Cabell County

From the "School Supervisor's Book of Records"

1819 - 1860

Free Schools were unknown before the Civil War. All who were able to do so, paid their own tuition. Those who were not able, were called "paupers", and their tuition was paid by the various counties.

The School Commissioners were elected by the County Courts. Their first meeting in Cabell county was held, at the County Court House of Cabell County, on Nov. 23, 1819. The Court House, at that time was held at Guyandotte. Those present were Patrick Keenan, John B. Hereford, John Laidley, and John Samuels.

John Laidley was appointed treasurer, and John Samuels became the first clerk.

Each of these commissioners was authorized to draw on the treasury for any expenditures for books and tuition fees for the education of poor children, later referred to as "paupers".

The next meeting was held at the Court House, Nov. 25th 1820. Wm. Buffington was now a member of the board, and Patrick Keenan was not present. Mr. Laidley was again appointed treasurer, and Mr. Samuels, clerk. Mr. Laidley was allowed ten dollars, for his services, and Mr. Samuels, five dollars, for being clerk. Patrick Keenan, though absent, was allowed two dollars and fifty cents, for his expenditures.

It will be remembered that Cabell County then included nearly all of the southwestern part of the state, Wayne County, Logan, Mingo, Boone, etc.

Mr. Hereford and Mr. Buffington were allowed the same amount. The report was to be sent to the president and directors of the Literary Fund. (Evidently the poor children).

The next meeting was held Nov. 26, 1821. Mr. Laidley reported an expenditure of six-hundred and fifty-eight dollars, and 73 $\frac{1}{4}$ cents in the last year, which was a great increase over the previous year.

The same officers were elected for the ensuing year, and his salary was increased to fifteen dollars, while Mr. Samuels received the same amount of five dollars as in previous years. Mr. Buffington was allowed five dollars, and Mr. Hereford, and Mr. Keenan, two dollars, each.

Nov. 25, 1822. William Tony became a member of the board, and Mr. Laidley reported the total expenditures, for the last year, as three-hundred and thirty-six dollars and eight and a half cents.

The next meeting was held at the Court House, Nov. 25th 1820. Wm. Buffington was now a member of the board, and Patrick Keenan was not present. Mr. Laidley was again appointed treasurer, and Mr. Samuels, clerk. Mr. Laidley was allowed ten dollars, for his services, and Mr. Samuels, five dollars, for being clerk. The next meeting was held Nov. 26, 1821. Mr. Laidley reported an expenditure of six-hundred and fifty-eight dollars, and 75 $\frac{1}{4}$ cents in the last year, which was a great increase over the previous year.

The same officers were elected for the ensuing year, and his salary was increased to fifteen dollars, while Mr. Samuels received the same amount of five dollars as in previous years. Mr. Buffington was allowed five dollars, and Mr. Hereford, and Mr. Keenan, two dollars, each.

Nov. 26, 1822. William Tony became a member of the board, and Mr. Laidley reported the total expenditures, for the last year, as three-hundred and thirty-six dollars and eight and a half cents.

Solomon Thornburg became a member of the board, Nov. 20, 1823 and was appointed treasurer, and continued as such until Oct. 27, 1846.

Apparently, this board was a closed corporation, as the same men were usually appointed year after year. It was not a case of political control, for the same political party was in control here during all those years, until the beginning of the Civil War, when there was more important business to be done than that of the education of poor children, or paupers, as they were called.
