Children's College to begin March 7

Marshall University's Children's College has been expanded to six offerings this semester, and a section on dramatization and story telling has been added for fourth, fifth and sixth graders.

In addition to the microbiology, conversational Spanish and Science Fiction/Creative Writing sections offered last semester for seventh, eighth and ninth grade students, sections on computer science, conversational French and Greek mythology have been added for the spring semester.

"Children's College is designed to give children a chance to delve into subjects they would not ordinarily take in school," said Robert Lawson, continuing education director for the Community College of Marshall University, which sponsors Children's College.

"The new sections were added at the request of the children and their parents who attended the fall session," Lawson added. "The dramatization and storytelling section for younger children was added because of requests from parents."

Children's College will be held Saturday mornings from March 7 to May 9. Registration deadline is March 3. Seventh, eighth and ninth graders may choose three of the six subjects offered from 9 a.m. until noon. Dramatization and storytelling will be held from 11 a.m. until noon.

The cost is $50 for the junior high children and $20 for the elementary students.

For more information and to register, contact Lawson at the Community College by calling (304) 696-5431.

Speech-Hearing Center, ASHA to host workshop

A workshop on developing methods to evaluate and improve services to school-aged children with communication handicaps will be held Friday and Saturday, Feb. 20 and 21, at Marshall University.

Co-sponsored by the Marshall University Speech and Hearing Center and the American Speech-Language-Hearing Association (ASHA), the workshop is part of a series on clinical evaluation and supervision provided by the MU clinic through a grant from the U.S. Department of Education. The workshop will be held in Smith Hall Room 108.

The workshop is open to all speech and language pathologists in the area, with preference given to public school personnel. Enrollment is limited to 20.

The strategies for evaluating and improving services to the children to be taught at the workshop are a part of the Child Services Review System developed by ASHA and tested in three states.

Conducting the workshop will be Karoldene Barnes, Child Services Review System project director for the ASHA office in Washington, D.C., and Mary Eshelman from Western Illinois University in Macomb, who has been a part of the project faculty since its inception.

Dr. Robert Olson, MU professor of speech, is workshop coordinator. Olson is a member of the national faculty of an allied evaluation project, Patient Care Audit, also sponsored by ASHA.

Those interested in participating should contact Olson at the MU Speech and Hearing Clinic, (304) 696-3640.

Hayes concerned over salaries proposal

Governor's education emphasis hailed

Marshall University President Robert B. Hayes last week applauded Governor Rockefeller's emphasis on education as one of four major areas stressed in the governor's State of the State address Wednesday evening.

"I'm particularly pleased that the governor said he is recommending a supplemental allocation of $600,000 for this fiscal year to permit the state's universities and colleges to have full summer programs," Hayes said. "The shortfall of funding for summer school is a real problem at Marshall, as I'm sure it is throughout the system of higher education. We're hoping the Legislature will take early action on that recommendation."

Hayes expressed some concern, however, in regard to the governor's statements proposing a 12.5 percent across-the-board pay increase for elementary and secondary school teachers, and only 10 percent pay increases for other state employees.

"I am hoping higher education personnel will receive at least a 12.5 percent pay increase, as recommended by the Board of Regents," Hayes said. "It is vitally important that we continue to recognize the great need for improved support of higher education in this state."

"Any action we can take to bring salaries of higher education personnel more in line with national and regional averages will be an important step forward for West Virginia's colleges and universities," he added.

"Despite my reservations on the salary question," Hayes concluded, "I have to be pleased with the governor's emphasis on education. It's sorely needed."

Karl Haas to conduct 'musical residency'

Karl Haas, Public Radio's "Adventures in Good Music" host, will conduct a "Musical Residency" at Marshall University Thursday through Tuesday, Feb. 26-March 3, according to Dr. Michael Cerveris, MU Institute for the Arts director.

Haas' campus and community appearances are sponsored by the Institute in cooperation with the MU Honors Program, Marshall Artists Series, the West Virginia Humanities Foundation and West Virginia Public Radio. All of the events are free and open to the public.

Among the highlights of his residency will be a public performance similar in style to his radio show at 8 p.m. Saturday, Feb. 28, in Old Main Auditorium. The full schedule of his appearances follows.

THURSDAY, FEB. 26

-3:30-5 p.m., "Art, Music and Drama: An Indivisible Way of Life," a discussion of the common characteristics shared by the arts; Multi-Purpose Room, Memorial Student Center.

-6:30-8:30 p.m., "In Quest of Inner Self," a look into aesthetic experiences as private occasions or shared events; Honors Lounge, Northcott Hall 209.

FRIDAY, FEB. 27

-9-10 a.m., "Behind the Scenes of Radio Production," a look at techniques in broadcasting; Smith Hall Auditorium.

-3-5 p.m., "How Ivory the Tower," a discussion of arts in academia, Old Main Auditorium.

Honors Program receives anonymous $7,000 donation

Marshall University's Honors Program has received a boost with announcement of a $7,000 gift to the Marshall Foundation, earmarked for use by the Honors Council.

