. . .Books due May 5

Books charged to faculty are due on May 5. Books may be returned for renewal beginning May 1 to avoid conflict with exams and grade reports dates.

The Faculty Library Advisory Committee policies on loans and overdues call for all materials being returned at the end of each semester. The fines for overdues are found on page 21 of the Greenbook.

The Library Administration hopes we will not need to impose or collect any fines this semester," said library director Kenneth T. Slack.

. . .Math chairman named

Dr. John S. Lancaster, assistant professor of mathematics at Marshall University, will become chairman of the Mathematics Department, effective June 1, MU College of Science Dean E.S. Hanrahan announced today.

Dr. Steven H. Hatfield, associate professor of mathematics, has been serving as acting chairman since the post was vacated in 1977, Hanrahan said.

Lancaster, a member of the Marshall faculty since 1972, earned his B.A., M.A. and Ph.D. degrees from Indiana University.

. . .AAUW reception Friday

American Association of University Women, Huntington branch, invites faculty women to a reception for prospective branch members in the Alumni Lounge in Memorial Student Center from 3 to 5 p.m. Friday, May 2. Any graduate of an accredited college is eligible for membership in AAUW.

. . .Bond campaign to start

The State of West Virginia will hold its annual Savings Bond campaign for state employees May 12-16, according to Norwood Bentley, Alcohol Beverage Control Commissioner who will chair the campaign.

The denominations for the new series EE bonds are $50, $75, $100, $200 and $500, and they will cost one half of face value.

All Marshall employees will receive further information soon, said June Mierau, payroll manager.

. . .International student reception set

The International Student Office extends an invitation to all faculty and staff members to attend a reception for international student graduates from 2 to 4 p.m. Monday, April 28, in the Alumni Lounge at Memorial Student Center.

. . .Purchasing contracts available

New contracts are available at the Purchasing Office (M 206) for dry cell batteries from Graybar Electric, audio cassettes from Midwest Telecommunications and Ampex Corp., replacement lamps for audiovisual equipment from Baileys, Inc., and photographic film, papers and chemicals from VWR Scientific.

. . .Nominees wanted for award

Do you know of an outstanding woman graduate of Marshall who has received her earned doctorate and is less than 35 years of age? We would be happy to nominate such a person for the Recognition Award for Young Scholars given by the American Association of University Women. Please contact Paul D. Stewart, Graduate School, by May 7.

. . .Mall developer to speak

J. Phillip Richley, vice president for development with the Cafaro Company, will speak at Marshall University at 7:30 p.m. on Monday, April 28, in Harris Hall Room 134. His topic will be "The Physical, Social and Economic Impact of the Ona Mall." The Cafaro Co. is the developer of the Ona Mall.

Anyone interested in the retail field or in the mall itself is invited to attend the free seminar.

Grade posting opinion given

We have been advised by the Assistant Attorney General, Ann V. Dornblazer, that the posting of final grades may be done under the condition that an "arbitrary number" be assigned each student and the grade posted with each number.

The "arbitrary number" must be one "by which students cannot be personally identified." Social security numbers, class seating numbers and such would be improper.

Posting of grades is still optional with the professor.

Drinko became a partner in 1955 and managing partner in 1969.

A resident of Lyndhurst, Ohio, and Palm Spring, Calif., Drinko is chairman of the board of Cleveland Institute of Electronics and is a director of several other companies. He is a member of the Marshall Foundation's prestigious John Marshall Society and is a member of the executive committee of the President's Club at Ohio State University.

Drinko received the Distinguished Alumnus Award from the Marshall Alumni Association in 1968 and the Alumni Centennial Award from Ohio State University in 1970.

Moffat also has been honored by the Marshall Alumni Association, receiving the Distinguished Service Award last year. A founder of the Marshall Honors Program, he is sought nationally as a speaker and has addressed more than 700 organizations throughout the country.

A native of Senatobia, Miss., he earned bachelor's and master's degrees from the University of Mississippi and the Ph.D. from Vanderbilt University. At the time of his formal retirement, the History Department faculty recognized his contributions by establishing the Charles H. Moffat Lectureship Fund to bring outstanding speakers to the campus.

May 10: Moffat is Commencement speaker; joins Drinko in receiving honorary degree

In what may be a "first," Marshall University will feature one of its own faculty members as the 1980 Commencement speaker, MU President Robert B. Hayes announced today.

