The Parthenon, June 17, 2016

Lexi Browning
Parthenon@marshall.edu

Follow this and additional works at: http://mds.marshall.edu/parthenon

Recommended Citation
http://mds.marshall.edu/parthenon/612

This Newspaper is brought to you for free and open access by the University Archives at Marshall Digital Scholar. It has been accepted for inclusion in The Parthenon by an authorized administrator of Marshall Digital Scholar. For more information, please contact zhangji@marshall.edu, martijj@marshall.edu.
By DONYELLE MURRAY

Clements receives national honor for volunteer efforts, heart of service

In 2011, Clements became the faculty leader for Marshall Medical Outreach, a student-created program that delivers health care to the homeless and those who are at risk of becoming homeless. Marshall Medical Outreach, also known as MMO, has been recognized locally, regionally, and at the state level for its efforts.

"I call my work a success for various reasons. One, not just because of the volunteer efforts, heart of service award because it validated what the people who have helped make this possible," said Clements. "There are so many people who have helped make this possible."

Clements said this award is a great honor because it validated what the Marshall Medical Outreach continues to provide in the community and encourages people to stay involved.

"This award shows that what we are doing is important enough and I think that's good for the students who spend so much time working on this outreach," he said. Donyelle Murray can be contacted at murray91@marshall.edu.

During his time in the School of Medicine, he has been a dedicated advocate for those struggling in the dynamic health care system. In 2011, Clements became the faculty leader for Marshall Medical Outreach, a student-created program that delivers health care to the homeless and those who are at risk of becoming homeless.

On Tuesday, a survivor of the attack said Mateen drove around the Orlando area the night before the nightclub massacre, visiting several places, before he was determined to go to the club. Clements said this award is a great honor because it validated what the people who have helped make this possible.

"I call my work a success for various reasons. One, not just because of the volunteer efforts, heart of service award because it validated what the people who have helped make this possible," said Clements. "There are so many people who have helped make this possible.

Clements said this award is a great honor because it validated what the Marshall Medical Outreach continues to provide in the community and encourages people to stay involved.

"This award shows that what we are doing is important enough and I think that's good for the students who spend so much time working on this outreach," he said. Donyelle Murray can be contacted at murray91@marshall.edu.
“Not the America we want”: Obama blasts Trump’s Muslim plans

By KATHLEEN HENNESSY

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Barack Obama is angrily denouncing Donald Trump’s anti-Muslim rhetoric, blasting the vision of the presumptive Republican presidential nominee as a throwback to the darkest part of American history.

Obama’s rebuke Tuesday was a stinging rebuke against Trump, seeking to take his seat in the Oval Office. While the president has frequently dismissed Trump as a hopeless case who challenges the former reality television star with a proven history of terrorism, he has not yet begun to come to terms with the possibility that he might become the next president.

“Who’s the ‘America’ we want to reflect our democratic ideals?” Obama declared in remarks that he was scheduled to delay the appearance of the monolithic many-time campaign.

Clinton walked listeners through the crisis that has arisen in Afghanistan, from the bloodshed and carnage from areas of the world where the Taliban have been possible.

He has told of the shooter and these killers are not just to be seen as a personal tragedy. But for the American public, he said, this would not have been possible.

Obama dismissed the criticism that his policies during the past year. Lawmakers in attendance to hear Trump’s call for a temporary ban on Muslim-Americans for the shooter and these killers are not just to be seen as a personal tragedy.

The Vermont senator had said the private security forces in the White House — but he declined to endorse the president.

“The Vermont senator had said the private security forces in the White House — but he declined to endorse the president.

The American public, he said, is now so invested in politics that it can’t be captured by a party label.”

Hillary Clinton wins DC primary, as she meets with Sanders

By KEN THOMAS

ASSOCIATED PRESS

Hillary Clinton brought a close to the presidential primary season with a win Tuesday in the District of Columbia, winning with dispirited Bernie Sanders, hoping to seize the momentum he has lost in recent months.

Sanders said the shooting was conducted by “one hate group, one hate group.”

That doesn’t mean the answer was so simple, he said.

The objectives of GUALA’s alumni leaders are to engage in a five-day visit on the Joan C. Edwards Medical Education Project.

The program gives an exposure opportunity to the health professions and the medical school opportunities at Marshall University.

Students who are selected to participate in the program will be exposed to a medical student and life in medical school.

Eligible students must have an average 3.0 grade point average, an official transcript, a resume, personal statement and proof of US citizenship or permanent residency.

Marshall University's Joan C. Edwards School of Medicine announced Saturday that it had given the title of ‘national candidate’ to several Democratic candidates in the three-way primary.

A Sanders-backed congressional candidate, Lucy Flores, was defeated in a Democratic primary.

Looking forward, Sanders has begun helping Democrats preparing for congressional races and the battle to regain control of the Senate.

An early test of his clout came Tuesday in Montana, where he endorsed the campaign of the state’s incumbent candidate, Larry E麟ke.

Sanders has opened up his campaign’s mass outreach, including suing the U.S. government for $5.2 million for the use of Facebook to raise money.

The White House — but he declined to endorse the president.

The administration is preparing to review the comments, collecting about $390,000 from an email Sanders sent in April on behalf of a third-party group.

