Marshall Basketball Squad Meets Rivlin This Morning

By FRED BURNS
Herald-Dispatch Sports Editor

There'll be a round of introductions, some handshaking and then a lot of business. That will be the agenda this morning at 10 A. M. when Jules Rivlin, the new Marshall basketball coach meets with the Big Green cage squad.

Riv, which he prefers over any other name, arrived by air last night from Wheeling and his meeting with the basketball squads "to help me get my feet on the ground."

"This past week," Riv said, "I've been pretty much in a whirl. Naturally I am elated over being chosen to succeed Coach Henderson and I have been rather excited. But my friends and the many friends of Marshall College have swamped me with telephone calls, letters and telegrams congratulating me on my appointment.

"A telephone call from Buck and later a very fine letter from Jack made me feel very good." Buck Jamison of South Charleston and Jack Chapman of Logan, were the two other leading candidates for the Marshall post. "I'll treasure the friendship of those two boys as long as I live," said Riv. "I couldn't begin to name all those who wrote or called but two others pleased me very much. One was from Red Brown (WVU athletic director) and Fred Schaus (WVU basketball coach). There were letters from a whole flock of high school coaches, the Marshall student president, Phillip Cline and the people of Wheeling, gee, they were swell."

There were many letters from business men of Wheeling congratulating Rivlin and quite a few of them expressed pleasure at seeing Riv move up but also said, "your work with the youth of Wheeling was outstanding and we hate to lose you. My son thinks the world of you and he is going to be disappointed."

Rivlin indicated that today's meeting with the squad would be more than a hand shaking affair. "They'll be in uniform and I'll have them run through their offensive plays and all the stuff they used. I just want to see what it is. There will be very few changes. Maybe some new stuff which I have picked up along the way but I learned the game from Henderson and the Henderson way is the way I play it. Being Henderson boys they should be in pretty good shape and maybe if they feel like it we might have five or ten minutes of scrimmage. That way I could tell more about what to expect from them." (P. S.—Boys Riv brought his own shoes and he can still run. You better put your running shoes on too, this morning).

The new Marshall coach does not know how long he'll be in Huntington. "I understand we are allowed 20 days of Spring practice. I'll have to work that out with Mr. Morris and get the dates set. And there are many people I'd like to see and a few of them are high school boys."

Jim Ewell, trainer of the Kansas City Athletics, was once the batboy for the Norfolk Tars in the Piedmont League.

Thief Works Swiftly

Financial Staff Lunching At Time

A clever safe burglar stole $718.22 in cash and checks from the Marshall College treasurer's office yesterday while the staff of the college financial department was at lunch.

The safe apparently was opened by working the combination, although only four employes knew the combination by memory. There is no written record of it.

Comptroller Fred R. Smith locked the door of the outer office when he left at 12:05 P. M. Ten minutes later, Mrs. Ethel Martin, an employe, discovered her keys missing and called Mr. Smith's office from the college switchboard. Getting no answer, she rang the office of Treasurer Louise Thompson and a man answered.

INTRUDER GIVES NAME

"To whom am I speaking," Mrs. Martin inquired.

"My name is Burke," replied the man. Then he hung up. Mrs. Martin thought she had the wrong number. At 12:30, Miss Thelma Kessler returned to the suite, opened the comptroller's office with her key and noticed that the connecting door to the treasurer's office was open when it should have been locked.

The alarm was sounded and the police notified, but it was half an hour later before two unlocked metal boxes containing the cash and checks were discovered missing from the safe. When Miss Kessler entered the office, the safe was locked.

SAFE DOUBLE CHECKED

Cashier June Ackerman had placed the money in the safe, closed the door and twirled the combination knob. Another employe, Mrs. Constance Arthur, checked the safe and found it locked before she left the office.

Detectives Wendell Gillespie and Eris Fry said they were unable to find any strange fingerprints in the office and that a letter opener used to spring the lock on the door of the treasurer's office had been handled by the staff and no prints could be taken from it.

Comptroller Smith said he was convinced the burglar hid in his office until after everyone left and then broke into the treasurer's office where the large safe stood.

The cash and checks represented Student Union funds and student loan fund. No state money was taken.

Band Festival Opens One Week From Today

One week from today the 20th annual West Virginia High School Band Festival will be in full swing here.

Leland S. Arnold, director of instrumental music in Cabell county schools and state chairman for the event, said it looks like about 55 bands, or about 4,000 students will take part in the festival which begins next Thursday and continues through Saturday afternoon.

Bandmasters To Meet Sunday

The West Virginia High School Bandmasters Association will meet at the Galperin Music Store in Charleston Sunday at 1:30 P. M. to make final plans for the big music fest. Harold B. Leighty of St. Albans heads the organization.

Monday morning festival headquarters will open in the council chambers at City Hall and the housing committee headed by Mrs. George E. Theurer will get to work. This committee has the hardest work of all. It has to find places for some 4,000 visitors to stay while they are guests in the city.

Headquarters telephones are expected to be in operation Monday and the committee will be all set to receive offers of rooms and answer inquiries.

People who would like to house members of a particular band may notify headquarters of their desires Monday or thereafter.

Says Bus Strike Won't Hurt

Mr. Arnold said he did not anticipate that the Greyhound Bus Co. strike would keep any bands from coming to Huntington.

"Most of the bands come by school bus or train," he explained.

The state chairman said letters from bandmasters are pouring in so fast this week that he hasn't had time to read them all. Among bands which have indicated that they will be here for the festival are Roosevelt-Wilson and Washington Irving of Clarksburg, Buckingham, Bridgeport, Mannington, Grafton, Morgantown, Kingwood, Elkhorn and Stonewall Jackson of Charleston.

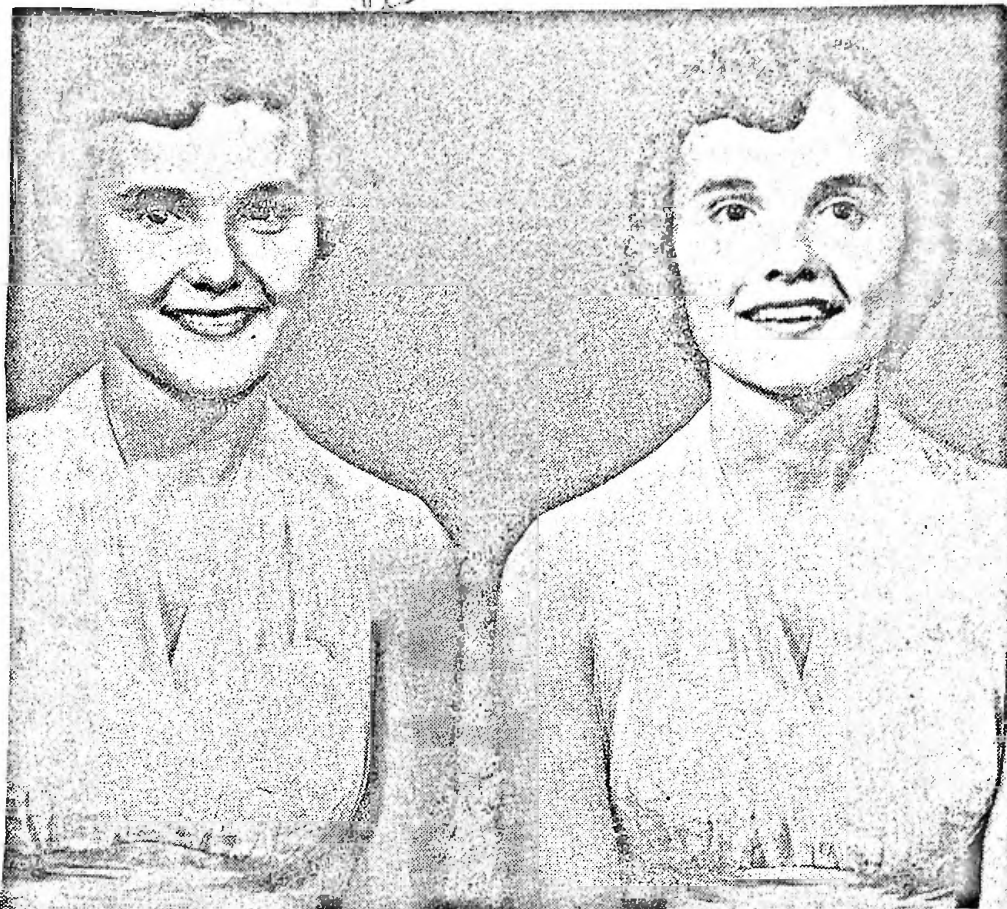

"There are many others who have sent in their letters," Mr. Arnold added. "I just haven't had time to read them all yet."

Host bands will include Huntington high, Huntington East, Vinson, Ceredo-Kenova, Barboursville and Milton.

Double-Teaming The Judges

Judges for the "Miss Armed Forces Day" honors May 21 may find themselves slightly confused when they see the Coast Guard entry of the Misses Jane, left, and Janet Rayburn, daughters of Mrs. H. J. Long, 300 Holswade Drive. Both are freshmen at Marshall College, both are alternate majorettes, and both were majorettes at East Huntington High School last year. Since winner of the top honor gets only single prizes, the committee in charge of selection is wondering whether or not to demand that sponsorship be divided. Their stepfather is vice-president of the Ohio River Co.

"Operation Cleanup" under way in Huntington this week found Streets Superintendent Ezra Knight out in the field helping with the campaign. Mr. Knight is shown (center) with a shovel as he, city employes and members of the Sigma Phi Epsilon fraternity of Marshall College yesterday cleaned up debris along Sixteenth street road. The drive to rid the city of trash will continue all week, and will be climaxed with a parade Saturday afternoon.

Marshall Five, Jules Rivlin Hold First Drill

Handshaking preceded business today for Jules Rivlin, Marshall College's new basketball coach, who met with his charges in the campus gymnasium for the first time.

Rivlin, upon his arrival last night by plane from Wheeling, said the meeting with the cage squad was "to help me get my feet on the ground."

The players were to be in uniform, Rivlin said, and "I'll have them run through their offensive plays and all the stuff they used. I just want to see what it is."

He added, "There will be a few changes, maybe some new stuff I have picked up along the way but I learned the game from Cam Henderson and the Henderson way is the way I play it."

Rivlin succeeds Henderson, who resigned March 5 after 20 brilliant years of coaching basketball at Marshall. For 15 of them he also doubled as football coach.

Redcats Defeat Big Green, 4-0

Western Reserve handed Marshall their sixth loss in seven contests yesterday as Bob Theiss, Redcat hurler, set the Big Green down on two hits, 4 to 0, at Inco Park.

In gaining the Mid-American League victory for his team, Theiss whiffed 16 batters while walking only one.

A Texas league single by Frank Crum in the second was all the base blows Marshall could muster until Crum singled again in the ninth frame.

Candy Carroll, star Reserve fullback, who spelled defeat for Marshall in football last fall came with a single in the 4th, driving in two runs, which was more than enough for the Redcat victory.

UHSP Hears Kilgore Criticize News Curbs By Secretary Wilson

(Pictures on Page 10) 5.1.55

By BILL CHADDOCK

Senator Harley M. Kilgore of West Virginia spoke out last night at the twenty-first annual United High School Press Association banquet against the curbing of the output of military information by Secretary of Defense Charles Wilson.

Speaking before a group of approximately 250 delegates representing high schools from all over the state, Senator Kilgore noted that the order requires the release of information only if it makes "a constructive contribution."

Quoting criticism of the order by leading newspaper editors, Senator Kilgore said "the newspapers of the nation have not only the right, but the duty, to examine carefully any new proposals made by government officials, which, in their opinion would prevent legitimate news from reaching the public."

HE ALSO pointed out the need for reporters to separate the fact from opinion, noting that the place for opinion is in signed columns or editorial pages. A reporter who presents his own views rather than the facts, "is running the danger of destroying the very press which protects his right to present the news objectively," he said.

Besides Senator Kilgore, Nick Basso, head of the WSAZ, Inc., news bureau, spoke to the group.

The banquet, sponsored annually by the Huntington Publishing Company and Col. J. H. Long, "daddy" of the UHSP, concluded the two-day convention held at the college.

BESIDES the United High School Press convention, the West Virginia Journalism Teachers Association and the United High School Yearbook Association of West Virginia also held annual meetings.

Raymond Brewster, editor-in-chief of The Herald-Dispatch, served as master-of-ceremonies for the dinner.

The final part of the program (Turn to page 4, Col. 1, Sec. 1)

U. S. Senator Harley M. Kilgore (D-WVA) is shown addressing last night's annual banquet of the United High School Press of West Virginia at the Marshall College dining hall. He criticized Defense Secretary Charles Wilson's recent order curbing the release of military information.

UHSP Hears

was devoted to the introduction of new officers of the three convening organizations who were elected in the afternoon.

The new officers of the groups are:

United High School Press: Bruce Cantley, Sherman High School at Seth, president; Constance Morehead, Huntington High School, vice-president; and Sharlene Faye Lovejoy, Man High School, recording secretary.

West Virginia Journalism Teachers Association: Mrs. Jack E. Nichols, Huntington Vinson High School, president; John C. West, East Fairmont High School, vice-president; and Leon Putz, Pt. Pleasant High School, secretary.

United High School Yearbook Association: Suzanne Buchanan, Beaver High School at Bluefield, president; Pat Jones, Clay High School, vice-president; Jane Jennell, Marshall High School at Huntington; secretary; and Patti Pancake, Huntington High School, parliamentarian.

DURING the two-day session, the assembled delegates attended panel discussions on all phases of high school newspaper and yearbook productions, led by members of The Parthenon, Marshall student newspaper, staff.

At the luncheon session, J. Knox Dye, editor-publisher of The Pt. Pleasant Register, spoke to the group on the suppression of news and the need for a reporter's curiosity. He said in his address that if reporters are curious and they satisfy that curiosity, then reporting will be thorough.

Jack Hardin, police reporter for The Huntington Advertiser who recently won the Big Story Award for his coverage of a local case, also spoke to the assembled group.

DELEGATES were informed by Maurice Kaplan, head of The Huntington Publishing Co. photographic staff and a member of the board of directors of the West Virginia News Photographers Association, that plans were being tentatively completed for awards to be given student photographers of high school newspapers and yearbooks.

According to Mr. Kaplan, the purpose of the awards will be "to aid and inspire photo-journalism among high school students." The contest will begin with the fall term next year and the prize will be awarded at next year's UHSP banquet.

During their business session the West Virginia Journalism Teachers Association went on record showing its appreciation of the full spirit of cooperation which Huntington, Marshall College and various organizations and individuals have shown in membership.

The resolution included J. H. Long, the Huntington Publishing Company, W. Page Marshall, Marshall College, the Huntington Chamber of Commerce, and individuals and guests who have made the conventions a suc-

(Advertising Curriculum---1)

The first advertising majors at Marshall College will complete their first year ~~of~~ Marshall's new advertising curriculum this month, according to a report released by Professor Carl B. Miller, program chairman.

A new sequence by which students may earn a Bachelor of Science degree with a major in advertising, the curriculum was first initiated at Marshall on a full schedule basis last September.

The new study program is a combination of those offerings in the departments of art, business administration, journalism and speech which apply to some phase of advertising.

The first group to pursue the curriculum now numbers twenty-four students. Ten of the twenty-four have had a former major at Marshall and have transferred into advertising, while the remaining fourteen have made advertising their first major course of study in college.

Of the ten transferees, four transferred to advertising from business administration, and one each from art, journalism, political science, medical technology, engineering and speech.

At present, only three departments---business administration, journalism and speech---offer advertising as a major, but the report indicates that seven of the twenty-four students would be interested in pursuing a commercial art major if it were offered.

MARSHALL COLLEGE INFORMATION SERVICE---5-3-55

(Advertising Curriculum---2)

The advertising program at Marshall has three distinct purposes, according to President Stewart H. Smith. First, to attract more students to Marshall by offering a curriculum which provides a strong advertising background; second, to provide additional training for persons already employed in advertising and finally, to utilize more effectively the training and experience of the faculty members in the four participating departments.

Having made a study of 21 leading colleges and universities which offer 10 or more courses in advertising, Professor Miller said, "the offerings in the cooperating four departments at Marshall not only compare favorably, but avoid some of the narrowness of focal point which exists when one department alone endeavors to offer an advertising major."

Marshall's first advertising major will not graduate until the end of the 1955 summer term in August, but already the report reveals that the new curriculum is paying dividends. Of the twenty-four advertising majors enrolled, thirteen already have specific job prospects after graduation.

April 12, 1951 was cold and foggy in the Han River Valley. A young Lieutenant stood on a ridge overlooking the situation. His company had pressed too far forward without sufficient covering fire. One glance at the exposed position of the American troops told him that word must be sent back for artillery support.

