9-19-2011

The Parthenon, September 19, 2011

Kristin Steele
Parthenon@marshall.edu

Follow this and additional works at: http://mds.marshall.edu/parthenon

Recommended Citation
http://mds.marshall.edu/parthenon/16

This Newspaper is brought to you for free and open access by the University Archives at Marshall Digital Scholar. It has been accepted for inclusion in The Parthenon by an authorized administrator of Marshall Digital Scholar. For more information, please contact zhangj@marshall.edu.
Battle for the Bell

44-7

Herd come up short

BY ALIANNA TELLES

The NC-Pitt School of Journalism and Mass Communications will be hosting its second annual golf scramble Sept. 30. The golf scramble will take place at Twin Silos golf course in Lavalette, W.Va.

This year’s school presenting sponsor is the Pennington family, along with the Greenbrier and several other sponsors. All proceeds will benefit the SOJMC students. In last year’s golf scramble the school was able to raise approximately $2,000 for various supplies.

The cost to participate in the event is $35 for an individual and $75 for a team of four if registered before September 30. Participants will also be able to sign up the day of the event: $35 for a team and $70 for an individual.

The free: it includes 18 holes of golf, golf balls, beer, a includes golf tee, a T-shirt and more. Raffle drawing and prizes will be given to participants who will be served at 6 p.m., with dinner served at 7 p.m. Individual tickets may be purchased for $65 per person, or a patron level sponsorship can be bought for $250, which includes two tickets and the purchaser’s name in the program. Ticket forms are available for download at www.littlevictories.org.

Little Victories Animal Rescue provides homes for abandoned, injured, or abused animals. “Little Victories is something very, very unique for this area,” Brown said. “Because if they go to the shelter, they have a 90 percent chance to put down, and that’s over the entire state [West Virginia].”

Brown said that it has been tough during this recession because donations are down, and because of that they are really focusing on fundraising events. Oct. 8 will be worldwide zombie day, and Little Victories will be hosting a zombie walk at Pulman Square. Little Victories will be competing with cities all across the country to get the largest number of zombies, and the winner will be entered in the Guinness Book of Records.

Brown said, “We can do it because we have a university in town.”

See OCTOB 1 Page 5

---

Donations down

Little Victories focuses on fundraising for fall

BY DWIGHT JORGE

Little Victories Animal Rescue will host its fifth annual dinner at Rocco’s Ristorante Sept. 30. Rocco’s Ristorante serves Italian cuisine located 252 Main Street, Ceredo.

“It’s a really great place for animal lovers to come to just be together, talk, learn more about little victories, enjoy the food, and have a good time,” said Sue Brown, president of Little Victories Animal Rescue.

Brown said appetizers will be served at 6 p.m., with dinner served at 7 p.m. Individual tickets may be purchased for $65 per person, or a patron level sponsorship can be bought for $250, which includes two tickets and the purchaser’s name on the program. Ticket forms are available for download at www.littlevictories.org.

Little Victories Animal Rescue provides homes for abandoned, injured, or abused animals. “Little Victories is something very, very unique for this area,” Brown said. “Because if they go to the shelter, they have a 90 percent chance to put down, and that’s over the entire state [West Virginia].”

Brown said that it has been tough during this recession because donations are down, and because of that they are really focusing on fundraising events. Oct. 8 will be worldwide zombie day, and Little Victories will be hosting a zombie walk at Pulman Square. Little Victories will be competing with cities all across the country to get the largest number of zombies, and the winner will be entered in the Guinness Book of Records.

Brown said, “We can do it because we have a university in town.”

---

Community celebrates 10th anniversary with movie screenings, pictures, pageant

BY KRISTIN STEELE

Marshall students, pose for a picture with “the mothman” (Right) contestant line up to wait for results at the Miss Mothman Festival Pageant.

See VICTORIES I Page 5
The White House did not release details of the program to the public, but Brian Deese, the White House senior economic adviser, said that no one would receive more than $25,000 in tax relief.

