1-29-2013

The Parthenon, January 29, 2013

John Gibb
Parthenon@marshall.edu

Tyler Kes
Parthenon@marshall.edu

Follow this and additional works at: http://mds.marshall.edu/parthenon

Recommended Citation
http://mds.marshall.edu/parthenon/170

This Newspaper is brought to you for free and open access by the University Archives at Marshall Digital Scholar. It has been accepted for inclusion in The Parthenon by an authorized administrator of Marshall Digital Scholar. For more information, please contact zhangj@marshall.edu.
INSIDE: NEWS, 2 | SPORTS, 3 | OPINION, 4 | LIFESTYLE, 6 | HIGH 68° | LOW 58°

Shannon GreenerThis is a unique exhibition... Everything is handmade.

SHANNON GREENER

THE PARTHENON

The growing Marshall committee will meet in room 209 in the student center on February 5th. The committee will meet from 2-3 p.m., and all students, staff and faculty are encouraged to attend and learn about sustainability on campus.

THE PARTHENON

The event will start at 11 a.m., in the SRC, which is located on the second floor of the Student Union. The opening will include a brief presentation by the SRC director, followed by a reception. The exhibition will run through February 14th.

THE PARTHENON

The SRC will host an open house on February 5th to celebrate the launch of the new program. The open house will feature a variety of sustainability-related activities, including workshops on recycling and composting, and a discussion on the importance of sustainable living.

THE PARTHENON

For more information, visit the SRC website at www.marshall.edu/sustainability or call 304-696-2992.

THE PARTHENON

An array of sustainability topics, such as recycling, solar power and green communities, will be discussed at the committee meetings. The committee will meet on Fridays at 1 p.m. in the Student Union.

THE PARTHENON

The virtual town hall features numerous topics ranging from the future of Marshall to parking and transportation. Each topic allows for discussion of ideas, discussion of issues and take a survey about each specific topic.

THE PARTHENON

The virtual town hall features numerous topics ranging from the future of Marshall to parking and transportation. Each topic allows for ideas, discussion of issues and take a survey about each specific topic.

THE PARTHENON

The website for the master plan can be reached through Marshall's homepage. From there, students can find the virtual town hall schedule for the master plan forum.
Another day of violence leaves Egypt wondering how this will end

By NANCY A. YOUSSEF

McClatchy Washington Bureau

CAIRO — The violence in the streets of Egypt has become a daily routine. On Thursday, a 22-year-oldRoundup owner was killed during a protest in the city of Assiut, and in Luxor, a southern city, a 16-year-old child was killed by security forces during a protest.

The government has been under pressure to take action to quell the protests, but so far it has refused to do so. The protests are a response to the government’s decision to raise the price of bread, which has led to widespread anger and frustration.

Mohamed ElBaradei, the former head of the International Atomic Energy Agency, said Thursday that the government’s decision to raise the price of bread was a “clear violation” of the country’s constitution. He called for a national dialogue to address the crisis.

But the government has been顽固, and the protests continue to grow in size and intensity. The violence has also sparked international concern, with the United Nations calling for a diplomatic solution.

Egypt has a long history of political violence, and the government has been accused of using excessive force to suppress dissent. The government has denied these allegations, saying that it is taking necessary steps to maintain security.

Despite the violence, some Egyptians are hopeful that a solution can be found. They point to the success of the country’s first democratic elections in 2012, which brought a civilian government to power.

But others worry that the violence will continue, and that it could spark a wider conflict. They say that the government needs to address the root causes of the protests, such as economic inequality and corruption, in order to prevent a more serious conflict from arising.

The government has said that it is working to address these issues, but many Egyptians are skeptical. They say that the government is more concerned with maintaining its power than with improving the lives of its citizens.

Despite the challenges, some Egyptians remain hopeful. They say that the country has a long history of resilience, and that it can overcome this crisis.

But others are more pessimistic, and say that the violence could have serious consequences. They warn that it could lead to a wider conflict, and that it could damage the country’s economy.

Egypt has a long history of political violence, and the government has been accused of using excessive force to suppress dissent. The government has denied these allegations, saying that it is taking necessary steps to maintain security.

Despite the violence, some Egyptians are hopeful that a solution can be found. They point to the success of the country’s first democratic elections in 2012, which brought a civilian government to power.