In the havoc that followed that moment the company commander was killed and the ~~Lieutenant~~ Lieutenant was injured. An enemy ~~mortar~~ mortar shell had interrupted his call. So this was war!

Korea, April 22, 1951. From his hospital bed in Japan, Lieutenant Walter Carter thought that there must be a reason why he was still alive. He decided that the reason after all, was God. He thought of how close to death he had been and of the men he had seen die in need of religious comfort. He knew then what he must do. He would become a chaplain and serve his country and fellow man.

With his mind made up, Carter recovered from his wounds fast. In ninety days he was back ~~at~~ at the front as a liaison officer with the Turkish Battalion.

Marshall College was among the 37 colleges and universities which participated in a study of "Back to Campus Spending" just completed by the Student Market Institute of New York, N. Y.

The study involved a spot check of 1585 upperclassmen. The respondents included 1222 men at 34 colleges and 363 women at 30 colleges.

Planned as a guide to additional and more detailed studies of this free spending segment of the consumer market, the study was conducted during the first half of the current academic year.

Carl B. Miller, head of the Marshall College advertising program which became one year old this month, said the study has turned up points on the buying habits of college students that should be helpful to companies and stores now planning their "Back-to-College" promotion for next fall.

Miller pointed out that, on the whole, back-to-school promotions seem to be more effective with college women than college men.

Other points of interest in the study are: style was the most important factor in the purchase of apparel, with price secondary; for the most apparel items, displays were mentioned two to three times more than advertising as an influencing factor; men prefer to do most of their shopping alone, while women let their parents

A $700 scholarship for a Huntington student wishing to attend Marshall College has been established by J. L. Caldwell Co. of Huntington for ^{the} term beginning next September, it was announced Thursday by Dr. Stewart H. Smith, Marshall College president.

The scholarship will be known as the Ida Caldwell McFaddin Memorial Scholarship, being named for the former president of the J. L. Caldwell Company and mother of J. B. Caldwell McFaddin, now president of the company.

Mr. McFaddin, a resident of Beaumont, Tex., announced the gift to the Marshall Foundation Scholarship fund, while in Huntington this week. He said the gift will be renewable annually.

A Huntington resident will be selected before the fall term opens to be recipient of the award for the 1955-56 academic year. Selection will be made on the basis of character, scholarship, general citizenship qualities and need.

"My mother was active in youth development work," said Mr. McFaddin, "and we feel this scholarship will be a fitting tribute to her memory."

Mrs. McFaddin, although a resident of Beaumont, Tex., much of her life, frequently spoke of Huntington as her home. The Caldwell family homestead formerly stood at 1141 Third Avenue.

Mrs. McFaddin took grade school work at Marshall when she was a girl. The family at that time lived in Guyandotte.

($700 Scholarship---2)

She was the daughter of J. Q. Caldwell, Huntington pioneer who founded the First Huntington National Bank, established the first interurban railroad here, and had a major part in other business development in Huntington.

Mr. Caldwell died in the 1920's after serving as president of the company which bears his name. His daughter Mrs. W. P. H. McFaddin, then became president and held the post until her death in 1950. Her son has headed the company since Mrs. McFaddin died.

Mrs. McFaddin was an alumna of Mary Baldwin College. She was vice president general of the Daughters of the American Revolution and was active in civic work in Beaumont. Much of her time was spent doing work in the interest of young people.

She was an active member of the Episcopal church and Colonial Dames.

Expressing the appreciation of Marshall College for the scholarship gifts, President Smith said:

"We are glad to receive this gift from the J. L. Caldwell Company and to use it to help some deserving young person get a college education. It will do much to continue the great work for youth to which Mrs. McFaddin, in life, gave so freely of her time. I should like to see other scholarships established in the interest of helping deserving young people to get ahead."

The $700 annual scholarship will meet the basic expenses of a student attending Marshall College for an academic term.

Ellifritt Wins Student Presidency At Marshall

Maywood Ellifritt, a junior from Greenwood in Doddridge County, was elected president of the Marshall College student body yesterday on the Marshall Student Party ticket. He defeated David Dunlap of Huntington, the Good Government Party nominee, 522-434.

Ellifritt's running mate, Kaye Darlan, was disqualified for the vice-president on the eve of the election because she had not been a full-time student at Marshall for two academic years. The Student Senate will pick the vice-president.

Charles Slack, a Marshall basketball star, was elected president of the senior class; Jamie Johnston was named president of the juniors, and Jack Eblins was elected by the sophomores.

Senators elected were Jackie Spaulding, Ann Cline, and Bill Harris, seniors; Bob Alexander, Carolyn Mitchell and Joe Hunnicutt, juniors. The sophomore senate vote is subject to a recount scheduled to begin at 1 P. M. today.

MARSHALL COLLEGE INFORMATION SERVICE---5-6-55

For Immediate Release

(Congratulations on ROTC---1)

A letter of congratulations for "an excellent job of molding character, stimulating enthusiasm and developing proficiency in your ROTC students" came to Dr. Stewart H. Smith, Marshall College president, yesterday from the deputy commanding general of the Second Army.

Major General George W. Smythe commended Dr. Smith and his staff of the military science department faculty for "providing the Army with effective junior officers and the nation with better citizens."

Major General Smythe will leave the Second Army for a new assignment in Formosa next month. His successor, Major General James R. Pierce, will take over the post about June 15. (40)

During Major General Smythe's current tour of duty, the Reserve Officers' Training Corps has been one of his major areas of responsibility. He wrote the Marshall president that "the profound effect of ROTC training both on the Army and the individual has made it the focal point of a deep personal interest."

The Marshall College ROTC program frequently has been called "superior" by visiting military officers.

(Marshall Symphonette---1)

When the Marshall Symphonette presents its initial concert in Old Main auditorium Monday (May 9) at 8:15 P. M., Huntington audiences will see the birth of a new community orchestra comprised primarily of veteran performers.

As a free public concert, the works of Bach, Mozart, McKay and Brahms will be performed.

Organized by Professor Alfred Lanegger at the beginning of the current semester, the Marshall Symphonette is composed of former members of the Huntington Symphony Orchestra; outstanding Marshall music students, several members of the Marshall faculty, and other city and local musicians.

The Marshall Symphonette, according to Professor Lanegger, is a small orchestra of some 38 pieces that has all the roots of a large symphony. "It's the same size orchestra that Bach may have used in his day to perform his own works," he said.

One of the chief reasons behind the formation of the Symphonette, Professor Lanegger pointed out, is to add to the cultural background of the community. Students in the orchestra also earn music credits while receiving valuable ensemble training, and it provides other members with an opportunity to maintain their musical proficiency.

Since its activation, the Symphonette has been rehearsing every Monday night in the Marshall Music building.

"We are hoping that our symphonette will be larger some day," Professor Lanegger said. "We hope that more new members will join us."

Monday's concert will feature the Hafner Symphony, a suite by Bach and a number of special string works. As an added attraction, Miss Margaret Krinsky of Marshall High School will play the Grieg Piano Concerto, accompanied by the full orchestra.

"We are concentrating on good solid classics", Professor Lanegger said. "There is nothing better to round a person's musical background."

Both Amendments Pass As 974 Students Go To The Polls

By DICK KELLY

Maywood Ellifritt, Greenwood junior, spearheaded the MSP party to a resounding victory in Wednesday's annual campus election, by defeating GGP candidate David Dunlap, Huntington junior, by a convincing margin of 522-434.

In winning the presidential race, Ellifritt became the first Cavalier ever to be elected president of Marshall's student body. It was the second time an MSP candidate has ascended to the key post.

A NEW VOTER'S turnout record may have been established as 974 students stormed the polls to elect seven MSP candidates, four backed by the GGP party, and three unaffiliated nominees.

In addition to Ellifritt's victory, the MSP also saw two of its three candidates for the respective class presidential positions take easy victories. Charles Slack of Pomeroy, Ohio, defeated Ralph Moeller of Ironton in the race for senior president, 123-85 and Jamie Johnson, Huntington, won a commanding junior presidential victory over Bernard Bischoff of Culloden, 186-85. Jack Eblin, GGP of Huntington, thwarted the MSP's bid for a clean sweep of the prexy openings, by winning the sophomore election over Wally Burgess, 176-157.

Why?

Last Tuesday, the day before the Student Body election, Maywood Ellifritt, MSP candidate for student body president, was inning mate, had been disqualified. According to Phil Cline, Miss Darlan was disqualified under Article 2, Section 11 of the Constitution, which states that a candidate shall have completed at least two academic years at Marshall. This is only her second semester here.

This move was entirely legal, but far from being ethical. But, who worries about ethics when the big-time politicians of Tammany Hall get together.

A committee of nine was set up by the Student Senate to review the qualifications of each candidate and ferret out those who could not meet the basic requirements. Why wasn't Miss Darlan disqualified by the committee when the other students were?

We must say that his committee, headed by Leno Raso, made one "helluva" good investigation. With a little effort and cooperation they might have prevented this incident from occurring.

But the committee must not receive all the blame for this oversight, for members of the Student Senate knew that Miss Darlan had not been here two years and was not qualified for the office. Yet, they let it ride until the last moment, and then came forth with their political gem.

The outcome of the election may or may not have been swayed by this move, but nevertheless the Senate should try harder to curb such matters in the future.

Shades of Jefferson Davis! The South has risen again! Rebel yells rent the air and the band played Dixie as Mayor George D. Theurer of Huntington and President Stewart H. Smith of Marshall College officially turned the city and the campus over to the grey clad Confederates of Kappa Alpha Order at Marshall College Friday.

The resurrection of southern tradition and military might began ^{at} 1 P. M. when 65 officers and gentlemen of the Kappa Alpha Order, representing the Confederate States of America, converged upon the Marshall Campus with their captives, Mayor Theurer and President Smith at Bayonet point. Upon hearing the stern demands of the Confederates, the officials placed the city and the college in the hands of the resurgent southerners. Approximately 300 students and faculty members witnessed the impressive surrender ceremony.

The occasion for the display of Southern prowess was the annual "Old South Weekend" which has taken place on the Marshall campus since 1927. Yearly the members of Kappa Alpha Order relive the glories of the Confederacy with speeches, parades, and formal balls.

Telegrams were dispatched to the governor of the state and to the President of the United States informing them of Kappa Alpha Order's secession from The Union. Key officials were captured and the "Johnny Rebs" took over.

Following the surrender of the "Yankee" officials the triumphant Kappa Alphas marched down Fourth Avenue in Huntington to the sprightly tune of "Dixie". They were led by their fraternity president, Bernard Bischoff, Culloden junior, on a white charger. (Some observers reported the stallion looked a great deal like General Robert E. Lee's famed "Traveler".)

This year's celebration ^{will} featured an "Old South Ball" ^{tonight (Sat.)} with ballroom decorations done up in traditional southern mansion style. Two hundred southern cavaliers and their genteel escorts ^{will} danced and dined in true dixie fashion.

Campus political and military experts predict that the rebellion will end Monday when the Kappa Alphas reenter The Union and return to classes. (3)

Scholarship Is Established By Caldwell Co.

A $700 scholarship for a Huntington student wishing to attend Marshall College has been established by J. L. Caldwell Co. of Huntington for the term beginning next September, it was announced Thursday by Dr. Stewart H. Smith, Marshall College president.

The scholarship will be known as the Ida Caldwell McFaddin Memorial Scholarship, being named for the former president of the J. L. Caldwell Company and mother of J. L. Caldwell McFaddin, now president of the company.

Mr. McFaddin, a resident of Beaumont, Tex., announced the gift to the Marshall Foundation Scholarship fund, while in Huntington this week. He said the gift will be renewable annually.

A Huntington resident will be selected before the fall term opens to be recipient of the award for the 1955-56 academic year. Selection will be made on the basis of character, scholarship, general citizenship qualities and need.

"MY MOTHER was active in youth development work," said Mr. McFaddin, "and we feel this scholarship will be a fitting tribute to her memory."

Mrs. McFaddin, although a resident of Beaumont, Tex., much of her life, frequently spoke of Huntington as her home. The Caldwell family homestead formerly stood at 1141 Third Avenue.

Mrs. McFaddin took grade school work at Marshall when she was a girl. The family at that time lived in Guyandotte.

She was the daughter of J. L. Caldwell, Huntington pioneer who founded the First Huntington National Bank, established the first interurban railroad here, and had a major part in other business development in Huntington.

Mr. Caldwell died in the 1920's after serving as president of the company which bears his name. His daughter, Mrs. W. P. H. McFaddin, then became president and held the post until her death in 1950. Her son has headed the company since Mrs. McFaddin died.

MRS. McFaddin was an alumna of Mary Baldwin College. She was vice president general of the Daughters of the American Revolution and was active in civic work in Beaumont. Much of her time was spent doing work in the interest of young people.

She was an active member of the Episcopal church and Colonial Dames.

Expressing the appreciation of Mashall College for the scholarship gift, President Smith said:

"We are glad to receive this gift from the J. L. Caldwell Company and to use it to help some deserving young person get a college education. It will do much to continue the great work for youth to which Mrs. McFaddin, in life, gave so freely of her time. I should like to see other scholarships established in the interest of helping deserving young people to get ahead."

The $700 annual scholarship will meet the basic expenses of a student attending Marshall College for an academic term.

Scholarship Of $700 Set Up By Caldwell Co.

A $700 annual scholarship for a Huntington student attending Marshall College was announced yesterday by Dr. Stewart H. Smith, president. It is being established by the J. L. Caldwell Co. of Huntington as a memorial for the late Mrs. Ida Caldwell McFaddin, former president of the Caldwell Co. and mother of J. L. Caldwell McFaddin, now company president.

Mrs. McFaddin took grade school work at Marshall College as a girl, when the family lived in Guyandotte. Although she was a resident of Beaumont, Tex., for many years before her death (in the 1920's), she always spoke of Huntington as her home.

The scholarship will be awarded on the basis of "character, scholarship, general citizenship qualities and need."

Marshall Symphonette Has Makings Of Big Orchestra

When the Marshall Symphonette presents its initial concert in old Main auditorium Monday at 8:15 P. M., Huntington audiences will see the birth of a new community orchestra comprised primarily of veteran performers.

As a free public concert, the works of Bach, Mozart, McKay and Brahms will be performed.

Organized by Professor Alfred Lanegger at the beginning of the current semester, the Marshall Symphonette is composed of former members of the Huntington Symphony Orchestra; outstanding Marshall music students, several members of the Marshall faculty, and other city and local musicians.

The Marshall Symphonette, according to Professor Lanegger, is a small orchestra of some 38 pieces that has all the roots of a large symphony.

It's the same size orchestra that Bach may have used in his day to perform his own works," he said.

One of the chief reasons for formation of the Symphonette, Professor Lanegger pointed out, is to add to the cultural background of the community. Students in the orchestra also earn music credits while receiving valuable ensemble training, and it provides other members with an opportunity to maintain their musical proficiency.

Since its activation, the Symphonette has been rehearsing every Monday night in the Marshall Music building.

"We are hoping that our symphonette will be larger some day," Professor Lanegger said.

"We hope that more new members will join us."

Monday's concert will feature the Haffner Symphony, a suite by Bach and a number of special string works. As an added attraction, Miss Margaret Krimsky of Marshall High School will play the Grieg Piano Concerto, accompanied by the full orchestra.

"We are concentrating on good solid classics," Professor Lanegger said. "There is nothing better to round out a person's musical background."

Star-Gazing, Once Favorite Pastime, Is Still Popular On Marshall Campus

By ELINOR RICHEY

Hercules and Leo will be peering down at us, as will Virgo. The Serpent will be seen creeping stealthily from the east, as Taurus The Bull meekly retreats down the western slope, with only the tips of his horns yet visible. That solar duo, Jupiter and Saturn, will salute us in the evening; Queenly Venus will greet us in the morning. And as an added fillip, from the area of Aquarius, will come a thrilling fireworks display—meteor shower, that is.