The contributor chose to be anonymous, Dr. Bernard Queen, Foundation executive director, said in making the announcement. Queen said the contribution is to be set up as an endowment with the principal to be invested and annual proceeds to be used for Honors Program activities.

Under guidelines established by the contributor, the money may be used for such things as student scholarships, for awards to outstanding students, to purchase support materials for the Honors Program, or to pay costs for honor students' receptions, special seminars, workshops, consultants, or visiting speakers.

Staff Council minutes available

Copies of the minutes from each Marshall University Staff Council meeting are available in the James E. Morrow Library, according to Ray Welty, MU assistant director of housing and Staff Council chairman.

The council began meeting in October and now is in full swing, Welty said. Committees have been formed and are meeting on a regular basis. The council also has met with William Walsh from the Board of Regents' personnel office to discuss staff-related topics.

Footnotes to the Marshall University News Letter

Hypnotist James J. Mapes will return to Marshall University Tuesday and Wednesday, Feb. 24 and 25 to combine hypnotism education and entertainment.

Mapes' first show will be a brief, free one at 5 p.m. Tuesday, Feb. 24 in the Twin Towers cafeteria. At 8 p.m. Tuesday, he will present his show, "PSI—The Power of the Mind," free of charge in the Memorial Student Center Multi-Purpose Room. PSI stands for Positive Self-Image, and the show won him the 1978 Campus Entertainer of the Year award.

At 6:30 p.m. Wednesday, Mapes will conduct a PSI training seminar in the Memorial Student Center. The size of the crowd will determine the room to be used. In the seminar, Mapes will teach self-hypnosis to attain such goals as eliminating bad habits, increasing self-confidence and eliminating tension. The seminar will cost $15 for students with I.D. and Activity cards and $20 for the general public.

ART DEPARTMENT TO HOLD OPEN HOUSE

The Marshall University Art Department will sponsor an open house from noon to 8 p.m. Friday, Feb. 27, said Mrs. June Kilgore, MU associate professor of art and department chairman.

"We hope that Marshall students and faculty, area high school students and interested members of the community will visit with us and see what we are doing and offering," Mrs. Kilgore said.

Tours of the classrooms, located on the sixth floor of Smith Hall, and demonstrations of various art media techniques will be conducted by faculty and students throughout the day. Among the art forms to be demonstrated will be ceramics, weaving, painting and graphic design.

In addition to the student art exhibit currently hanging in the Birke Art Gallery, art work will be on display in every classroom.

'The Elephant Man' to be presented Wednesday

"The Elephant Man," an award-winning Broadway play based on an actual historical figure from Victorian England, will be presented at 8 p.m. Wednesday, Feb. 25, at the Keith-Albee Theatre as part of the Marshall Artists Series' Community Series.

"Student ticket requests have been so great that all tickets have been sold," Mrs. Nancy P. Hindsley, Marshall University cultural events coordinator, said. "There is a possibility of additional tickets becoming available and anyone interested in being placed on a waiting list for tickets should call the Artists Series Office, (304) 696-6656," she added.

In 1979 when the play by Bernard Pomerance opened on Broadway, it swept all of the major theatrical awards,

Directory correction requested

Faculty and staff are asked to correct the spelling for D. Banks Wilburn of 225 Daugherty Drive in Boursville in the "Retired Faculty and Staff" listing in their telephone directories, and to add a telephone number for Wilburn: 736-4393.

MU JAZZ FESTIVAL UNDER WAY

The 12th annual Marshall University Jazz Festival opened Thursday, Feb. 19. The three-day festival consists of 21 concerts, six clinics and two open rehearsals in Smith Music Hall. All are free and open to the public.

This year, said J.D. Folsom, MU assistant professor of music and festival director, bands from 13 high schools, West Virginia Wesleyan College and West Virginia University will participate in the festival which features six guest artists.

Each guest artist will conduct a clinic on one particular type of jazz instrument: Dominic Spera, trumpet; Kent Wehman, keyboard; Vince Lewis, guitar; Ben Miller, percussion; Dave Milburn, trombone, and McHenry Ellis, a Huntington East High School and Marshall alumnus, on woodwinds.

One of the festival's highlights will occur at 8 p.m. Friday, when West Virginia Wesleyan, West Virginia University and Marshall University jazz ensembles present a concert in the Music Hall.

Saturday's events include two jazz improvisation clinics conducted by Spera, at 10 a.m. for beginners and 2 p.m. for advanced students.

The festival's finale will be at 8 p.m. Saturday in Smith Music Hall, when the MU Jazz Ensemble and the guest artists team up for a concert.

HOME ECONOMISTS INVITED TO LUNCH

Marshall University faculty and staff members or their spouses who are home economists are invited to a salad luncheon to be held at noon Saturday, Feb. 28, at the home of Mrs. M. C. Brown at 5451 Ohio River Road.