But others worry that the violence will continue, and that it could spark a wider conflict. They say that the government needs to address the root causes of the protests, such as economic inequality and corruption, in order to prevent a more serious conflict from arising.

The government has said that it is working to address these issues, but many Egyptians are skeptical. They say that the government is more concerned with maintaining its power than with improving the lives of its citizens.

Despite the challenges, some Egyptians remain hopeful. They say that the country has a long history of resilience, and that it can overcome this crisis.

But others are more pessimistic, and say that the violence could have serious consequences. They warn that it could lead to a wider conflict, and that it could damage the country’s economy.

Egypt has a long history of political violence, and the government has been accused of using excessive force to suppress dissent. The government has denied these allegations, saying that it is taking necessary steps to maintain security.

Despite the violence, some Egyptians are hopeful that a solution can be found. They point to the success of the country’s first democratic elections in 2012, which brought a civilian government to power.

But others worry that the violence will continue, and that it could spark a wider conflict. They say that the government needs to address the root causes of the protests, such as economic inequality and corruption, in order to prevent a more serious conflict from arising.
By CAITIE SMITH
ASSOCIATE SPORTS EDITOR

Last year’s Conference USA Freshman of the Year, Jazmine Valle, is adding to her list of accolades as she was selected to the C-USA Second Team in 2010 and 2012, and the USA Today Preseason All-Conference. A 2010, 2012 Team in 2010 and 2012, and the C-USA Freshman Team in 2010. Valle said the selection is an honor, but it is also a motivational tool for the rest of the team.

The end results are what matters and that’s what we’re working for,” Valle said. “I don’t want to be the only one there. If we could, I’d like all of us to be selected.”

Valle’s RBIs were the most year and I had a huge slump,” she said. “Anything but a championship slip away from us.”

Valle was also a preseason selection for the 2011 season. “I was selected before my sophomore year and I had a huge slump,” Valle said. “So, I don’t know if I’m honored to be selected, but I can’t let it get to me.”

Gee said Valle challenges the team and pushes them beyond their limits. “Jazmine always plays hard and gives 100 percent all the time,” Gee said. “She plays with a lot of emotion and I think that exhausts our team.”

Valle’s 44 RBIs was the most in a season total in Marshall history. Her name also was in the record books, as she was selected to the C-USA Second Team in 2010 and 2012, and the USA Today Preseason All-Conference.

“Last season was a very successful year for this program and it’s one that will always be remembered,” Valle said. “But it’s made the team hungry.”

Marshall women’s basketball will return to action Tuesday, Feb. 5, against Tulane, and Valle is ready for another year of basketball.

“Jazmine always plays hard and gives 100 percent all the time,” Gee said. “She plays with a lot of emotion and I think that exhausts our team.”

Valle’s 44 RBIs was the most in a season total in Marshall history. Her name also was in the record books, as she was selected to the C-USA Second Team in 2010 and 2012, and the USA Today Preseason All-Conference.

“Last season was a very successful year for this program and it’s one that will always be remembered,” Valle said. “But it’s made the team hungry.”

Marshall women’s basketball will return to action Tuesday, Feb. 5, against Tulane, and Valle is ready for another year of basketball.

“Jazmine always plays hard and gives 100 percent all the time,” Gee said. “She plays with a lot of emotion and I think that exhausts our team.”

Valle’s 44 RBIs was the most in a season total in Marshall history. Her name also was in the record books, as she was selected to the C-USA Second Team in 2010 and 2012, and the USA Today Preseason All-Conference.

“Last season was a very successful year for this program and it’s one that will always be remembered,” Valle said. “But it’s made the team hungry.”

Marshall women’s basketball will return to action Tuesday, Feb. 5, against Tulane, and Valle is ready for another year of basketball.

“Jazmine always plays hard and gives 100 percent all the time,” Gee said. “She plays with a lot of emotion and I think that exhausts our team.”

Valle’s 44 RBIs was the most in a season total in Marshall history. Her name also was in the record books, as she was selected to the C-USA Second Team in 2010 and 2012, and the USA Today Preseason All-Conference.

“Last season was a very successful year for this program and it’s one that will always be remembered,” Valle said. “But it’s made the team hungry.”