The program is designed to help the President’s executive office, which is responsible for paying its employees, and to ensure that taxpayers are not paying more than they owe.

The program is modeled on a similar program in the United States, which was created to help people who had been hurt by the government.

The program has been in place since 2013 and has helped more than 50,000 people.

The program is designed to be easy to understand and to be available to people who are not sure how much money they owe to the government.

The program is expected to be fully implemented by the end of the year.

Millionaire tax called class warfare by GOP

WASHINGTON — Top congressional Republicans on Sunday accused President Barack Obama of trying to create a new tax for millionaires and called for a moratorium on raising taxes.

"I think they need to understand that this is a tax on the very wealthy, and it makes for rotten economics," said Senator John Barrasso, a Republican from Wyoming. "They need to understand that if you raise taxes on people, you're going to make less money and you're going to lose jobs." The Republican proposal would limit the tax to millionaires and billionaires, and would require them to pay a higher percentage of their income in taxes.

The proposal is expected to be considered by the Senate in the coming weeks, but it is unclear whether it will pass.

Millionaire tax called class warfare by GOP

WASHINGTON — Top congressional Republicans on Sunday accused President Barack Obama of trying to create a new tax for millionaires and called for a moratorium on raising taxes.

"I think they need to understand that this is a tax on the very wealthy, and it makes for rotten economics," said Senator John Barrasso, a Republican from Wyoming. "They need to understand that if you raise taxes on people, you're going to make less money and you're going to lose jobs." The Republican proposal would limit the tax to millionaires and billionaires, and would require them to pay a higher percentage of their income in taxes.

The proposal is expected to be considered by the Senate in the coming weeks, but it is unclear whether it will pass.

Millionaire tax called class warfare by GOP

WASHINGTON — Top congressional Republicans on Sunday accused President Barack Obama of trying to create a new tax for millionaires and called for a moratorium on raising taxes.

"I think they need to understand that this is a tax on the very wealthy, and it makes for rotten economies," said Senator John Barrasso, a Republican from Wyoming. "They need to understand that if you raise taxes on people, you're going to make less money and you're going to lose jobs." The Republican proposal would limit the tax to millionaires and billionaires, and would require them to pay a higher percentage of their income in taxes.

The proposal is expected to be considered by the Senate in the coming weeks, but it is unclear whether it will pass.
The Ohio Bobcats defeated Marshall 44-7 Saturday night to reclaim the Battle for the Bell trophy. Marshall had retained the trophy for the seven previous games. Ohio leads the series with an all-time record of 30-19-6.

COLUMN

Too soon to give up on Herd

BY DAVID HAMMONDS
THE PARTHENON

Right, so that didn’t actually go as planned. Some. Marshall’s 44-7 loss at Ohio on Saturday was a dismantling, a disappointment, or any other regret adjective you could think of, but before you start trying to sculp your Virginia Tech tickets and use the money on gas to try and get a camera on College Gameday, allow me to try and cool you back down.

Let me begin by saying that this season will be a roller coaster. The peaks (Southern Miss) and valleys (Ohio) are going to keep coming. The joy of walking out of the Joan C. Edwards Stadium on October 15th in a conference game and a divisional game and a conference title game against UCF. Marshall was on top of the world.

The game against UCF is exactly the same. The momentum that isn’t as easy as it appears. The truth is, Rice will be a challenge for us to win.

As I checked, Marshall is currently leading Conference USA’s East division (sure, I see that team again. I don’t care). Anything can happen, anything can go as planned. Sure, we only beat East Carolina in both major polls. However, we are a team in astonishment.

The crowd and team went nuts when Kyle Sniatecki scored the first goal of the match, you could tell. Just so excited to do this for our teammates.

It’s hard to see the team that played Ohio just a few days ago competing for anything except last place, but hopefully we never have to see that team again.

