System of Arrangement: Files were to some extent arranged by a previous processor, Cora Teel, an archivist at Morrow Library who was also a member of the U.D.C. No finding aid was completed at that time, though. Her system of arrangement has been generally maintained. Materials are divided into series by specific Chapters, records, and UDC WV division organization materials.

BIOGRAPHICAL INFORMATION

An organization open to women who could prove their direct lineage to Confederate soldiers or Confederate supporters during the American Civil War of 1861-1865, the United Daughters of the Confederacy was founded in 1894 in an attempt to not only honor and memorialize the Confederacy, but to promote Lost Cause ideology and the Civil War as a struggle over states' rights. Daughters raised money to build monuments and to take care of Confederate veterans and their families, donated educational materials which coincided with their views of the Civil War (which they preferred to call "The War Between the States") and Southern history to schools and libraries, and worked to ensure the preservation of Confederate, often white, culture. The Daughters organized themselves into Chapters in cities and counties, often naming their Chapters after local or famous Confederate heroes. State and national UDC groups of elected officers held annual meetings, and the organization was increasingly popular among elite and upper-class Southern women during the first half of the twentieth century.¹ Because lineage had to be proven, the Daughters kept extensive genealogical records of Confederate veterans and their families, and before the advent of ancestry websites and services, the UDC was a popular organization for tracing a person's ancestors. As time passed, the UDC sought to honor its "Real Daughters" (those children of Confederate veterans) and later, its "Real Granddaughters" by creating special groups within the organization. As of the time of this writing, the West Virginia Division of the UDC is still active.

SCOPE AND CONTENT OF THE COLLECTION

The collection consists of materials from the West Virginia Division of the United Daughters of the Confederacy and includes material from individual city and county chapters, as well as the larger state organization. Series I contains information from individual chapters, including membership applications, demits (paperwork required for a member to transfer to a different chapter), minutes of meetings, chapter records, and a variety of printed material such as meeting pamphlets and newsletters. Some records of Children of the Confederacy chapters are also found in this series. The materials of the Huntington Chapter #150 were originally contained in a binder. The papers have been removed from the binder, but kept in their plastic sleeves. The Border Rangers Chapter #2580 materials were also originally contained within a binder as an organization booklet, but the papers have since been removed and placed in folders. Year books from the Stonewall Jackson Chapter #1333 were glued onto pages which were probably contained in a scrapbook at some point, but at the time of processing, the pages were no longer bound together and the year books were cut out due to deterioration of the paper to which they had been glued. Series II contains the records of a variety of WV Chapters. Similar records have been kept together and are divided by Chapter. These records include applications and demits, chapter member rosters, and individual member cards. Series III contains mainly WV Division records, and includes annual meeting programs, minutes, reports, and other materials related to the organization on a division, rather than chapter, level. Some of these materials were removed from pronged folders to prevent future rust damage from metal prongs. In other instances, original folders containing materials were kept, as they had lists of attendees written on them. Many of these materials have been arranged chronologically, although some organization by the previous archivist, Cora Teel, was maintained.
