GRADUATE COMMITTEE Recommendation

SR-92-93-(108)254 (GR)

To add the following phrasing regarding the use of animal and/or human subjects in graduate research to page 16 of the current Graduate Catalog at the end of the section on Graduate Research:

Graduate students conducting research involving experiments that utilize animals must work under the supervision of faculty advisors who have written permission from the Institutional Animal Care and Use Committee (IACUC) before the students can start the research. Information about procedures and protocol forms may be obtained from the Animal Resources facility by dialing 7374.

Graduate students who conduct research involving the use of human subjects must have the approval of the Institutional Review Board (IRB) before starting the research. Information about procedures and approval forms may be obtained from the IRB by dialing 7320.
