A BIBLE FISHY STORY.

The Scotchman, a prominent Scotch newspaper, says, and other British papers appear to believe the story, that a Bible, bound in calf and bearing the name of "William Sim," a Dundee man, and the date 1830, had been discovered in the stomach of a codfish recently taken. William Sim went to sea in 1834, and has not since been heard of. On the very day when the above remarkable fact, supposing it to be a fact, was announced, the heirs of Mr. Sim obtained authority for drawing certain amounts of money owned by the deceased. If the story about the bible is true it exhibits the remarkably indigestible quality of paper, and a codfish's power of existing years without any serious results from indigestion.

A young man who had spent a little of his own time and a good deal of his father's money in fitting for the bar, was asked, after his examination, how he got along, "Oh, well," said he, "I answered one question right." "Ah, indeed!" said the old gentleman, with looks of paternal satisfaction at his son's peculiar smartness, "and what was that?" "They asked me what a qui tam action was." "That was a hard one! and you answered it correctly, did you?" "Yes; I told them I did not know."

"If a man bequeathed you a hundred pounds, would you pray for him?", said a Sunday school teacher to a pupil. "No," said he, "I would pray for another like him."

A Clerical Quack.

Some of the colored preachers, although they make extravagant pretensions, are by no means so moral as our "Fadder Quaker," and exercising absolute spiritual control over their ignorant flocks prompt them to unworthy deeds, and fill their minds with wrong ideas. There is also a multitude of quacks and false prophets who seek to make money out of a revival of the barbaric superstitions still prevalent among certain classes of negroes. On one occasion a huge negro created quite a clamor among the blacks in Petersburg, by announcing that he could cure any one afflicted with disease. He practically revived many of the features of Voudouism, and was rapidly fleecing his victims, when a pitying white man interposed, and tried to expose the swindler. But it was of no avail. The quack boldly challenged the would-be exposers to witness a cure of a long standing case of dropsy. At the house of the sick man the incredulous Caucasian found a large crowd of faithful believers assembled, in front of a circle of bones, old rags, and other trash, over which the quack was muttering some gibberish. Finally the announcement was made that there was something in the sick man's bed which had made him ill; and, after a little search, a mysterious package was found beneath the mattress. While the horror-stricken crowd were bewailing this evidence of witchcraft, the white man insisted on opening the packet, and he found it filled with some harmless herbs and mineral, and endeavored to convince the negroes that the doctor's confederate had undoubtedly concealed it there. But they would not believe him, and insisted on considering the doctor great at divination, although their confidence was a little shaken with the man, stricken with dropsy, died, despite the discovered and removal of the hurtful charm.

A modern thinker says that many people will be astonished when they get to heaven by finding angels no schemes to be archangels.

NAMING THE BABY.

Smudge had ransacked various books for a name, and, as the six of the latest edition of Smudge was indicative of toil in the ranks of men, as the infant looked strong—almost warlike—a great name was the quest of its distracted parents. Mrs. S. wanted it named after some old Bible character. Smudge suggested Samson, Goliath, which would typify strength; Mrs. S. leaned to Moses, (Moses, emblematical of weakness.)

Smudge had declared that he would name the child to the mother before it should be nicknamed. "No, or Samson," then he hinted at Jonathan, but Mrs. S. would listen to no such program. She didn't want her last child's name connected with a fish story. Already they had named a child Hannah, and she was sure that he would be hanged some day. Seeing that no Scriptural name could be agreed upon, she suggested Omega, reminding Smudge that they had named their first-born Alpha.

"You don't call this one Omega," said Smudge. "I put the name away, and when we want it I'll let you know. How would Martin Luther do?"

"I'm a Baptist, I am, Smudge!" retorted Mrs. S., coloring. "I don't want any Lutheran names in this house."

"You mustn't be so particular about one of my children to be called Jonathan Wesley. She don't poke any Methodist names on to me again. If Luther had been a Baptist, the name might do. There's Roger Williams. Roger Williams Smudge would sound well! He could write it R. Williams Smudge, you see."

"But he never will!" cried the parent, with determination. "Roger Williams was a Baptist, and you know, Mrs. Smudge, that I don't lean that way. I'd sooner call him Tom Paine. Mrs. Smudge shrieked.

"Call him Tom Paine, and I'll kill him before he's weaned."

"You like Puritans," Smudge. "Call him Miles Standish."

"No, sir! I don't want my child to grow up with any such outlandish name. You called our second boy Plymouth Rock Smudge, and that name will kill him before he votes. No more Puritan in mine."