The luncheon is co-sponsored by the Marshall University Home Economics Alumni Club and the Kappa Omicron Phi home economics honorary, Mrs. Brown said. Those who come are asked to bring a salad.

including the 1979 Tony Award as "Best Play of the Year," the New York Drama Critics' Circle Award, the Drama Desk Award and the Outer Critics' Circle Award.

Based on a real case, the two-act play concerns John Merrick (1863-1890), who was rescued from a sideshow exhibition by Frederick Treves, a noted London surgeon. In Treves' hospital, Merrick, the freak, becomes a celebrity, ending his brief life receiving the cream of society in his hospital room. In the play, among the eminent Victorians who came to visit Merrick is the actress Mrs. Kendal. She, according to Pomerance's characterization, creates an oasis of warmth and humanity for the "Elephant Man," who, in turn, reveals a wit and intelligence that surprises even Treves.

No makeup tricks are used to create Merrick's deformity, rather the characterization calls for the actor to suggest the deformity by the way he holds his body and uses his voice.

Appearing at the Keith-Albee in the leading roles of Merrick, Treves and Mrs. Kendal, respectively, will be Courtney Burr, Kenneth Garner and Joan Grant.

American Brass Quintet to perform

The American Brass Quintet, a group of America's leading brass virtuosi, will appear at Marshall University in the second of a series of chamber music ensemble residency and concert programs offered by the MU Music Department as the 1981 Birke Fine Arts Symposium.

The Quintet may be heard in concert at 8 p.m. Tuesday, Feb. 24, in Smith Recital Hall. In addition to this event, the group will hold an open rehearsal Tuesday from 2 to 4 p.m. and conduct individual and small ensemble master classes for student musicians in the area on Wednesday.

All programs will be open to the public; however, tickets will be required for Tuesday evening's performance, according to Dr. Paul A. Balshaw, MU Music Department chairman.

Tickets may be reserved by calling the Music Department, 696-3117, or purchased at the door. General seating will be available at $2.50 for adults and $1 for students, while MU students with Activity Cards will be admitted free.

MU faculty and staff achievements, activities. . .

DR. C. ROBERT BARNETT, associate professor of health, physical education and recreation, has been awarded fellowship status in the Research Consortium of the American Alliance of Health, Physical Education, recreation and Dance. He is the first Marshall faculty member to be named an AAHPERD fellow.

DR. ROBERT P. ALEXANDER, professor and chairman of the Management Department, and Lysbeth Barnett, Management Department graduate assistant, presented the results of a study on Tri-State area labor/management relations to the Labor Management Conference Board on Feb. 10 at the UpTowner Inn.

DR. WILLIAM A. McDOWELL, associate professor of counseling and rehabilitation, spoke on "Living With "This residency offers young brass players a tremendous opportunity for coaching from brass musicians of the highest professional caliber," Balshaw said. Information about the master classes may be obtained by calling the Music Department.

During the winter months, the American Brass Quintet serves as ensemble-in-residence at New York City's Brooklyn College. In the summer it is the ensemble-in-residence for the Aspen Music Festival. The group has been acclaimed for the quality of its ensemble playing in a large repertoire of works spanning five centuries.

Established by the William D. Birke family of Huntington in 1974, the Birke Symposium sponsors annual fine arts programs on the Marshall campus with support from the Arts and Humanities Division of the West Virginia Department of Culture and History.

Also assisting with this year's series have been the Huntington Chamber Orchestra, the MU Institute for the Arts, the Marshall Artists Series and two student organizations, Delta Omicron Music Fraternity and the Music Educators National Conference, Marshall Student Chapter.

Stress" at the Feb. 8 luncheon meeting of the Huntington Rotary International.

SANDRA CAVENDAR, Upward Bound director, was appointed vice president of the West Virginia Educational Opportunity Program Personnel Organization by its president, Enick T. Koreski. She is co-coordinating the state organization's Spring Conference to be held at Canaan Valley Feb. 25-27.

DR. RICHARD O. COMFORT, professor of sociology and anthropology, was a member of a panel that presented issues and recommendations on problems of the elderly to 80 people Feb. 5 at the Cabell-Huntington Senior Center. The group, representing a six-county area, adopted a series of resolutions to be presented at a statewide conference at Jackson's Mill March 24 and 25. Resolutions from that meeting will be presented to the White House Conference on Aging in Washington, D.C. in December.

Parking sticker fees due

Second half payments for parking permits which expire Feb. 28 may be made in the Traffic and Parking Office in Old Main Room 7-B.

When the fee is paid, a small sticker will be issued to validate the expired permit, said Bonnie Lytle, administrative assistant/coordinator of parking and security. The validation sticker should be placed next to the original permit. She said this is the first time this validation sticker system has been used.

Those who have paid for a full year need not get a validation sticker.

Payments may be made by campus mail, and the stickers will be returned by campus mail. Checks should be made payable to Marshall University and sent to the Parking Office.

More information is available from the Parking Office, ext. 6406.
