THE LETTERMEN

... Tony Butala, Jim Pike and Gary Pike

Trio to perform here

"The Lettermen" will present a concert March 5 at Memorial Fieldhouse. Their appearance is sponsored by Student Government and replaces plans for Winter Weekend. Information about time and tickets will be announced later this week.

"The Lettermen" trio was formed in 1961 and since then has appeared at more than 1,200 colleges throughout the country. They are currently on their twentieth cross-country tour.

The group has made 23 albums. Their first single recording, "The Way You Look Tonight" has sold more than a million copies. The group — Tony Butala, Jim Pike and Gary Pike — have stayed with the old standards instead of "rock 'n' roll" or folk songs, but they add a new instrumentation.

Contrary to most vocal groups, they all have the same voice range and interchange their parts. Each member of the group is also a soloist.

In addition to the college circuit, "The Lettermen" have been a nightclub attraction in Las Vegas, Miami, Chicago and many other cities.

Woodrow Wilson Foundation picks 2 for honorable mention

By GINNY PITT
Managing Editor

Two Marshall students have received honorable mention in the Woodrow Wilson National Fellowship Foundation competition.

Edith Christine Maynard, Verdunville senior, and Linda A. Handloser, Huntington senior, were named to the Honorable Mention list Friday by the Foundation. Miss Maynard received mention in history and Miss Handloser in chemistry.

There were 1,106 Woodrow Wilson Designates this year selected from 11,704 candidates nominated last October. Marshall is the only school in West Virginia to receive honorable mentions. Wheeling College has two designates—William J. Gallagher in English and Richard P. Pizuto in philosophy—the only winners in the state.

A list of designates and the 1,111 names of the students receiving honorable mention is sent to every graduate dean in the United States and Canada with the recommendation that these students be considered for fellowship support.

Last year 85 per cent of the 1,124 designates received financial awards from the graduate schools of their choice; the rest were supported by Woodrow Wilson Foundation funds.

MU site of '70 conference

By CATHY HART
Staff Reporter

Marshall was selected as the site for the 1970 Mid-American Leadership Conference at this year's conference held Feb. 14-15, at Miami University.

Alumni Director, Harry Sands, and Don Foose, assistant alumni director, and six Marshall students attended the conference which is sponsored by the MAC alumni directors. In addition to the MAC schools, the University of Indiana and Eastern Michigan were also represented.

Marshall students who were chosen by Student Government to attend the conference were: Gordon Boggs, Huntington sophomore; Jane Braley, Huntington senior; Karen Gainer, Charleston sophomore; Jocelyne McCall, Glen Ellyn, Ill. sophomore; Cathy Perry, Charleston sophomore, and Madeline Stover, Beckley sophomore.

The delegates attended either a session on "The Ins and Outs of a Senior Class Program" or

"Founding and Developing an Undergraduate Alumni Association (UAA) Program."

In the senior class program, the students were told that the 1969 senior class at Ohio University have pledged over $40,000 for scholarships for the children of this class and for the library.

"The session on 'Founding and Developing an Undergraduate Alumni Association Program' left our students really impressed and enthusiastic," Mr. Sands said. "We've been watching the other MAC undergraduate activities for the past three years. We'd like to see it established on our campus before this school year ends."

"We learned a lot about this new program," Miss Gainer explained. "If the students have the interest, it will go over real well and involve a lot more students in campus activities."

"It gave me valuable ideas to bring back to Marshall," said Miss Perry, "By hearing what the association has done on other campuses, it's hard to imagine how we've gotten along without it. As Marshall grows, we need an organization like this."

"This group, working with the Alumni Office, can help bring our graduates back for campus activities," said Miss Stover.

"I think it (an undergraduate alumni program) would do a lot of good on our campus," explained Boggs, "We're always so tied up with politics and red tape, this program will be an activity for students who don't want to go through politics to belong to a campus organization."

According to Mr. Sands, this organization is absolutely not political. "If you're interested in improving the University, there are many projects that UAA can offer."

"The delegates from the other MAC schools are anxious to visit Marshall's campus," Mr. Sands said. The UAA is now in effect at Bowling Green, Miami University and Western Michigan. The program is also on other campuses under different names.

