where those less prepared must not tread.

Specifically now. (p. 12, l. 8) Institutional Development Boards: "This Board shall have the authority and duty to review, prior to submission of the same by the president all proposals of the institution in the areas of mission, academic programs, budget, capital facilities and such other matters as the president may request. It shall be the responsibility of the board or the board of regents or otherwise assigned to it by law." In addition the Board "shall have the authority and duty to review, prior to implementation of the same by the president, all proposals regarding institution-wide personnel policies." And for all academic planning and standards.

Recent actions summarized by academic planning/standards

The Academic Planning and Standards Committee met on Jan. 24 and Jan. 31.

1. The following course changes were approved:
   - CJ 206-Grimmology, 3 cr., delete; CJ 207-Juvie Delinquency, 3 cr., delete; Soc/106-Criminology, change course number to 320; Soc/107-Juvie Delinquency, change course number to 155;
   - SE 385-Safety and Driver Education, change catalog description.
   - SED 101-Driver, Pedestrian, and Bicycle Safety, change course title and catalog description to "Learning to Drive: Safety and Survival," effective Fall 1980.

2. A recommendation from Dr. Galgano, Director of the University Honors Program, was approved regarding membership selection and terms of office for representatives on the Honors Council.

3. The status of the Marshall Council on International Education and its link with the AP&S Committee was reviewed and reaffirmed. Dr. Robert Alexander and Dr. Mahlon Brown were appointed as continuing liaisons with MCIE.

4. A cooperative doctoral degree program in educational administration was approved. The Ed. D. degree will be awarded by WVU, but all courses will be offered at Marshall. The degree will offer two options, one for higher education administration and one for public school administration. Marshall's faculty and facilities will be used, and all other conditions for the degree, including those of residence and dissertation, may be met at Marshall. CCGS will also participate in the program, but at present does not have the higher education administration option. The first students will be admitted this summer.

Any questions about any of the above may be addressed to Professor Giovanni Antonet, Chairperson, or Dr. Bruce Ardinger, Secretary, APSC.

House subcommittee hears Clegg

Dr. Sam Clegg, chairman of the University Council at Marshall University, recently testified before the House Subcommittee on Higher Education regarding concerns about House Bill 1029. That proposed legislation would: (1) "refine and clarify" the powers and duties of the Board of Regents; (2) enhance the authority of the local institutional boards in the planning and policy-making process as it affects the individual institution, and (3) establish by statute and revise the present Board of Regents-imposed Higher Education Resource Fund (HERF) fee and the use of the proceeds.

Dr. Clegg's remarks were endorsed unanimously by the University Council. He was the first full faculty representative to the Board of Regents and served as chairman of the BOR Advisory Council for Faculty for three years.

Marvin Billups named to associate director post

Marvin E. Billups, Marshall University's affirmative action officer, has been named associate director of personnel, MU Vice President for Administration Karl J. Egnatoff has announced.

Billups, a member of the Marshall administrative staff since 1971, assumed the new post Feb. 1. While continuing to direct the university's Affirmative Action Program, Billups will be responsible for developing staff training programs, expanding recruitment programs for women and minorities, and setting up an employee assistance program.

Marvin Billups has been most effective in developing and carrying out our Affirmative Action Program," Egnatoff said. "We believe he will be equally effective in his new post."

A retired Army colonel, Billups, 55, worked closely with programming for minority students, handicapped students, international and non-citizen students, and with the programming for minority students, handicapped students, international and non-citizen students, and with the programming for minority students, handicapped students, international and non-citizen students.

Parking permit fees due

Payments of the second half of parking permit fees for faculty and staff are due no later than March 1, according to Director Bernard Queen of the Security administration. Assistant-assistant and traffic and parking coordinator. Payments may be made at the Cashier's Office.

'BRIEGE' to educational opportunity

Williamson businessman Everett R. Thompson, left, presents a $5,000 check to Marshall University Foundation Executive Director Bernard Queen to initiate a new scholarship program at Marshall. The gift, derived from a $2.50 parking permit fee bridge between Nitro, W.Va., and Hatfield, Ky., would be used to set up an endowed scholarship. much less money and produce better copies as well. "Dealing with an equal copier range from one cent to 13 cents for each copy," McKinney said.

We realize there are needs for exceptions and that time can be a deciding factor; however we are certain that thousands of dollars are wasted on copying on campus each year. This is why we propose a copy limits posted on the key-operated copiers for years.

We all can help utilize what money is available to the university by considering our copying needs carefully and economizing when possible," he said.

Faculty urged to submit nominations for ODK

The Marshall University Circle of Omicron Delta Kappa (ODK), national coeducational leadership honorary, is soliciting the campus community for nominations of students for membership, Dr. Everett N. Roush, faculty secretary for the campus circle.

"Formerly a man's leadership honorary, ODK is now coeducational and we are seeking women nominees as well as men," Roush said. The deadline for nominations is 4:30 p.m., Friday, Feb. 22.

Nominations may be submitted to Roush in the MU Alumni Affairs Office, Marine Tower 219.

To be eligible for membership, a nominee must meet these minimum requirements:

- One full academic year in residence at Marshall.
- Junior or senior class standing.
- Rank 3.0 accumulative GPA for seniors or 3.15 GPA for junior.
- Attainment of special distinction in at least three of the following areas: Academic; Athletics; Student Government; Social and Religious Affairs; Publications, or Speech, Music, Drama and the other arts.

