11-18-2011

The Parthenon, November 18, 2011

Kristin Steele
Parthenon@marshall.edu

Follow this and additional works at: http://mds.marshall.edu/parthenon

Recommended Citation
http://mds.marshall.edu/parthenon/39

This Newspaper is brought to you for free and open access by the University Archives at Marshall Digital Scholar. It has been accepted for inclusion in The Parthenon by an authorized administrator of Marshall Digital Scholar. For more information, please contact zhangj@marshall.edu.
Members of the Occupy Huntington movement march in solidarity with Occupy Wall Street. Members of the occupation have camped out in front of Chase Bank located on Fifth Avenue since Oct. 7.

The protesters have avoided much of the problems faced by other Occupy groups by maintaining a peaceful camp. The protesters said they have not had any problems with the Huntington Police Department, but they have received word that the city is looking into evicting them.

The protests have retained much of the energy that first brought people together. Hogsett said the success of the Occupy movement is conveyed and formats are specific. It is the key for success. Hogsett said relevant resumes are specific, are career focused, are professional, and they seem to have a greater interest in keeping themselves safe than getting them to move their camp. The Occupy movement has been plagued with frustration in the way working class people were being treated by those in power.

“All of the sudden, when 100,000 people stand up, they realize that we’ve all been feeling this way for the last 5 or 10 years. We’ve all been feeling pushed. Nothing has changed. We’re getting together for a reason.”

The Occupy protesters are attempting to voice their concerns over the injustices they feel are unfairly pushed onto the working class, said Michael McKissic, 36, volunteer.
New exhibit to open at Huntington Museum of Art

College of Health Sciences will offer new health sciences degree

Huntington Christmas parade scheduled for Dec. 1

Seattle mayor apologizes after police pepper-spray peaceful protesters

WVML-FM 88.1 is seeking applications for spring 2012

To those engaged in peaceful protest, I am sorry that you were pepper-sprayed.
Late comeback keeps bowl hopes alive

BY SHAINA CARTER
THE PARTHENON

Jasmine Shaw transferred to Marshall this season to make her debut with the Herd. She transferred from Chipola Junior College where in 2011 she was All-American and first team All-Panhandle Conference.

During her first year with the program, she was named Florida Panhandle Conference freshman of the year after averaging 15.5 points, 4.6 rebounds, 2.5 assists, 1.7 steals and shooting 42.6 percent from the field.

“She’s a very good defender, a quickness, she can take it all the way to the rim. When it counts, she can step up for her team and get a basket,” Head Coach Royce Chadwick said. “She can pass a ball, she sees the floor, she can shoot the three. She was the only two seniors on the roster – Coach Feaganes will have a number of returners. With Boston Miller and Carmon Schanbacher as the only two seniors on the roster – Coach Feaganes will have plenty of experience on his side, something he feels Lagodich will be able to use to their advantage.

“Logan is an outstanding prospect,” Head Coach Joe Feaganes said. “He should have an immediate impact on our golf team.”

The return against Louisville. Booker returned two kicks for 156 yards and five punts for 38 yards against Memphis Thursday night. The Herd was the second after scoring two late touchdowns. Freshman quarterback Jalen Cat completed 10 of 23 passes for 156 yards and a touchdown. Running back Travon Martin rushed for 67 yards and a touchdown. Travon gave the game-winning touchdown when he scrambled into the end zone for a 19-yard score.

Marshall athletic director Andre Booker looks for space during a return against Louisiana. Booker returned two kicks for 156 yards and five punts for 38 yards against Memphis Thursday night. The Herd was the second after scoring two late touchdowns. Freshman quarterback Jalen Cat completed 10 of 23 passes for 156 yards and a touchdown. Running back Travon Martin rushed for 67 yards and a touchdown. Travon gave the game-winning touchdown when he scrambled into the end zone for a 19-yard score.

Sophomore Jasmine Shaw makes her way to the basket during the Herd’s 65-49 loss to Miami on Tuesday. Shaw had a team-high 16 points in Marshall’s season opener against Kent State.

Smith scored a team-high 16 points in Marshall’s season opener against Kent State.
The money would pay for what the NCAA calls the “full cost of attendance,” outside of tuition, room and board, books and fees for college athletes.

Even though NCAA President Mark Emmert says that university leaders are “adamant” about not allowing students to be paid to play, the new reform certainly sends mixed signals. It is no secret that universities make money from athletic programs and draw in prospective students as well. The question is whether the University of Minnesota’s focus is on these student-athletes and their education or on reaping benefits from collusion with professional leagues.