Spring carnival planned for Commitment to MU

By NANCY MILLER
Staff Reporter

A spring carnival is the fund-raising idea decided upon by the student committee for "Commitment to Marshall" at a meeting held at 5 p.m. Thursday in the North Parlor, Old Main.

Possible locations for the carnival include the Intramural Field, where a lighting system would be necessary, or Gullickson Hall in the event of bad weather.

Hugh Stillman, acting director of development to President Roland H. Nelson Jr., said plans will not be definite until approved by Dr. Nelson and Student Government.

Mike Farrell, South Hall resident director, was appointed coordinator of the event tentatively scheduled for April 24-26.

Carnival activities discussed include rides, booths and refreshments. "The objective of the spring carnival is to provide opportunities for individuals to participate. In this way we can inculcate loyalty to Marshall," said Mr. Stillman.

"No goal has been set yet. The immediate objective is participation and loyalty as undergraduate alumni that will continue to be equally strong after graduation,"

Mr. Stillman added. "In order to achieve the 'met-roversity', students must be not only Greeks, independents or commuters, but Marshall students," said Diane Rigney, Huntington sophomore and Speaker's Bureau president.

According to Miss Rigney, the following speakers will participate: Linda Pender, Fairmont junior; Alison Alexander, Huntington sophomore; Dave Montgomery, Huntington sophomore; Susan Hunter, Huntington junior; Helena Disco, Chapmanville junior and Speaker's Bureau vice president, and Miss Rigney.

Attending were: Carole Sowards, St. Albans junior and president of the Inter-dorm Council; Mike Farrell; Carey Foy, Huntington senior and student body vice president; Jane Clay, Charleston senior and student body president; Rich Warden, Sprague junior and Inter-Fraternity Council president, and Hugh Stillman, general chairman for the "Commitment to Marshall" campaign and acting director of development to President Nelson.

A meeting to develop further plans will be held at 5 p.m. Thursday at the North Parlor, Old Main.

Mr. Stillman added.

Discrimination study started

The eight-member committee developed by the Student Conduct and Welfare Committee to consider aspects of racial discrimination on campus met Friday to begin "brainstorming" the problem.

"Brainstorming," according to Chairman Pro Tem Richard W. Waite, is the method by which the committee hopes to find the source of the problem. The committee will attempt a problem-solving method of doing this. Mr. Waite is also the director of the Counseling and Testing Center.

First, members will explore the background of discrimination at MU. After discussing the opinions of all members, they will determine their objective, then label the problem as they believe it exists.

"There is a great deal of difference in the way we see things," stated Mr. Waite. "For this reason the composition of the committee is good. Next Friday we hope to come up with as many solutions as we can, and to explore all possibilities no matter how crazy they may seem."

Committee members are Richard Warden, Sprague, junior, and Barbara Farrell, Huntington senior, representing the Interfraternity and Panhellenic Councils.

Nadine Warren, Williamson junior; Tom Woodruff, Charleston junior; Milton Cole, South Charleston senior; John Shellcroft, Ashland, Ky., sophomore; Katura Carey, Portsmouth, Va., junior; and Norwood Bentley, Huntington senior.

The committee will meet weekly for a month, then present its findings to a meeting of the Student Conduct and Welfare Committee.

"Nursery school should be a child's paradise with its ups and downs."

This is the view of Miss Elizabeth Adella Strouss, associate professor of home economics.

Miss Strouss is director of Child Care and Development 303 which is taught to home economics and kindergarten-primary majors. The course, which has been in existence for 26 years, is designed to help students see the various phases of child development and maturation.

Thirteen pre-school youngsters, seven boys and six girls, ranging from 2½ to 3½ years old, are supervised and guided by students from 9 a.m. to 12 a.m. at the Marshall Nursery School. They come from the Huntington area and are chosen by application according to the age group that is needed.

"These children are learning to talk, express themselves, use their muscles in different ways, and to adjust to new people both adults and their own age group," commented Miss Strouss. "We let each child develop at his own rate without pushing him. He's learning so much about his world, and no pressure should be applied."

During the three hours students assist the children in such activities as reading, coloring, painting, playing with dolls and blocks, and just basically getting to know them. "We try to give students as much experience as we can with children," said Miss Strouss.

Around 11:30 they are served dinner. At this time the students see how youngsters eat without being pressured. They are not required to eat everything, but they must at least taste their food. They don't have to come to dinner, but in this case they forfeit their meal.