Committee considers relocation of mural, bust

The Physical Facilities and Planning Committee met on Feb. 7. Reactivation of the safety subcommittee was proposed by Mr. Long. Return of the ODK Bell to campus was approved, subject to discussion with Vice President for Administration Egnatoff concerning location and installation and subject to committee review.

The committee approved Old Main Auditorium as a potential location for the mural by Mrs. Fors, formerly installed in the Marshall Library. A request for relocation of Professor Jablonski's bust of John Marshall was taken under consideration.

Various maintenance problems were brought up and resolutions to them were proposed. A request for rearrangement of parking spaces around Twin Towers was deferred so as to be taken up simultaneously with the president's request that the committee make recommendations relative to further expansions for parking.

Respectfully submitted,
Eric P. Thorn, secretary
Physical Facilities/Planning

U Council acts to voice views

The University Council met on Feb. 6 and conducted the following items of business:

1. House Bill 1029 (Higher Education Management Bill) was discussed. Earlier in the week the Chair had surveyed a majority of the Council regarding their view of the Bill. The Chairman then presented some of the Council's concerns at a hearing of the House Subcommittee on Higher Education.

The hearing on the Bill was held in the House Chamber at which time there was a question as to the Chairman's presentation. As indicated, the council directed the Chairman to send all local legislative members a copy of his remarks and a letter conveying the Council's unanimous endorsement of same.

2. As a part of the Council's effort to obtain a 10 percent increase for all personnel in higher education, the Council approved the creation and distribution of a brochure in the name of the University Council. The brochure is to go to all faculty and legislative members of the state. The committee engaged in this effort consists of Bob Alexander, Sam Clagg, Olen Jones, Bos Johnson, Deryl Learning and Stuart Thomas. This group is also involved in a program of individual contacts with legislative members. This is a State-wide effort being sponsored by Marshall.

3. Progress report:
   a. The "Course Syllabi Proposal" presented to the faculty through the NEWSLETTER is being well received.
   b. The Budget and Appropriations Committee proposal for the Faculty Constitution will be offered during the Spring faculty meeting.
   c. The committee is working with the Medical Center in the sale of the medical school's property. It is the opinion of the medical school's faculty, is another step in meeting their professional needs and their professional goal.

"Excessive use of copier wastes dollars"

That was the comment by John McKinney, university communications manager, regarding what he believes to be excessive use of copiers university communications manager, regarding what he believes to be excessive use of copiers.

"Our records and observations show that many, many copies are being made from each original but are costing needless dollars when used for more copies than that," he said.

He said the installation of systems in Graphic Services and Campus East Copy Center can do the longer run jobs for Community health degree okayed

The Marshall University School of Medicine will offer a Master of Science degree in Community Health, beginning with the first summer term of 1981.

"With Marshall's goal of educating primary care specialists, this master's program will serve to supplement the resident's clinical skills with those nonclinical skills necessary to a medical practice responsive to community health care problems," Dr. Jones said.

The new master's level program is a component of the recently established Combined Residency/Practice Program and will be open only to those holding the Doctor of Medicine degree who are resident physicians in primary care specialties: Family Practice, Internal Medicine, Obstetrics/Gynecology, Pediatrics or Psychiatry, according to Dr. Stewart.

Program listings

Copies of the Instructional Television Services catalog, which lists the programs currently available, have been distributed to each academic department. There should be enough copies for every faculty member to have one.

If you did not receive one and would like a copy, contact Mrs. Gail Sheets, ITS coordinator, at extension 3150.

An innovative program itself, the Combined Residency/Practice Program offers physicians both an intensive residency program in their chosen primary care specialty and an opportunity for ongoing care of patients on a run-in outreach setting.

"The Combined Residency Program, conceived by Dr. David K. Heydinger, Marshall medical school associate dean for academic and clinical affairs, was developed in cooperation with the medical school's faculty, is another step in meeting in our commitment to solving the underserved communities' medical needs," said Dr. Jones. "All must be resolved to permit the use of arbitrary numbers in grade posting for those faculty members who are specifically educated to meet rural health care needs, in medically underserved areas of West Virginia," the vice president/dean said.

Describing the relationship of the master's degree work to the Residency/Practice Program, Dr. Heydinger said:

"While the residency clinical training provides skills and attitudes in individual patient care, the master's curriculum is concerned with community, interpersonal, business and leadership skills. It is designed to provide the basic research methods necessary for quality investigation of community health and to encourage that spirit of inquiry."

The master's degree curriculum includes courses in Appalachian studies, health education, research methods, health statistics, epidemiology and community health monitoring.

The courses make a case-study approach in which residents are to investigate relevant Appalachian health care situations. In addition, each resident will be required to prepare a thesis dealing with a selected community health topic.

"Marshall's proximity to medically underserved areas of West Virginia makes it a logical site for a master's program in community health skills," Heydinger said.

Medalist Wilma Rudolph to speak on Thursday

Olympic Gold Medalist Wilma Rudolph will speak at Marshall University at 8 p.m. Thursday, Feb. 21, in the Multi-Purpose Room, Memorial Student Center.

The only American woman to win three Gold Medals in one Olympics, Ms. Rudolph will present a look inside the Olympics, its operations and what it means to her. Her campus appearance is sponsored by the Contemporary Issues Committee of the MU Student Activities Office.

The lecture will be open to the public free of charge and general admission tickets may be purchased at the door for $2 each. SU students with valid ID and Activity cards will be admitted free.

SCHOLARSHIP AWARDED TO BROADCAST MAJOR
