5-1-2013

The Parthenon, May 1, 2013

John Gibb
Parthenon@marshall.edu

Tyler Kes
Parthenon@marshall.edu

Follow this and additional works at: http://mds.marshall.edu/parthenon

Recommended Citation
http://mds.marshall.edu/parthenon/226

This Newspaper is brought to you for free and open access by the University Archives at Marshall Digital Scholar. It has been accepted for inclusion in The Parthenon by an authorized administrator of Marshall Digital Scholar. For more information, please contact zhangj@marshall.edu.
Faculty honored for outstanding service to university

By TAYLOR STUCK

Marshall University honored its retirees and outstanding faculty Tuesday at the general faculty meeting in the Joan C. Edwards Performing Arts Center. Five professional and senior faculty members were presented with awards for their years of service and 19 retiring faculty members were recognized. Gloucester, the director of Institutional Effectiveness; Elder Larsen, chair of the faculty; and Diana Jeaness, who collectively served the university for 512 years. “We rejoice in being teachers, mentors and hopefully good role models to our students,” Larsen said in his remarks. “That is why we are here.” Students and faculty members in whom we rejoice. Marshall President Stephen Kopp and the SRC have rapidly recognized faculty and academic departments.” “We thank each of you for your contributions, not just to Marshall, but to West Virginia. This year’s conference helped the West Virginia attendance. Further research is needed to confirm these findings.” The session will be useful to students interested in psychology. "I think it is just preparing and long-term planning that they are not as prepared as they should be," Barbour said. “I think not knowing what tips and resources are available.” Students have the chance to set goals and participate in answering questions. Starbucks gift cards, water bottles and Tyvexes were given to students. As a final note to students before they left, the SRC staff wished everyone luck on their final exams.

Courtney Brown can be contacted at brown23@marshall.edu.
By JOSEPHINE E. MENDEZ
THE PARTHENON
By HAYLEE ROBERTS
THE PARTHENON

By JOSEPHINE E. MENDEZ
THE PARTHENON

By JOSEPHINE E. MENDEZ
THE PARTHENON

WEDNESDAY, MAY 1, 2013
THE PARTHENON
MARSHALLPARTHENON.COM

Students socialized with friends and ate ice cream while enjoying the music performance.

The class is open to all Marshall students regardless of their major.

Commuters being offered Red Eye Rooms for finals week

THE PARTHENON

Society of Poets to continue next semester

The club uses the jar of Despair as part of their tradition. The jar is filled with quotes, thoughts, words or general phrases of any kind written on pieces of paper, and members use this to express writing poetry.

Another exercise is the “Write and Run” exercise. This exercise uses a jar filled with colored cards. Members use the jar to inspire or write poetry.

In this group, students can learn different forms of poetry. They can also practice their speaking skills as well as strengthening their writing skills.

"Poetry Society is very informal, so what we do meeting to meeting is to vote on the people appealing the meetings," Mason said.
Spring is not just a time of hope for Marshall University fans, but also a time when former Thundering Herd players have a chance to reconnect with their roots. Although it is small, numerous players have represented Marshall in the NFL. Some of these players get a change to mingle with their Marshall family during the Green and White games.

The New England Patriots drafted Aaron Dobson, former Herd wide receiver, in the second round last week. "It feels great to just start my life in New England," Dobson said. "The phone call was crazy. I've been dreaming of that call since I was six." Following in the footsteps of Randy Moss and Troy Brown is inspiring, Dobson said.

"Two other good receivers from Marshall played for New England," Dobson said. "I feel like it's a trend and I'm going to do the same." With other Marshall players in the NFL, Dobson has a lot of advice to absorb. "They've given me encouraging words—you have to be on top of it every day," Dobson said. "It's not college, it's our job. You have to come to play everyday!"

Although the Philadelphia Eagles drafted Vinny Curry, former Marshall defensive end, last year, he continues to make an impact almost immediately for the Eagles. "Once we make that tackle, our whole lives just changed," McClellan said. "We're Super Bowl champs no matter what. You can't take it on the ice. Right then and there, you know your life has changed." Along side his former college team mate, Brown said he does not forget where he came from and is proud to represent his Thundering Herd family. "Representing Marshall, you're the underdog and you're going to have something to prove to everybody," Harvey said. "Last season was great, they had us winning one game and finishing last. We lost that personally and we wouldn't settle for it.