Dalton Hammonds can be contacted at hammondsjo@live.marshall.edu.

SPORTS

Bobcats claim Battle for the Bell in blowout

BY SHAINA CARTER
THE PARTHENON

The Ohio Bobcats defeated Marshall 44-7 Saturday night to reclaim the Battle for the Bell trophy. Marshall had retained the trophy for the seven previous games. Ohio leads the series with an all-time record of 30-19-6.

First time Edwords Stadium has ever seen “Beamerball.” Virginia Tech is coming into this weekend having outscored their first Opponents by a combined score of 30-30 (34-34 as a team). They also hold a spot in the top 15 in both major polls. However, they only beat East Carolina 17-5. Marshall has to shore up their defense better this week than they did against Ohio (shaking, shaking, cough, cough). Anything can happen, but the Hokies have been known to have letdowns.

The Thundering Herd gave up the ball six times in the first half including four interceptions by Cato. The Herd offensive back Xavier Hughes jumps to intercept a Rakeem Cato pass during the first half. The Herd took the ball down the field and scored on the next play, leaving the crowd and team in astonishment.

“Several guys on the field that I have never seen before, they were jumping and hugging,” said Hayes.

Jackson scored the first goal in the first half on a cross from the 17 minutted left Kyle Sniatecki scored a goal from 35 yards out, leaving the crowd and team in astonishment.

“I was just pumped, I have been playing for this opportunity to get in and to get the first goal of the match, you know we were 0-0 the whole time, I felt chills in the body and I went straight to the crease to make sure we were into it,” said Sniatecki.

Just ask James Madison. They were known to have letdowns, cough cough). Anything can happen, anything can go as planned. Sure, we only beat East Carolina in both major polls. However, we are a team in astonishment.

The crowd and team went nuts when Kyle Sniatecki scored the first goal of the match, you could tell. Just so excited to do this for our teammates.

It’s hard to see the team that played Ohio just a few days ago competing for anything except last place, but hopefully we never have to see that team again.

Dalton Hammonds can be contacted at hammondsjo@live.marshall.edu.

Men’s soccer extends win streak

Herd take down Winthrop and Oakland during weekend homestand

BY SHAINA CARTER
THE PARTHENON

This past weekend, Marshall men’s soccer team had a back to back to victory on their own turf. Sunday they dominated Winthrop University with a score of 6-0. Tuesday night hosted the third straight for the men’s soccer team.

They then travel to Conference USA’s East division (sure, I see that team again. I don’t care). Anything can happen, anything can go as planned. Sure, we only beat East Carolina in both major polls. However, we are a team in astonishment.

The crowd and team went nuts when Kyle Sniatecki scored the first goal of the match, you could tell. Just so excited to do this for our teammates.

It’s hard to see the team that played Ohio just a few days ago competing for anything except last place, but hopefully we never have to see that team again.

Dalton Hammonds can be contacted at hammondsjo@live.marshall.edu.

TICKETS

Ohio quarterback Tyler Tettleton throw for 385 yards to lead the Bobcats to 44 points in the victory.

Monday, September 19, 2011
THE PARTHENON
marshallparthenon.com

COLUMN

Too soon to give up on Herd

BY DAVID HAMMONDS
THE PAR

The Ohio Bobcats defeated Marshall 44-7 Saturday night to reclaim the Battle for the Bell trophy. Marshall had retained the trophy for the seven previous games. Ohio leads the series with an all-time record of 30-19-6.

First time Edwords Stadium has ever seen “Beamerball.” Virginia Tech is coming into this weekend having outscored their first Opponents by a combined score of 30-30 (34-34 as a team). They also hold a spot in the top 15 in both major polls. However, they only beat East Carolina 17-5. Marshall has to shore up their defense better this week than they did against Ohio (shaking, shaking, cough, cough). Anything can happen, but the Hokies have been known to have letdowns.