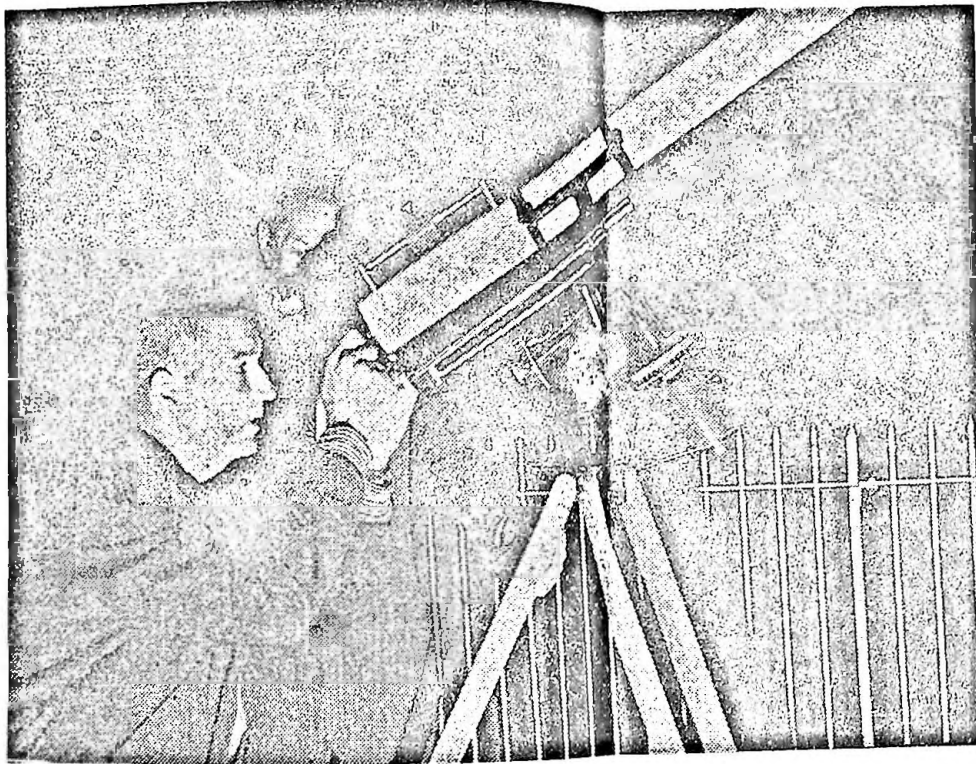

These are among the coming attractions the Universe has scheduled for us during the month of May.

Sadly, this fascinating celestial show will pass unnoticed by the majority of Huntingtonians. Star gazing, a favored pastime of generations past, has been largely lost in the hurly-burly of modern living. But up on the Marshall College campus, a group of students will be following these stellar events as eagerly as they do the spring sports schedule.

THEY ARE the 32 students in Dr. Clayton Darlington's Science 109 class, which combines the study of astronomy and energy. On clear evenings, they follow the circuitous route of stairways, elevator, and finally steep ladder-like stairs to reach the small observation platform atop the Science Building. There, they study the constellations and solar members, viewing the more interesting units through the two refractor telescopes the college owns.

Shortly past eight o'clock in a recent evening, I joined a group of these ardent junior astronomers on their roofward trek. The sky, freshly cleared after a rain, was shimmering with cold, white stars, as I, in my turn, clambered from the trap door onto the dark roof. There seemed to be millions of stars peppering the great night dome.

Dr. Darlington promptly relieved me of this illusion, by observing that fewer than 2,000 stars are ever visible to the naked eye from any one point. The remaining stars in our galaxy of roundly a hundred billion stars must be spied out with a telescope. We can't see any of the stars in other galaxies with the unaided eye, he said, but astronomers have viewed several million galaxies with their high-powered telescopes.

I WAS surprised to learn that what I had believed to be fixed stars actually move in orbits within their galaxies, which are in the shape of disks. What is more, the galaxies, themselves, move; and, eerily, without exception all of our neighboring galaxies are running away from us. That's what is meant by "the expanding universe."

As we stood with our heads thrown back gazing outward

from our planet, Dr. Darlington asked if it had occurred to us that we were looking directly into the past. He raised his metal pointer and helped us focus toward the southern horizon, upon the star Rigel in the constellation Orion. Rigel, he informed us, is 300 light years away; thus we were viewing the star as it appeared about the time Joan of Arc was burned at the stake. The star Betelgeuse, the bright red star in the same constellation, shows us its face of 600 years ago.

We swung our heads in unison, as the professor asked us to follow the crooked handle of the Big Dipper to the star Arcturus, a relatively close star. We were viewing the Arcturus of 1915, he said, the star being 40 light years away. Arcturus, he observed, was the famed star that turned on the lights to open the World Fair in Chicago in 1933, its energy having been converted into the electricity that tripped the switch.

BUT THE CLOSEST and brightest star visible to us, brilliantly commanding the southeastern horizon, was Sirius, which is eight light years away. It is a binary, or double star, the professor observed, the two revolving around each other, as many stars do — some in groups of three or four.

Contrastingly, many of the fainter stars, which presented a mere pin-point of light in the heavens, we learned, are as far as several hundred thousand light years away. Dr. Darlington said that astronomers at Mount Palomar Observatory in California have succeeded in rolling back time a full billion years.

It was pointed out that many of the stars we were now viewing might be dead by now — stars, which are burning masses of gases, do burn themselves out eventually. What if our star, the Sun, were to die? the class wanted to know. Well, we would know it in eight minutes, that being the time required for its light to reach us. But astronomers assure us that the Sun, though a weakling as stars go, is far from wearying. It is believed to have been shining for a few billion years and is still good for nearly 10 billions more.

THAT FATE, however, isn't the only sinister trick the Universe has up its sleeve. We learned that stars are known to wax and wane — nobody is quite sure why—and that probably accounts for the ice ages on our planet, the last of which is now in its last stage of retreat. It is not unlikely that our Sun will wane again, bringing a new avalanche of ice.

Or, perish the thought, the sun might get its gases crossed and explode! Stars are known to do so occasionally. In that dire eventuality, the Earth, along with its fellow planetary neighbors, would be instantly melted into lava by the radiation.

We were diverted from these unsettling thoughts by a look through the telescope, which members of the class had been busily assembling and mounting. We began by focusing upon the planet Jupiter, which is next door to Mars in the solar system, and which to the naked eye appears a star.

THROUGH THE lens, Jupiter appeared the size of a saucer and was pale yellow in color. No markings were visible upon it, as Jupiter is perpetually surrounded by dense clouds, made up of tiny crystals of frozen ammonia.

Our telescope was powerful enough to pick out four of Jupiter's moons, which number an even dozen, and one of which was discovered only last year. The moons looked like yellow marbles, distributed about the larger disk. We were surprised to learn that some of the moons spin in one direction, some in another. Some of Jupiter's moons are very small — only 80 miles in diameter — and are believed to be captured asteroids.

Jupiter was pointed out as the largest of the planets, its mass being 1300 times that of Earth. It's year is nearly 12 times as long as ours. It isn't believed to be inhabited, because of all that ammonia, and it's climate would be a bit strenuous, its temperature averaging minus 216 degrees Fahrenheit.

COMING DOWN to earth, we now focused upon our solitary moon, then in the half stage, which is more interesting for viewing than a full moon, as the oblique tilt toward the sun causes shadows to be cast by its formations. The greenish-yellow disk was so large we could only focus upon a portion of it at a time. There were markings aplenty to divert us. Clearly visible were the steep lunar mountains, the deep craters and sea-like plains. Some scientists say the craters are dead volcanos; others believe they were incised by meteors.

Though, unlike most planets, we have only one moon ours makes it up in size. There is not another case in which a satellite bears such an important relation to its planet. While the Earth is 81 times the size of its moon, all other planets are thousands of times larger than their moons, we learned. If there are astronomers on other planets, they probably regard the Earth and its moon as a double planet.

The class period was now drawing to a close. As Dr. Darlington helped dismantle the telescope, he told us that the planet Saturn would soon be coming into position as an Evening Star. The class exclaimed with anticipation as he tentatively promised for the next roof session a view of its fabulous rainbog rings.

Marshall Invites 100 To Tri-County Conference On Delinquency In June

More than 100 agency representatives of Cabell, Kanawha and Wayne counties have been invited to attend a conference on juvenile delinquency at Marshall College June 13-14, it was announced yesterday by Paul Lasakow, program director of the event.

Sponsored by the department of sociology of Marshall in association with civic organizations of Huntington, the conference is designed to evaluate local community facilities which deal with juvenile delinquency.

Speakers will include Orel J. Skeen of Moundsville, warden of the West Virginia Penitentiary; E. H. Harpole of Lakin, superintendent of the West Virginia Industrial School for Colored Boys; Joe F. Burdett, of Charleston, president of the West Virginia Board of Control; Miss Leslie T. Downey of Huntington, director of the Cammack Children's Center and Judge William W. Roberts of Cabell County Juvenile Court.

Theme of the conference will be "The Juvenile and the Community."

Explaining how the conference idea originated, Mr. Lasakow said:

"We felt it was necessary to plan now to meet the juvenile delinquency problems that result from rapid population growth such as Huntington is now experiencing. A meeting of minds on the subject will be the first step in that direction."

Spending Habits Of Students Catalogued

Marshall College was among the 37 colleges and universities which participated in a study of "Back to Campus Spending" just completed by the Student Market Institute of New York, N. Y.

The study involved a spot check of 1,585 upperclassmen. The respondents included 1,222 men at 34 colleges and 363 women at 30 colleges.

Planned as a guide to additional and more detailed studies of this free spending segment of the consumer market, the study was conducted during the first half of the current academic year.

CARL B. MILLER, head of the Marshall College advertising program which became one year old this month, said the study has turned up points on the buying habits of college students that should be helpful to companies and stores now planning their "Back - to - College" promotion for next fall.

Miller pointed out that, on the whole, back - to - school promotions seem to be more effective with college women than college men.

Other points of interest in the study are: style was the most important factor in the purchase of apparel, with price secondary; for the most apparel items, displays were mentioned two to three times more than advertising as an influencing factor; men prefer to do most of their shopping alone while women let their parents play a more important part.

In the purchase of non - apparel merchandise — such as typewriters, watches, radios and record players — women consider style twice as important as men do; men put price first, or consider price and style equally important.

30 Entered In First Annual Pie-Eating Race At College

A revival of slapstick comedy is in store for Marshall students next Wednesday (May 11) when the Marshall College Press Club inaugurates its first annual Pie Eating and Throwing Contest at the Student Union.

The contest will be held in connection with a student mix at 1:30 P. M.

Some 30 contestants, in both the men's and women's divisions, will represent fraternal organizations in a collegiate pie eating race.

Organizational trophies will be awarded to the divisional winners and medals will be presented to winning contestants.

Phil Kline, Kopperston senior and retiring student body president, will get the old proverbial "pie in the eye" in the throwing end of the contest. The pie will be hurled by the highest bidder in auction.

Admission to the student mix will be 25 cents per person and proceeds will be used to establish a Press Club scholarship fund.

To Homer Dunham, Sports Publicity Director, Western Michigan College
From: Bob Null, Marshall College

Marshall's football forces will be out to better last season's four won and five lost record and from the looks of 60 men in spring grid drills and 25 of them letter men it is highly possible that it will.

Lost from last season are Co-Captains quarterback Henry Hinté and guard Albie Maier an all Mid American Conference guard, and half back Henry "Skip" Hawkins. Maier, drafted by Pittsburgh to play pro ball and one of the greatest line men to ever wear the Green and White will be missed the most.

Slated to replace the three are quarterback Bill Zban, half back Don Adkins, and guard Irvin Wilson will fill Maier's vacated guard .

Coach Herb Royer's grid ironers seem to be only a year away from his rebuilding plan that have jelled faster than expected. The first game of the season against Ohio University at Huntington on September 24 could well decide M if the Green are to conference contenders in 55. (66)

The Big Green should be one of the strongest in the MAC at the tackle positions with 212 pound Bill Harris, ~~xxxxxx~~ considered a good bet for conference honors and 260 pound Ted D'Alesio. Two freshman that look real good in spring drills were guard Phil Fisher and half back Ray Dunlap. Dunlap spend the 100 yard dash in 9:8 in a track meet this spring. The ~~xxxxxx~~ weakness if any would be the number of ends in camp.

Head Coach- Herb Royer- Marshall class of 38
Line Coach- Sam Glogg- line coach and wrestling coach
End and backfield- Dan Wickline, also ~~xxxxxx~~ track coach
Freshman coach and varsity aid- ED Prelaz

Professor C. Lawrence Kingsbury
Department of Music
Marshall College
Huntington, W. Va.

Dear Professor Kingsbury:

An idea which you may think has possibilities for your department is explained on the attached sheet. The annual Marshall College Music Encampment is one of several ideas being brought to the attention of department heads with a view to bringing more high school students to the Marshall campus each year.

As you know, high school graduates often decide to attend a college which they have known from firsthand observation and participation in a constructive event with other young people.

You might give this matter some thought. If you like the idea, I'll be glad to help you plan and publicize the Marshall College Music Encampment each year.

Sincerely,

James H. Herring

FIRST ANNUAL MARSHALL COLLEGE MUSIC ENCAMPMENT

I. PURPOSE

The following is an outline for an annual music encampment for outstanding high school music students who may or may not be interested in pursuing a music major course in college. The purpose of the encampment would be to instill such an interest among the disinterested and to acquaint the entire group with the educational facilities available for music students at Marshall College.

II. DETAILS OF THE PROGRAM:

TIME: The encampment should take place sometime during the summer vacation, preferably the first week in June or the last week in August.

DURATION: The clinic would last one week.

SITE; The site of the clinic should be selected to provide housing and recreational facilities for an estimated group of 40-50 students.

III. CONDENSED SUMMARY OF PROGRAM IDEAS:

The program might be arranged to include various group discussions on problems encountered by high school bands and glee clubs, new projects and programs that high school music organizations might adopt, demonstrations by special groups from the Marshall band and choruses, and workshops in choral and instrumental music; all combined with a varied recreational program.

The program would also be set up so that delegates to the clinic would be able to take an active part in many of the activities.

A tour of the Marshall Campus and dance at the student union might be planned.

The newly organized Marshall Symphonette, presented last night in the college auditorium by the music department, scored an unqualified success under the direction of Alfred P. Lanegger, conductor.

An attractive audience enjoyed the interesting and varied program to the fullest as presented by the group's 36 musicians, and rewarded their performance with enthusiastic applause.

The first half of the program included the Suite in C by Bach, Mozart's "Haffner" Symphony, a folksong suite for strings, "Port Royal, 1861" by McKay, and Brahms' Hungarian Dance No. 5.

After the intermission, Miss Margaret Krinsky was presented as soloist, playing Grieg's Piano Concerto in A-Minor. Apparently most technical problems are already in the past for this charming young artist, despite her youth. Her playing was characterized by accuracy, freedom, fluency, a fine sense of poetry and drama.

The orchestra gave her excellent support, and the whole effect was a thrilling one.

The success of last night's concert brings the hope that means may be found to continue it as a permanent organization. Most of the personnel have had long experience in orchestra work, and some are outstanding professionals. With such a group available, and with Mr. Lanegger's experience and skill as a leader, the possibilities for such an orchestra would seem to be most promising.

Professor Juan C. Fors, Head
Department of Spanish
Marshall College
Huntington, W. Va.

Dear Professor Fors:

An idea which you may think has possibilities for your department is explained on the attached sheet. The annual Marshall College Romance Language Festival is one of several ideas being brought to the attention of department heads with a view to bringing more high school students to the Marshall campus each year.

As you know, high school graduates often decide to attend a college which they have known from firsthand observation and participation in a constructive event with other young people.

You might give this matter some thought. If you like the idea, I'll be glad to help you plan and publicize the Marshall College Romance Language Festival each year.

Letters similar to this one have been sent to the other two department heads concerned.

Sincerely,

James H. Herring

ROMANCE LANGUAGE FESTIVAL

Following is a proposal for a "Romance Language Festival" to be conducted on the Marshall College campus as an annual event for outstanding West Virginia high school students of French, Spanish and Latin, as well as teachers of these subjects.

The festival would be sponsored jointly by the Marshall College Departments of French, Spanish and Latin. It would serve to interest more students in the language teaching field, which is critically short of qualified personnel; encourage more students to take an active interest in language courses; point out the value of foreign language study and the opportunities for careers in the language field, and acquaint more students with the educational facilities available at Marshall College.

DETAILS OF THE PROGRAM

- I. SITE MARSHALL COLLEGE CAMPUS (Due to the language departments' somewhat inaccessible, third-floor location, registration headquarters should be set up in the Science Hall, the basement of the library or somewhere else that is easy to reach.)
- II. DURATION The festival could be held on a week-end, Friday and Saturday. 102
- III. TIME It would be wise to select a month with a relatively light schedule of events so that few, if any state activities would interfere with attendance.
- IV. CONDENSED SUMMARY OF PROGRAM IDEAS:

Each group would have its own workshops. There would be joint meetings and dinners at which nationally known speakers would talk about the value of foreign language study, opportunities for careers in the language field, how a wider knowledge of languages can bring about better relations between nations etc.