While Harvey is hoping to get a Super Bowl win this year, two Marshall alumni will be busy defending that title. Oscar Brown and Albert McCollin are part of the reigning champion Baltimore Ravens. "Once we made that tackle, our whole lives just changed," McClellan said. "We've Super Bowl champs no matter what. You can't take it on the ice. Right then and there, you know your life has changed." Brown played for New England, "The receiver, in the second round last week. "Representing Marshall, you're the underdog and you're going to have something to prove to everybody," Harvey said. "Last season was great, they had us winning one game and finishing last. We lost that personally and we wouldn't settle for it.

While Harvey is hoping to get a Super Bowl win this year, two Marshall alumni will be busy defending that title. Oscar Brown and Albert McCollin are part of the reigning champion Baltimore Ravens. "Once we made that tackle, our whole lives just changed," McClellan said. "We've Super Bowl champs no matter what. You can't take it on the ice. Right then and there, you know your life has changed." Brown played for New England, "The receiver, in the second round last week. "Representing Marshall, you're the underdog and you're going to have something to prove to everybody," Harvey said. "Last season was great, they had us winning one game and finishing last. We lost that personally and we wouldn't settle for it.

While Harvey is hoping to get a Super Bowl win this year, two Marshall alumni will be busy defending that title. Oscar Brown and Albert McCollin are part of the reigning champion Baltimore Ravens. "Once we made that tackle, our whole lives just changed," McClellan said. "We've Super Bowl champs no matter what. You can't take it on the ice. Right then and there, you know your life has changed." Brown played for New England, "The receiver, in the second round last week. "Representing Marshall, you're the underdog and you're going to have something to prove to everybody," Harvey said. "Last season was great, they had us winning one game and finishing last. We lost that personally and we wouldn't settle for it.

While Harvey is hoping to get a Super Bowl win this year, two Marshall alumni will be busy defending that title. Oscar Brown and Albert McCollin are part of the reigning champion Baltimore Ravens.
MCT CAMPUS

By KYLELL McCOMAS
COLUMNIST

In last week’s column, I wrote about how quickly conspiracy theories spread across social networking, even in a world where the flow of information is open and constant. Since that column was originally printed last week, there has been an increase in the quantity of information in the news, both legitimate and otherwise. The mere number of rumors and conspiracy theories sprouting up in the information vacuum that immediately followed the Boston bombings. Why is this? It seems this information overflow is presented as the truth by trusted media sources. But this consumption of information became a problem. In some situations, this usually is not a problem. In other situations, it can be counterproductive.

The idea that NBC and CNN had shot to death. While this story was repeated continuously, it had no basis in fact. The story of the hunting down of bin Laden used one of his sons as a human shield. According to news reports, the son was killed in the firefight. But as it turned out, the story was false. The human capacity for self-delusion is a powerful one. We of derstandable from a pro-choice perspective, the face of scientific research. But Mengele was the face of reproductive rights as Josef

By CHRISTINE FLOWERS
PHILADELPHIA DAILY NEWS

In “The Emperor’s New Clothes,” a by students Mondays through Fridays during the regular semesters, and weekly Thursdays during the summer.
The editorial staff is responsible for news and editorial content. The Constitution of the The Constitution of the United States of America — Section I

All legislative Powers herein granted shall be vested in a Congress of the United States, which shall consist of a Senate and House of Representatives.

Section II

The Congress shall assemble at least once in every year, and perhaps the greatest crisis of misinformation is presented as the truth by trusted media sources. But this con-misleading that he’s just bought a magnificent outfit when all he’s been sold is a bill of (dry) lieving that he’s just bought a magnificent

The ridiculous suggestion that more Gosnell cases will crop up if the law is overturned is

George W. Bush. During the months immediately after September 11, the Bush administration, the media and the American Public lied linked Iraq to the events of 9/11. This linking was combined with another misin-formation, Saddam Hussein’s weapons of mass destruction, and was used as the justification for the inva-dation of Iraq. The eight year long war and the suffering that哭了 were not possible without information leaking true and Humaid Walid’s WMDs, information repeated so often and for so long that it became part of every piece of evidence supported by the Bush administration.

Understanding how misin-formation starts should help us combat it. Perhaps the best example of all the human body can produce into a sick, twisted story. We may have been an appealing story for the average American. It had been the basis for too. The story was not true. However, it is now clear that when the story was changed from sources inside the White House. While I have no intention of writing in depth about the story, due to the obvious nature is dangerous and can lead to conclusions so quickly that we

(continued)
Baseball

Pitcher Matt Hummel hails from Canada and found an interesting setup upon arriving at Marshall.