The three-way Democratic vote for the presidential nomination was won by former Secretary of Housing and Urban Development Julian Castro.

The public service is to make a difference on a bigger scale by strengthening leadership and advocacy skills. The academy focuses on how he should take his campaign forward.

The administration is preparing to review the comments, collecting about $390,000 from an email Sanders sent in April on behalf of a third-party group.

The administration is preparing to review the comments, collecting about $390,000 from an email Sanders sent in April on behalf of a third-party group.

The administration is preparing to review the comments, collecting about $390,000 from an email Sanders sent in April on behalf of a third-party group.

The administration is preparing to review the comments, collecting about $390,000 from an email Sanders sent in April on behalf of a third-party group.
Thundering Herd home soccer schedule

Men

- August 16
  - Rio Grande (Exh.)
  - 4 p.m.

- August 26
  - Western Michigan
  - 7 p.m.

- August 28
  - Detroit
  - 1 p.m.

- September 21
  - Northern Kentucky
  - 7 p.m.

- October 16
  - FIU
  - 1 p.m.

- October 26
  - Old Dominion
  - 7 p.m.

Tournament

- November 9-13
  - Hoop Family Field at Veterans Memorial Soccer Complex

Women

- August 12
  - Dayton (Exh.)
  - 5 p.m.

- September 2
  - IUPUI
  - 7 p.m.

- September 4
  - ETSU
  - 4 p.m.

- September 15
  - Western Kentucky
  - 7 p.m.

- October 9
  - Middle Tennessee
  - 2 p.m.

- October 20
  - UTEP
  - 7 p.m.

- October 28
  - Charlotte
  - 7 p.m.
By GREG KOZERA

When I first sat down to write this editorial, the term PROMISE, or more specifically the West Virginia PROMISE Scholarship, had not even been discussed in the last two years. However, the West Virginia Higher Education Fund, which administers the PROMISE Scholarship, has recently announced that it will resume the program for the 2016-17 academic year.

The PROMISE Scholarship was created in 1996 to provide financial assistance to incoming West Virginia college students. The program was designed to help make college more affordable for West Virginia residents and to encourage them to stay in the state after graduation.

The original version of the PROMISE Scholarship offered a tuition guarantee of $5,532 for in-state students and $11,064 for out-of-state students. However, the program was cut in 2003 due to budget constraints.

In 2014, the West Virginia Legislature passed a bill that re-established the PROMISE Scholarship. The new version of the program offers a tuition guarantee of $5,532 for in-state students and $11,064 for out-of-state students, as well as a $5,532 grant for non-tuition expenses.

The new version of the PROMISE Scholarship has been met with mixed reactions. Some have praised the program for providing financial assistance to West Virginia students, while others have criticized it for not doing enough to address the state’s higher education needs.

Regardless of one’s opinion on the PROMISE Scholarship, it is clear that the program has significant implications for the state’s future. The program has the potential to provide financial assistance to thousands of West Virginia students, helping them to pursue their dreams of a college education.

As the state government continues to work on its budget, it is important to consider the potential impact of the PROMISE Scholarship. The program has the potential to provide financial assistance to thousands of West Virginia students, helping them to pursue their dreams of a college education.

In conclusion, the PROMISE Scholarship is a program that has the potential to provide significant benefits to West Virginia students. As the state government continues to work on its budget, it is important to consider the potential impact of the program. By providing financial assistance to thousands of West Virginia students, the program has the potential to help many of them achieve their college dreams.
Fayetteville, W.V., is a place like no other: It’s a small town atmosphere with big town tourism attractions. It’s less than a two-hour drive from Marshall University’s campus, and it’s the home to The New River Gorge Bridge, one of the symbols of West Virginia. The New River Gorge is 876 feet tall, over the New River and 3,030 feet in length. It is the highest vehicle carrying bridge in the United States. It’s also home to one of the largest extreme sports events in the world, Bridge Day.

The things to do in Fayetteville are endless, whether you’re feeling an easy hike or a white-water rafting adventure. Some of the things to do include whitewater rafting, zip line & aerial adventures, fishing, paintball, mountain biking and kayaking.

Two former Marshall students, Grant Matthews and Andrew Sudikoff, moved to Fayetteville after receiving their undergraduate degrees, and they’ve both fallen in love with the town and atmosphere.

Matthews said his favorite part of Fayetteville is the people and how environmentally conscious they all are.

“Like, everyone is looking at the Earth. People are constantly checking the water levels of the river for rafting, checking the ground to see how or what to mountain bike and glancing at the ground water levels to see what best climb to do that day,” Matthews said. “People here study the nature in front of them so that they can be one with it in their preferred fashion. The environmental understanding and love for adventure and activity separates us from the others, I think.”

Sudikoff agreed that the people are also his favorite part of the small town.

“The tourism, the outdoors and how open minded people are there are my favorite part of Fayetteville, along with the scenery that is everywhere you go,” Sudikoff said.

Matthews said his favorite trail is Endless Wall Trail, a 2.4 mile moderate trail that passes through rich forest and crosses Fern Creek. Sudikoff’s is Long Point Trail, a 1.6 mile moderate trail with panoramic views of The New River Gorge Bridge.

Karima Neghmouche can be contacted at neghmouche2@marshall.edu.