Rafting on the Guyandotte

By Sam Bas

Jan 5, 1942

(Bk 1)

* It took 5-6 days, & about 6 men to push a large boat to Logan. They had to haul boats around the dam, or unload & carry the goods. Skids were put under the boats & all the men help put it over the dams. At other times they hired oxen, or made a ~~rod~~ windlass. Raftsmen often brought considerable quantities of ropes with them. Ropes were often wrapped around trees to chuck rafts by degrees to land them. One steered the boat, and about four pushed. They men started at upper end of boats & gradually walked back. They generally had pads on their shoulders to keep from hurting ~~their~~ ^{them} shoulders. In shoals, they often unloaded part of the goods to lighten the weight. It took about 6 days from Guyandotte to Logan.

A man named Chambers & another named Conley

Lester
Slave Lester of Logan. Mack ^{were raftsmen} Johnson had a store on East side below the Falls. Slave stopped & had 3-4 doz. eggs cooked & ate them all. Once a constable tried to arrest
him (Andy Dick, was constable) & others above Falls 200-300 yds.
Dick was shooting at him, as he swam. John Justice, Ben Justice, etc, were large men - almost giants. One of them brought down a whole bear - sold it in Guyandotte about 1875. My father served some at his hotel.
The Hotel stood on the bank of Guyan & Ohio River. Andy Dick wasnt afraid of anything. No one was arrested. The charge was for cutting the dam out.

Boats mostly came down empty.
Nothing but timber & coal to bring out. There was coal at Four mile. Coal was loaded on boats & floated down here.

Coal was wheeled out of the mines with wheel barrows. Much coal went to Inonton, Portsmouth & Cincinnati. I think they re-loaded at Guyandotte in barges for points down the river. It took a little more than a day from Logan to Guyandotte, 6-7 days back.

The mines were on the west side of Guyandotte above Branchland. They were just above the mouth of Four Mile. At Upper Two Mile the river bottom is a solid bed of coal. People, blacksmiths, etc. would pry up coal there to use at home. Upper 2 miles is two miles above Falls & a mile above West Hamlin. People used to hunt at Falls for silver. Walden Beech used to look for it. They mined coal there before Civil War. They never mined after the war. People cut the dams up & mines were opened at Logan or near it.

After Guyan Valley R. R. was built, mines were again opened at Four Mile. Coal was run by a large wire, in buckets, & dropped into ~~baskets~~ ^{cars}. They are still mining there. It is said to be a good quality of coal.

John Ray lived on Bear Creek. I believe he married a Johnson.

I suppose he is dead long ago. Matilda Johnson was from Tyler's Cr. She was wife of Joe Johnson of about Enon Church. She was grandmother of my son-in-law of B'ville. Flood Mc Kendree was called old "punkin head".

I remember Rev. Ben Perry very well when I was a boy.

Canoes were cut out of large poplar trees & dug out. Some times 2-3 families owned one in common. A foot adze was used to dig them out. A broad axe & foot ~~edge~~ adz were often skilfully used.

Goods not often used for long hauls, in canoes. Flat boats would haul more. Sometimes people would come down quite a distance - 20-30 miles for a barrel of salt or flour - say a day's trip.

Cooking was done on bank.

They took along skillets, pans, etc.

Shop *

My father & Tuck made shingles on Jones Creek. Corn bread bacon, pickled pork, etc. after the war. Hogs often large 500-600 lbs. Sides of 100 lbs. or more.

Potatoes. No canned goods. Often fished at night & had fish next day. Fried in bacon grease. Fished - 3-4 of them - till midnight. Used hook & line. Had a gun. Often killed ducks. I killed an eagle - bald eagle - just above Falls. It had been catching Lewis & Clark's geese. It measured 7 ft - on wings.

Women very modest. Wore long dresses. People scarce - 5-6 miles apart in some cases.

Comber Bias beartunted at Hart's Cr. They got a bear after the war & I ate some of it.

Winston Noel lived at Two Mile. Comber Bias lived at Fork of Two Mile - Bias Fork.
His wife was Polly Beach, ^{Sister} ~~Brother~~ to Walden Beach who was old & sometimes staid with them.
I was a young boy but was present when he died. Noel lived about $\frac{1}{2}$ mile from West Hamlin. & Charley Simpson lived just above him. I was present about when he died. He had several children.

Angeline m. Bobby Short

* Lived on Mud River on a large farm, about 3 miles above Hamlin.

Logan, if living.

Gunwales & lumber for flat boats was first squared & then sawed with whipsaws. One on top, the other below. Lumber was lined. Smoothed it with a hand plane. Square nails 6-8 in - 4 in with heads on them. Made at Trouton, Portsmouth or Cincinnati. Blacksmiths made them in emergencies.

Boats didn't often sink
Steamboat blew up ^{about} 1874,
at Guyandotte. Several lives lost. I forgot name of boat
It was a passenger boat. Some ones burned & taken to Riverside
Hotel, I heard.

Thousands of lines were on rafts time they jammed here about & went out. They broke cables 1 1/2" X 100 ft

Booms were a later development after rafts. Then timber was branded on both ends, by special branding hammers. I used one made in shape of a fish - It belonged to Gobel & Williams of Catlettsburg.

It was against the law to saw off brands - penitentiary offense. However, many were stolen, & taken up creeks, ^{backwater, etc.} kept a long time & then brought out & sold at mills. There were mills at Huntington.

There was a boom at the mouth of Mud also.

If brands were sawed off - it would show up fresh sawed. Both sides had trucks. They often sent men in skiffs to go up the branches. Billy Carroll lived at mouth of Mahone Cr.

John Webb owns the farm owned by Zach Neely in head of Buffalo. I owned it. Stonewall Shelton, etc.

Geo. W. Zircle lived ———? I knew him.
