Faculty members to teach hunger class

Several Marshall faculty members will serve as resource faculty for a short, continuing education course on "World Hunger."

The course explores the root causes of hunger and malnutrition on the international, national and local levels. Issues include multi-national corporations, development aid, infant formula, food stamp and welfare reform, nutrition education, life style integrity and advocacy.

Faculty members participating, and their topics, are Dr. Richard O. Comfort, professor of sociology/anthropology, basic nutrition; Dr. E. Bowie Kahle, associate professor of biological science, basic nutrition; Dr. Clair Matz, associate professor of political science, international affairs, and Dr. Ruth Harris, professor of pediatrics, pediatrics.

Forums to explore black music and history

The status of black music today and researching black history—oral and written—on the local level will be explored in the second of five Black Heritage Dissemination forums scheduled at Marshall University on Tuesday, Sept. 16, at 7 p.m. in Smith Hall Auditorium.

The forums are sponsored by Marshall's James E. Morrow Library and are partially funded by the Humanities

Footnotes to the News Letter

An art exhibit by members of the Marshall University Art Department is under way at the Birke Art Gallery in Smith Hall on the Marshall campus.

The exhibit will continue through Oct. 16, and may be seen from noon to 4 p.m. weekdays and from 6 to 9 p.m. Mondays.

"The show includes a wide variety of art forms, including photographs, textiles, paintings, prints, ceramics and sculpture," said June Kilgore, associate professor and Art Department chairman.

In addition to Mrs. Kilgore, other faculty members exhibiting works are Earline Allen, assistant professor; Michael Cornfeld, associate professor; Robert P. Hutton, assistant professor; Dr. Ray Murphy, assistant professor; Edith Summey, assistant professor and Robert Rowe, assistant professor.

EMERITUS CLUB TO MEET WEDNESDAY

Dr. Karen Li Simpkins, MU assistant professor of sociology/anthropology, will address the Faculty Emeritus Club at its luncheon meeting at noon Wednesday, Sept. 17, at the Uptowner Inn.

Dr. Simpkins' topic will be "Impressions of Edinburgh."

The meeting will be the club's first for the 1980-81 academic year.

CALCULATOR DEADLINE IS SEPT. 26

The deadline for submitting requisitions for calculators is Sept. 26, in accordance with West Virginia Standard Specifications, according to Dorothy F. Smith, purchasing agent.

Representatives of community agencies will serve on special panels. Optional field trips to observe area nutrition programs can be arranged for those with time available.

The course will be held from 7 to 9 p.m. Tuesdays from Sept. 30 through Nov. 18 in Room 303 Harris Hall. The cost is $25, most of which will go to the support of the Campus Christian Center. Registration will be held and fees taken the first night of the class. The course provides 1.6 hours of continuing education credit through the Community College. Credit is not applicable toward a degree.

Those wishing more information may contact Dr. Hugh B. Springer, campus minister, or Jane B. Moore, graduate assistant, at the Campus Christian Center (ext. 2444), or Robert Lawson, continuing education director for the Community College (ext. 3646).

Foundation of West Virginia, a state program of the National Endowment for the Humanities, through a grant to the MU Foundation.

Dr. Bradford DeVos, MU professor of music, will open Tuesday's program with a discussion on "Black Music in America: The Present State of the Art." Dr. Robert Maddox, MU professor of history and department chairman, will discuss "Oral History in the Black Community: Untapped Resource." Mrs. Edna Duckworth of Huntington, who has been researching local black history, will present some of her findings in "A Layman's Efforts in Collecting Black History."

On Tuesday, Sept. 23, the forum sessions will move to the Sixteenth Street Baptist Church, where at 7 p.m., Dr. Alan Gould, MU Liberal Arts College dean, will discuss "Slavery in Cabell County." Also on the program will be Lisle Brown, MU special collections curator, with "The Black Community: The Manuscript Record," and Dr. Michael Galgano, MU professor of history and Honors Program director, whose topic will be "Slavery and the Slave Trade."

Other programs are scheduled for 7 p.m. Sept. 30 in Smith Hall Auditorium and Oct. 8 in Science Hall Auditorium. All are free and open to the public.