"Some students eat with them, and they find that it is better not to talk to the child about food. The girls set an example for the children, because they learn by imitation," Miss Strouss remarked.

Miss Strouss has noticed that it is not unusual for one child to knock another one down. "It's their way to say 'I like you.'" They are too young to know any other way of expressing friendship. "We never make one child apologize to another, because if they did, they wouldn't mean it. They are too young to understand. After giving them the proper guidance, they finally get the idea. But, it takes repeating and repeating and patience."

"You almost have to see them operating to understand. Children change awfully fast. They go through negative and cooperative stages, and just like adults, they sometimes get up on the wrong side of the bed."

During her 25 years in this program, Miss Strouss has seen her former nursery school students advance to physicians and lawyers as well as members of other professional organizations. They are now scattered all over the United States.

Senior Senate seat now filled

David Arritt, Fayetteville senior, has been appointed senior class senator replacing Tom Wilkinson, Charleston, who was excluded due to excessive absences last semester, according to senior class president Richie Robb, South Charleston.

There are still five vacant Senate seats to be filled. Barclay Brown, Huntington sophomore, was also removed for excessive absences. Freshmen senators removed for failure to meet the 2:00 overall grade average required in the Student Government Constitution are: Sam Quesenberry, Beckley; John Marshall, Middletown, Ohio; Thea Hamrick, Huntington, and Kathy VanLeur, Louisville, Ky. Quesenberry and Marshall are freshman class president and vice president, respectively.

Laidley Dance Friday

Laidley Hall will sponsor a dance from 9 p.m. to 1 a.m. Friday at the Hotel Prichard, according to Susan Boyles, Laidley Hall president and Sistersville senior. "The dance will be formal, and the theme is 'Mardi Gras,'" she said. "We plan to get The Satisfied Minds to play." West Hall is also planning a dance for later on in the year, according to Patricia Shelor, Salem, Va., junior and first vice president of West Hall.

Tuition Due Friday

Tuition for second semester must be paid by Friday according to Joseph S. Soto, vice president of business and finance. The cashier's office in Old Main is open from 8 a.m. to 4:15 p.m.

229 Complete Requirements

Two hundred twenty-nine students completed requirements for degrees in January. Those students receiving bachelor's degrees in each of the colleges number: 88 in Teachers College, 104 in the College of Arts and Sciences and 4 in Applied Science. Thirty-three graduates completed requirements for Master's degrees.

Promoted to Lieutenant

Victor F. Kelbaugh, 24, son of Mr. and Mrs. Emmett V. Kelbaugh, 1341 Greenup Ave., Dunbar, was promoted to Army first lieutenant Jan. 5 in Vietnam, where he is a postal officer in Company A, 75th Support Battalion, 5th Infantry Division (Mechanized). Lieutenant Kelbaugh received his M.S. degree from Marshall in 1967.

Bid date to be set Monday for communications center

Final bid date for Marshall's new communications center will be set Monday in Charleston by the West Virginia Board of Education, according to Joseph S. Soto, Vice President of business and finance.

Low bid will be chosen in mid-April with construction beginning in June at an estimated cost between $700,000 and $750,000.

Mr. Soto said $750,000 has already been allocated for the building and the cost should be around 94 per cent of this sum. If no bids are low enough, they will all be rejected and a new bid date set by the board of education.

The two-story building will be located east of Stewart H. Smith Hall and will house WMUL-TV and Radio, educational television facilities, and an audio-visual center. A walkway will connect the two buildings above ground and the center's basement will open to Smith Hall's driveway.

Civil Defense course offered

A fallout shelter analysis course is being offered by Marshall University to area architects and engineers beginning today, according to Cecil H. Russell, director of civil defense.

The 15-week course, offered in colleges and universities throughout the U. S., deals in radioactive fallout protection and shelter construction methods. Classes will meet every Wednesday from 6:30 to 10:30 p.m.

Instructors include Samuel T. Stinson, associate professor of engineering and T. W. Olson, assistant professor of engineering. There is no tuition and reference materials are provided.

"Through an initial survey, we found all over the country huge deficits of not only shelters, but men capable of designing and constructing them," said Mr. Russell.