The financial collapse of late-2008 left many in the United States wondering where their hands were. How did something like this happen? What are the origins of this crisis? What exactly is the root cause?

The US government and the Federal Reserve have contributed to the issues, claiming it was a failure of the market that caused the crisis. Sweeping into action, they bailed out the banks, piled on the regulations, and began pumping new money into the market in order to jumpstart the economy. However, utilizing the lens of the Austrian business cycle theory as developed by Ludwig von Mises, we can see that the collapse was not a failure of the market. The market was a failure of a bubble that was necessary for the economy to function.

The collapse of 2008 was not a random element of the economy but a result of a long-term bubble that was necessary for the continuing economic growth experienced over the past 30 years. The bubble was necessary for the economy to function.

A recession occurs when the bubble bursts and the economy sees the destruction of billions of money notes.

The Fed has the ability to raise and lower interest rates, which it does by decreasing or increasing the money supply respectively. By doing this, the Fed sends signals to investors about the ratio between consumption and savings.

For example, if the Fed sends signals to investors that the interest rates are extremely high, investors are interested in purchasing bonds in the present, thus saving the signal to investors in consumer goods. By lowering interest rates, the Fed is saying that consumers are more interested in investing in the future; thus signaling that saving is up and go ahead and buy more house or goods, things like that. Because the Fed can change interest rates in a way that will come into conflict with the economy’s actual consumption to savings rate. Trying to calculate what market interest rates actually are is frankly impossible due to the complexity of the market.

Austrian business cycle theory explains that the Fed artificially lowers interest rates below that of the actual market level, thus new money pours into the banks and is then used to make houses. Investors are surely of the new money as increased savings on the part of the consumer, signalling those three in investor demand and thus begins to fall. The rest of the economy soon followed with the stock market crash in 2008.

The crash in stocks was due to the fact that stocks are units of title to manuities of capital or higher-order goods and thus are not a cure. In response to the downturn, the Federal Reserve has called for more rounds of monetary expansion, including buying $85 billion worth of bond purchases each month.

This must be changed, as per the Austrian business cycle theory, the Fed’s actions are only working to make matters worse. Investors are surely of the new money as increased savings on the part of the consumer, signalling those three in investor demand and thus begins to fall. The rest of the economy soon followed with the stock market crash in 2008.
Column:

By NICHE DODSON
THE PATRONHE

Twitter poised to become top dog

By HANK FEUER
STAFF WRITER

John Friedl, professor at The University of Tennessee, said that students must prepare for the future by seeking the help of Career Services.

When was a word it means what it chose to mean, neither more nor less," Friedl said. "The question is, is whatever you conclude is what the political make-up of the court may be. It is an issue of conscience. I do not believe it is a bad thing, or that it anything different. We do what the framers envisioned.

Friedl reinforced his idea of legal politics by drawing the audience’s attention to those amendograms of The Constitution.

The second amendment to the Constitution of the United States means "the right of the people to keep and bear arms," Friedl argued. "We have seen that the guns left by one generation need to be flowed by another."

Unlike Facebook, Twitter gives people direct access to the original intent of the framers, because the framers of the weapons ownership to the need for a militia, and today we do not.

"I agree with the rulings because I do not believe that the rulings should be titled as original intent," Friedl said. "The original intent cannot be changed because that is what the individual means to be different than the rulings that have been claimed to have original intent.

Facebook took over the world. With the new Myspace. According to Buyandsell,

Twitter poised to become top dog

We have been through a lot with Facebook, but sadly its time has ended. Soon liking comments and posting profiles will be a thing of the past. Becoming obsessed with Twitter will not be an omen as Facebook. Although there are still ways to use in the future, scrolling through the site. Twitter is a site not used to many way to social network. If you aren’t quite ready to say goodbye to Facebook, treat it like a Band-Aid. Deactivate it quickly then post your first tweet.

By KATHY RUGG
THE PATRONHE

The Constitution Means What It's Made to Mean

The Constitution of the United States was the document under which the framers of our country established the legislative framework for the government.

I think what the framers wanted to be included in the Constitution was the rule of law, the rule of reason, and the rule of justice. The framers wanted the Constitution to be a living document, to be modified as needed.

The Constitution is not a static document. It is a living, breathing document that can be changed to meet the needs of the times. The framers wanted the Constitution to be a guide for the future, to be used as a tool for making decisions.

The Constitution is not a document that can be easily changed. It is a long and complex document that contains many different parts. The framers wanted the Constitution to be a living document, to be modified as needed.

