Biographical Notes:

Primary Figures:

Joel Shrewsbury, Sr. (1778-1859) was married to Sally Dickinson, sibling of William Dickinson, Sr. and daughter of Joseph Dickinson (1742-1818). He and William Dickinson, Sr. founded Joel Shrewsbury & Co.

William Dickinson, Sr. (1772-1861) was brother-in-law and business partner to Joel Shrewsbury. He served in the War of 1812 as a Lieutenant Colonel. He is the son of Joseph Dickinson (1742-1818). He and Joel Shrewsbury, Sr. (1778-1859) founded Joel Shrewsbury & Co.

William Dickinson, Jr. (1798-1881) is the son of William Dickinson Sr. (1772-1861) and continued the salt business created by his father. He also founded the Kanawha Valley Bank in conjunction with his son.

John Quincy Dickinson (1831-1925) is the son of William Dickinson, Jr. (1798-1881). After the conclusion of the Civil War he restarted the Dickinson & Shrewsbury salt company that is now the J. Q. Dickinson salt company. He also founded the Kanawha Valley Bank in conjunction with his father.

William Dickinson (1866-1907) was the son of John Quincy Dickinson (1831-1925). He attended the Virginia Military Institute and Eastman Business College.

Business Overview:

The partnership of Dickinson and Shrewsbury took many forms, beginning with the Joel Shrewsbury & Company trade business in 1804 in Franklin County, Virginia. Joel Shrewsbury & Company specialized in the trade of tobacco and various goods. In 1809, the business morphed into Dickinson & Shrewsbury, continuing in the sale of general goods. In 1814, the company expanded into salt and agricultural production in the Kanawha Salines region of Virginia, now known as Malden, West Virginia. It was during this period natural gas was first discovered on the property and subsequently used in manufacture. In 1825, the firm opened a mercantile store in Kanawha. The firm continued to operate on this general model, in trust and cooperation with other local salt manufacturers, until the dissolution of the business in 1856. Dickinson & Shrewsbury was part of the Kanawha Salt Company, said to be the first business trust in America.

The above summary is extracted from John Edmund Stealey, III's work, "Virginia's Mercantile-Manufacturing Frontier: Dickinson & Shrewsbury and the Great Kanawha Salt Industry" from The Virginia Magazine of History and Biography, vol. 101, no. 4, Oct. 1993, pp. 509–534.

Scope and Content:

This collection primarily consists of materials related to running the business Dickinson & Shrewsbury, a multi-faceted affair that included a general store as well as agriculture, shipping, and salt manufacturing aspects principally run by Joel Shrewsbury, Sr. and William Dickinson, Sr. Collection items are primarily financial and related to business transactions and include day books, ledgers, journals, balance books, and various other book formats related to maintaining the business that do not fit neatly into those categories.

Day books, ledgers, journals, and balance books contain listings of customers, transactions, and financial exchanges to include maintaining credits and debts. Notable trade items, in addition to general goods such as textiles and household goods, as well as enslaved people, tobacco, and lumber. These books date from sporadic periods, with the majority from 1803-1812, and representation for the time periods 1826-1832, 1851-1865, and 1878-1879. Materials after the 1856 dissolution of Dickinson & Shrewsbury relate to family business ventures by Dickinson family members related to salt, shipping, and agriculture by companies such as Cook and Dickinson Co. and other unknown names. Additionally, there is also one ledger and one journal of Armstrong Lumber.

Other formats are significantly more eclectic and occur primarily between 1804-1813 with some materials between 1849-1885. These formats include books documenting specific areas of the business such as a tobacco book, sale books, cash books, petty cash books, a letter book, business trip books, a book documenting the rental of enslaved persons, contact books, business information books, a farming book, and payment books.

The minority of the collection is composed of personal materials related to various members of the Dickinson family. These materials primarily consist of Eastman Business College course materials for William Dickinson (1866-1907) about accounting, bookkeeping, stocks, and business courses for 1884-1888 and documents related to the execution of the estate of William Dickinson, Sr. after his death.

The content list in the following pages follows the division into two series: Series I: Business Materials and Series II: Personal Papers. Within those series the materials are further broken down by format of book and then by date.