He is Dr. Charles H. Moffat, who joined the Marshall faculty in 1946 and served as chairman of the History Department from 1968 to 1977.

"Dr. Moffat has a national reputation as a speaker," Hayes said, "so I was very pleased when the Commencement and Honorary Degrees Committee recommended that we ask him to give the Commencement address this year."

Moffat said his topic will be "Moments to Remember," based on events which have occurred during the 143-year history of Marshall. Although he formally retired in the spring of 1977, Moffat continues to teach part-time at Marshall and is writing a history of the university.

The 1980 graduation program is scheduled for Saturday, May 10, at 11 a.m. in the Huntington Civic Center. It will be open to the public.

Hayes said two honorary degrees will be awarded, based on recommendations from the Commencement and Honorary Degrees Committee. Moffat will be presented a Doctor of Humane Letters degree. John D. Drinko, a nationally-prominent attorney and businessman, will receive a Doctor of Laws degree.

Drinko, too, has strong Marshall ties. A native of St. Marys, W.Va., he received his A.B. degree from Marshall in 1942. He has been a longtime supporter of programs both at Marshall and at Ohio State University, where he received his law degree.

He is senior managing partner in the law firm of Baker & Hostetler, one of the country's 25 largest law firms.

AAUP official to speak Monday

The Marshall University Chapter of the American Association of University Professors will have a meeting open to all faculty members 2:30-3:30 p.m. Monday, April 28 in the Presidents' Dining Room in Memorial Student Center, according to Dr. William Coffey, chapter president.

Michael Grossman, a representative of AAUP's Committee A, will attend to discuss the procedure for lifting AAUP censure of Marshall and to hear the faculty's views on the status of academic freedom here, Coffey said.

RANK (Vote for three), Elaine Baker, Mack Gillenwater, Delores Jacome, Mary Marshall.

HEARING COMMITTEE, ASSISTANT PROFESSOR (Vote for three) Kenneth Ambrose, Boots Dilley, Corey Lock, Steven Mewaldt, Michael Moore.

Elected by acclamation to serve on the respective committees were:

HEARING COMMITTEE, PROFESSOR RANK, Joan Adkins, Edwin Cubby, Robert Gerke, Jack Jervis.

HEARING COMMITTEE, INSTRUCTOR RANK, John Baker, Bruce Clay, Kathryn Zink.

SPECIAL NOTICE

Please reserve 4 p.m. Tuesday, April 29, for individual college faculty meetings. The academic deans will inform their faculty of the meeting place.

The purpose of the meeting is to receive nominations for the proposed Budget and Appropriations Committee. In the Faculty Meeting of April 22 the faculty consensus was that we should anticipate a favorable vote for this committee and expedite its functioning. If this proposed amendment to the Faculty Constitution is approved (voting period May 2-9), this committee would be immediately available for budgetary deliberations. It seemed important enough to make this effort.

A meeting notice will be provided by the various deans.

DR. C. ROBERT BARNETT, associate professor of health, physical education and recreation, was the "color" commentator and presented a "Brief History of Ancient Greek Wrestling" for the telecast of the West Virginia State High School Wrestling Championships. The program was aired over the West Virginia Public Broadcasting network March 23. Barnett also served as a judge at the recent Cammack Elementary School Social Studies Fair.

DR. VIRGINIA PLUMLEY, associate professor of educational media, was a member of the North Central Association of Teacher Education (NCATE) team which visited Millersville (Pa.) State College March 30 through April 2. Her responsibility was to review the teacher education program to see if it met NCATE standards dealing with the library, the materials and instructional media center, and physical and other resources in relation to the offering of acceptable teacher education programs.

DR. CLAIRE E. HORTON, assistant professor of sociology and anthropology, presented six formal lectures in the Snowden Memorial Series as part of a conference between Chatham College, the University of Pittsburgh and Carnegie Mellon University on April 2-3 and 9-10 at the University of Pittsburgh. The theme for the series was "Art as Expressed in the Cultural Institutions of Society," and served to initiate the African Studies program at Chatham College. In addition, Dr. Horton will return to Pittsburgh for a videotape interview concerning black art, and her collection of African art was on exhibit during the lecture series.

W.V.U., Fairmont State, Shepherd and West Liberty State colleges.

