ALMA MATER

Marshall Gracious Alma Mater,	May the years be kind to Marshall;
We thy name revere:	May she grow in fame;
May each noble son and daughter	May her children fail her never,
Cherish thine honor dear.	True to her beacon flame.
May thy lamp be ever bright,	May her spirit brave and strong
Guiding us to truth and light;	Honor right and conquer wrong;
As a beacon o'er dark water	This the burden of our song
This is for thee our prayer.	Ever her truth proclaim.

(The audience will remain seated during the academic procession and recession)

HISTORY

Marshall College had a problem with its students:

"The most decided objection we have to find to any considerable number (of the students) is the tendency to study too long hours, a tendency we are trying to correct. . ."

The quotation comes from the 1909-10 Marshall College Catalog and one historian has attributed them to President Lawrence J. Corbly. The historian added his own wry comment: "President Corbly and his successors evidently met with considerable success in correcting this tendency."

The problem of overzealous students may have been exaggerated. In any event, Marshall has had more serious problems in an often-turbulent history extending back to 1837—some 23 years before the state of West Virginia was born.

The early history of Marshall is filled with colorful events and people. For example:

—At one point the college was sold at public auction to a lady named Salina. She later sold it back, more than doubling her investment.

—One principal resigned to join the Union Army shortly after the shelling of Fort Sumter.

—Other principals left because the school's trustees weren't able to come up with money to pay their salaries. One former principal filed suit against the college—and won.

—James Beauchamp Clark took over as principal in 1873, but left the following year to get into politics. "Champ" Clark went on to become Speaker of the United States House of Representatives.

To put things in chronological perspective, the academic melodrama started in 1837 when the good citizens of Guyandotte and the farming country to the west—now the city of Huntington—decided they needed an annual school to provide for the education of their youngsters.

Tradition records they met at the home of John Laidley, who assumed leadership of the project and named the new school Marshall Academy in honor of his friend, the late Chief Justice John Marshall.

They decided to locate their new school on a knoll known as "Maple Grove," site of a small log building called Mount Hebron Church. The structure also had served for some time as a subscription school for the area, open but three months each year.

It remained a subscription school that summer, conducted by Isaac H. Peck. It wasn't until March 30, 1838, that the General Assembly of Virginia passed an act formally incorporating Marshall Academy and appointing Laidley and eight other men as trustees.

On June 30 of that year, the trustees purchased from Holderby the one and one-fourth acre lot containing their log "academy." The price: $40.

That land is now the site of Old Main.

The trustees proceeded to build a new two-story, brick building, 22 feet wide and 50 feet long, containing four rooms. It was completed by February, 1839.

The first full school term was conducted in 1838-39 with Peck serving as principal for a salary of $500. Virginia's government contributed $213.70 to the school operation that year. Over an eight-year period, the state contributed a grand total of $952.53 before ending its support completely.

In 1850, the academy and its financial obligations were accepted by the Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South. In 1858, Marshall Academy was renamed Marshall College.

The coming of the Civil War nearly spelled the end of the young college. Lack of financial support, accumulated debts, court action and the war itself forced the school to close its doors in 1861. The property was sold at public auction.

Mrs. Salina Mason bought the land and building for $1,500 for her father, John W. Hite. He was a Confederate sympathizer and could not appear in court in his own behalf. For the next few years, Hite and his family lived in the college building.

During at least part of the war, a small school, probably a subscription school, was maintained at the college—fulfilling a provision in the original deed from James Holderby which specified it was to be used ". . . for the express purpose of an Academy (sic) and for no other use." The building also was used as a hospital during part of the conflict.

In the fall of 1866, the Southern Methodists made an attempt to regain control of the property, but were unable to raise enough money.

Meanwhile, the new state of West Virginia had recognized the need for an institution to train teachers to serve the state's public schools. After many months of wrangling over location, the Legislature on Feb. 27, 1867, voted approval of a bill establishing a "state normal school" to be located at Marshall College.