"We have undertaken this series of forums to intensify public awareness of the contributions of blacks, culturally and historically, and, at the same time, create an awareness of the wealth of material available on that subject within the university library," said Dr. Kenneth T. Slack, MU libraries director.

Evans and Novak

Columnists provide MU an 'Inside Report' for Forum Series

Columnists Rowland Evans and Robert Novak will open the 1980-81 Marshall Artists Series' Forum programming on Wednesday, Sept. 17 at 8 p.m. in Old Main Auditorium with a discussion on "Politics: National and International."

"For this first event, we not only will be selling season memberships for the Forum Series, but also individual tickets for this one program," Mrs. Nancy P. Hindsley, MU cultural events coordination, has announced.

"With the presidential and general elections coming up in November, we thought more people might be interested in hearing these outstanding political journalists," she said.

Season membership tickets are available at $24 each from the Artists Series Office in Memorial Student Center Room 2W38 and may be purchased at the door on Sept. 17.

The upcoming Forum season will include: film-lecture visits to Afghanistan, Greece, London, New England, and Denmark; a musical duo, and a one-man show, "Give 'em Hell, Harry," featuring actor Kevin McCarthy as the late President Harry S. Truman. Additional information may be obtained by calling the Artists Series Office, (304) 696-6656.

Individual tickets to the Evans-Novak program will be $4 for adults and $2 for youth through age 17. Marshall students with activity and ID cards will be admitted free.

Since 1963, Evans and Novak have been writing their column, "Inside Report," which is carried by more than 250 newspapers in the United States and abroad. The pair edit a bi-weekly newsletter, "The Evans-Novak Political Report," and wrote "Lyndon B. Johnson: The Exercise of Power," and "Nixon in the White House: The Frustration of Power" which were published in 1966 and 1971, respectively.

Prior to combining talents with Novak in analyzing the political scene, Evans was associated with several midwestern newspapers and was chief congressional correspondent for the "Wall Street Journal." Novak wrote for the "Philadelphia Bulletin," the Associated Press wire service and the now defunct "New York Herald Tribune" as one of its Washington Bureau correspondents, covering Congress and national politics.

Children's College to begin in October

A relatively new concept in supplemental education, called Children's College, will begin in October under the auspices of the Continuing Education Division of the Community College of Marshall University.

Children's College, open to students in the seventh, eighth and ninth grades, will have three sections offered in 10 Saturday morning sessions, according to Robert L. Lawson, continuing education director. The sections are "The Star Wars Saga," a science fiction and creative writing course; "It's Alive and It Moves," a microbiology section, and "On Guard, Conquistador," a Spanish culture and language class.

"The purpose of the Children's College is to supplement present school curriculums and give children the opportunity to expand their minds," Lawson said.

"As the college grows, by the Spring Semester, offerings may extend into lower and upper grade levels, depending on needs and requests," said Dr. Paul D. Hines, vice president and dean of the Community College.

Cost for the three sections is $50, which includes textbooks, course materials and instruction. Registration deadline is Oct. 8 for the classes, which will be held at 9 a.m. every Saturday from Oct. 11 to Dec. 13.

Those wishing additional information and registration forms may contact Lawson at 696-3646.

Continuing education courses added

Three new courses have been added to the schedule of non-credit, continuing education courses offered this fall by the Community College of Marshall University. They are "Construction Supervisory Training," "The Democratic Republic of China" and "The Challenge of World Hunger."

"Construction Supervisory Training" is a productivity improvement course designed for construction supervisors and superintendents. To be held from 6:30-9 p.m. Thursdays from Sept. 18 through Nov. 11 in Room 445 Harris Hall, the course will cost $102.50

"The Democratic Republic of China" will provide up-to-date information on the life, arts and literature of China. The course will be held from 7 to 9 p.m. Thursdays from Oct. 23 through Nov. 20 in Room 433 Smith Hall. The cost is $30.

"The Challenge of World Hunger" explores the root causes of hunger and malnutrition in the Third World and in Appalachia, and what can be done about it. The course is offered from 7 to 9 p.m. Sept. 30 through Nov. 18 in Room 303 Harris Hall. Cost is $25.