"You're the confoundest particular woman I ever saw," retorted Smudge.

"If it had been a girl, she would have called her Cleopatra or Lavinia."

"The fourth girl," groaned under the name of Olympia Larpela. "It will make her be an old maid. Let's not compromise, Smudge. You like a strong name—Goliath, for instance—I, a Baptist do. Let's call the baby Roger W. Goliath Smudge."

"Put the Bible name first."

"I won't do it!"

"Then we'll call him something else."

"My father's name was Joshua Giddens," meekly suggested Mrs. S.

"What do I care if it was? None of my children shall be called after any of your relatives. That's settled! Let us fall back on a late name—Garibaldi, for instance."

"Or Bonaparte?"

"Napoleon the Third."

"Then you shan't call him Garibaldi," retorted Mrs. S., as firmly. "Smudge, you are the tickiest individual I ever lived with. You won't listen to anything. I'm reasonable—willing to listen to anything you propose."

"Then call the boy Daniel Webster. I always admired the old statesman."

"Our family shan't be disgraced by a Whig name, said Mrs. Smudge. "Lafayette is a great, a good name."

Smudge thought; he was on the eve of suggesting the name of the great Frenchman himself.

He must have a middle name.

Lafayette Williams! said Mrs. S.

There's your old Baptist name again!

I tell you Roger Williams shan't in any form hang to that boy's coat-tail.

Then, you shan't call him Lafayette.

And thus the quarreling over the christening continued for six mortal hours. Finally, the affair was settled. Smudge's twelfth baby is to face the world with the simple cognomen of John Smudge.

GUYANDOTTE, APRIL, 30th 1874.

R. H. LEE HAYSLIP, EDITOR.

Death of R. H. Lee Hayslip.

The people of Guyandotte were appalled on Monday, by the instantaneous death of R. H. LEE HAYSLIP, the result of a pistol shot from the hands of Charles Smith. The proprietor of this little sheet, published in the Post office, of which he had charge for a number of years, thus, by friendly hands, bids farewell to the public, with whom he was a universal favorite.

R. H. LEE HAYSLIP was the youngest of six children, of Thomas J. and Margery R. Hayslip. He was born in this place, on the 8th day of November 1851; being 22 years 5 months and 19 days old at his untimely death. Thus in the morning of noble manhood, and sad-ness, the bloom of health, they suddenly passed from amongst us, "to that undiscovered country from whose bourne no traveler returns," one of the most exemplary and promising youths of our town. On yesterday, after divine services at the house of the father of the deceased, the remains of R. H. LEE HAYSLIP were borne by the order of Good Templars to the cemetery on the hill above the depot, near the Catholic church and with the ceremonies of that order, of which he was a member, committed to the silent earth. An immense procession from this place, the vicinity around and the city of Huntington and many friends from a distance, followed his remains to their last resting place; these, and the streaming eyes of his youthful associates, who were not related to him, attest the estimation in which he was held. The sad faces and subdued voices and slow measured steps of our people, give unmistakable token of heart-felt sorrow and bereavement.

The genial smiling face and courteous address of R. H. LEE HAYSLIP, that ever greeted you at the Post office, will greet you no more forever! The pride of a doting family circle has been snatched from amongst them! The brightest earthly hope of a worthy aged father and mother, is cut off in death! The appalling shadow of heart-rending bereavement covers the threshold of a cheerful home amongst us. May God support the afflicted parents in this overwhelming grief.

The Echo visits its patrons for the last time. It comes to you in weeds of mourning, joining you in bidding a last adieu to one of the noblest and most excellent of our young men!

In giving to the world an account of the lamentable affair which occurred on last Monday, we want but justice done to all who are implicated in the killing of the proprietor of this little paper—our son, brother and friend. The case now rests with a higher court, as to his innocence or guilt in the matter. The examining court Robert Stewart, Esq., presiding, has, from the evidence, refused bail in the case of State vs. Charles Smith, arrested on warrant for murder of R. H. LEE HAYSLIP, and sent him to jail to await his trial before the Circuit Court. We refrain from an expression of our feelings in the matter. We want exact justice done to all, and leave it rest with a jury of his countrymen, and his conscience, whether he is a murderer or not. We take the following from the Democratic Banner:

Killing of R. H. Lee Hayslip.

On last Monday afternoon between the hours of 4 and 5 o'clock, our usually quiet town was the scene of a terrible affray, which resulted in the killing of one of our most estimable and worthy citizens, R. H. Lee Hayslip, the result of a pistol shot in the hands of one Charles Smith.

