Marshall University’s student group Medlife raised $1,293 Saturday during a 5k race. The money raised is to support two organizations, Lily’s Place in Huntington and a project in Peru, A House for Soledad.

There were 47 participants in the race that went around Marshall’s campus.

Marshall Medlife Community Outreach Coordinator Jillian Mullins said before race day only 28 people were registered to run.

“We expected a few people,” Mullins said. “But I did not expect 28 people to register day of, which is awesome.”

Barboursville resident and Marshall alumna Kim Legg participated in the race.

“I am a big supporter of Lily’s Place,” Legg said. “I know that they have worked really hard to start that, so I’ve donated before, and I was excited when I saw this. It was an opportunity to help.”

According to its website, Lily’s Place is a “recovery center dedicated to caring for the behavioral health of women born with prenatal exposure to drugs.”

Ernie Anderson, bottom, MC, speaks to the crowd Saturday in Foundation Hall.

The other organization, A House for Soledad, benefits a mother in Peru who was raped at a young age and her son. The funds will help build the new house.

Co-President of Marshall’s Medlife chapter Aaa Ramirez said she is passionate about the project because she is originally from Peru.

Medlife member Alyson Altizer joined Medlife this year and said they value medical outreach communities.

“I think that especially in rural areas there’s a real need for a medical outreach,” Altizer said. “There’s a pretty significant population in rural areas that don’t get the healthcare they need.”

Thundering Word performs in showcase

By HANNAH HARRAM

Marshall University’s Thun- dering Word speech and debate team performed in a showcase on Friday at Corbly Hall.

The showcase began with a meet-and-greet and overview of resources. Topics during the discussion included how to market oneself as an artist and how to be different in comparison to other companies. Chad Floyd, art student at Marshall, shared his insight Friday to students on how to be successful in the art field at the Be Your Own Boss panel.

“I was,” Floyd said. “I’m still not quite there yet—really I put myself on that level—but it’s still nice to go ahead and start thinking about it.”

Sandra Read, director of the School of Art and Design, said it was important for students to learn what types of jobs are available for artists.

“To be your own boss means you’re not passively waiting that you are creating your own opportunity,” Read said. “It’s a lot of pas- sions and prospective students think. ‘What kind of job am I going to get if I spend this much money and come to Marshall?’ And so, we work to articulate that. While you might not take the course or major in the degree, in the same field, they have a very, very successful and meaningful job.”

“This is the first year for the event,” Read said, “but it was the beginning to a series for the School of Art and Design.”

There will be another event in the fall called Find Your Own Boss, which will serve as a follow-up discussion to the BYOB event.

Softball sweeps MTSU, wins 10th straight

Marshall University softball won its 10th straight game and earned its second straight C-USA series sweep with a 6-1 win against Middle Tennessee State University.

HERDZONE

Marshall University’s football team and head coach Doc Holliday took the field Saturday at the Joan C. Edwards Stadium. The Herd then increased its lead in the third, getting on the board after a walk, fielder’s choice and single up the middle got the first Charlotte run. With two men on, the next batter cracked a three RBI double. Classmate Josh King also collected four RBI in a 2-for-4 day with a triple and double.

Baseball wins first C-USA series

HERDZONE

Marshall University offense and tremendous pitching and fielding play from the defense delivered Thundering Herd baseball (13-23, 4-17 C-USA) its first league series win, after a Sunday 9-6 victory over University of North Carolina at Charlotte (13-16, 7-13 C-USA) in the rubber match at Linda K. Epling Stadium.

Marshall grabbed the Friday night win 5-2 and dropped Saturday’s contest 4-5 before taking the series.

Senior TJ Diffenderfer continued his hot bat, pulling in four RBI in a 2-for-4 day with a triple. Classmate Josh King also collected four RBI in a 2-for-4 day with a triple and double.

The 49ers then fired back in the fifth, scoring three on as Diffenderfer connected again, off the wall, and back into play for his first three RBI double of the game. Mar

“Overall, it was a great team win from beginning to end. It was a big series win for us, and we’re just going to keep rolling from here on out.”

Marshall University head softball coach Chad Lewis was impressed with his team’s play against the Blue Raiders.

“I thought they played hard, I thought we needed to make the score 2-0. Zerkle then singled to score Cooper. In the third, sophomore Rebecca Mylonakis hit a sacrifice fly to score junior Shaelynn Broun.

After the Blue Raiders loaded the bases, junior Kadynna Greene scored after an error by the right fielder with Brinson at the plate. Brinson later came home off the bat of freshman Taylor McCord, who singled past right field to wrap up the scoring and the game at 6-3. Mar

Marshall sophomore pitcher Jordan Zerkle earned her 26th win of the year with an impressive outing. She struck out six batters and allowed just one run and one walk.

The best kind of surprise, though, is the only concert you need for a great package deal. One festival isn’t reason enough, but, if it’s a camping festival, factor in the fact that you won’t have to overstepped my expectations, because they know this is where the fans are. And typically if asked, they will talk up something that’s their favorite. That’s how I discovered Purity Ring, and now I can’t imagine that day, and typically if asked, they will talk up something that’s their favorite. That’s how I discovered Hozier, and about twenty other artists. If it’s a camping festival, factor in the fact that you won’t have to