Branch Enrollment Increased

Branch college enrollment shows an increase of 143 over January, 1968, according to Registrar Luther E. Bledsoe. Logan Branch College reports an increase of 106 with 260 full time students and 147 part-time. Williamson Branch College has an enrollment of 234 compared to 228 during the spring semester of 1968. There are 174 full time students and 60 part-time. Kanawha Valley Graduate Center reports an enrollment of 78 compared to 47 last year. Mr. Bledsoe explained that these students are all part-time and can receive credit from WVU or Marshall.

SAE SLATE NAMED

ZBT INSTALLS OFFICERS

Ohio study open to students

A program for minority group students interested in a career in law will be conducted this summer at the University of Cincinnati.

The purpose of the program is to increase the number of Negro and other minority group students in legal education.

The program begins June 23 and continues through Aug. 1. It is open to 40 college seniors or graduates who are considering the possibility of entering law school. Application forms are available from Dr. Simon D. Perry, professor of political science.

This summer's program will be sponsored by the Universities of Cincinnati, Kentucky, Louisville and Ohio State University with the program to operate in Cincinnati. It is intended to place Negro and other minority group students in any law school, not just the above four, and to assist in placement of students who did not score well on the Law School Admission Test (LSAT).

Course of study in the six-week program concentrates on the necessary skills for competitive law study and includes the following courses: criminal law, legal research and writing, documentary operation of commercial transactions and reading comprehensive in the context of legal materials.

Applications will be received until May 1 but students are urged to submit their applications now along with a college transcript and a letter of recommendation from a college professor.

Alumni office sponsors tour

Plans are being made for an Hawaiian tour this summer, according to the Office of Alumni Affairs.