Marshall women’s basketball will return to action Tuesday, Feb. 5, against Tulane, and Valle is ready for another year of basketball.

“Jazmine always plays hard and gives 100 percent all the time,” Gee said. “She plays with a lot of emotion and I think that exhausts our team.”

Valle’s 44 RBIs was the most in a season total in Marshall history. Her name also was in the record books, as she was selected to the C-USA Second Team in 2010 and 2012, and the USA Today Preseason All-Conference.

“Last season was a very successful year for this program and it’s one that will always be remembered,” Valle said. “But it’s made the team hungry.”

Marshall women’s basketball will return to action Tuesday, Feb. 5, against Tulane, and Valle is ready for another year of basketball.

“Jazmine always plays hard and gives 100 percent all the time,” Gee said. “She plays with a lot of emotion and I think that exhausts our team.”

Valle’s 44 RBIs was the most in a season total in Marshall history. Her name also was in the record books, as she was selected to the C-USA Second Team in 2010 and 2012, and the USA Today Preseason All-Conference.
By AMIRABD PARVENI

Sixty-five years ago on Jan. 30, three bullets ended the life of the greatest pacifist of the modern era, Mohandas Karamchand "Gandhi". Gandhi, his message lives on, and people around the world urgently need to heed it.

The first people who should do so are those in the nuclear arsenals region where Gandhi lived. Clashes between Muslims and Pakistan over the past month have killed a number of soldiers (including an Indian service member reportedly beheaded), raising questions in the region. In his final months, Gandhi expressed deep regret for the violence between the two countries. When he was killed, he was planning to go to Pakistan to reconcile the new nations.

What makes an Indian-Pakistan confrontation scary is the nuclear arms they have openly possessed since 1998. Gandhi was horrified by the atomic bomb ning of Hiroshima and

volved in the regular semesters.

The editorial staff is responsible for news and editorial content.

By JOCELYN GIBSON

COLUMNIST

I live my life as a feminist—struggling with the title and what exactly it means for Richard. I will not say douche, unless

dog. I will not say d*ck, unless it is short

Today marked the 27th anniversary of the Challenger explosion, in which all seven astronauts died. Last month was the 40th anniversary of the Challenger explosion, which killed all three astronauts, and Friday will be the 50th anniversary of the Space Shuttle Columbia’s decommissioning, which killed all seven men on board.

During this week, in which the country looks back and

Related tragedies, it is important to remember why these people died and honor their legacies by continuing to push

the boundaries of human exploration in space.

During the 1960s, the space

gamers created this country something that everyone could appreciate. It gave this country hope and brought people together. A time that seemed like everyone was detrimented to tear the country apart through unfortunately. It is difficult to look at the world and see similarities, and it is difficult to think of having something as inspirations. Gandhi, inci-

grandsons, Hasan and Hussein,

and often cited Islam’s prophet,

about. He had studied the religion. In his final months, Gandhi expressed deep regret for the violence between the two countries. When he was killed, he was planning to go to Pakistan to reconcile the new nations.

What makes an Indian-Pakistan confrontation scary is the nuclear arms they have openly possessed since 1998. Gandhi was horrified by the atomic bomb
ning of Hiroshima and

volved in the regular semesters.

The editorial staff is responsible for news and editorial content.

By JOCELYN GIBSON

COLUMNIST

I live my life as a feminist—struggling with the title and what exactly it means for Richard. I will not say douche, unless

dog. I will not say d*ck, unless it is short

Today marked the 27th anniversary of the Challenger explosion, in which all seven astronauts died. Last month was the 40th anniversary of the Challenger explosion, which killed all three astronauts, and Friday will be the 50th anniversary of the Space Shuttle Columbia’s decommissioning, which killed all seven men on board.

During this week, in which

the country looks back and

Related tragedies, it is important to remember why these people died and honor their legacies by continuing to push

the boundaries of human exploration in space.

During the 1960s, the space

gamers created this country something that everyone could appreciate. It gave this country hope and brought people together. A time that seemed like everyone was detrimented to tear the country apart through unfortunately. It is difficult to look at the world and see similarities, and it is difficult to think of having something as inspirations. Gandhi, inci-

grandsons, Hasan and Hussein,

and often cited Islam’s prophet,

about. He had studied the religion. In his final months, Gandhi

expressed deep regret for the

violence between the two countries. When he was killed, he was planning to go to Pakistan to reconcile the new nations.

