Committee lobbying is unappropriate

The University Council met on Nov. 4th and conducted the following items of business:

1. The Council again considered standing committees of the faculty and any role they may have in the legislative lobbying process. The Council decided that committee sponsored lobbying efforts are not legitimate activities for standing committees. The decision was based upon the following considerations:
   a. The committees are primarily concerned with educational policy which is subject to approval by the President and in conformance with the various policies of the Board of Regents.
   b. Some of the Council members expressed serious reservations about attempting a return to political manipulation so apparent under the old Board of Education control.
   c. Under the BOR system the legislature provides funds to the Board for distribution among the various institutions. The needs of Marshall are met by Board allocations based upon appeals presented through President Hayes.

After a consideration of these points, the Council elected as a maximum effort to inform President Hayes of the willingness of the Council to contact any members of the legislature, local or otherwise, if so asked. This offer to assist was to be conveyed to the Chancellor.

The Council fully recognized the right and even responsibility of any citizen or group to make known their political desires. This option is always available. The Council simply believed that this sort of action could not be sponsored by an agency of the University. This precluded lobbying activity on the part of standing committees of the faculty.

Faculty service committee action depends upon others

The Faculty Service Committee, a standing committee currently headed by Louise S. Bailey, assistant professor of English, provides a variety of services to members of the faculty and administration at special times, according to Ms. Bailey.

Among those services are: baby gifts; wedding gifts; flowers for funeral services of a faculty member or administrator or the immediate family; hospital flowers when a faculty member or administrator is hospitalized; get well cards to family members of faculty or administration members who are hospitalized; birthday cards to retired faculty members and sympathy cards to retired faculty members or administrators in the event of a death in the immediate family.

"In order to fulfill its function, the committee has to rely on a system of notification from other members of the campus community," she said.

"When you hear of an event in a faculty or administrative member's life that we should be aware of, I hope you will take time to call me at 3155, or at my home, 525-9403. Messages also may be left with the English Department Office," she added.

TURKEY TIME

Marshall University's Thanksgiving holiday will begin at noon Wednesday, Nov. 25, for students and faculty and at the close of the work day for staff members. Administrative offices will remain closed on Friday. The university will resume its normal schedule at 8 a.m. Monday, Nov. 30. The News Letter will not be published next week because of the holiday, but will reappear Thursday, Dec. 3. The deadline will be 10 a.m. Tuesday, Dec. 1.
Hearings on MU yearbook set Tuesday, Dec. 1

An ad hoc committee considering the viability of continuing publication of the Chief Justice, Marshall University yearbook, will conduct hearings Tuesday, Dec. 1, beginning at 10 a.m. in the President's Conference Room in Old Main.

The ad hoc committee was appointed by the Public Relations and Publications Committee at the request of President Robert B. Hayes. Elizabeth Barker, assistant professor of nursing and chairman of the standing committee, also is serving as chairman of the ad hoc committee.

Several individuals have been invited to address the committee during the Dec. 1 sessions, Prof. Barker said. In addition, any student, faculty or staff member, or alumnus who wishes to present views on the matter will be welcomed, she said.

Questions concerning the viability of the yearbook surfaced a year ago when the Public Relations and Publications Committee examined budget presentations for the book.

In addition to the hearings, the committee plans a survey of student opinion.

Hayes asked that the committee submit its findings by the end of the current semester.

2. The matter of substitute representation on standing committees of the faculty was discussed. Apparently some substitutes are appearing to argue proposals of a personal or departmental nature. This practice, if continued, has the potential for serious consequences. Elected committee members represent a constituency no lower than that of a College. The Council believed this a guiding principle for representatives - substitute or not.

MU faculty and staff achievements, activities...

DAN O’HANLON, legal assisting program coordinator, taught a class on “Legal Rights of the Elderly” at the Cabell County Senior Citizens Multipurpose Center on Oct. 26. Earlier that day he also appeared on WGNT Radio’s “Cross Talk” call-in show, discussing problems of the West Virginia Criminal Justice System.

Eight members of the English Department attended the South Atlantic Modern Language Association conference held in Louisville, Ky., Nov. 5-7. DR. LEONARD DEUTSCH, associate professor, presided at the business meeting of the Society for the Study of Multi-Ethnic Literature of the United States (MELUS). DR. WARREN W. WOODEN, professor, was elected secretary of the Special Topics Section for 1982. DR. JOAN F. GILLILAND, assistant professor, presented a paper, “Milton as Fantasy Writer,” in the Science Fiction and Fantasy Discussion Circle. She also is on the Special Topics Section nominating committee.

Also attending were: DR. WILLIAM SULLIVAN, department chairman; DR. JOHN MCKERNAN, professor; LOUISE BAILEY, BETTY MCCLELLAN and DIANA WALDRON, assistant professors. DR. ROBERTA RICE, clinical associate professor of surgery, and DR. RUTH C. HARRIS, emeritus professor of pediatrics, were in China and Korea last month, touring various hospitals and speaking to medical groups. Dr. Harris visited the Beijing Children’s Hospital in China and spoke on “Laboratory Signs of Liver Dysfunction in Infants and Hepatitis” on Oct. 20 before the Pediatrics Department of Yonsei University Medical School at China’s Severance Hospital. Dr. Rice visited Korea’s Ewha University School of Medicine, Yonsei University in Seoul and its new branch in Wonju. She consulted with Dr. B.Y. Kim, Yonsei University’s Cancer Center director, concerning a computerized National Tumor Registry for statistical study of cancer in Korea and a reception was held in her honor at Severance Hospital.

