Biographical Notes:

Lillian Morrison, later Lillian Pyle, was born about 1903. Sometime between 1920 and 1930 her name was changed to Lillian Pyle, though she was still living with her parents as late as 1940. In the censuses where this information was found, Pyle was recorded as working as a teacher and later a "sales lady" at a department store. Lillian's brothers Donald and Darrell Morrison served in World War I.

Scope and Content:

This collection is composed of letters and postcards to Lillian from her brothers Donald and Darrell while they served and trained for WWI. Included in the collection are Lillian's personal papers during her high school and early college years, such as programs, yearbooks, student publications, and grade reports. Also included are collected publications, clippings, and ephemera related to her brothers' service in WWI.

It is uncertain how the folder of Clendenning letters written during WWI were added to the collection, but they are from Robert Clendenning (serving in the war) to his father on the home front.