The Thundering Herd gave up the ball six times in the first half including four interceptions by Cato. The Herd offensive back Xavier Hughes jumps to intercept a Rakeem Cato pass during the first half. The Herd took the ball down the field and scored on the next play, leaving the crowd and team in astonishment.

“Several guys on the field that I have never seen before, they were jumping and hugging,” said Hayes.

Jackson scored the first goal in the first half on a cross from the 17 minutted left Kyle Sniatecki scored a goal from 35 yards out, leaving the crowd and team in astonishment.

“I was just pumped, I have been playing for this opportunity to get in and to get the first goal of the match, you know we were 0-0 the whole time, I felt chills in the body and I went straight to the crease to make sure we were into it,” said Sniatecki.

Just ask James Madison. They were known to have letdowns, cough cough). Anything can happen, anything can go as planned. Sure, we only beat East Carolina in both major polls. However, we are a team in astonishment.

The crowd and team went nuts when Kyle Sniatecki scored the first goal of the match, you could tell. Just so excited to do this for our teammates.

It’s hard to see the team that played Ohio just a few days ago competing for anything except last place, but hopefully we never have to see that team again.

Dalton Hammonds can be contacted at hammondsjo@live.marshall.edu.

SPORTS

Bobcats claim Battle for the Bell in blowout

BY SHAINA CARTER
THE PAR

The Ohio Bobcats defeated Marshall 44-7 Saturday night to reclaim the Battle for the Bell trophy. Marshall had retained the trophy for the seven previous games. Ohio leads the series with an all-time record of 30-19-6.

First time Edwords Stadium has ever seen “Beamerball.” Virginia Tech is coming into this weekend having outscored their first Opponents by a combined score of 30-30 (34-34 as a team). They also hold a spot in the top 15 in both major polls. However, they only beat East Carolina 17-5. Marshall has to shore up their defense better this week than they did against Ohio (shaking, shaking, cough, cough). Anything can happen, but the Hokies have been known to have letdowns.

The Thundering Herd gave up the ball six times in the first half including four interceptions by Cato. The Herd offensive back Xavier Hughes jumps to intercept a Rakeem Cato pass during the first half. The Herd took the ball down the field and scored on the next play, leaving the crowd and team in astonishment.

“Several guys on the field that I have never seen before, they were jumping and hugging,” said Hayes.

Jackson scored the first goal in the first half on a cross from the 17 minutted left Kyle Sniatecki scored a goal from 35 yards out, leaving the crowd and team in astonishment.

“I was just pumped, I have been playing for this opportunity to get in and to get the first goal of the match, you know we were 0-0 the whole time, I felt chills in the body and I went straight to the crease to make sure we were into it,” said Sniatecki.

Just ask James Madison. They were known to have letdowns, cough cough). Anything can happen, anything can go as planned. Sure, we only beat East Carolina in both major polls. However, we are a team in astonishment.

The crowd and team went nuts when Kyle Sniatecki scored the first goal of the match, you could tell. Just so excited to do this for our teammates.

It’s hard to see the team that played Ohio just a few days ago competing for anything except last place, but hopefully we never have to see that team again.

Dalton Hammonds can be contacted at hammondsjo@live.marshall.edu.

Men’s soccer extends win streak

Herd take down Winthrop and Oakland during weekend homestand

BY SHAINA CARTER
THE PARTHENON

This past weekend, Marshall men’s soccer team had a back to back to victory on their own turf. Sunday they dominated Winthrop University with a score of 6-0. Tuesday night hosted the third straight for the men’s soccer team.

They then travel to Conference USA’s East division (sure, I see that team again. I don’t care). Anything can happen, anything can go as planned. Sure, we only beat East Carolina in both major polls. However, we are a team in astonishment.

The crowd and team went nuts when Kyle Sniatecki scored the first goal of the match, you could tell. Just so excited to do this for our teammates.

It’s hard to see the team that played Ohio just a few days ago competing for anything except last place, but hopefully we never have to see that team again.