Special entertainment for all delegates might include a dance and songfest featuring dances and singing of the French, Spanish and Romans. Campus tours, departmental exhibits and movies would also add zest to the over-all program.

PROPOSED SCHEDULE OF EVENTS

FRIDAY AFTERNOON SESSION:

1-5:00 P. M.

FRIDAY EVENING SESSION:

7:30 to 9:30 Slides and movies of respective foreign countries and peoples.

SATURDAY MORNING SESSION:

9:30 A. M. General assembly in Science Hall auditorium. Delegations recognized and greetings issued by department faculty heads. Address by some outstanding speaker on a subject such as "The Value of Foreign Language Study".

10:30 A. M. Groups split up for panel discussions.
Panel - Latin Group- "Why Study a 'Dead' Language?"

Panel - Spanish Group - "How Can the Study of Spanish Help ME?"

Panel - French Group - "Will My French Pay Off?"

12 Noon Campus tours and departmental exhibits.

AFTERNOON SESSION:

12:30 P. M. ROMANCE LANGUAGE LUNCHEON

Luncheon speakers might include: a speaker from the U. S. Diplomatic Corps, Representative from some company with holdings abroad that sometimes hires personnel with foreign language backgrounds (i.e. Air Lines, Oil Co., etc.) an outstanding foreign language educator, etc.)

2 P. M. General assembly - Business meeting and election of group officers who may plan and correspond throughout the year for subsequent annual meetings.

3:30 P. M. Songfest in Science Auditorium. Singing of Latin, French and Spanish songs.

6:30 P. M.

ANNUAL DINNER

Speakers on:

Dinner in the Marshall Cafeteria
(Examples: for subjects:
"How a Wider Knowledge of Language Can Bring About Better Relations Between Nations", Careers in the Language
Field", "If it's Good For Me I'll Take It" (foreign language that is.)
etc.

8:30 P. M.

DANCE

(Student Union dance for delegates.
During intermission a few native dances might be performed for the benefit of those present)

Marshall College's baseball team ~~xxx~~ at Huntington, West Virginia has won only two games this season, but third baseman Stan Malecki from South Plainfield, N.J. is on of the team's brightest spots.

Malecki, who has two more years to shine on the diamond for the Marshall Big Green is tied for the home run leadership with two circuit blows this season. His last home run was against West Virginia Tech at Inco Park in Marshall's 11-10 victory with two team mates on base.

Stan's best performance of the season was when Marshall won its other game of the season against Toledo University. Malecki had a perfect day at the plate and was on base five times. He had three base hits, was hit by the pitcher and walked.

The fast talking Jersey boy's batting average isn't too high but it could be because of spring football drills that forced Stan to miss all of the pre-season baseball workouts.

In Marshall's first game of the season against Morehead College Malecki played the part of an "Iron Man". Stan, a center on the football team played in the annual Green-White inter-squad game and that same afternoon made an appearance on the baseball field. To top it all off Stan played the two sports on the same day without even time to eat lunch.

Last year he wasn't eligible to play as a freshman because of a Mid-American Conference rule which bars first year men. During that time he pitched the Varsity M to the school's championship in the Intramural League and is the top softball chucker on campus.

South and North Plainfield are well represented on the Marshall campus. Stan is from South Plainfield, while footballers Art Katzer and Campbell Platt are from North Plainfield. Art, a 230 pound tackle has given up the grid sport, while Campbell is slated to get the call next fall at end.

Very Small Talk

Students Cramming For Honors!

And suddenly, it's spring. Everybody knows that goldfish-swallowing, dormitory raids and other similar demonstrations of student insanity are a necessary part of higher education, and usually occur shortly before graduation time. As proof that West Virginia colleges are right in the groove, we present this charming photograph from the Marshall College Information Service in Huntington. Repulsive, isn't it?

A mud-eating contest?

No. These studious students at Marshall College are delicately eating chocolate meringue pie, in a Pie-Eating and Throwing Contest held last week at the campus Press Club, in which 26 apparently-ravenous contestants scooped up the dessert by the handful.

And it is our proud honor to announce that the winners in both the men's and women's divisions were Charlestonians.

That's Joe Chandler, men's winner, in the center of the above picture. He's the hungry little boy of Mr. and Mrs. Toby Chandler of Tennessee Avenue. Top pie-eater among the ladies was Geraldine Pauley, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. Franklin Pauley of Lake Chaweva.

More than 400 students found the event spectacular enough to attend. Close-range targets in the throwing division were Phil Cline of Kopperston, student body president, and William Chaddock of Wheeling, student newspaper editor.

It was all for a good cause, though, we are happy to say. People had to pay to get in, and proceeds will be used to establish a Press Club scholarship fund.

EDITOR'S NOTE: (Gremlin Editor, that is.) Diddy Mathews Palmer has just calmly strolled away, leaving her above daily duty in an incomplete condition that would put anything by Schubert to shame. This we cannot have.

Furthermore, if she thinks that Chocolate Meringue Pie Eating Contests are such a joke, she should give a little serious thought to the following facts.

Chocolate Meringue Pies are an American Institution. So are the People Who Bake The Pies, and the People Who Manufacture The Ingredients, including the Chickens Who Lay The Eggs for the meringue, and the People Who Make And Sell The Soap to wash off the chocolate meringue pies.

Do not knock this, Diddy. And do not try to throw the country into a panic or depression by putting thousands of Chocolate Meringue Pie Followers out of work.

Remember, Uncle Sam Needs You!

(Juvenile Delinquency Conference---1)

Plans have been completed for the Conference on juvenile delinquency to take place at Marshall College June 13 and 14, it was announced yesterday by Dr. J. T. Richardson, head of the Marshall department of sociology.

"An interesting feature of the conference," said Dr. Richardson, "is that only West Virginia officials will appear on the program. Since many facets of juvenile delinquency are associated with local conditions it was thought that the officials working in Huntington and West Virginia would have the best conception of the problem as it applies to this section."

The conference has been planned by Paul Lasakow, of the Marshall sociology faculty.

The Conference will open with registration on the morning of June 13 and this will be followed by the address of welcome to be given by Dr. J. F. Bartlett, Dean of the College of Arts and Sciences. At 10:30 John Roten, Huntington attorney, will speak on the subject: "A Layman Looks at Juvenile Delinquency". On Monday afternoon at 1:30 Joseph F. Burdett will serve as Chairman of a panel on: "Causes of Juvenile Delinquency", assisting him will be Orel J. Skeen, Warden of the West Virginia Penitentiary and E. H. Harpole, Superintendent of the West Virginia Industrial School for Colored Boys. Another panel discussion will follow at 3:30 Monday afternoon on: "How the Huntington Police Department Deals with the Problem of Juvenile Delinquency". Lieutenant E. Ray Blake of the Huntington Police Department, will serve as Chairman of this panel. He will be assisted by Sergeant John Woods and Officer Bernard Oswald also of the local police department. The activities for Monday will conclude with a general dinner meeting at the Frederick Hotel at 6:30. At that time William W. Roberts, Judge of the Domestic Relations Courts of Cabell County, will speak on: "Adequate Discipline for the Juvenile Delinquent". Judge Roberts will be introduced by Dr. Stewart H. Smith, President of Marshall College. (120)

Tuesday's program will include an address on "Probation as a Method of Treatment" by Paul Lasakow, Department of Sociology at Marshall College, followed at 10:45 by Mrs. Leslie T. Downey, Executive Director of the Charles W. Cammack Children's Center, who will speak on "Volunteers". Tuesday afternoon will be devoted to several addresses centered around the general subject: "Cabell County Needs in the Treatment of Delinquency". Taking part in this phase of the program will be Miss Lillian Nagy, Supervisor of Child Welfare Service, State Department of Public Assistance, Charleston, Michael Josephs, Associate Professor of Health and Physical Education, Marshall College and Z. L. Davis, Head Coach, Douglass High School, Huntington.

Dr. Richardson, said of the conference:

"Juvenile delinquency is not a new social problem, but it has been given new implications within recent years. No one now questions the fact that it has become a social problem of the first magnitude. Furthermore, it is not a simple problem to approach. There are many aspects to it; its causes are often hidden, and its consequences are of a far-reaching significance. Even so, if one is to understand juvenile delinquency, as a social problem, it is necessary to study the subject within the framework of its own setting. That is the aim of this conference. It is not expected that easy answers will be forthcoming to all the questions associated with juvenile delinquency. However, by examining what factors are operative here in Huntington which both prevent and cause delinquency, there can be no doubt that the community will benefit."

MARSHALL COLLEGE INFORMATION SERVICE---5-19-55

(Juvenile Delinquency Conference---3)

All individuals and groups whose work is associated with teenagers and who are confronted with the problem of juvenile delinquency, from time to time, are invited to attend the Conference. There is no registration fee.

Miss Rosa Oliver Plans Retirement

Miss Rosa Oliver

5.16.55 Adv.

5.16.55
By DOROTHY BUZEK

Miss Rosa Oliver, who somewhat reluctantly became head librarian at Marshall College, will retire this summer after almost 30 years of service in the library.

Miss Oliver came to Marshall in October, 1925 as assistant librarian. She was made acting librarian in 1933 and librarian, in 1936. She might have been librarian sooner but she insisted she wasn't interested and could do her work better without the handicap of the responsibilities that go with the top position.

Post Was Vacant

Twice the post became vacant and each time Dr. Morris P. Shawkey, then president of Marshall, discussed the matter with Miss Oliver. Each time she begged off. Finally, she agreed to "think it over" and then accepted the position.

Miss Oliver is a native of North Carolina where her mother, a sister and seven brothers still live. Her father died in 1948. She is a graduate of the Women's College of the University of North Carolina and of the New York State Library school. She has also done graduate work at Marshall.

While still a student in North Carolina, she began teaching school and taught for five years in Person county. Then she finished her college work and stayed on at the Woman's College for about three years in the library there. She found she preferred library work to teaching because she disliked the disciplinary problems associated with teaching.

Made Blind Choice

She went next to Albany, N. Y. where she was employed for a year in the public library system. One day she saw two college library vacancies listed with an agency. One was at Morris Harvey College, then located at Barboursville; the other, at Marshall. Not knowing either place, she chose Marshall blindly — and is glad she did!

When the train bringing her to Huntington stopped at Hinton, Miss Oliver heard a young girl boarding the train mention Marshall. She was delighted when the girl took the seat opposite her and soon they were engaged in conversation.

The girl — then a Marshall student — now is Mrs. Lillian Helms Buskirk, dean of women at the college.

When she heard that Miss Oliver was joining the library staff, she assured her that "the librarians there are very nice! I'll bet they'll be at the station to meet you."

When the train pulled into the station, sure enough there they were!

Library Was Small

When Rosa Oliver first came to Marshall, the library was housed in quarters in Old Main now occupied by the offices of President Stewart H. Smith and Mrs. Veta Lee Smith, the college secretary. It consisted of one large room with a small work room adjoining.

In January, 1931 the library staff moved into its present quarters in the attractive James E. Morrow Library which contains the entire library collection, reading rooms, art museum and offices and workrooms for the library staff.

When Miss Oliver came, there were but three members of the library staff. Today there are eight, including a secretary and clerk typist. This year there are also 18 student assistants. Hundreds of student assistants have worked for Miss Oliver in the years she has been at Marshall.

Accessions Are Large

One of the early years of the library showed accessions of 25,974 books and other materials. In recent years the figure is up around 100,000. Today the library also has such things as microfilm readers and micro-card readers.

Miss Oliver has served under four Marshall presidents — the late Dr. Shawkey, the late Dr. James E. Allen, Dr. J. D. Williams and Dr. Stewart H. Smith.

She has been asked millions of questions and has, in turn, asked a million or more in trying to help students find what they're looking for. Many times a young man or woman misunderstands a teacher's instructions.

Miss Oliver has been a good librarian, but she's found time to become proficient in other fields too.

She's Good Cook

Take her candy, for instance. She's famous for it, and last Christmas made more than 100 pounds for her friends. One year the president of the Mary and Martha Guild of Trinity Episcopal Church, of which Rosa Oliver is an active member, gave each member 50 cents and instructed them to "make it grow."

Miss Oliver protested that she had no talent, but a friend reminded her of the candy she had been making for her friends for years and suggested that she sell some of it. She did and her 50 cents grew into $20. Since then she has sold candy many times to help raise money for charitable or civic causes.

Miss Oliver also is adept at knitting and crocheting and finds relaxation in making infants' wear, argyle socks and other items for her friends and their families.

Clubs Interest Her

She's a member and past president of the Altrusa Club of Huntington and of Delta Kappa Gamma, honor society for educators. She's also a member of the West Virginia Library Association, the American Library Association, the American Association of University Women, the West Virginia and National Education Association.

Miss Oliver, who recently moved to a new home at 527 Sixteenth street, says she hasn't decided definitely yet what she'll do after she retires from Marshall, but one of her friends said, "one thing of which you can be sure is that she won't be idle!" She won't be either.

Strawberry Event Set

The Alpha Xi Delta Mother's Club will hold its traditional Strawberry Breakfast Thursday at the sorority house.

Breakfast will be served between the hours of 7 and 11 A. M. Tickets are available at the sorority house or from any member. Advance reservations may be made by calling the house.

Kill The Rumors

Rumors have been flying fast and strong since the election of Shirley Sikora as vice-president of the Student Body was contested last week.
At first we heard that the Vet.

The Test Is Yet To Come

With this issue, The Parthenon completes another year of publication. This week will also complete another cycle in the lives of many of us.

We graduated from grade school and looked forward to the hidden secrets of high school. We conquered high school and found it wasn't so bad, but we still had that element of fear in our "brave" voices that bid our parents goodbye as they left us in a big strange college.

We have met that challenge and defeated it. We must now face another challenge in the everyday world that we will enter in a few short days.

Our scholastic work in college is finished. The college had done its job in offering us an education, whether we accept it or not. We now owe a service to it.

There are no more tests to pass or any more classes to attend. We are all through with all of the extra-curricular activities that are so much a part of college life. The only thing that remains is for us to prove our worth. That is the service Marshall expects from us now.

Four years ago we entered Marshall as a dumb freshmen, dumb to the ways of college life and dumb to the ways of higher education. Now four years later, we are graduating—dumb seniors. Maybe not dumb in the sense of education, but dumb in the knowledge of the everyday world. Many things can not be learned in the textbook and can only be learned through experience. If we continue to learn after we graduate, Marshall can be proud they taught us something.

No matter how high or how low our grades may be or what it says about honors on our graduation diploma; no matter how high your I.Q. may be or what honors you have won in your field in college, the true test of a great man is one that is willing to learn and accept criticism.

College has prepared us for our jobs. It has given us the tools with which to do the job and make something of ourselves. What we do from here is up to us. We have made our choice of our life's work. It is up to us to not let Marshall down.

To The Student Body

It is the custom for some annual editors to thank publicly those students and individuals who assisted in the completion of the yearbook. Although the 1955 Chief Justice has not been governed by custom, the Editor will not ignore this opportunity.

Beside the editorial staff, many give thanks enough. Also included in this group should be the crazy people who joined the staff during the year, knowing full well that the only reward would be a "sort of" self satisfaction.

late for a date." He has come often to the hospital, to see John. "Gee, I am glad he's going to live," he said.

John can never drive a car at fifty miles an hour around a corner, and by doing so, cage another's spirit in a helpless body.

Editor Note. This is a true story written by William Bias as an assignment for a freshman English class. Although this story does not directly concern the college, it does concern people everywhere.

but this has been proven false. Later we were informed that individuals of various Greek organizations were instigating the protest.

The latest bit of information, obtained from the grapevine, has it that there was no written protest, and that President Smith took it upon himself to contest the Senate's action.

This is entirely false, for we were called into the president's office to read the letter, which was signed by "a full-time student." Dr. Smith said that even though the letter contained no one's signature, he knew the student presenting the protest was the "full-time student" referred to in the letter.

Then too, the letter was read by Charles Kiser, Chief Justice of the Student Court, at the first session of the court last Tuesday.

We feel that the president and other organizations have been unjustly accused by persons who do not know one iota about the situation. Check your facts before you make your statements.

FRATERNITY ELECTS

Pi Kappa Alpha social fraternity has elected new officers for 1955-56, according to Mello Cotton, Logan senior and outgoing president.

New officers are: K. A. Ammar, Bluefield junior, president; Dan Goulding, Huntington sophomore, vice-president; Fred Mickel, Williamson junior, treasurer; Udy Stover, Mount Hone sophomore, secretary; and Ron Morgan, Pineville junior, pledge master.

This is the last issue of The Parthenon for the term. No papers will be published during the week of finals. The first summer issue of The Parthenon will appear Friday, June 10.