Huckaby was born in 1943. Myspace was the only place that he used the internet. Twitter poised to become top dog

MCDONALD
Continued from Page 6

McDonald’s at Thursday night’s game. Huckaby was in

The AOL Instant Messenger

The AOL Instant Messenger was designed for communication back in the day. It was the only way to talk to our friends and elementary school friends, without being face-to-face.

As we matured and went on to middle school and high school, we were able to communicate with each other. This was the only way to stay in touch with each other.

So why do we use social networks today? It has been a question that has been asked for a long time. The answer is simple.

Social networks are a way to stay in touch with each other. It is a way to keep in touch with old friends, and make new friends.

The Constitution Means What It's Made to Mean

I believe that the Constitution means what it's made to mean. I think that the framers wrote the constitution out, and didn’t have any idea what concept would come in the future.”

Friedl said that he agrees with Friedl’s theory. “I think that the framers wrote the constitution out, and didn’t have any idea what concept would come in the future.”

Nikki Dotson can be contacted at ndotson76@marshall.edu.

The AOL Instant Messenger was designed for communication back in the day. It was the only way to talk to our friends and elementary school friends, without being face-to-face.

As we matured and went on to middle school and high school, we were able to communicate with each other. This was the only way to stay in touch with each other.

So why do we use social networks today? It has been a question that has been asked for a long time. The answer is simple.

Social networks are a way to stay in touch with each other. It is a way to keep in touch with old friends, and make new friends.

The Constitution Means What It's Made to Mean

I believe that the Constitution means what it's made to mean. I think that the framers wrote the constitution out, and didn’t have any idea what concept would come in the future.”

Friedl said that he agrees with Friedl’s theory. “I think that the framers wrote the constitution out, and didn’t have any idea what concept would come in the future.”

Nikki Dotson can be contacted at ndotson76@marshall.edu.

The AOL Instant Messenger was designed for communication back in the day. It was the only way to talk to our friends and elementary school friends, without being face-to-face.

As we matured and went on to middle school and high school, we were able to communicate with each other. This was the only way to stay in touch with each other.

So why do we use social networks today? It has been a question that has been asked for a long time. The answer is simple.

Social networks are a way to stay in touch with each other. It is a way to keep in touch with old friends, and make new friends.

The Constitution Means What It's Made to Mean

I believe that the Constitution means what it's made to mean. I think that the framers wrote the constitution out, and didn’t have any idea what concept would come in the future.”

Friedl said that he agrees with Friedl’s theory. “I think that the framers wrote the constitution out, and didn’t have any idea what concept would come in the future.”

Nikki Dotson can be contacted at ndotson76@marshall.edu.

The AOL Instant Messenger was designed for communication back in the day. It was the only way to talk to our friends and elementary school friends, without being face-to-face.

As we matured and went on to middle school and high school, we were able to communicate with each other. This was the only way to stay in touch with each other.

So why do we use social networks today? It has been a question that has been asked for a long time. The answer is simple.

Social networks are a way to stay in touch with each other. It is a way to keep in touch with old friends, and make new friends.

The Constitution Means What It's Made to Mean

I believe that the Constitution means what it's made to mean. I think that the framers wrote the constitution out, and didn’t have any idea what concept would come in the future.”

Friedl said that he agrees with Friedl’s theory. “I think that the framers wrote the constitution out, and didn’t have any idea what concept would come in the future.”

Nikki Dotson can be contacted at ndotson76@marshall.edu.
Office star Krasinski shares jokes, anecdotes

BY CAITLIN CONLEY
THE PARTHENON

Krasinski said he did not go to high school with the actor, who complied by keeping a shot — and keep giving it a shot until the results were in.

“After a few opening remarks, students started standing up to ask about the actor’s decision to attend Brown, which he had been considering, his love for theater, and the upcoming production, The musical "Paradise," Krasinski said.

“I think we all have a little bit of our characters’ lives, because I do,” Krasinski said, referring to the show’s cast. "I saw the show, and it was one of the fewest people he knows. He said the two actors had an emotional time getting through their last few hours together. He said that it was a mutual decision, and he was supportive of the actor’s decision.

During winter break, five students performed with the American rock band, Steely Dan, popular for such songs as “Reelin’ in the Years,” “Doobie Brothers,” and “What a Fool Believes.”

For WMUL-FM, "I think this is the perfect way to give a shot — keep giving it a shot until the results are in. I think students should see that piece because it will open up their eyes to something they might not otherwise have experienced every day," Beatty said.

Caitlin Conley can be contacted at cc95@marshall.edu.

Office star Krasinski shares jokes, anecdotes

BY CATHERINE COMLEY
THE PARTHENON

The stage at Joan C. Edwards Performing Arts Center was taken back through time to arrive in 1930 Atlanta. "The Last Night of Ballyhoo" cast to help them better understand their role in portraying characters of Jewish faith.