Dalton Hammonds can be contacted at hammondsjo@live.marshall.edu.
Students on a limited budget must watch spending carefully

Energy drinks, coffee, fast food and Ramen noodles, all cheap stereotypically related to college life, can cost a student on a shoestring budget. But for many students, this unhealthy menu isn’t that far away from a reality. The number of students from low-income families attending college has increased in the last five years; however, these students not supported financially while in school by their parents still feel the costly blow.

According to an article by USA Today entitled ‘Low-income college students are increasingly left behind’ nearly two-thirds of America’s wealthiest 25 percent of college students come from a family with an undergraduate degree compared to 20 percent from a public university within two years of graduating high school, but only one in five students from the bottom 25 percent do so.

The problem of delivering mail from one location to another has been a struggle for years. Some students choose not to use USPS because of the high cost, and many students have stopped contributing to this federal service. So what does this really mean to you and me? Could such a closure represent the beginning of a line of dominoes—a line in which the Postal Service is about to default on a payment of $5.5 billion, and the one that will be my mail? I’d be long gone by now. So what does this really mean to you and me? Could such a closure represent the beginning of a line of dominoes—

In many ways, I feel like saying, “bye ha” to the United States Postal Service. Take that! Take that, for bringing all these bad mail bills in my mail. I say this because USPS can’t even pay its own bills. Personally, I HATE the Postal Office falls under a special umbrella of the government, “independent agency.” So what’s that in English? They act as “profit” in order to survive, no different than any other business; and by the end of September, they’re going to be shut up for good.

A recent article published in Gizmodo mentioned the Postal Service and its dilemma. I summarized this as “not only are they going under, but they’re going under fast – minus the life vest.”

According to the New York Times, the Postal Service is about to deliver those dreaded bill envelopes instantly available. Some students don’t have the money to stay on a shoestring budget. But for many students, this must watch spending carefully. So yes, I guess we still need the Postal Service, perhaps in a different form, but the point is already on the table. And so the debate goes: “The “suck” killed-pen, Pen pals became email junkies, and it all be convenient. The Postal Service suffered greatly from this “cyber Santa of appreciations,” and the after effect: The whole system simply can’t be done.

So what does this really mean to you and me? Could such a closure represent the beginning of a line of dominoes—

In many ways, I feel like saying, “bye ha” to the United States Postal Service. Take that! Take that, for bringing all these bad mail bills in my mail. I say this because USPS can’t even pay its own bills. Personally, I HATE the Postal Office falls under a special umbrella of the government, “independent agency.” So what’s that in English? They act as “profit” in order to survive, no different than any other business; and by the end of September, they’re going to be shut up for good.

A recent article published in Gizmodo mentioned the Postal Service and its dilemma. I summarized this as “not only are they going under, but they’re going under fast – minus the life vest.”

According to the New York Times, the Postal Service is about to deliver those dreaded bill envelopes instantly available. Some students don’t have the money to stay on a shoestring budget. But for many students, this must watch spending carefully. So yes, I guess we still need the Postal Service, perhaps in a different form, but the point is already on the table. And so the debate goes: “The “suck” killed-pen, Pen pals became email junkies, and it all be convenient. The Postal Service suffered greatly from this “cyber Santa of appreciations,” and the after effect: The whole system simply can’t be done.

SO WHAT DO YOU THINK?
America needs to deliver snail mail from a certain death

By Andrea Austing
Central Florida future, U. Central Florida via OPINE

In many ways, I feel like saying, “bye ha” to the United States Postal Service. Take that! Take that, for bringing all these bad mail bills in my mail. I say this because USPS can’t even pay its own bills. Personally, I HATE the Postal Office falls under a special umbrella of the government, “independent agency.” So what’s that in English? They act as “profit” in order to survive, no different than any other business; and by the end of September, they’re going to be shut up for good.

A recent article published in Gizmodo mentioned the Postal Service and its dilemma. I summarized this as “not only are they going under, but they’re going under fast – minus the life vest.”