To the staff who made appearances after the staff pictures had been taken, the Editor can not

To the many who submitted material, the editors and staff expressed its appreciation and thanks. There were a great many laughs, and a few temper tantrums as the rush reacted on weary nerves. The editors and staff would like to thank the College for giving them the opportunity of depicting Marshall '55 for you the students, who are Marshall College.

The 1955 CHIEF JUSTICE will be distributed May 23rd from our office on the second floor of the Student Union.

'An Ounce Of Prevention'

By WILLIAM H. BIAS

Across the narrow hospital room lies my friend John, groaning. For twenty days he has been groaning. It takes a lot of drugs to quiet John. At rare intervals words break through his stupor. "I want to get up", he mumbles.

The doctors say John may never get up again. He is in a plaster cast from his throat to his thighs; there are casts on his legs and on one arm. John was driving home from a ball game, when a reckless driver ran his car off the road.

THROUGH these twenty days the doctors and nurses have watched and waited—the X-ray man, the surgeon, a bone specialist, two nurses, all trying to make-up for what a boy in one moment did, because he was late for his date with a girl. The doctors didn't expect John to live through that first night. After that they shook their heads and talked about hope. Now they say, "He will live."

John will do his living on a wheeled stretcher—that much the doctors know. After that a wheelchair; after that there is only hope.

I wonder if he will have the courage to fight the years ahead? John's father is dead, his mother works in a department store. John needs the things money can buy to make him less helpless.

In the past, John loved the simple things which make happiness—skating, dancing, tennis, and playing ball. How will one, who loved life so, adjust himself to a wheelchair? What will his friends say to him, when the drugs no longer dull his consciousness?

THE BOY in the other car stopped and came back. He said to the police, "I was going fifty—

Court Rules Senate's Action Is Constitutional

Highlights Of College Year Reviewed By Staff Writer

By JULIA SADD

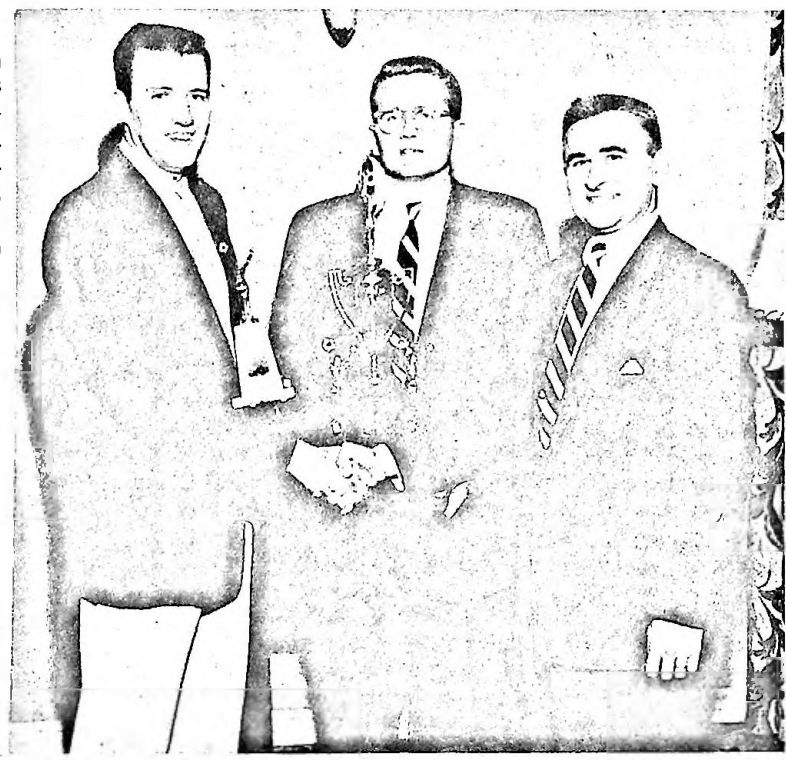

As the semester brings to an end the 1955 term, many events will always remain fresh in the student's mind. A short and quick look back brings to mind that Marshall had its largest enrollment since 1950. There were 2,903 students enrolled, and 500 were taking extension classes.

With football season under way, all organizations went out in full force for Homecoming competition. Sigma Sigma Sigma and Pi Kappa Alpha won the float trophies, and Ann Cline, Koppers-ton junior, was chosen "Miss Marshall" for 1955.

COLLEGE THEATRE presented three successful plays, "The Pursuit of Happiness", "An Inspector Calls", and "Dear Ruth", all under the direction of Clayton Page, associate professor of speech.

Students displayed their patriotism when they donated 141 pints of blood to the Red Cross. Trophies were given to Tau Kappa Epsilon and Delta Sigma Epsilon for having the largest number of donors.

The Extravaganza's annual performance gave the students an idea of modern opera with "Trouble In Tahiti", plus a tribute to Glenn Miller, the famous band-leader.

THE ATHLETE OF THE YEAR AWARD, sponsored by Robe, men's honorary fraternity, is presented this year to Charlie Slack, Pomeroy junior, for his outstanding achievement as a Marshall basketball star. Slack was the nation's number one rebounder this past season. Dave Dunlap, Robe president, holds the rotating trophy awarded each year by Edward Okrasinski of MacPherson's men's shop. Mr. Okrasinski presents Slack with his permanent trophy. Last year's award went to Walter Walowac, Marshall's greatest individual basketball scorer.

Shirley Sikora Given Oath Of Office Wednesday Night

The Student Court unanimously decided Wednesday to uphold the contested Student Senate election of Shirley Sikora as vice-president of the student body. She was given the oath of office Wednesday night.

Miss Sikora was elected on May 11, by the senate, but the senate's action was contested by members of the student body, who said that the procedure was unconstitutional.

The protest stated that the senate had violated Article 2, Section 2 of the constitution, which states, "The President and Vice-president of the Student Body shall be elected by and from the Student Body."

The case was given to the Student Court, and after two days of meetings presented the following interpretation to the senate.

Student Senate Approves New Appointments

Maywood Ellifritt, student body president, presented the following list of appointments to the Student Senate Wednesday night. All appointments were subject to Senate approval. Executive Secretary, Betty Lou Cornett; Business Manager, Albert Lilly; Student Auditor, Dick Sutherland; Publicity Director, Patty Talbert; and Student Prosecutor, Danny Goulding.

Freshman Court, Nina Watts, Chairman; Jill Borrer, Lloyd Calvert. Shirley Marshall, Mary Lee Nixon, Dave Humphreys, Cecil Jividen, and Norman Haddad.

CHIEF JUSTICE Board: Bill Sayre and Joanne Jeffries. Freshman Activities Commission, Bill Seidel, Chairman; Kaye Darlan, Bill Nelson, and Gail Curry.

Homecoming Activities Commission, Nancy Williams, Chairman; Al Wheeler, Jamie Johnston,

"The Court cites that since Article I, Section 1, (Legislative) says the 'supreme legislative power of the student government shall be vested in a Student Senate,' and Article I, Section 13, says 'vacancies in the Senate shall be filled within two weeks after such vacancies shall occur,' the Student Senate has a direct constitutional responsibility for the welfare of the Student Body to complete its organization."

"The Court further cites Article II, Section 2, 'the President and Vice President of the Student Body shall be elected by and from the Student Body at large,' and Article IV, Section 2 (e) 'All elected officers shall be elected by a simple majority of those students voting,' and is of the opinion that the intent of these provisions were followed in the recent election."

"The election was held as regents made Who's Who in American Colleges and Universities this year, five of them were juniors. The first ODK Minstrel proved to be so successful, that it gave a repeat performance. "The Magnificat and selections from "The Messiah" were presented by members of the Music Department.

Not to be forgotten are the Artist Series, Forums and Convocations. These were highlighted by "3 for Tonight", "The Philadelphia Orchestra" and many others.

The time of meditation and religious observance was felt during Life Planning Week, which consisted of panels, religious speakers, and group discussions. Guest speakers for the event was Dr. Faust of Ohio Wesleyan.

MARCH 5, 1955 will long be remembered. The "Old Man" of basketball, Cam Henderson, after twenty years of service, resigned as head basketball coach. Later, in April, Jules Rivlin was announced as his successor.

How ugly can you get! Harold Bradshaw, Huntington junior proved that he was ugly enough when he won the Ugly Man Contest, sponsored by Alpha Phi Omega, national honorary service fraternity.

Recognition was given to the college when the Symphonic Choir was invited to New Orleans to represent colleges of the Southern District at the National Music Educator's Conference.

LEADERSHIP quality was publicly recognized by the initiation of men and women into ODK and Fagus. Originality was seen in the first presentation of "Choral Capers", with the theme centering around a musical score, "Springtime On The Campus", written by George Stewart, Huntington Freshman.

Buddy Morrow provided an enjoyable evening for those attending the Student Senate sponsored "Spring Frolic" dance. An opportunity to see what the college has to offer occurred during the 21st annual UHSP conference, when 240 students of the state's high

1955 MacPherson Trophy

Charles Slack, Pomeroy, Ohio junior, has been selected as this year's winner of the most outstanding athlete trophy presented by the Robe, men's honorary fraternity, according to Dave Dunlap, Huntington junior, and president of the Robe.

The trophy is awarded each year to the athlete who has brought the most recognition to the college and is outstanding in leadership and scholarship. Last year's winner was Walt Walowac.

SLACK, a member of the Big Green cage squad, was the leading rebounder in the nation this year. He is a member of Varsity M and Sigma Phi Epsilon fraternity and was recently elected president of the senior class.

The trophy was donated by MacPherson's Incorporated.

schools attended the two day affair.

With the coming of May, also came the Mothers Day Sing. Winners of the sing trophies were Pi Kappa Alpha fraternity and Alpha Xi Delta sorority.

MAY 4 was the day the student body went to the polls and elected students to represent them in student government. Maywood Ellifritt, Greenwood junior, defeated Dave Dunlap, Huntington junior, for the student body presidency.

"Here's pie in your eye", the Press Club's Pie Eating Contest was a big attraction. Pie eating winners were Jerry Pauley, Fourth Estate entry and Joe Chandler, Pi Kappa Alpha.

The meeting represented the Lord's Supper. The Greenhouse was decorated with palms, and the tables, in the form of a cross, were placed in the center of the room. A chair at the head of the table was draped in white with a candle in front to symbolize Christ.

Another chair at the foot of the table was draped in black which represented Judas.

The Student Christian Association will also sponsor a dinner to be served at the Marshall College Cafeteria Sunday, at 5 P. M.

The proceeds from the dinner will go to the World University Service, to be given to colleges in India, Reverend Beal said.

Mid-American Spring Meet Today At Athens; Eighteen Marshall Athletes Compete In Event

Ohio University's golf team and Miami's track squad are expected to extend long championship streaks in Mid-American Conference spring sports competition at Athens, Ohio, today and tomorrow.

The Bobcats are after their fifth successive golf championship while the Redskins are hoping to take home their eighth straight track crown. Only other team to win a track title was Wayne University of Detroit, no longer in the league, in 1947.

Also favored to repeat as champion is the Western Michigan tennis aggregation, returning intact from last year. They have dominated conference net play four of the seven years that tennis competition has been offered.

The big weekend gets underway officially at 9 A. M. Friday with first round golf and tennis events. These run through Friday and Saturday, with golf being played at the Athens Country Club and tennis on the Ohio University courts.

Marshall will be represented in all three sports at the Mid-American meet tomorrow. Coach "Whitey" Wilson will take a six man squad to take part in the golf tourney, Lannie Brisbin will have six men travelling to the spring meet and Dan Wickline will have another six men representing the Marshall track squad.

In addition to the 18 athletes scheduled to attend the two-day meeting of the MAC,

In their traditional match with the freshmen, the Big Green Varsity trounced the Little Green freshmen squad by an easy 15 1/2 to 2 1/2 margin at Guyan Country Club last Tuesday afternoon. It was the third meeting of the two squads and it was the varsity's second win. Earlier in the season, the frosh squad trimmed the varsity linksmen in their first meeting.

Yesterday, "Whitey" Wilson's linksmen were scheduled to meet Xavier in a return match at Guyan.

Marshall's Big Green tennis team swept six of nine matches on Tuesday afternoon to ring up their second win of the season over Ohio University's Bobcats. The victory was the Green's fourth of the season.

Yesterday the Green were slated to meet Xavier's Musketeers in a return match and today are in Athens, Ohio, to participate in the annual Mid-American Conference spring meet which is currently underway.

In Tuesday's match, Marshall took 4 of the 6 singles matches with Bill Bias, Lynn Buskirk, Bill Seidel and Cebe Price registering wins. In the doubles, the team of Price-Templin as the only Marshall team to drop a doubles match.

Last Monday, the Green dropped an 8-1 decision to Xavier on the "Muskie's" home courts. Larry Hite was the only Marshall player to salvage a win against the Musketeers.

Results of the Ohio match are:
Singles; Bill Bias (M) defeated Bill Lananeegro (O) 6-2, 8-6; Lynn Buskirk defeated Paul Cowan (O) 6-4, 6-1; Al Ludlum (O) defeated Larry Hite (M) 4-6, 6-4, 6 3; Joe Saggio (O) defeated Frank Senise (M) 6-1, 6-1; Bill Seidel (M) defeated Carl Hutchinson (O) 6-3, 6-4; Cebe Price defeated Dick Nellis (O) 6-3, 4-6, 6-2.

JACK EGNOR
Cards 71 At Guyan

Track and field preliminaries begin at 4 P. M. Friday and a champion in that sport will also be decided Saturday afternoon.

Individual defending champions returning in the respective sports are:

TRACK—Gordon Hope, Western Michigan, high jump; Tom Jones, Miami, in the shot put and discus, and Dave Wood, Miami, in the 880 yard run.

GOLF—Dick Smail, Ohio University, who shared medalist honors with Kent State's Danny Forlani last year. Forlani does not return, however.

TENNIS—Western Michigan's entire championship singles and doubles contingent of Jim Farrell, Ed Foster, Jack Vrodovolt and Charles Donnelly.

From times recorded in competition already this year, many track records are expected to fall if the weather is favorable. New marks can be looked for in the shot put and discus, 880 yard run, broad jump, mile run, mile relay, 220-yard dash and 220-yard low hurdles.

Based on finishes to date in 1955 and times recorded from the 105 track entries in the Mid-American Conference meet the following seems to be a good guess as to the final standings of teams:

Miami, Western Michigan, Bowling Green, Ohio U. and Kent State, with Marshall and Western Reserve bringing up the rear. Toledo does not compete in track.

Reserve finished third last year with 14 entries but is sending only eight men into competition this year, its last in the Mid-American Conference. Marshall is the league's newest entry and does not as yet have spring sports program on a par with the longer-term conference schools.

Marshall career against the plebe squad as he fired a sterling 71 to capture medalist honors in the match. Egnor's score was the lowest recorded by any Green golfer this season at Guyan.

Egnor fired a 37 on the front nine and cut three strokes on his back nine to finish with a 71. He recorded six "birdies" in the match and had marked up four more in a practice round early that afternoon. Roger White, squad's number three man, carded a 75 to finish second behind Egnor.

Freshmen Jack Freeman and Dave Daugherty played the 18 holes in 77 strokes each to take top honors for the yearlings.

RESULTS of Tuesday's match are:

Jack Stewart (V) 38-38—76 defeated Jack Freeman (F) 38-39—77, 2½-½. Captain Jack Egnor (V) 37-34—71 defeated Dave Daugherty (F) 40-37—77, 3-0. Roger White (V) 40-35—75 defeated Thurman Watts (F) 39-40—79, 2-1.

Gene Roach (V) 42-40—82 defeated Dan Ruffier (F) 45-44—89, 3-0. Walt Carter (V) 46-42—88 defeated Steve Zimmerman (F) 45-44—89, 2-1. Jack Powers (V) 42-40—82 defeated Mike Perry (F) 45-44—89, 3-0.

The Green golfers opened fire today at the Athens Country Club in competition of the Mid-American crown. Ohio University has won the title for the last five years and will be out to make it six in a row this year. Marshall defeated the Bobcats recently 15½-14½ at Guyan.

Intramurals - -

By ART KEYSER

Another intramural year completed and this the largest yet with 84 sports on "Swede" Gullickson's intramural program. And again it was the men of Pi Kappa Alpha for the eighth consecutive year emerging the victors in the race for the coveted Intramural Trophy. And for the third consecutive year it has been a race between Sigma Phi Epsilon and Pi Kappa Alpha. As you may recall, last year, only two and a fraction points separated the winning Pikes and the runners-up, Sig-Ep.