"Marshall faculty were surveyed about their main interests and chief curriculum concerns in the development of the grant proposal," Matz said, "and the strong support of our administration and faculty were key elements in our being awarded the grant."

The grant will send five West Virginia faculty to a CISE summer workshop in July, 1980, for training in a new course, "Global Issues." The course will be offered in the Political Science Department at Marshall in both semesters of the 1980-81 academic year.

Also anticipated are new courses which will be developed through the grant on Hispanic, African/Middle East and East Asian civilizations and a new anthropology course (World Cultures) at W.V.U. and West Liberty.

Through a quarterly newsletter and the three workshops it is hoped that West Virginia institutions will be able to share teaching aids and techniques, improve teaching skills and keep abreast of changing events in international studies.

International studies consortium funded

Clair W. Matz, associate professor of political science, has announced that a statewide consortium in which Marshall University is participating has been awarded a three year, $198,401 grant from the U.S. Office of Education.

The Consortium for Faculty and Course Development in International Studies (FACDIS) will seek to improve undergraduate education in international affairs by holding statewide workshops for college teachers who teach courses dealing with foreign affairs. Workshops will encourage new techniques in teaching, share new curriculum materials and provide for the sharing of resources, such as films.

Matz is a member of the steering committee which wrote the grant proposal.

Matz said a statewide conference will be held in March, 1981, on "Area Studies and Development Issues." Later conferences will focus on topics such as "International Economic and Political Relations."

The project directors will be Charles W. Conell, associate professor of history, and Sophia Peterson, professor of political science, both at West Virginia University. The core sponsoring institutions are Marshall,

Continuing medical education coordinator named

Dr. Charles W. Jones, formerly on the faculty of Central Florida Community College, has been named coordinator of Continuing Medical Education at Marshall University's School of Medicine.

Jones, who already has assumed the post, holds rank as assistant professor in the Community Medicine Department, according to Dr. Robert W. Coon, MU medical school dean.

A native of Georgia, Jones taught in the Special Services Department, Social Science and Psychology Division, at Central Florida Community College in Ocala. He earned the Ph.D., the Education Specialist, the Master of Education and the Bachelor of Arts degrees from the University of Florida at Gainesville.

"The establishment of a centralized coordinating office for the medical school's Continuing Medical Education programs is the first of several steps we have initiated to fulfill our commitment of providing quality continuing education programs which are easily accessible to the region's physicians," Coon said.

"We've also set up an advisory committee for Contining Medical Education, which will oversee the total program and each separate conference will be planned by an ad hoc committee, composed of members of our full-time and clinical/volunteer faculty," the dean added.

"We will be working closely with the education committee at our teaching hospitals and we plan to develop similar relationships with other hospitals and health agencies in the region," the dean said.

Jones said one of his major objectives will be obtaining accreditation for Marshall's Community Medical Education programs from both the American Medical Association Committee on Accreditation of Continuing Medical Education and the Liaison Committee for Continuing Medical Education.

A conference on "Geriatric Medicine: Today and Tomorrow" already has been scheduled for Oct. 16-17 and will feature several nationally known figures in the field as speakers. Other Continuing Medical Education conferences are being planned, Jones said.

Symphony to begin new tradition Tuesday

The Marshall University Symphony, James McWhorter, conductor, will present its first President's Concerto Concert at 8 p.m. Tuesday, April 29, in Smith Recital Hall.

"This is a benefit concert with the proceeds going to the Orchestral Scholarship Fund of the Marshall Foundation," McWhorter said. Tickets will be available at the door at $2 for adult and $1 for students. Marshall students with activity cards will be admitted free.

The concert will feature seven student musicians as soloists, including Mary Lou Varney, the winner of the 1980 High School Concerto Competition, sponsored by the Woman's Club of Huntington and Marshall University.

A student at Huntington East High School, Miss Varney will play a movement from Beethoven's "Piano Concerto No. 2, Op. 19."

Six Marshall Music Department students, who were selected in auditions earlier this year, also will perform as soloists with the Symphony.

"Dedicated to the late Ruth Harrison Hayes, wife of Marshall President Robert B. Hayes, this concert also is our way of recognizing Marshall's commitment to development of a strong orchestral program and particularly the leadership shown in this by Dr. Hayes," Symphony Conductor McWhorter said.