What makes an Indian-Pakistan confrontation scary is the nuclear arms they have openly possessed since 1998. Gandhi was horrified by the atomic bomb
ning of Hiroshima and

volved in the regular semesters.

The editorial staff is responsible for news and editorial content.

By JOCELYN GIBSON

COLUMNIST

I live my life as a feminist—struggling with the title and what exactly it means for Richard. I will not say douche, unless

dog. I will not say d*ck, unless it is short

Today marked the 27th anniversary of the Challenger explosion, in which all seven astronauts died. Last month was the 40th anniversary of the Challenger explosion, which killed all three astronauts, and Friday will be the 50th anniversary of the Space Shuttle Columbia’s decommissioning, which killed all seven men on board.

During this week, in which

the country looks back and

Related tragedies, it is impor-

ant to remember why these people died and honor their legacies by continuing to push

the boundaries of human exploration in space.

During the 1960s, the space

gamers created this country something that everyone could appreciate. It gave this country hope and brought people together. A time that seemed like everyone was detrimented to tear the country apart through unfortunately. It is difficult to look at the world and see similarities, and it is difficult to think of having something as inspirations. Gandhi, inci-

grandsons, Hasan and Hussein,

and often cited Islam’s prophet,

about. He had studied the religion. In his final months, Gandhi

expressed deep regret for the

violence between the two countries. When he was killed, he was planning to go to Pakistan to reconcile the new nations.

What makes an Indian-Pakistan confrontation scary is the nuclear arms they have openly possessed since 1998. Gandhi was horrified by the atomic bomb
ning of Hiroshima and

volved in the regular semesters.

The editorial staff is responsible for news and editorial content.
TOWN HALL Continued from Page 1

The process, currently under way, will answer these questions:

- What are the current political and social issues that impact our community?
- How can we work together to address these issues?
- What are the goals and priorities for the future?

The town hall is an opportunity for community members to share their thoughts and concerns and to learn about important issues in our region.

The town hall will be held on October 15th at 7:00 PM in the Marshall University Student Center. Light refreshments will be served.

Please mark your calendars and join us for this important discussion.

In addition to the town hall, the campus will host a series of public forums and workshops throughout the year. For more information, please visit the town hall website at townhall.marshall.edu.

The town hall is an important opportunity for everyone in our community to be heard and to participate in shaping the future of our region.

Thank you for your continued support of Marshall University.

Sincerely,
[Signature]
[Name]
Director of Community Engagement

Marshall University
Drop-in sessions offered at Drinky Library

By ROGER MOORE

The John Deaver Drinko Library will host a series of drop-in sessions during the next two weeks where students have the opportunity to take a tortoise-touche tour of the library.

The 30-minute visits will show students around the first-floor 13,800 square feet building, and highlight the "ins and outs" of library. Drinky Library's services include borrowing books, printing from a computer, using microfilm and checking out equipment like iPads and laptops.

And then he spots "her." And if you've seen Teresa Palmer in "The Sorcecror's Apprentice" or "I Am Number Four," you get it gorgeous enough to rouse the dead.

Julie (Palmer) is the daughter of the benevolent dictator (John Malkovich) of the local walled enclave of humans, one of the young people considered wily and nimble enough to be sent out bringing among the walking dead medical supplies, canned foods, the things that will keep the human race going just a little bit longer.

Levinie shoots the action scenes in bride strokes, and the romantic ones in warm, extreme close-ups. And there are some funny lines, such as "It's observations about his race." "God, we move slow."

But that's not accurate. Zombies are, traditionally, lurching wanderers. But not here. When they come for you, you'd better have your track shoes on.

"Drop-in sessions will show students around the first-floor 13,800 square feet building, and highlight the "ins and outs" of library. Drinky Library's services include borrowing books, printing from a computer, using microfilm and checking out equipment like iPads and laptops. I think the drop-in sessions are beneficial for all level of students," Will Dickerson, graduate library assistant, said. "They give students the opportunity to learn things that they may feel too hesitant to ask about." Dickerson said students are often unaware of how and where to get help. "Drop-in sessions can give students a nudge in the right direction," Dickerson said.