This year, however, the race was not as close as the previous year as PKA won by an unofficial 67 points with two sports incompleting at the time of this publication. A run-down on the number of individual sports championships won shows that the independents, including Varsity M, faculty members, Cavaliers, and numerous other independent teams, won 39 out of a possible 84 championships. In fraternity competition, Sig Eps won 14; Pikes won 12; SAE's won 4; KA's won 3; and the Tekes won 2.

The points received in intramural competition among fraternities is as follows: Pi Kappa Alpha, 685; Sigma Phi Epsilon, 618; Tau Kappa Epsilon, 240; Sigma Alpha Epsilon, 228; Kappa Alpha, 226; Alpha Sigma Phi, 104; and Lambda Chi Alpha with 35 points.

received two runners-up plaques and Delta Sigma Epsilon received one runner-up plaque.

Awards were given to eight women for winning either single or double intramural sports. They were Marjorie Devers, Dunbar senior, horseshoe single winner; Sandra Morrison, Huntington freshman and Marjorie Devers for horseshoe doubles winners.

Betty Plott, Huntington senior, received awards for winning the handball singles and the handball doubles with Donna Lawson, Chesapeake sophomore.

Betty Arrowood, Huntington junior and Betty Plott, Hunting-

The banquet, held at Woodland, honored these women who had shown themselves outstanding in intramurals sports throughout the past year.

Donna Lawson is the President of the Women's Athletic Association and Nancy Pettry is the groups vice-president. Miss Louise McDoughough is the WAA faculty adviser.

1954-55 Big Green Sports Highlights

Cage Team Cops 17 To Capture Spotlight

By STEVE POSTI
(Parthenon Sports Editor)

With only one week of school remaining in this term, it will bring to Marshall the annual closing of the Big Green athletic archives. The school year of 1954-55 marked many historical events with the resignation of Cam Henderson being the most important.

The athletic picture on campus began in early September with fall drill for football. Several weeks later a young Big Green football squad opened their season by defeating Morehead State College 19-7 at Fairfield Stadium. Herb Royer, in his second year as coach, then tutored his squad to two more victories over Western Michigan and rival Morris-Harvey.

Miami's Redskins, who later went on to capture the Mid-American championship, dealt Marshall its first defeat as they trounced the Green 47-0 at Oxford, Ohio, on a cold rainy day. The Green then suffered two more losses before they could once more gain their winning stride. Kent State trimmed the Green 41-20 before a large Marshall Homecoming crowd and on the following week Western Reserve's Candy Carroll booted the tie-breaking extra point in the waning second of the game to give the Red Cats a 21-20 win.

Bowling Green tried to hang Marshall's fourth straight loss on them when the Royermen traveled to Bowling Green to battle the Falcons. BG was unsuccessful and the Green edged the Falcons 26-19. In their final home tilt of the season against Toledo, Mel Triplett, a bruising Negro fullback, sparked the Rockets on to a close 27-21 triumph. The season's finale was played at Athens, Ohio, against traditional Ohio University. After spotting the Bobcats two first period touchdowns, Marshall's gridders fought desperately but fell one point short as the OU squad eked out a 26-25 win.

Four seniors graduated from last year's squad this spring and they will be Albie Maier, Henry Hinte, Henry "Skip" Hawkins, and Garland Barnhart. Maier and Hinte were the squads' co-captains and their loss will be felt. Hawkins also proved to be a valuable backfield average of 19 points per game.

aged to average 17 points per game along with his usual steady performances throughout the year as he finished the season with a 18 point average. Robinson, playing his final year as co-captain, managed to average 17 points per game along with his usual steady reliable game of basketball. Robinson recorded the high individual scoring performance with the Green for the season as he bucketed 41 points against Virginia.

Four seniors graduated this year from last year's squad and they are Robinson, Frank Crum, Paul Hopper and Ray Frazier. Lew Burns, who turned out to be Marshall's fifth starter toward the latter part of the season, does not graduate until next January and will not be a member of the squad.

Following the completion of the season, several Big Green cagers received distinguished awards for their outstanding efforts throughout the campaign. Slack and Robinson gained honorable mention on the United Press' All-American. Slack, once again, along with Price gained first team berths on the all-conference squad while Underwood and Robinson received spots on the second team. Slack, Price, Underwood and Robinson were named to positions on several all-opponents teams.

On Saturday, March 5, President Stewart H. Smith announced the resignation of Cam Henderson as basketball coach. Henderson, after 20 years at Marshall and 41 years in the coaching profession, decided to call it quits. To some the news of Henderson's resignation was expected while to the many others it was a complete shock. Henderson recorded one of the finest records in the country at Marshall and tutored his 1947 squad to the only national title ever won by a Green athletic team. Immediately following his resignation rumors began buzzing throughout the state as to who shall succeed to Henderson's post. Twenty applicants filed for the post and several weeks later his successor was named.

In the meanwhile, a new minor sport on the campus began to gain popularity with the campus' students and that was collegiate wrestling.

Coach Sam Clagg started his season several weeks after the completion of football season and started with a handfull of returning lettermen and a group of willing, inexperienced men. Although Clagg's grapplers failed to win any of their matches, they proved to show much promise and capabilities as the season drew to a close. Charlie Tanner, 167 pounder, and heavyweight Bill Harris were Clagg's two bright pupils as Tanner finished second in the Mid-Am finals and Harris ran up a win streak of seven consecutive victories before finally tasting defeat. Clagg does not lose a man through graduation and will have a squad that is experienced and could prove to be a title contending team.

sports resumed action. Annie ... a ... team began ... rolling when they opened their season on a cold, snowy afternoon by playing Michigan State's Spartans. Brisbin had only two men returning that lettered the previous season and had a young squad.

Lynn Buskirk was selected to captain the squad and Bill Bias won the top position on the team. Both were the 2 letter winners. The Big Green suffered seven straight setbacks at the hands of some of the nation's top tennis teams before they could salvage their first win over Ohio University. The netters went on to win three more matches before ending the season in the Mid-American playoffs at Athens, Ohio. Brisbin loses only one man from this year's squad and that is Buskirk. Next year he will have Bias, Larry Hite, Bill Seidel, Dale Freeland, George Templin and Cebe Price returning along with several other bright prospects.

Jack Cook took over the baseball coaching duties that Joe Binns had vacated and took over a green crop of prospects. Cook's squad opened the season by dropping their first six games before defeating Toledo University for their first triumph. The Green went on to win one more game before closing out their season. This year's squad was made of practically all underclassmen who will have a couple of years remaining to play so it could be said that the Green are currently undergoing a rebuilding process and next year should prove to be quite the contrary as to this past season.

In golf, Neal "Whitey" Wilson's squad enjoyed a fairly good season which was marked by a 15 1/2-14 1/2 upset win over Ohio University's Bobcats. This was the first time in five years that the Bobcats were defeated by a Mid-American foe. It also snapped an 11 match winning streak for the OU squad. Wilson will only lose one man from the squad this season and that being captain Jack Egnor. Wilson, however, will have several promising prospects coming from the freshman squad including crack golfer Jack Freeman.

Track at Marshall picked up as in comparison of last year. Dan Wickline's cindermen opened the season with a decisive win over the University of Kentucky freshmen and then after scoring fairly well in several other meets, the Green thinclads captured the Charleston Gazette Relays by nosing out Morehead's Eagles by a slight margin.

Wickline's squad was comprised mainly of several promising freshmen along with several other experienced upperclassmen. Ray Dunlap, Lee Smith, Ken Adkins, Dusty Fleming were among the promising frosh while Don Adkins, Jim Smith, Dick Athey, Fred Pyles, Bob Loudermilk and Joe Chandler made up the actual varsity. The season closed for the tracksters with the annual spring meet at Athens.

In intramurals, "Swede" Gullickson completed the year with a total of 85 different sports and contests with the Pi Kappa Alpha fraternity capturing the intramural trophy for the eighth consecutive year.

With the completion of school near, President Smith appointed ex-Big Green basketball star Jule Rivlin to take over the reigns of the retiring Cam Henderson. It was nearly seven weeks after Henderson's resignation that Rivlin was appointed to the much sought after coaching post. Rivlin was selected over ex-Marshallites Buck Jamison and Jack Chapman. Rivlin is slated to begin spring basketball drills on May 26.

So another year is completed and what we have watched during the past two semesters has now been recorded in the athletic history books of Marshall and will be in the past. Now we look forward to a bright future which should cast its spell at Marshall next year.

man and was one of the squads leading scorers as well as ground gainers. Barnhart was confronted with several injuries during the season and saw only limited action.

Maier was selected to the all-conference team and was the only Marshall player to make the first squad. Maier, who recently signed with the Pittsburgh Steelers, also received an All-American honorable mention and was the only player from the MAC to be selected on Miami's all-opponent team.

Royer and his staff will have a promising group of players wearing the Green next season and they could turn up as one of the top teams in the conference.

With the completion of the gridiron sport, basketball moved into the sports spotlight on campus.

Cam Henderson began his twentieth season at Marshall and what turned out to be his last against an all-star aggregation from the Republic of China. The Green cagers started the season by marking up seven consecutive victories before Miami's Redskins once again halted Marshall's winning skein. Marshall's winning streak included wins over Western Reserve, who later ruined the Green, Colorado State, Ohio University, Virginia and All-American Bud Wilkinson, Carnegie Tech, and Washington and Lee. Following the drubbing received at Miami, Marshall bounced back to knock off Western Michigan, Xavier, and Kent State before they were once again beaten by Kent's Golden Flashes in a disappointing return game at Kent.

At this point matters became a little rocky as Western Michigan's Bronco's pinned another loss on Marshall. Following the loss to the Broncos, Marshall settled down to serious business and won their next seven games and in doing so were one-half of a game behind the league leading Redskins from Miami with one game remaining to play, that game being with cellar-dwelling Western Reserve.

A win over the Red Cats would have put the Green into a two-way tie with Miami and thereby give the Green a playoff with Miami and a chance to represent the Mid-Am at the NCAA playoffs at Lexington, Kentucky. Marshall met the Red Cats and came out on the short end of the scoring and completely eliminated them from the NCAA and any post-season tournaments. Marshall finished second in the MAC with a 10-4 record. Their season record was 17-4.

Sophomore whiz Cebe Price and rebounding Charlie Slack along with set-shot artist Paul Underwood and reliable Dave Robinson paced the Green throughout the season. Price finished the season with an over all scoring average of 23 points per game to finish among the top 25 scorers in the nation. Slack, who gained the title of "Mr. Rebound", headed the nation in the rebounding department as the hefty center averaged better than 25 rebounds per game. In addition to his defensive play, Slack was the second leading scorer with an

Marshall Student Journalist

Master Sergeant George W. Tope, instructor in the Military Science and Tactics Department at Marshall College will receive his third college degree at commencement exercises May 30.

Tope, a 13-year veteran of army service, and former member of the Ohio General Assembly from Gallia County holds A. B. and E. S. Degrees from Rio Grande College.

After resigning his teaching position in a Gallia County public school near Gallipolis, Tope enlisted as an army private in June 1941. He rose through the ranks and held the rating of warrant officer prior to his discharge in 1946.

UPON HIS return to civilian life, Tope resumed his studies at Rio Grande, earning his Bachelor of Science degree in 1947. Then turning his interests to the political field, Tope was elected for a two year term in the General Assembly. As a legislator he served on three committees concerning mines, highways and insurance.

Giving up a promising political career, Tope returned to his first two interests, the army and his education. Since his second enlistment in 1949 Tope has spent 14 months in the Far East where he earned six major battle stars in the Korean Campaign.

Summer Splashes In- Wearing A New Swimsuit

SUMMER'S HERE! You can tell by the new swimsuits, bright as blossoms, displayed in the downtown store windows. You can tell by the suntans which have suddenly become the style. And the announcements of opening dates for public swimming pools, while private pool owners hasten to put their own swimming areas into use.

A PREVUE OF SUMMER'S water sports was enjoyed at Dreamland, which opened yesterday, by four Marshall co-eds, left. They are Sarah Jane Mandeville, Verona Graham, Carolyn Harlan and Jo Chambers.

THE SEASON CAN'T BEGIN WITHOUT A NEW SWIM SUIT—and it's hard to make a choice. Di Ann Weinberger, right, inspects a parasol which matches the stripes of the swim suit she is trying on at the Smart Shop. Giving her attire a smile of approval are twins, Janice and Judy White, who also tried on suits. All three are to be Huntington high school major-ettes next year.

NOT YET—BUT SOON. Donna Davis, above, measures the depth of the water flowing into the pool at the Spring Valley Country Club, which was being tested and put into order last week. The pool is expected to be in use by next week end.

A POPULAR PLACE ON A HOT SUMMER DAY is the side-yard swimming pool of the Grayson Thorntons at 1250 Kanawha Terrace, which has already seen several splash parties this spring. Mrs. Charles Lewis (Adele Thornton) last week entertained a group of her sorority sisters (Sigma Sigma Sigma) at an informal pool party. Dr. Julius Lieberman, Head
Department of German
Marshall College
Huntington, W. Va.

Dear Dr. Lieberman:

An idea which you may think has possibilities for your department is explained in the attached sheet. The annual Marshall College Foreign Language Festival is one of several ideas being brought to the attention of department heads with a view to bringing more high school students to the Marshall campus each year.

As you know, high school graduates often decide to attend a college which they have known from firsthand observation and participation in a constructive event with other young people.

You might give this matter some thought. If you like the proposal, I'll be glad to help you plan and publicize the Marshall College Foreign Language Festival each year.

This idea originated as a Romance Language Festival, the feeling being that since German was taught chiefly on the college level in West Virginia there might not be many high school students who had already studied the language. Dr. Alma Noble requested that the idea be broadened to include the department of German and that the event be called a foreign language instead of romance language festival.

Sincerely,

James H. Herring

FOREIGN LANGUAGE FESTIVAL

Following is a proposal for a "Foreign Language Festival" to be conducted on the Marshall College campus as an annual event for outstanding West Virginia high school students of French, Spanish, German, and Latin, as well as teachers of these subjects.

The festival would be sponsored jointly by the Marshall College Departments of French, Spanish, German, and Latin. It would serve to interest more students in the language teaching field, which is critically short of qualified personnel; encourage more students to take an active interest in language courses; point out the value of foreign language study and the opportunities for careers in the language field, and acquaint more students with the educational facilities available at Marshall College.

DETAILS OF THE PROGRAM

- I. SITE MARSHALL COLLEGE CAMPUS (Due to the language departments' somewhat inaccessible, third-floor location, registration headquarters should be set up in the Science Hall, the basement of the library or somewhere else that is easy to reach.)
- II. DURATION The festival could be held on a week-end, Friday and Saturday.
- III. TIME It would be wise to select a month with a relatively light schedule of events so that few, if any state activities would interfere with attendance.
- IV. CONDENSED SUMMARY OF PROGRAM IDEAS:

Each group would have its own workshops. There would be joint meetings and dinners at which nationally known speakers would talk about the value of foreign language study, opportunities for careers in the language field, how a wider knowledge of languages can bring about better relations between nations etc.

Special entertainment for all delegates might include a dance and songfest featuring dances and singing of the French, Spanish, Germans, and Romans. Campus tours, departmental exhibits and movies would also add zest to the over-all program.

PROPOSED SCHEDULE OF EVENTS

FRIDAY AFTERNOON SESSION:

1-5:00 P. M.

FRIDAY EVENING SESSION:

Panel - Spanish Group - "How Can the Study of Spanish Help ME?"

(Miss Rosa Oliver---1)

When Miss Rosa Oliver leaves her post as head librarian of the Marshall College Library this summer, she will take with her an invaluable treasure; a thesarus of fond memories collected over the past thirty years.

Thirty years of working with college students can have its headaches too, but for one who enjoys helping people the headaches soon become insignificant in the face of many plesant, and often humprous experiences. (103)

"I've had an interesting time at Marshall", Miss Oliver said, "I like people and I like to guide them in their search for information."

In the years that Miss Oliver has been at Marshall she has seen many students come and go. There have been a lot of good ones, some that are indifferent, and a few --- well, mischevious ones. But all-in-all, according to Miss Oliver, Marshall students today are pretty much the same as they were thirty years ago when she first arrived on campus.

A good head librarian must be more than a master of library science. The position also calls for a sergeant-at-arms, to maintain order; a sleuth, to ferret out information, and a psychic to figure out what a student is actually looking for.

The psychic qualification comes in handy when a student misunderstands a teacher's verbal instructions. Take the case of the psychology student who ambled up to the main desk and asked for the book, "From Silk to Satins." A comprehensive check revealed that no such book occupied a place in the Marshall library, and after a bit of interrogation it became evident that the book the student had been instructed to read was, "Children From Seed to Saplings."

