CONTENT AND SCOPE OF THE COLLECTION

Photographs and slides comprise a major portion of this collection. Many of the photographs were for use by the newspaper; there are also a great number of informal snapshots, family photographs, and photographs of Miss Enslow herself. Photographs of notable persons and old photographic portraits dating from the 19th century complete this part of the collection. The slides are primarily those which Miss Enslow took in Europe while she was tour director for the Huntington Publishing Company.

Copies of many of her columns and articles are included, along with other items relating to her career as a newspaperwoman.

Among her family and personal papers are family correspondence and family legal papers belonging to her father and grandfather. Books, personal mementoes, and scrapbooks are also included.

Correspondence from notable persons, from friends and family, and from her readers are a part of the papers, as well as correspondence relating to her newspaper and political activities.

CATHERINE BLISS ENSLOW, 1899-1973

Catherine Bliss Enslow was born on February 14, 1899, in Huntington, West Virginia. After graduating from Huntington High School in 1917, she joined the staff of the Huntington Advertiser. Working first as a reporter, she later became a feature writer, society editor, travel editor, and featured columnist. For thirteen years Miss Enslow broadcast a nightly show on a local radio station; she also had three radio singing shows.

Active in the Democratic Party, she served as executive committeewoman for eight years, and as a delegate to the Democratic National Convention twice during the presidency of Franklin Roosevelt. She also served on counting boards and as a registrar.

During World War II, Miss Enslow directed recreation activities for aviation cadets stationed at Marshall University in Huntington. She also served as the director of the Huntington unit of the American Women's Voluntary Services and was the only woman on the local board of the United Service Organizations during the war.

She was a charter member of the Altrusa Club of Huntington, the Junior Department of the Huntington Women's Club, and the West Virginia Association of Newspaperwomen. Her other memberships included Alpha Chi Omega sorority, Civic Leaders of America, Personalities of the South, Two Thousand Women of Achievement, and an appointment as a Kentucky Colonel. At one time she also served as the West Virginia sponsor of the Debutante Register and the Southern Social Register.

Although she retired from her position with the Huntington Publishing Company in December, 1966, she continued to write her column intermittently for the Advertiser until early in 1973. She died in Huntington on February 13, 1973.
