CONTENT AND SCOPE OF THE COLLECTION

The Jesse Stuart Collection consists primarily of magazines given by Mr. Stuart which contain articles, stories, or poems written by him or about him. Approximately half of these items are in the original publication; the others are photoreproductions of originals lent by Mr. Stuart.

Another significant part of the collection was purchased from International Bookfinders, Inc., of Pacific Palisades, California, and includes first editions of Mr. Stuart's works, galley proofs, and some manuscript material.

A third group of material is comprised of articles, stories, or poems written by or concerning Mr. Stuart which have been located and added to the collection by the library staff, by interested persons, or by Mr. Stuart himself, since 1976. This added material is inventoried separately.

JESSE HILTON STUART, 1906-1984

Jesse Stuart was born on August 8, 1906, in W-Hollow, near Riverton, Kentucky, the son of Mitchell and Martha Hilton Stuart. After graduation from local schools, he attended Lincoln Memorial University, graduating in 1929, and went on to attend graduate school at Vanderbilt University and Peabody College. He taught school in Greenup County, Kentucky, and Portsmouth, Ohio, and served as superintendent of Greenup County schools from 1932 until 1934. In 1934, his first major book of verse, Man with a Bull-Tongued Plow, appeared, and he received the Jeannette Sewal Davis poetry prize. In 1937, the award of a Guggenheim fellowship allowed him to travel abroad. During World War II he served in the United States Naval Reserve, attaining the rank of lieutenant (junior grade). He resumed his travels abroad by accepting the position of visiting professor of English and education at the American University, Cairo, Egypt, during 1960 and 1961; in 1962 and 1963 he served as an American specialist abroad for the Bureau of Educational and Cultural Affairs of the State Department. He also traveled in the Middle and Far East as a lecturer for the United States Information Service.

He was the recipient of many awards, among them the Academy of Arts and Sciences award, the Thomas Jefferson Memorial award, the Berea College Centennial award for literature, the Academy of American Poets award, several honorary degrees, and a nomination for the Pulitzer Prize.

In 1939, he married Naomi Deane Norris; their daughter, Jessica Jane Stuart (Mrs. Julian Juergensmeyer), is also an accomplished author and poet.

Prior to his death on February 17, 1984, Jesse Stuart had been seriously ill and bedfast for four years, following a long history of heart attacks and a massive stroke. He was buried in the Plum Grove cemetery near his home in W-Hollow.

JESSE STUART PAPERS, 1929-1986

I. International Bookfinders, Inc.

The significant portion of this material is the collection of first editions, galley proofs, and other items by Jesse Stuart located in a special cabinet in the Special Collections Department of the James E. Morrow Library. A list of these items appears in the appendix.

Explanatory Notes:

“Bx” refers to box in which papers are filed.

“FBx” refers to folio box.

NOTE TO USERS OF THIS COLLECTION: This collection was processed in two parts: accession 113 and accession 113A, both of which are described in this document. Each part has a cover page noting which accession will be described in the following pages. Please be sure to note which accession (113 or 113A) you are calling materials from.

CONTENT AND SCOPE OF THE COLLECTION

The bulk of the addendum to the Jesse Stuart papers consists of magazines purchased from William Curry, a collector of Jesse Stuart material, in 1977. There is also a box containing items donated to the collection by interested individuals. These items included correspondence, photographs, and newspaper clippings. Also included are purchased papers from other sources, including a typescript manuscript of the short story, "How to Thread a Needle."