MARSHALL COLLEGE INFORMATION SERVICE--5-24-55

(Miss Rosa Oliver--222)

Not exactly an isolated case, other students have made similar mistakes in asking for reading material. There was the student who asked for, "The Light Went Out", and really wanted, "The Light That Failed." Another asked for, "The Virtues of Venice", and wanted Shakespeare's, "Merchant of Venice; and a request for a poem, "Sir Robin Rooster", turned out to be a request for Mathew Arnold's poem, "Sohrab and Rustem." (154)

Occasionally there is a little twist in this matter of students seeking information and the joke turns out to be on the library staff. For example, one coed walked up to the main desk and asked where she could find, "The Fountain", and was a bit shaken up when she was directed to the water cooler out in the hallway. "Not that fountain", she retaliated, "I want a novel called "The Fountain."

A library must of necessity be a quiet place with so many minds at work, and it takes a good sergeant-at-arms to enforce the rules. Rule violators, however, are not always conscious of doing something wrong. One student was caught smoking in the library and was reprimanded accordingly. Flabbergasted, and apparently in a hurry to right his error, he quickly threw the cigarette on the floor ~~and~~ ^{and} ~~and~~ ^{and} it out with his foot.

MARSHALL COLLEGE INFORMATION SERVICE--5-24-55

(Miss Rosa Oliver--3)

A number of times Miss Oliver has found students asleep in the library, stretched out on a couch or with their feet in the chairs, and a few of them have been known to use their coats as cover against the chill of the night air. "I usually ask them why they don't get up and go home to bed," Miss Oliver said, "and they usually look up at me as if I were silly for ever making such a suggestion."

One of the more serious offenses that Miss Oliver and her staff must contend with is the removal of pages from magazines and reference books. Occasionally, in doing research, a student wearies of note taking and may decide to tear out a complete magazine article or reference page. Such cases are somewhat ~~is~~ isolated and the student, if discovered, feels fortunate to get off with replacing the book.

A lesser offense, but much more common, is that of talking in the library. "Winifred Newman still kids me about how I used to tap her on the shoulder for talking," Miss Oliver admitted, "but she says she never minded because as she puts it she was 'just a young country girl full of talk.'" Miss Newman is now assistant superintendent of the Kanawha County School system.

One way that the students of today have changed with those of 1925, according to Miss Oliver, is that now they don't do as much studying in the library. "The students used to make much greater use of the library and many times we never had a vacant seat," she said. "On Saturdays it was not uncommon to check out

(Miss Oliver---4)

150 reserve books. "Today if we give out fifty we think we're doing good."

Miss Oliver was quick to point out, however, that she didn't believe that the students of 1925 were any more intelligent than those of today and that there were a number of good reasons why the library isn't used as much now.

People don't depend on the librarian to recommend good reading today as much as they once did, Miss Oliver admitted, but some of the faculty and occasionally a student will ask her advice on an ~~xxxxxx~~ interesting book. Shortly after the song "Davy Crockett" became popular, a student came into the library and asked Miss Oliver if she would help him find something on this remarkable "king of the wild frontier." After making the request the boy followed up in a matter-of-fact tone, "He's fictional, ya' know." And his comment when Miss Oliver showed him differently? "Why he was real!!" 156

The two most widely read novels in the library over a long period of time, Miss Oliver said, have been ~~ga~~ "Gone With the Wind" and "Naked and the Dead." "Gone With the Wind" has been the more popular of the two but "Naked and the Dead" created a frantic waiting list.

Although ~~xxxxxxxxxxxxxxxx~~ Miss Oliver's thirty years at Marshall have had their hectic moments, and as one can see, running a library is not exactly a picnic, she has never tired of her job. "I've done a little of everything there is to do in the library", she said, "and I've certainly enjoyed working with the people."

The large crowd gasped! The horse had reared back and thrown the young girl to the hardpacked fair ground. Tension evaporated quickly however, when the young rider got to her feet, tearfully smiled, and remounted the still nervous mare.

Looking back to that scene at the Tri-State Fair seven years ago, Meredith Steiner, Marshall College junior, says, "It was my first show and I guess the horse and I were both confused. From that moment on however, I knew I had found an interesting and exciting hobby." (157)

Today, Miss Steiner has a collection of more than 75 ribbons and trophies which have been awarded her for winning various horseshow championships around the tri-state area.

Miss Steiner, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. F. Steiner of 56 Kings Highway, became interested in horses at the age of nine when she began riding at a girls camp in North Carolina. Since that time, she has devoted much of her spare time to her interesting and profitable hobby.

She has taught riding and horsemanship to local children and adults since her sophomore year in Huntington High School. Money earned from this activity has helped pay for the feeding and lodging of her own horse, Shadow Lane, at the Mayes Stables on Route 60.

In her first year of College Miss Steiner undertook the training of an 85 colt for a local horse enthusiast. The animal was sold afterwards for $18,000 and is now a national prizewinning mare. "Kindness is the key word in horse training," said Miss Steiner. "Although some trainers depend on the use of a whip, I have never needed one. A horse is like a child and must be treated with patience and understanding."

College life has restricted the amount of time Miss Steiner can devote to her avocation, but she hopes to teach riding classes this summer, and compete in the various area horse shows.

Hiking Students Limp Into Capital On Time

Three footsore Marshall College students limped into Charleston on time this morning after a 60-mile hike from Hodges Hall on the Marshall campus.

The three — Bill Chaddock and Bob Friedly of Moundsville and Jack Egnor of Huntington — left here yesterday at 12:30 P. M. They arrived at a Charleston newspaper office at 8 A. M. today — exactly the time they had figured to arrive.

They encountered rain yesterday afternoon, but kept on walking. They made only two stops, one at Milton and the other at Coal Mountain — both times taking one hour to eat. They also took a short rest at Kiwanivista roadside park about 14 miles out of Huntington.

The trio returned here at 11 A. M. today by car. They weren't planning to go for a stroll any time in the near future.

The three, all members of the ROTC at Marshall, decided on the hike to prove to some doubting Marines that Army men can walk just as far as the Leathernecks.

"We've all got blisters — and big ones!" Chaddock said this morning.

As one wag remarked, that's the hard way to prove a point.

Students Will Hike 60 Miles

Three energetic Marshall College senior boys set out at noon today from the campus for a 60 mile walk to Charleston.

They are calling the trek "Operation Tired Foot."

The three enthusiastic ambulators are Jack Egnor of Huntington, Bob Friedly and Bill Chaddock of Moundsville.

Bill Chaddock spokesman for the group, said "we will carry only enough money for food and we plan to arrive in the capital about 8 A. M. tomorrow." They estimate it will take about 20 hours to make the trip.

Why the hike?

Chaddock said: "We got the idea from a movie, where a few Marines did some hiking. The whole thing started as a bet with six guys to take part, however three backed out and that just leaves three. We'll make it!"

Marshall Student Journalist

HUNTINGTON, W. VA.---Learning is a serious business but its seriousness is often punctuated by humor, according to West Virginia's chief college librarian who will retire this summer.

Miss Rosa V. Oliver, who has headed the Marshall College library for the past thirty years, told today of what a librarian experiences in helping young people to gain knowledge.

She cited these rib-tickling cases: A psychology student who had the library staff tied up in search of the book "From Silk to Satins" when he really wanted a book entitled "Children From Seed to Saplings"; another who asked for "The Light Went Out" and wanted "The Light that Failed"; and others who have asked for "The Virtues of Venice" instead of Shakespeare's "Merchant of Venice," and "Sir Robin Rooster" in place of a poem entitled "Sohrab and Rustem."

Occasionally, Miss Oliver admitted, there is a little twist in this matter of students seeking information and the joke turns out to be on the library staff. For example, one coed walked up to the main desk and asked where she could find "The Fountain", and was a bit shaken up when she was directed to the water cooler out in the hallway. "Not that fountain," she retaliated, "I want a novel called "The Fountain."

Miss Oliver also pointed out that it takes a good sergeant-at-arms to maintain order in a typically quiet place such as the library. Rule violators, however, are not always conscious of doing something wrong, or so it was in the case of one student reprimanded for smoking in the library. Flabbergasted, and apparently in a hurry to right his error, he quickly threw the cigarette on the shiney surface of the library floor and ground it out with his foot.

A number of times Miss Oliver has found students asleep in the library, stretched out on a couch or with their feet in the chairs, and a few of them have been known to use their coats as cover against the chill of the night air. "I usually ask them why they don't get up and go home to bed," Miss Oliver said, "and they usually look up at me as if I were silly for even making such an absurd suggestion." (16)

One of the more serious offenses that Miss Oliver and her staff must contend with is the removal of pages from magazines and reference books. Occasionally, in doing research, a student wearies of note taking and may decide to tear out a complete magazine article or reference page. Such cases are somewhat isolated and the student, if discovered, feels fortunate to get off with replacing the book.

A lesser offense, but much more common, is that of talking in the library. "Winifred Newman still kids me about how I used to tap her on the shoulder for talking," Miss Oliver admitted, "but she says she never minded because as she puts it she was 'just a young country girl full of talk.'" Miss Newman is now assistant superintendent of the Kanawha County School system.

People don't depend on the librarian to recommend good reading today as much as they once did, Miss Oliver reflected, but even so she still has many requests for her assistance in selecting interesting reading matter. Shortly after the song "Davy Crockett" became popular, a student came into the library and asked Miss Oliver if she would help him find something on this remarkable "king of the wild frontier." After making the request the boy followed up in an informing, matter-of-fact tone of voice, "He's fictional, ya' know." And his comment when Miss Oliver showed him differently? "Why he was real!!!"

Although Miss Oliver's thirty years at Marshall have had their hectic moments and, as one can see, running a library is not exactly a picnic, she has never tired of her job. "I've certainly enjoyed working with the people here," she said.

Miss Steiner, Marshall Student, Is Accomplished Horsewoman

By ROBERT G. ADAMS

Marshall Student Journalist

The large crowd gasped! The horse had reared and thrown the young girl to the ground. Tension evaporated quickly however, when the young rider got to her feet, tearfully smiled and remounted the still nervous mare.

Looking back to that scene at the Tri-State Fair seven years ago, Meredith Steiner, Marshall College junior, says, "It was my first show and I guess the horse and I were both confused. From that moment on however, I knew I had found an interesting and exciting hobby."

Today, Miss Steiner has a collection of more than 75 ribbons and trophies which have been awarded her for winning various horseshow championships around the tri-state.

Miss Steiner, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. F. Steiner of 56 Kings highway, became interested in horses at the age of nine, when she began riding at a girls camp in North Carolina. Since that time, she has devoted much of her spare time to her interesting and profitable hobby.

She has taught riding and horsemanship to local children and adults since her sophomore year at Huntington high school. Money earned from this activity has helped pay for the feeding and lodging of her own horse, Shadow Lane, at the Mayes Stables on Route 60.

In her first year of college Miss Steiner undertook the training of an $85 colt for a local horse enthusiast. The animal was sold afterwards for $18,000 and is now a national prizewinning mare.

"Kindness is the key work in horse training," said Miss Steiner. "Although some trainers depend on the use of a whip, I have never needed one. A horse is like a child and must be treated with patience and understanding."

College life has restricted the amount of time Miss Steiner can devote to her avocation, but she hopes to teach riding classes this summer, and compete in various area horse shows.

Marshall College
Huntington, West Virginia

The one and one-half acre site of Marshall College was bought in 1837 for $40 from John and Lucy Holderby, who made the provision that the estate always be used for school purposes. Today Marshall is a multi-million-dollar institution whose campus covers 25 acres in the heart of Huntington. There are 12 permanent buildings and numerous temporary ones. College athletic teams have the use of a stadium seating 12,000 persons and a field house with a seating capacity of about half that many. (187)

John Laidley, friend of Chief Justice John Marshall for whom the college was named, is considered the founder of Marshall College. It was first known as Marshall Academy. On March 3, 1858, by act of the Virginia Assembly, the Academy became Marshall College, with authority to confer degrees.

The financial status of the school was never very stable in the beginning, and the outbreak of the war between the North and South made its money problems worse. The school was finally sold for debts, but it housed a private school during the Civil War because of the terms of the original deed.

Out of the confusion of war, the new state of West Virginia was created, and in 1867 the West Virginia State Normal School was established within the framework of Marshall College. Since that year Marshall has shown a steady growth in size and service to the state.

In 1902 a formal department of education was added with a model training school for prospective teachers. Bachelor of Arts degrees were awarded first in 1921, and a College of Arts and Sciences was established in 1923. In 1940 Bachelor of Engineering Science degrees were authorized. Graduate work began in 1938, and the Master of Arts and Master of Science degrees were conferred.

Marshall now maintains three divisions, each under a dean--- College of Arts and Sciences, Teachers College, and Graduate School---plus an adult education program with a full-time director. (182)

Marshall college is located near the nation's major coal fields and chemical industries. The institution has always placed emphasis upon an active cooperation with the expanding industry of its area and upon complete participation in community affairs. Some of its community activities include:

A foreman-manager personnel conference for a five-state area; a vocational home economics program backed by federal aid received under the George Deen Act; night degree courses for those who work during the day; alien citizenship courses given in cooperation with the U. S. Department of Justice; conferences for public school personnel dealing with supervision, driver education, industrial English, public relations, coaching problems, and other subjects; and psychological and speech correction clinics.

(MARSHALL COLLEGE---3)

Student government was organized at Marshall in 1926. The Student Senate sponsors the yearbook, plans Homecoming and Springtime Open House, sponsors student mixes and takes an active responsibility in all extracurricular events of the College.

Marshall is an informal, friendly college, and this spirit is reflected in the out-of-class life of the students. There are many informal activities in which every student may take part. Also on the calendar are many formal dances, banquets and special programs by campus organizations.

The College has an advanced cultural program. Each student receives an activity card upon registering and is then admitted to 32 cultural events without additional charge.

Marshall's intercollegiate sports include football, basketball, baseball, track, tennis and golf. There is also an extensive intramural program in which more than 90 per cent of the male student body takes part.

A landscaping and building program is under way at the College. The $2,000,000 Science Hall was finished in 1949. A new addition to the Student Union and a new dormitory for freshman women have been completed.

*M*ARSHALL COLLEGE welcomes the families and friends of the graduating class to the spring commencement of its one hundred and eighteenth year. The College, established as Marshall Academy in 1837, was named in honor of Chief Justice John Marshall, long-time friend of John Laidley, who is traditionally accepted as the founder of the Academy.

The humble subscription school; the private academy; the College, elevated to collegiate status by the Virginia Assembly in 1858; the "West Virginia State Normal School . . . to be established at Marshall College in the County of Cabell . . ." in 1867. These are the historic milestones in the development of Marshall College as it is today.

The dual program of teacher education and liberal arts established in the charter of 1837 was expanded in 1921 and 1923 into the four-year baccalaureate degrees offered in the Teachers College and the College of Arts and Sciences. The Graduate Division, established in 1938, became the Graduate School by act of the West Virginia Board of Education in 1948.

Today, the College is continuing its service to young men and women as it prepares them for business, industry and the professions in West Virginia. The College prepares more teachers for the public schools than any other institution in the state. Many doctors, lawyers and engineers in West Virginia have received their pre-professional education and their bachelor's degrees from the College. Business executives look to the College for trained personnel. The Placement Office reports that thirty-eight firms interviewed two hundred and eighty prospective employees during recent months, and this figure does not include prospective teachers.

At the close of the exercises today, the College will have graduated 12,306 persons. Marshall alumni remember with affection the classrooms of Old Main or the modern efficiency of the laboratories of Science and Northcott Halls, the skillful teaching and keen wit of a loved and respected professor, the sheltering branches of the Beech Tree, and the cheerful "Hello" that did not wait for an introduction.

The little four-room Academy building standing on its one and one-half acres has been expanded to sixteen buildings situated on twenty-five acres of land in the heart of Huntington, the city that grew up around the College. Sixty-two housing units are available to veterans approximately two miles from the campus. Two residence halls for women, one for men and fourteen fraternity and sorority homes, provide housing for approximately 500 students. A dormitory for 184 freshmen women to be opened in September will help relieve a critical shortage of housing for non-resident students. West Virginia provides the major financial support for the College, its personnel, equipment and operation. The Marshall Foundation, a non-profit corporation, was organized in 1947 to acquire and administer funds for scholarships, to secure research grants and to improve facilities beyond the power of the state to provide.

Marshall Commencement Activities Begin

Alumni Dinner Tonight

5.28.1930

Hundreds of graduates were pouring into Huntington last night for today's Marshall College Alumni Day celebration, a prelude to other commencement activities this week end.