Nicole Perrone, assistant professor of acting and movement and theatrical director, "The Last Night of Ballyhoo" was chosen by the cast and the audience for several reasons but quickly left the stage.

"I think students should see this piece because it will open up their eyes to something they might not otherwise have experienced every day," Beatty said.

Caitlin Conley can be contacted at cc95@marshall.edu.

WMUL - FM 88.1 sponsors t-shirt design contest

BY ALANNA TELLES
THE PARTHENON

Students want to share their creativity with the campus and make the opportunity to do so a unique one. WMUL, the Marshall University student-run radio station, is hosting a t-shirt design contest for students.

The designer that wins the contest will receive several prizes including the design on the t-shirt, a t-shirt and a copy of the design on the WMUL Facebook page. "I think this is the perfect way to give a shot — keep giving it a shot until the results are in," Beatty said.

Some students asked more personal questions, like how he got into acting and why he chose to pursue a career in it. However, Krasinski responded that though he was working in New York as a professional actor, he had a lot of fun just being in the city and being with friends.

"I think that pretty much the world’s job is to diminish you from acting," Krasinski said. "Don’t listen to anybody. You have to be courageous enough to give it a shot — keep giving it a shot until the results are in."

"I think students should see this piece because it will open up their eyes to something they might not otherwise have experienced every day," Beatty said.

Caitlin Conley can be contacted at cc95@marshall.edu.

WMUL - FM 88.1 sponsors t-shirt design contest

BY ALANNA TELLES
THE PARTHENON

Students wanting to share their creativity with the campus now have the opportunity to do so in a unique way. WMUL, the Marshall University student-run radio station, is hosting a t-shirt design contest for students.

The designer that wins the contest will receive several prizes including the design on the t-shirt, a t-shirt and a copy of the design on the WMUL Facebook page. "I think this is the perfect way to give a shot — keep giving it a shot until the results are in," Beatty said.

Some students asked more personal questions, like how he got into acting and why he chose to pursue a career in it. However, Krasinski responded that though he was working in New York as a professional actor, he had a lot of fun just being in the city and being with friends.

"I think that pretty much the world’s job is to diminish you from acting," Krasinski said. "Don’t listen to anybody. You have to be courageous enough to give it a shot — keep giving it a shot until the results are in."

"I think students should see this piece because it will open up their eyes to something they might not otherwise have experienced every day," Beatty said.

Caitlin Conley can be contacted at cc95@marshall.edu.

WMUL - FM 88.1 sponsors t-shirt design contest

BY ALANNA TELLES
THE PARTHENON

Students wanting to share their creativity with the campus now have the opportunity to do so in a unique way. WMUL, the Marshall University student-run radio station, is hosting a t-shirt design contest for students.

The designer that wins the contest will receive several prizes including the design on the t-shirt, a t-shirt and a copy of the design on the WMUL Facebook page. "I think this is the perfect way to give a shot — keep giving it a shot until the results are in," Beatty said.

Some students asked more personal questions, like how he got into acting and why he chose to pursue a career in it. However, Krasinski responded that though he was working in New York as a professional actor, he had a lot of fun just being in the city and being with friends.

"I think that pretty much the world’s job is to diminish you from acting," Krasinski said. "Don’t listen to anybody. You have to be courageous enough to give it a shot — keep giving it a shot until the results are in."

"I think students should see this piece because it will open up their eyes to something they might not otherwise have experienced every day," Beatty said.

Caitlin Conley can be contacted at cc95@marshall.edu.

WMUL - FM 88.1 sponsors t-shirt design contest

BY ALANNA TELLES
THE PARTHENON

Students wanting to share their creativity with the campus now have the opportunity to do so in a unique way. WMUL, the Marshall University student-run radio station, is hosting a t-shirt design contest for students.

The designer that wins the contest will receive several prizes including the design on the t-shirt, a t-shirt and a copy of the design on the WMUL Facebook page. "I think this is the perfect way to give a shot — keep giving it a shot until the results are in," Beatty said.

Some students asked more personal questions, like how he got into acting and why he chose to pursue a career in it. However, Krasinski responded that though he was working in New York as a professional actor, he had a lot of fun just being in the city and being with friends.

"I think that pretty much the world’s job is to diminish you from acting," Krasinski said. "Don’t listen to anybody. You have to be courageous enough to give it a shot — keep giving it a shot until the results are in."

"I think students should see this piece because it will open up their eyes to something they might not otherwise have experienced every day," Beatty said.

Caitlin Conley can be contacted at cc95@marshall.edu.