Biographical Notes:

Susan and Geoff Eacker were Rockefeller Foundation resident fellows in the humanities at the Marshall University Center for the State of Ethnicity and Gender in Appalachia (CSEGA) in the fall of 1997. The result of this fellowship was the exhibit, “Banjo Women in West Virginia and Eastern Kentucky” featuring the Eacker’s recordings of interviews with women banjo players West Virginia and Eastern Kentucky. Dr. Eacker earned her Ph.D. in history from Miami University in Oxford, Ohio. She also holds a B.A. and an M.A. in political science from Miami University. Dr. Eacker is an assistant professor of history at Morehead State University in Morehead, Kentucky where she teaches southern women’s history and oral history. Mr. Eacker is the Director of the Art Center at Miami University in Oxford, Ohio where he teaches fine wood working. He also makes and plays the five string banjo.