Not until this time did Marshall begin to recover from the blow it had received at the opening of the Civil War.

In order to get the college reopened, the voters of Cabell County approved a property tax levy amounting to $5,000. The state also appropriated funds and on Aug. 1, 1867, the school's regents purchased the lot and building from Mrs. Mason for $3,600. The regents of the state normal school also authorized additions and repairs amounting to about $3,800.

During that period, the regents purchased an additional 10 acres of land from William P. Holderby for $1,000. It turned out that there was a lien against the land and the regents had to ask the Legislature to authorize condemnation in order to obtain a valid title. In September, 1868, they obtained 13 and three-quarters acres at a price fixed at $1,375. This brought the college holdings to a total of 15 acres in order "...that there might be ample room around the buildings, and that the Steward of the College might be enabled to provide material for his table..."

In 1868, Marshall needed land for farming. A hundred years later, the problem was parking.

The first session of Marshall College as a state normal school began June 15, 1868, and lasted 10 weeks, but financial problems continued to plague the school. The Legislature made no appropriation for salaries and expenses for the year 1879-80 and Principal A.D. Chesterman had to struggle to keep the school open with the money received from tuition fees. These were not adequate to provide a proper teaching staff.

Matters began to improve during the administration of Thomas E. Hodges (1886-1896) as the state gradually increased its financial support. By 1895, the appropriation reached $4,100 for routine expenses—plus $25,000 for a new building.

During Hodges' last year, 1895-96, the school's enrollment exceeded 200 for the first time. The 1896 graduating class of 19 also was a record.

Hodges was followed by Lawrence J. Corbly, who was to serve 19 years—the longest tenure of any Marshall president with the exception of Stewart H. Smith (1946-68).

Corbly's administration marks a major turning point in Marshall's fortunes. Enrollment began a steady climb, from 258 in 1896-97 to 1,021 by 1907. During that period the size of the faculty was tripled from nine to 27 and the library grew from 1,200 volumes to more than 7,000.

In 1905, construction was started on the final section of Old Main. This is the familiar "towers" segment facing the main entrance to the campus on 16th Street. With its completion, Old Main consisted of five sections. Reading from the east, these were completed in 1898, 1870, 1899, 1896 and 907.

The first edition of the campus newspaper, The Parthenon, was published in 1898, although there had been an earlier newspaper with a different name. Interestingly, President Corbly was listed as editor of The Parthenon for many years. The first yearbook, "Mirabilia," was published in the spring of 1907.

Intercollegiate athletics got their start at Marshall during this period, with the first football team being fielded in 1898. The Marshall teams originally were known as the Blue and Black, but the now-familiar Green and White colors had been adopted by 1904.

In May, 1907, the board of regents adopted a plan for the reorganization of the college. Among other things, the plan changed Corbly's title from "principal" to "president" and raised his salary to $2,500 a year.

In 1907, Marshall was still strictly a secondary school. By 1912, the regents had added two years of study to the school's program, equivalent to the freshman and sophomore years in college. In 1914, President Corbly recommended that "...Marshall College should be made a 'college' in fact as well as in official name—a degree-conferring institution."

But when Corbly retired in 1915, Marshall was still a thriving junior college.

A few years later, however, his hopes were to be realized. In 1920, the State Board of Education approved Marshall's granting of a bachelor's degree in education. Teachers College conferred degrees upon four candidates in June, 1921.

The years ahead were to see steady physical and academic expansion and the Graduate School was authorized in 1948. In 1961, the Legislature designated Marshall a university. By the fall of 1972 Marshall had an enrollment of 9,469, more than 79 programs of study at the undergraduate and graduate levels, and 1,722 employees, including part-time faculty and staff members.

Under the "Plan for Progress" announced by the West Virginia Board of Regents, major additional growth is envisioned for Marshall during the 1970's as it fulfills its role as the state's urban-oriented university.