Drop-in sessions, including sessions on popular citation styles like MLA and APA, will be offered throughout the semester on Tuesdays and Wednesdays. Students can check out the library calendar on the library website for a complete listing of upcoming sessions.

The Drinko Library will offer tours on Wednesday. Advanced registration is not required and students can just "drop-in" at Drinko Library lobby before the session.

"Even upperclassmen, like juniors and seniors, can learn something from taking the tour," Dickerson said. Chris Hodge can be contacted at chris.hodge@marshall.edu.

But then he spots "her."

With humor.

The 30-minute visits will show students around the first-floor 13,800 square feet building, and highlight the "ins and outs" of library. Drinky Library's services include borrowing books, printing from a computer, using microfilm and checking out equipment like iPads and laptops. I think the drop-in sessions are beneficial for all level of students," Will Dickerson, graduate library assistant, said. "They give students the opportunity to learn things that they may feel too hesitant to ask about."

Dickerson said students are often unaware of how and where to get help. "Drop-in sessions can give students a nudge in the right direction," Dickerson said.

Drop-in sessions, including sessions on popular citation styles like MLA and APA, will be offered throughout the semester on Tuesdays and Wednesdays. Students can check out the library calendar on the library website for a complete listing of upcoming sessions.

The Drinko Library will offer tours on Wednesday. Advanced registration is not required and students can just "drop-in" at Drinko Library lobby before the session.

"Even upperclassmen, like juniors and seniors, can learn something from taking the tour," Dickerson said. Chris Hodge can be contacted at chris.hodge@marshall.edu.

"Drop-in sessions offered at Drinky Library"

By ROGER MOORE

The John Deaver Drinko Library will host a series of drop-in sessions during the next two weeks where students have the opportunity to take a tortoise-touche tour of the library.

The 30-minute visits will show students around the first-floor 13,800 square feet building, and highlight the "ins and outs" of library. Drinky Library's services include borrowing books, printing from a computer, using microfilm and checking out equipment like iPads and laptops. I think the drop-in sessions are beneficial for all level of students," Will Dickerson, graduate library assistant, said. "They give students the opportunity to learn things that they may feel too hesitant to ask about."

Dickerson said students are often unaware of how and where to get help. "Drop-in sessions can give students a nudge in the right direction," Dickerson said.

Drop-in sessions, including sessions on popular citation styles like MLA and APA, will be offered throughout the semester on Tuesdays and Wednesdays. Students can check out the library calendar on the library website for a complete listing of upcoming sessions.

The Drinko Library will offer tours on Wednesday. Advanced registration is not required and students can just "drop-in" at Drinko Library lobby before the session.

"Even upperclassmen, like juniors and seniors, can learn something from taking the tour," Dickerson said. Chris Hodge can be contacted at chris.hodge@marshall.edu.

"Drop-in sessions offered at Drinky Library"

By ROGER MOORE

The John Deaver Drinko Library will host a series of drop-in sessions during the next two weeks where students have the opportunity to take a tortoise-touche tour of the library.

The 30-minute visits will show students around the first-floor 13,800 square feet building, and highlight the "ins and outs" of library. Drinky Library's services include borrowing books, printing from a computer, using microfilm and checking out equipment like iPads and laptops. I think the drop-in sessions are beneficial for all level of students," Will Dickerson, graduate library assistant, said. "They give students the opportunity to learn things that they may feel too hesitant to ask about."

Dickerson said students are often unaware of how and where to get help. "Drop-in sessions can give students a nudge in the right direction," Dickerson said.

Drop-in sessions, including sessions on popular citation styles like MLA and APA, will be offered throughout the semester on Tuesdays and Wednesdays. Students can check out the library calendar on the library website for a complete listing of upcoming sessions.

The Drinko Library will offer tours on Wednesday. Advanced registration is not required and students can just "drop-in" at Drinko Library lobby before the session.

"Even upperclassmen, like juniors and seniors, can learn something from taking the tour," Dickerson said. Chris Hodge can be contacted at chris.hodge@marshall.edu.

"Drop-in sessions offered at Drinky Library"