The Marshall Alumni Association at 6:30 P. M. tonight will sponsor a banquet in the college dining hall, with Jule Rivlin, new Marshall basketball coach, as principal speaker. Tim Hollandsworth, of the 1930 class, will serve as toastmaster. More than 200 persons had made reservations for the banquet last night, according to Mrs. Kenneth Boggs, program chairman.

Special tables will be reserved at the banquet for members of the classes of 1905, 1919 and 1930. Private parties and other campus social functions will be held during the day.

On Monday afternoon, Mr. Kaiser will go to Willow Grove, near Ravenswood in Jackson County, to inspect progress on construction of a $67,000,000 mill being built by the Kaiser Aluminum & Chemical Corp. Monday night he will speak at a $5-a-plate dinner sponsored by the Ravenswood Schools Association to raise funds for school improvements.

At the commencement, Marshall will confer the honorary degree of Doctor of Humane Letters upon Mr. Kaiser. Honorary degrees of Doctor of Pedagogy upon Miss Winifred Newman of Charleston, an assistant superintendent of Kanawha County Schools and Miss Mary Titus of Huntington and Washington, a member of the staff of the National Education Association. Fagus Will Honor Two At Marshall

Two women graduates of Marshall College who have distinguished themselves in the field of education will be initiated tonight as honorary members of Fagus, senior women's leadership organization at the college.

The two to be honored are Miss Winifred H. Newman of Charleston and Miss Mary Titus of Washington, D. C. who on Monday will become the first women ever to receive honorary degrees from the college.

The Fagus ceremonies will be conducted at 6 P. M. today under the old beech tree in front of Old Main. The organization took its name from the beech, a tree of the genus Fagus. It is older than the college and has figured in many campus traditions.

Miss Mary Thornburg of Huntington, retiring president of Fagus, and Miss Ellen Shepherd, newly-elected vice-president, will conduct the initiation service. Miss Barbara Taylor of South Charleston is the new president. Miss Newman, assistant superintendent of Kanawha county schools, was graduated from Marshall in 1929. Miss Titus, member of the National Education Association staff at Washington, is a '28 graduate of Marshall.

Both will receive the honorary degree of Doctor of Pedagogy at Marshall commencement exercises Monday at 10 A. M. at the Keith-Albee Theatre. At the same time Henry J. Kaiser, industrialist, who is the commencement speaker, will receive the honorary degree of Doctor of Humane Letters.

The three candidates for honorary degrees have been invited to be guests at the annual banquet of the Marshall College Alumni Association this evening at 6:30 in the college dining hall. Jules Rivlin, head basketball coach at the college, is to be the speaker.

Visitors To Attend Luncheon

Dr. Smith Host At Marshall

Huntington was looking forward today to the visit of Henry J. Kaiser, noted industrialist and founder of Kaiser industries, Monday to speak at the Marshall College commencement in Keith-Albee Theatre.

The visit has unusual significance to the area because it marks the beginning of work on the new $67,000,000 aluminum mill of the Kaiser Aluminum & Chemical Corp. near Ravenswood.

Sheet and foil aluminum flowing from the mill is expected to provide material for a number of fabricating plants in Huntington.

Executives Accompany Him

In connection with the visit here Dr. Stewart H. Smith, Marshall College president, will be host at a special luncheon Monday noon for Mr. Kaiser and other dignitaries attending the commencement.

Among the guests besides Mr. Kaiser will be 10 company executives who will accompany him, U. S. Senator Harley M. Kilgore of Beckley, and Rep. M. G. (Burnie) Burnside of the fourth West Virginia district.

Congressman Burnside is already in Huntington, having addressed the convention of the West Virginia Postmaster's Association here last night.

Party To Fly Here

Mr. Kaiser and his 10 executives will leave Washington with Senator Kilgore tomorrow in the Kaiser private plane, a two-motor job. The time of departure from Washington and arrival at the Tri-State Airport wasn't known today. Mr. Kaiser had not decided what hour to leave Washington.

After the commencement exercises and the special luncheon, to be given at the college dining hall, Mr. Kaiser his executives, Senator Kilgore and Congressman Burnside will go to Willow Grove, near Ravenswood in Jack-

On the way, sites for possible new industries will be viewed.

The dinner will also be attended by a large number of Huntington businessmen interested in developing the aluminum industry here.

The entire Kaiser party will return to Washington from Parkersburg either Monday night or Tuesday morning.

A Change Of Heart

BUTE, Mont., May 30 (AP) — Dr. F. D. Sidell was robbed of $335 in Minneapolis in 1954. Sixteen months later he received a letter from a priest asking him about the robbery. He replied, and days later came a check for $140. The priest said he was acting as intermediary for a remorseful woman.

Kaiser Visions Undreamed Of Valley Boom

People Termed Primary Asset

Aggressive Planning, Action Urged To Realize Full Potential Of Area

There is every promise of an industrial development in this section of the Central Ohio Valley area "beyond your imagination", Henry J. Kaiser, world famous industrialist and builder, told guests at a luncheon yesterday following the Marshall College commencement exercises.

Mr. Kaiser, head of Kaiser Industries, parent company of Kaiser Aluminum & Chemical Corp., which is building a $67 million aluminum sheet and foil mill at Ravenswood, was in Huntington to deliver the Marshall College commencement address and to receive an honorary Doctor of Humane Letters degree.

Kaiser Asks Class Shun Mediocrity

Cling To Highest Goals, He Advises

By HARRY FLESHER

High purposes that bring out to the full the best talents in the individual build happiness and mold a strong nation, Henry J. Kaiser declared yesterday in an address at the 118th Marshall College commencement at the Keith - Albee Theater.

The internationally known industrialist spoke at ceremonies at which he received an honorary degree of Doctor of Humane Letters. There were 262 candidates for academic degrees.

President Stewart H. Smith of Marshall also conferred honorary degrees of Doctor of Pedagogy upon Miss Mary Titus of Huntington and Washington and Miss

The industrialist's remarks were impressive for their enthusiasm, which is supported by the huge investment his interests are making at Ravenswood.

Stressing the resources of the area, among them superior industrial sites, coal, electric power, water, transportation, geographic location in relation to raw materials and markets, Mr. Kaiser placed in No. 1 position "the people residing in a 75 mile area of Huntington, their ability to produce and to consume, and their unfilled needs in this, the Age of Light Metals."

If the area's industrial growth potential is to be fully realized, however, there must be "coordinated thinking and a willingness to work and plan in the service of people, to the end that their needs are anticipated and met and the standard of living steadily raised," the industrialist continued.

"If we, the Kaiser company, do our job and you, as individuals

1961

William A. Newman and Miss Titus. They are both Marshall graduates. Miss Titus is a member of the staff of the National Education Association and Miss Newman an assistant superintendent of schools in Kanawha County.

Mr. Kaiser told the graduates they will not find success in material things alone.

"Spiritual powers enter mightily into lofty aims and highest achievements," he said. "God is as close as prayer, and prayer can surely lead one to find and hold steadfast to a worthy purpose in life."

During his own career, in which he has built a great industrial empire, Mr. Kaiser has "seen fellow men call forth some of the amazing powers that are theirs for the using."

Opportunities today in America are greater than at any time in history, he assured the graduates. He warned them, however, to choose their fields and channel their talents into them with a singleness of purpose lest they wander aimlessly through life on a plane far lower than that which they are capable of achieving.

The commencement attracted an audience that nearly filled the Keith-Albee. The graduates were presented by Deans D. Banks Wilburn, J. Frank Bartlett and A. E. Harris. The Rev. Vernon L. Fisher of the Second Presbyterian Church delivered the invocation and asked the benediction. Music was provided by the Marshall orchestra conducted by Professor Alfred P. Lanegger and the college choir directed by Professor R. Wayne Hugoboom.

After the commencement, Mr. Kaiser and others were guests of the college at a luncheon in the Marshall dining hall.

gressively seeking new industries to use our product, there will be an era of growth and development and steadily rising employment beyond your dreams."

The man whose Kaiser Industries has bought a $67 million "piece" of the Central Ohio Valley left no room to doubt in the minds of his audience that he is sold on his purchase.

Kaiser Cites Need For Skills

(See Page One Story)

By HARRY FLESHER

In the first of two inspirational addresses delivered yesterday in the area in which a plant he is building has created a climate of industrial optimism which has virtually changed the outlook of every man, woman and child, Henry J. Kaiser spoke in terms of the human element as a factor in the future of the nation.

Mr. Kaiser, head of the mammoth Kaiser Industries, which has brought to the Jackson County community of Ravenswood a huge aluminum production facility, told a capacity Marshall College commencement ceremony assemblage at the Keith-Albee Theater that at the heart of human success lies victorious purposefulness.

Those purposes of individuals which can bring individuals happiness and the nation strength and greatness must be great purposes and not small ones, the internationally famed industrial genius told the graduates of the institution which is older than Huntington, and those purposes of individuals have the attribute of magic in making the impossible become reality.

Purpose can harness energy within an individual, can create the ability to work effectively, can create individual success as opposed to mediocrity, the speaker told the graduates, faculty members, guests and Tri-State residents.

WITH ENTHUSIASM

Speaking of his own organization, Mr. Kaiser declared:

"We look for a man with enthusiasm when there is a challenging new job to be assigned. Many times this has taken place in our organizations:

"When we have faced a terrific problem and have called in the executives, engineers and experts, and perhaps workers off a job, I have thrilled to see a man emerge who could grapple with and manage the problem. First, we could see he wanted to take on the responsibility. Sure, he knew all the reasons and ways it supposedly could not be done. But he was no defeatist, bogged down in his own negativism and pessimously.

I'm glad our degrees don't say, 'Here endeth your learning.' Frankly, if I ever started basking in the past, which President Smith so generously spoke of, I guess, like an old soldier, I'd just fade away.

"Commencement... prods us into renewed realization that each of our individual lives can be filled with varied and even finer kinds of commencements.

"It has been a great joy of my life to work side by side with so many men and women who possessed the youthful spirit of always commencing, always growing, always building stronger—not only themselves — but those with whom they worked.

"Once in a discussion with a number of my associates, a question arose that caused me to express an idea that had run through our activities for many years. I asked them to stop and think—'What would you say is the real business we've always been in?' Each one of us in that particular gathering liked to think of himself as a builder. . . a builder of dams. . . of ships. . . of factories and new enterprises. The perfectly obvious answer to my question was that we were in the business of building.

BUILDING THINGS

"Sure, we are in the business of building material things, I said to my teammates. 'And yet our real business is more significant than that; fundamentally we are in the business of building people. . . Think back to the toughest jobs we have undertaken — our dreams of projects or new enterprises that were scoffed at as 'impossibles'.

"We would have stopped dead in our tracks at apparently insurmountable obstacles, if we ourselves and the people with whom we have worked had not always been growing. The real secret of anything worthwhile that we have built has been the building of people."

"Does our free society, however, even begin to do all it could to awaken the creative, dynamic possibilities of individuals?

"Focus this question closer. Whom can you think of who seems to be living up to the best within enthusiasm and optimism. So he won the opportunity. And when the job was done we said:

"There is a man who's going places."

But there is a relation between the success of the individual and the success of the many, Mr. Kaiser told his audience, adding:

"The climate for individual fulfillment does not begin to be as fine as it should be made—not when 50 persons could reach high achievement where one does today, and not when a thousand people could be stimulated to realize fully upon their creative dynamic possibilities and the limitless wonders of life, where only a few do today."

NEED ENGINEERS

Mr. Kaiser said the incentive system, so long ignored and scoffed at in Soviet preachments, is now universally adopted by a Russian government "out to beat us."

He pointed out that the United States is producing fewer engineers than Russia and cited this as one example of the incentive system's success in Russia.

"Right now," said Mr. Kaiser, "the Soviet is actually outstripping us in training scientists, engineers and technicians, simply because those are the fields being made attractive."

Elsewhere in his address before the Marshall graduates, Mr. Kaiser said:

"The treasured honor and greeting you have extended me are accepted with deep appreciation. They bespeak a wholehearted West Virginia welcome to our industrial organization, which will share with you in developing the opportunities of this promising region."

YOUTHFUL SPIRIT

"I am grateful to Marshall College, moreover, for the privilege of being here in the presence of youth, because young people, with their vigorous drive of onwardness, always lift my spirits tresources that are within us. But do we lead lives as abundant as building ourselves as strong spiritually, intellectually and physically as we could?

AWAKEN POWERS

"The reason I answer 'decidedly no' is because I believe that the best within an individual is infinitely great. . . far, far greater than he is likely even to begin to use. I have been stirred to the depth of my being when I have seen fellow men call forth some of the amazing powers that are theirs for the using. In my own experiences I have made many discoveries of undreamed-of capacities in people—the capacities of courage, imagination, love, work and achievement. I have glimpsed again and again, extraordinary capacities demonstrated by men and women who might be called ordinary persons, if measured solely by an intelligence quotient or by apparent heredity or by their lowly beginnings. As St. Luke exclaimed—unto us hath God showed that I should call no man common. I have seen how men can rise to challenges and crises; so that I believe with the poet—

'We never know how high we are

*Till we are called to rise;
And then, if we are true to plan,*

Our statures touch the skies.

"Nevertheless, all too many people self-impose limits upon their attainments. They place ceilings that are too low on themselves. They settle for life too cheaply, when they could afford the life abundant. They drift along on lower planes of activity, when they could be tapping hidden funds of energy and accomplishment.

"The psychologist William James reached the conclusion that most people live, whether physically, intellectually or morally, in a very restricted circle of their (Please Turn To Next Page)

Mother And Son Receive Degrees From Marshall

A mother and her son received degrees in the same ceremony yesterday when Marshall College President Stewart H. Smith presented diplomas to the graduates in Marshall's 118th commencement exercises.

Mrs. Charles E. Butler of Point Pleasant received her master's degree in education, and her son, Ronald, received his bachelor's degree in English.

The diplomas were the third and fourth from Marshall to be awarded to members of the same family since 1952. Another son, Roger, now a ministerial student at the Episcopal Seminary of Virginia at Alexandria, received his bachelor's degree in 1953, and the mother her bachelor's degree in the summer of 1952.

Mrs. Butler, then Genevieve Wallace, entered Marshall in 1922 after finishing high school at Morris Harvey Academy. She began teaching in Putnam County schools the following year. With exception of one more semester, the remainder of her college work toward the A. B. degree was done in extension classes, summer school, and night classes on the campus while continuing her teaching career until, after 30 years, the work on the first degree was completed in August 1952.

By that time her two sons were enrolled in Marshall. Her work on the M. A. degree was completed in January, 1955, but since Marshall holds no mid-term graduation, she received the master's yesterday. She is a teacher at Central School in Point Pleasant.

Ronald Butler plans to teach in college and has majored in English, graduating cum laude with English honors, and has been awarded a scholarship at the University of Kentucky, where he will work on his master's degree next year. He is a graduate of Point Pleasant high school, 1951. In 1949 he was winner of a national contest in essay writing at the age of 14.

The family formerly resided in Huntington, where both sons were born. The husband and father is a newsman employed by The Gallipolis Tribune, and was at one time with The Herald-Dispatch.

Professor Gets Doctorate, Wife Receives Degree In Ceremonies

By DOROTHY BUZEK

A member of the Marshall College faculty and his wife both received degrees at commencement exercises yesterday, but they were about 150 miles apart.

Sam E. Clagg, associate professor of geography, assistant football coach and wrestling coach at Marshall, became a Doctor of Education at ceremonies at the University of Kentucky at Lexington.

At about the same time his wife, Frances Steorts Clagg, was receiving her Bachelor of Arts degree at Marshall's graduation exercises at the Keith-Albee Theatre here.

The commencement programs for both institutions — Marshall and U. K. — began at 10 A. M. President H. L. Donovan of the university conferred the doctorate degree on Mr. Clagg. Marshall President Stewart H. Smith conferred the A. B. degree upon Mrs. Clagg.

SAM E. CLAGG

Mr. Clagg took his work on his doctorate in the field of foundations of education (philosophy, psychology, sociology, history) and in the field of geography.

He was instructor in geography and sociology at Morris Harvey College, Charleston, for one year prior to joining the Marshall faculty in 1948.

Mr. Clagg was born in Huntington, attended Huntington public schools, received his Master of Arts from Marshall in 1947.

He is commanding officer, with the rank of major, of the Marine 25th Special Infantry Co., Huntington. Major Clagg spent three years of active duty with the U. S. Marines in the South Pacific and China. He attended the Marine Corps Schools, Quantico, Va., in 1943 and the Army Map Service school, Washington, D. C. in 1950.

Mrs. Clagg is the former Frances Steorts, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. T. Steorts of Clay, W. Va. She was a student in the Teachers College at Marshall.