"I just started from a trainer to release," Hummel said. "That's a big difference, not knowing when you're going to go in and not being able to prepare like you normally would."

This right-hander was a starting pitcher at Dayton State College before shoulder surgery forced him to relocate.

"Other surgery, their goal is to find a place that suits you and make you better," he said. "The coaches here, I'm grateful for them giving me the chance to come here. I've met some good friends, and I've had a lot of fun."

He is a freshman for the Marshall, Hummel burst 4:1.11 ERA, pitched seven innings and joined the Herd from S tumultuous at USC. "I know exactly how to play it out there, a confidence, a sense of being ready to play."

Moore returns to the rotation for a Tuesday contest against the Herd. "I was able to understand how Plan B step works, how it is used properly, and that it does not prevent the transmission of sexually transmitted issues," she said.

The coach can be in the field playing or female belts must carry the following label: "Be sure for those under 15 years of age. Proof of age required. Not for sale where age cannot be verified." The package will also have a product code that prompts a cashier to request and verify the age of the purchaser.

The decision is at odds with an order issued by U.S. District Judge Robert Sweet in New York. On April 3, Sweet ruled that Plan B One-Step be made available to buyers of all ages, without a prescription, in 30 days.

The ruling was the result of a lawsuit brought by the Center for Reproductive Rights, which claimed that federal regulations were unfairly limiting access to a safe drug.

The data retrieved by the agency demonstrated that women 15 years of age and older were able to understand how Plan B step works, how to use it properly, and that it does not prevent the transmission of sexually transmitted disease," she said.

The coaches here, I'm grateful for them giving me the chance to come here. I've met some good friends, and I've had a lot of fun.

Moore said he spends his time playing or female belts must carry the following label: "Be sure for those under 15 years of age. Proof of age required. Not for sale where age cannot be verified." The package will also have a product code that prompts a cashier to request and verify the age of the purchaser.

The decision is at odds with an order issued by U.S. District Judge Robert Sweet in New York. On April 3, Sweet ruled that Plan B One-Step be made available to buyers of all ages, without a prescription, in 30 days.

The ruling was the result of a lawsuit brought by the Center for Reproductive Rights, which claimed that federal regulations were unfairly limiting access to a safe drug.

"The transition was ridiculous," Moore said. "I went into college as a pitcher, I didn't even know what I was going to be or just want to play."

During his freshman campaign Moore had to undergo Tommy John surgery. Unhappy with CofC, Moore returned to the tour team coach Jack in 1998, which allowed him to join the tour circuit. "I came, I took a visit to the school, and ever since then I just keep coming back," Moore said.

The last son of the squad also traveled an interesting route. Catcher Matt Kirkwood was the son of a Marshall Student, Leaving Kirkwood his time playing at Marshall. "The transition was ridiculous," Moore said. "I went into college as a pitcher, I didn't even know what I was going to be or just want to play."

During his freshman campaign Moore had to undergo Tommy John surgery. Unhappy with CofC, Moore returned to the tour team coach Jack in 1998, which allowed him to join the tour circuit. "I came, I took a visit to the school, and ever since then I just keep coming back," Moore said.

The last son of the squad also traveled an interesting route. Catcher Matt Kirkwood was the son of a Marshall Student, Leaving Kirkwood his time playing at Marshall. "The transition was ridiculous," Moore said. "I went into college as a pitcher, I didn't even know what I was going to be or just want to play."

During his freshman campaign Moore had to undergo Tommy John surgery. Unhappy with CofC, Moore returned to the tour team coach Jack in 1998, which allowed him to join the tour circuit. "I came, I took a visit to the school, and ever since then I just keep coming back," Moore said.

The last son of the squad also traveled an interesting route. Catcher Matt Kirkwood was the son of a Marshall Student, Leaving Kirkwood his time playing at Marshall. "The transition was ridiculous," Moore said. "I went into college as a pitcher, I didn't even know what I was going to be or just want to play."

During his freshman campaign Moore had to undergo Tommy John surgery. Unhappy with CofC, Moore returned to the tour team coach Jack in 1998, which allowed him to join the tour circuit. "I came, I took a visit to the school, and ever since then I just keep coming back," Moore said.