According to the New York Times, the Postal Service is about to deliver those dreaded bill envelopes instantly available. Some students don’t have the money to stay on a shoestring budget. But for many students, this must watch spending carefully. So yes, I guess we still need the Postal Service, perhaps in a different form, but the point is already on the table. And so the debate goes: “The “suck” killed-pen, Pen pals became email junkies, and it all be convenient. The Postal Service suffered greatly from this “cyber Santa of appreciations,” and the after effect: The whole system simply can’t be done.

SO WHAT DO YOU THINK?
America needs to deliver snail mail from a certain death

By Andrea Austing
Central Florida future, U. Central Florida via OPINE

In many ways, I feel like saying, “bye ha” to the United States Postal Service. Take that! Take that, for bringing all these bad mail bills in my mail. I say this because USPS can’t even pay its own bills. Personally, I HATE the Postal Office falls under a special umbrella of the government, “independent agency.” So what’s that in English? They act as “profit” in order to survive, no different than any other business; and by the end of September, they’re going to be shut up for good.

A recent article published in Gizmodo mentioned the Postal Service and its dilemma. I summarized this as “not only are they going under, but they’re going under fast – minus the life vest.”

According to the New York Times, the Postal Service is about to deliver those dreaded bill envelopes instantly available. Some students don’t have the money to stay on a shoestring budget. But for many students, this must watch spending carefully. So yes, I guess we still need the Postal Service, perhaps in a different form, but the point is already on the table. And so the debate goes: “The “suck” killed-pen, Pen pals became email junkies, and it all be convenient. The Postal Service suffered greatly from this “cyber Santa of appreciations,” and the after effect: The whole system simply can’t be done.
of things. It’s a lot of fun, we’ve met some really interesting people here.”

Wright said she considered herself one of the people who loses the most from a controversial case, as well as helping out The Dixie Chicks song “Goodbye Earl” when she and Snedecor grabbed the megaphones for Kansas.

“His most favorite musical composition,” Wright said. “And from Huntington, it’s just a short drive — much shorter than coming from Martinsburg. We had to do this.”

Brandon Antieich can be contacted at ser

VICTORIES Continued from Page 1

To register to walk will be $5, and the event will include covering of the king and queen number, fortune telling, live mu naiwide at the same cost they pay to Marshall University.

“Everyone had to do it.”

The lawsuit was filed Mon day by The Authors Guild and the Union Des Ecrivaines Quebecois in an effort to raise awareness about 7 million books that have been against Google, they have not reached the individual uni

MOTHMAN Continued from Page 2

gross income of at least $1 million, ac

TAX Continued from Page 2

the dean of libraries at U.

The lawsuit was filed Mon day by The Authors Guild, the

FOR WEB

> follow us…

ONLINE

marshallparkerhomenews.com twitter facebook

WWW.UWIRE.COM
Exchange program sends students nationwide

BY SHAUN FRENCH
THE PARTHENON

Marshall students who are interested in traveling to the beach, tour Times Square or hike the Grand Canyon have the opportunity to do so through the National Student Exchange program. The program allows students to study at Marshall at the price of their hometown university or the instate tuition to the host institution. “It is by far, in my opinion, the best affordable way to study on campus,” said Christopher Atkins, academic counselor in the University College. “Students come to Marshall from any number of institutions across the nation — including Canada, Puerto Rico, and the U.S. Virgin Islands.”

Senior Jeanne Pariseau, from the Université du Québec à Montréal, is majoring in communication, politics and society and discovered the NSE program through her international adviser. Pariseau said she was interested about the adventure of discovering a new place and making new connections with people. “I was interested about the adventure of discovering a new place and making new connections with people,” Pariseau said. “I also wanted to improve my English skills.”

Marshall students can also attend another Exchange program sends students nationwide

235378
WES BANCO
AD ID 53804
6 x 10.0