0341: U.S. Adjutant General Records on Microfilm, 1877

Marshall University Special Collections

Follow this and additional works at: https://mds.marshall.edu/sc_finding_aids

Part of the Military and Veterans Studies Commons, and the Military History Commons

Recommended Citation
U.S. Adjutant General Records on Microfilm, 1877, Accession No. 1981/08.0341, Special Collections Department, Marshall University, Huntington, WV.

This Finding Aid is brought to you for free and open access by the Library Special Collections at Marshall Digital Scholar. It has been accepted for inclusion in Guides to Manuscript Collections by an authorized administrator of Marshall Digital Scholar. For more information, please contact zhangj@marshall.edu, beachgr@marshall.edu.
Summary:

Title: U.S. Adjutant General Records on Microfilm
Span Dates: 1877
Creator: U.S. Government
Repository: Marshall University Special Collections, Morrow Library (Huntington, WV)
Processed by: Elizabeth James, 2019
Accession Number: 1981/08.0341
Date Completed: October, 2019
Access to Collection: Open
Extent: 11 reels
Donor: Purchase

Search Terms:

Military history
United States Government
United States Army

Biographical Notes:

“The Panic of 1877, a national economic recession, had a disastrous effect on the earnings of the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad. In response, the railroad announced a ten percent pay cut for all employees. The pay cut exacerbated earlier wage cuts, and the railroad firemen’s union called a strike which soon spread along the rails from Baltimore to Chicago.

The first violence occurred in West Virginia, when strikers in Martinsburg attempted to stop trains from running. Governor Mathews quickly mobilized the militia company in Martinsburg to control the strikers. The unit was commanded by Capt. Charles J. Faulkner Jr., and was made up largely of volunteers who were railroad workers themselves or related to railroad workers. Consequently, the militiamen were subjected to extreme pressure from relatives and fellow workers. The unit was assigned to guard a train that attempted to leave the railroad yard in Martinsburg. A striker fired upon the militiamen and was mortally wounded by return fire. The militia then withdrew and refused to take further action against the strikers.

Mathews sent another militia unit from Wheeling to the scene, and when the Wheeling unit also proved unable to handle the strikers he called upon President Rutherford B. Hayes for federal troops to preserve order. Mathews went to Martinsburg on July 18, and the federal troops arrived the next day. The federal troops were successful in ending the violence at Martinsburg, and the strike ended later in the summer of 1877. The strike showed that West Virginia authorities were ill-prepared to handle unrest among laboring groups and led to calls, mostly unheeded, for development of a professional national guard to control labor disturbances.”

Scope and Content:

This collection is composed of eleven reels of microfilm purchased from the National Archives catalogue of microfilmed government records. The reel title is as follows: “Letters Received by the Office of the Adjutant General Main Series, 1871-1880”. The material on the reels was originally taken from the following government record group: Records of the Adjutant General's Office, 1780's-1917, Record Group 94. The reels are reel numbers 347-357.

This collection consists of microfilm copies of papers, primarily letters and enclosures, reports, and other files, relating to the military operations of U.S. troops in connection with railroad labor disputes in West Virginia, Pennsylvania, Maryland, Illinois, Indiana, and other States, July -November 1877 (“Strike Papers”).

All scope and content information was taken from the stub record on the National Archives microfilm catalog by searching for the M666 publication number here: https://eservices.archives.gov/orderonline/start.swe?SWECmd=Start&SWEHo=eservices.archives.gov

Additional information about the larger collection can be gained by using the guide to the “Letters Received by the Office of the Adjutant General Main Series, 1871-1880”, located here: https://www.fold3.com/pdf/M666.pdf

Processing Notes:

This collection was already processed at the time the finding aid was created. No changes in folder content or name were made.

Preferred Citation:

U.S. Adjutant General Records on Microfilm, Accession No. 1981/08.0341, Special Collections Department, Marshall University, Huntington, WV.

Access and Use:

For more information or to use any collection, contact:
Special Collections, Morrow Library
Marshall University
One John Marshall Drive
Huntington, WV 25755
(304) 696-2343
speccoll@marshall.edu
<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Container</th>
<th>Contents</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Box 1</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Microfilm reels</td>
<td>Reels 347-357</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>