DAVE GILLMORE, general manager of Instructional Television Services, addressed a session of the annual conference of the National Association of Educational Broadcasters, held Nov. 1-4 in New Orleans, La. Gillmore discussed the cost and flexibility advantages available to college computer systems by using existing closed-circuit television distribution systems instead of conventional computer lines. Gillmore was also named to a committee that will investigate a new organizational framework for the 400 members of the NAFEM’s Instruction Council.

DR. THOMAS MANAKKIL, professor of physics, participated in the conference/workshop on Low-Level Radioactive Waste held Sept. 30-Oct. 2 at North Carolina State University. Manakkil, university radiation safety officer, was among more than 120 academic, research institution and hospital representatives, as well as EPA and NRC officials, attending the sessions.

Seven members of the Community College faculty attended the West Virginia Community College Association Conference held Oct. 23-24 at Parkersburg Community College. They were DR. PAUL D. HINES, dean; CAROLYN B. HUNTER, assistant professor of reading; DIANE FORNARI, reading instructor; DONALD WILKES, retailing and small business management instructor; NEDRA LOWE, communications instructor; SARAH DENMAN, assistant professor of communications, and SUE CONLEY, secretarial studies instructor. Hines spoke at the conference on “The Relationship of the Component to the Parent Institution.” Ms. Hunter was elected president-elect for the coming year and Marshall will host the 1982 state conference.

DR. ROBERT P. ALEXANDER, professor of management and department chairman, spoke at the regional conference of Pi Kappa Alpha fraternity held at Memorial Student Center Nov. 7. More than 70 representatives of chapters from a three-state area were present to hear him talk on “You Are the Gold in the Garnet and Gold.”

DR. LEONARD J. DEUTSCH, associate professor of English, attended the Middle-Atlantic Writers Association Conference in Baltimore, Md., on Nov. 6, where he read a paper, “The Black Literary Tradition in West Virginia.”

Personnel personals...

Meredith Lynn Lutz, daughter of DR. PAUL F. LUTZ, assistant director of development, was named to both the academic and citizenship honor rolls for the first nine weeks period at Cammack Junior School where she is a seventh grader.

Francis Bailey, daughter of LOUISE S. BAILEY, assistant professor of English, has been elected secretary of the Marshall University Alpha Chi Omega pledge class and “Pledge of the Week” for her work during October. Her mother was selected as the sorority’s faculty advisor for this year.

DR. ROY THOMAS, Research Coordinating Unit director, was the winner of WSAS-TV’s P.M. Magazine “Silver Spoon Award” for his cost-cutting recipe for Italian Zucchini. The cook-off was held Nov. 14 at Corbly Hall and will be aired during P.M. Magazine at 7 p.m. on Monday, Nov. 23.

Two youngsters appearing in the MU production of “Sound of Music” are children of members of the campus community. Erica Snyder, daughter of DR. LYNN SNYDER, athletic director, was cast as Marta von Trapp, while David Evans, son of DR. DAN E. EVANS, associate professor of biological sciences, is appearing as Kurt von Trapp.

Proud of a family member’s achievement? Is there a new baby at your house? Is there something else you would like to share with your colleagues? “Personnel personals” is just the place. Send your information to Judith Casto, University Relations, Old Main 102.
Parking plan outlined for home basketball games

Free parking for as many as 1,300 automobiles will be available on Marshall University-owned parking lots during 10 of the 15 basketball games in the new Henderson Center this season, MU Parking Coordinator Bonnie J. Lytle said today.

Free public parking in Marshall lots also will be available for the other five home games, but will be more limited because of the fact university classes will be in session on those nights, Ms. Lytle said.

Her remarks were made in conjunction with today's announcement of the parking plan developed for home games at Henderson Center, the first of which is scheduled Friday, Nov. 27. Major points of the plan include:

- Public parking will be permitted at no charge on university lots on the north side of Third Avenue west of 18th Street (Lots F, S and A) and on the numerous smaller lots located south of Fifth Avenue between Elm and 19th streets. However, on the five game nights when classes are in session, public parking will not be available on these lots until after 6:45 p.m.

The five game dates on which evening classes will be conducted are Nov. 30, Dec. 15, Jan. 18 and Feb. 8 and 15.

-Vehicular traffic will not be permitted on the main campus (bounded by Hal Greer Boulevard, 20th Street, Third Avenue and Fifth Avenue) during home games. This includes 18th Street, between Third and Fifth avenues. Access to parking lots on the main campus will be limited to regular university parking permit holders and entrances will be blocked to limit access.

-During all home games, Parking Area G on the northeast corner of Third Avenue and 18th Street and all other lots on Third Avenue from 18th to 20th streets will be designated as "Special Parking" and regulated by Athletic Department personnel.

-Limited parking for registered handicapped persons will be available immediately east of Henderson Center at Third Avenue and relocated 19th Street.

All traffic and parking control plans will be implemented through a cooperative agreement between Marshall's Department of Public Safety and the Huntington Police Department and its Reserve Unit, Ms. Lytle said.

Music faculty chamber recital scheduled for Monday, Dec. 30

The Marshall University Music Department will present a Faculty Chamber Recital at 8 p.m. Monday, Nov. 30, in Smith Recital Hall. The event is free and open to the public.

The program will include three arias from Bach cantatas with baritone solo, harpichord and violin and flute obligatos, Schubert's "Sonata in A Major for Violin and Piano," Faure's "Fantasie for Flute and Piano," and Dvorak's "Trio in E Minor, Opus 90, for Violin, Cello and Piano."

Recital performers will be Patricia Green, associate professor, on violin; James McWhorter, instructor, on cello; Dr. James Taggart, professor, on piano; Kay Wildman, music librarian, on harpichord; Deborah Egekvist, instructor, on flute, and Dr. Paul Balshaw, department chairman, baritone.