The facts in the case as near as we have been able to learn from the evidence elicited before Coroner's court are that Charles Smith and Henry Smith, who have been drinking liquor freely for the past week, had a row Saturday night at a disreputable house near the suburbs of town, and that Henry Smith had shot at Charles Smith several times without any serious effect. On Monday the difficulty was renewed again at the same place, when Charles Smith shot Henry Smith through the hand. Charles Smith then came down in town, armed with two loaded revolvers, and was passing along Main street when Henry Smith approached him with a revolver, and told him to halt, whereupon Charles Smith turned and leveled one of his revolvers at Smith's head and told him if he raised his hands he would blow his brains out, and for him to surrender his revolver to him, which he did. They then walked down Bridge street together and separated. Charles Smith was then seen as he was displaying his three revolvers in a very careless manner. The mayor endeavored to take the revolvers from Smith, but did not succeed. Smith informed the mayor that he knew what he was about and that he needed the arms himself. He then started in the direction of home, up Bridge street, and halted in front of the Post office where Mr. R. H. Lee Hayslip was standing talking to several gentlemen. He (Charles Smith) began telling Mr. Hayslip and those present about what had occurred between him and Henry Smith, and remarked that he had succeeded in taking Henry's revolver from him and that it was not loaded. He had at this time three revolvers and exhibited one as being the revolver he had taken from Henry Smith, cocked it, and began revolving the cylinder, when, by accident, or not, we are unable to say, the revolver went off, and shot Mr. Hayslip through the breast.

causing instantaneous death. Smith was arrested immediately after, and now being tried by the examining court.

Henry Smith was also arrested on a warrant off shooting with intent to kill, also Wm. Hiltbruner, who was with the two Smith's in their difficulty.

The family of the deceased, R. H. LEE HAYSILIP, return their most heartfelt thanks to those who so kindly lent their assistance and comfort to them in their hour of affliction and bereavement, in the loss of their much beloved son and brother.

DISAPPEARED.—When a friend dies and is buried, there's an end of him.—We miss him for a space out of our daily existence; we cling to the blessed hope that we shall be reunited in some more perfect sphere; but, so far as this earth is concerned, there's an end of him. However near and dear he was, the time arrives when he does not form a part of our daily thought; he ceases to be even an abstraction. We go no more with flowers and tears into the quiet cemetery; only the rain and the snow flakes fall there; we leave it for the fingers of Spring to deck the neglected mound. But when our friend vanishes unaccountably in the midst of a crowded city, or goes off on a sea voyage, and is never heard of again, his memory has a singular tenacity.—He may be to all intents and purposes dead to us, but we have not lost him. The ring of the door-bell at midnight may be his ring; the approaching footsteps may be his footstep, the unexpected letter with foreign postmarks, may be from his hand. He haunts us as the dead never can. The woman whose husband died last night may marry again within a lustre of months. Do you suppose a week passes by when the woman whose husband disappeared mysteriously ten years ago does not think of him? There are moments when the opening of a door must startle her.—T. B. Aldrich.

The rowdyism and reckless disregard of law and order as witnessed on our streets for the last few days and which culminated in the loss of one of our most estimable citizens, should be a warning to all not soon to be forgotten that in order to avert a repetition of such scenes and their results, the law should in all cases be rigidly and promptly enforced against any and all offenders.

The rain which has at last and the balmy sunshiny days have put in an appearance in earnest; gardening in consequence is now the order of the day, let every body embrace the opportunity.

How to quit SMOKING.—One who has tried and knows it, recommends the following rule. He says that if it does not cure nothing else will, and as it costs but little, the reader can lose nothing by making the trial. The rule is: Begin on cigars, two for a quarter, and smoke four the first day; then drop to ten cent cigars and smoke five; the next day drop them for a quarter and smoke six; next eight, or four for a quarter; then ten five cent cigars, and the following day smoke twenty of those two for a nickel, and if you are not dead, you needn't try either self-denial or suicide, for you are proof against both.

When woman shall have learned that devotion to an idealized man is not her only object in life, she will have advanced a long stride toward the independence she has so often craved and never possessed. To make her existence so large that loving will not monopolize it, is the secret which will grant that social equality which will make her less a plaything, and warrant her in demanding respect with affection.

The supply of India rubber is said to be inexhaustible. Each tree can be tapped for twenty successive years, and yields on an average three tablespoonsful a day.
