MILLER-THACKSTON FAMILY

William Clendenin Miller, son of John and Sophia Clendenin Miller, married on March 6, 1836, Eliza Gardner, daughter of Josephine and Marie Therese Clothilde Raison de la Geneste Gardner. The Gardners had come from Santo Domingo by way of Greenupsburg, Kentucky to Cabell County, Virginia, where two of their daughters married; the above mentioned Eliza, and Emily, who married John Samuels. The families all lived in the Barboursville area.

William and Eliza Gardner Miller had the following children: Eugenia, born 1837; Charles, born about 1839; Frank, born about 1841; William, born about 1843; Joseph, born 1848, died 1922; Hamilton, born 1851; and Florence.

Eugenia, after schooling in Kentucky and Cincinnati, Ohio, returned to Barboursville, where she met and married Benjamin Thackston, a graduate of Randolph-Macon College and native of Farmville, Virginia. Thackston had served as principal of Marshall College from 1858 until 1860, then went to Barboursville to conduct a school. During the Civil War, Eugenia lived with her husband's family in Prince Edward County, Virginia, while Benjamin worked in Richmond in the auditor's office of the Treasurer of the Confederacy.

After the Civil War, the Thackstons returned to Cabell County, where Benjamin again served as principal of Marshall College, from 1881 until 1884. Afterward he engaged in business in Huntington, West Virginia, where he died in 1918. Eugenia Miller Thackston lived until 1924. The couple had seven children: Mary, Kate, Sallie, Lydia, Charles, James Alexander, and William T.