Other non-credit, continuing education courses, their dates, locations and costs, are as follows:

"Office Procedures" for the Certified Professional Secretary examination, 9 a.m.-noon Saturdays from Oct. 4 through Nov. 22, Room 443 Corbly Hall, $35;

"Economics and Management" for the Certified Professional Secretary examination, 6:30-9 p.m. Tuesdays from Sept. 23 to Nov. 25, Room 331 Harris Hall, $35;

"Chinese Cooking," 7-9 p.m. Thursdays from Oct. 23 through Dec. 18, Room 103 Corbly Hall, $35;

"Exercise and Figure Control," 5-6 p.m. Mondays from Sept. 29 through Dec. 1, Women's Gym, $30;

"Wall Street Semester," 7-9 p.m. Tuesdays from Oct. 7 through Nov. 25, Room 402 Harris Hall, $35;

"Ballroom and Disco Dancing," 7-9 p.m. Thursday from Oct. 9 through Nov. 20, Women's Gym, $35 for singles and $50 for couples;

"Basketball Officiating," 6-9 p.m. Mondays and 9 a.m.-noon Saturdays from Oct. 6 through Dec. 1, Room 414 Smith Hall, $35;

"Fly Tying," 7-9 p.m. Tuesdays from Oct. 14 through Dec. 2, Room 443 Harris Hall, $25;

"Conversational Spanish," 7-9 p.m. Thursdays from Oct. 15 through Dec. 10, Room 411 Smith Hall, $35.

Classes in yoga, assertiveness training, candy making, microwave cooking and chemical water treatment are planned but have not yet been scheduled.

Anyone wishing more information or to reserve a place in the class should contact Robert L. Lawson, director of continuing education for the Community College of Marshall University, at ext. 3646.

Open auditions set Monday for Master Chorale

The Marshall University Music Department will hold auditions for its vocal ensemble known as the Master Chorale from 3:30 to 7 p.m. Monday, Sept. 15.

"Our auditions are open to anyone who enjoys singing," said Dr. Wendell Kumlien, MU professor of music and director of the group. "We are especially interested in supplementing our bass and alto sections," he added.

A rehearsal will follow the auditions and rehearsals will be held on subsequent Mondays from 7 to 9 p.m. in Smith Music Hall Room 157.

Six performances, including two with the Charleston Symphony, have been scheduled by the chorale during the 1980-81 year. The group will open its season with a Nov. 24 concert, highlighted by a performance of the Bach motet, "Komm, Jesu, Komm."

Accompanied by the Marshall Symphony, the chorale will present the perennial favorite, "The Messiah," on Dec. 12 and Dec. 14. Lighter music will highlight the spring concert on March 30, Kumlien said.

In concert at the Keith-Albee Theater on April 12 and in Charleston on April 14, the Master Chorale will perform "Elijah," accompanied by the Charleston Symphony under the direction of Philip Rothstein.

Officials to gather for riverfront institute

Parks and recreation professionals, landscape architects and conservation and recreation officials will be among the participants in the Urban Waterfront/Riverfront Development Institute to be held Thursday and Friday, Sept. 18-19, at Marshall University's Memorial Student Center.

Sponsored by Marshall's Park Resources and Leisure Services department, the institute is designed to provide Valerie Staats, daughter of SARA B. STAATS, assistant reference librarian, was awarded the Master of Arts degree in English literature by the University of Iowa on Aug. 1. Ms. Staats is employed by the geology library at the University of Iowa, and is editor and publisher of Iowa Woman, a journal of fiction, poetry, art and information for women in Iowa.

government officials, planners, tourism and Chamber of Commerce officials with the latest available information concerning the development of urban riverfronts for cultural, economic and leisure uses.

"San Antonio, Texas, is the classic example of a well-developed urban riverfront," said Raymond L. Busbee, director of Park Resources and Leisure Services for Marshall. "There, shops and restaurants line the river banks, where customers can watch riverboats float down the river lined with tropical vegetation."

"Considering the number of rivers which run through West Virginia, Ohio and Kentucky, the potential is there for a number of aesthetically pleasing urban areas which will draw people to the downtown area," he said.

Busbee said that Huntington, as the largest city on the Ohio River between Pittsburgh and Cincinnati and one which has some plans for urban riverfront development, is the most logical place for an institute on urban waterways and riverfronts.