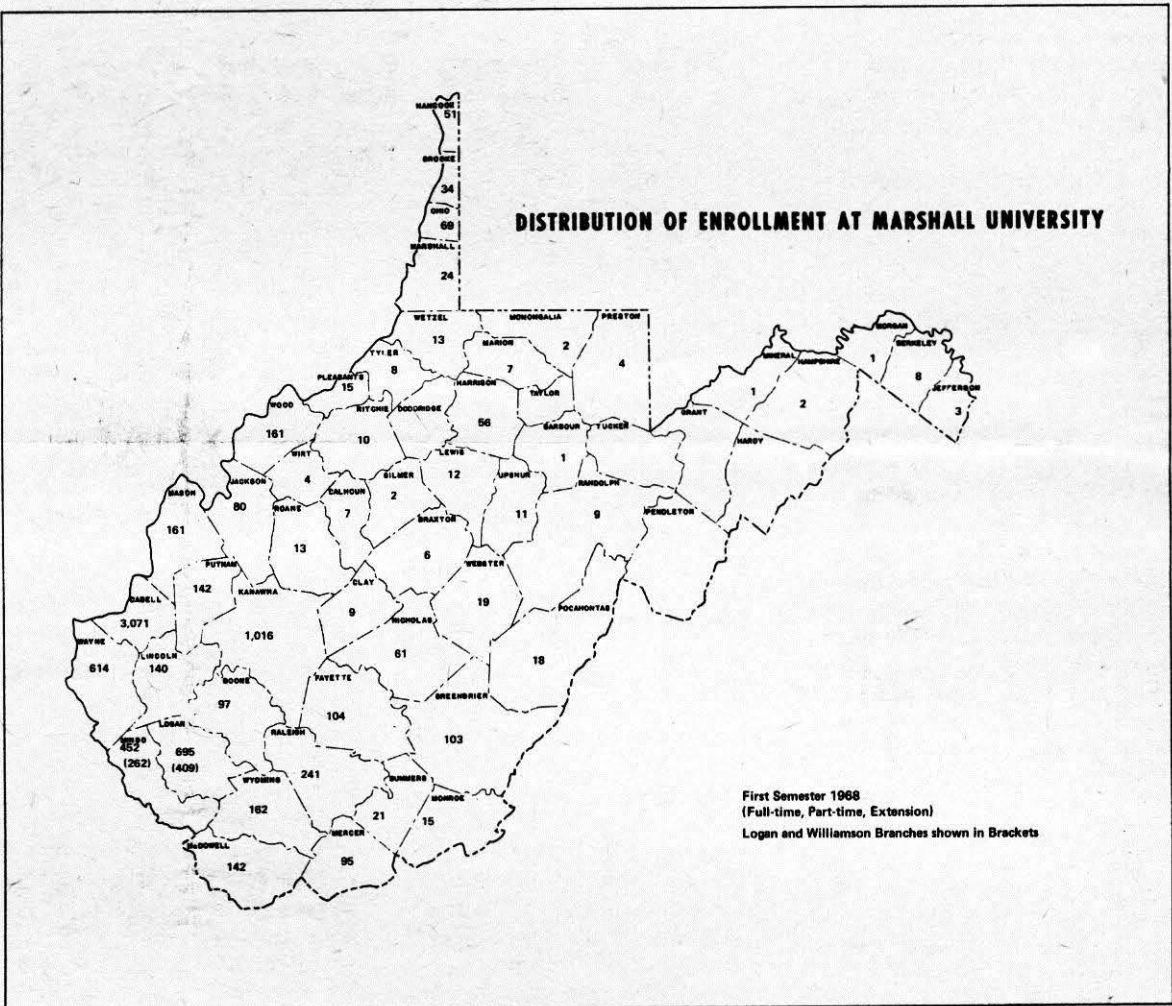

The tour under consideration includes three days and nights in Las Vegas, seven days and nights in Honolulu and three days and nights in San Francisco. The cost is approximately $650.00 from Pittsburgh leaving Sunday, July 27 and returning Sunday, August 10.

Marshall alumni and friends interested in the tour should contact the Marshall Alumni Office. If enough interest is expressed to make the tour practical, definite plans will be made.

Harry M. Sands, director of alumni affairs and tour leader of the European trip, said, "I would love to go. This is just another one of the Alumni Office services to provide memorable vacations."

Mr. Sands explained that the Alumni Office will make the basic arrangements and plan activities in order to receive discounts but that the trip would be more independent than the European tour. Everyone will have a chance to be more on his own.

Home tilt is last one for seniors

By RON JAMES
Sports Co-Editor

Jim Davidson . . . Dan D'Antoni . . . the last of MU's "iron-man five" play their final home game tonight at 8 p.m. against the University of Toledo Rockets.

John Mallett, the big reserve center, will also be appearing in his last college basketball game at Memorial Field House.

All three of the departing seniors have enjoyed two excellent seasons, along with a very disappointing one this year. Marshall is currently in the conference cellar with a 1-8 record and is 7-14 overall.

Davidson and D'Antoni were starters on Marshall's 1967 and 1968 National Invitation Tournament teams. The 1967 team finished fourth and set an NIT scoring record against Nebraska in defeating them 119-88.

Mallett played behind Bob Allen his sophomore and junior years and the highlight of his career came when he tipped in the winning bucket against a very strong Morehead quintet.

Coach Ellis Johnson said, "They have been important to us in a couple of excellent years. I hope everyone comes out and gives them the tribute they deserve."

The Toledo Rockets, picked to finish first in the MAC by pre-season pollsters, got off to a bad start and are now fifth in the league with a 4-5 record. But according to Rocket coach Bob Nichols they have played "real good basketball" their last three or four games.

Toledo is led by senior center Steve Mix and senior guard John Rudley. Mix is leading the team in both scoring and rebounding, averaging about 21 points and 12 rebounds per contest. Rudley is speedy and quick-handed and almost always has a hard fought individual battle with D'Antoni.

There will be three high school basketball prospects attending the game. One of them is D'Antoni's younger brother Mike. He is one of the most wanted basketball prospects in the state.

Others visiting the game will be Roy (Skip) Wiegand of Louisville, Ky., and Tom Neal of St. Albans.

Awards for four intramural sports will be made at halftime of the game.

Kappa Alpha Order will get the intramural football championship trophy and South Hall will receive the soccer trophy.

Receiving the cross-country trophy will be the DI's.

Roger James, who won the foul-shooting contest for Tau Kappa Epsilon, will accept that trophy.

PLEDGES INITIATED

Sigma Sigma Sigma initiated 13 freshmen Sunday. Debbie Chambers, Huntington, was honored for the highest scholastic average and best pledge scrapbook. Vickie Gall, Alexandria, Va., was named model pledge.

ALDRED TO SPEAK

Francis K. Aldred, associate professor of history, will speak on "Southeast Asia," Feb. 26 at 9:15 in the Campus Christian Center.

FORMER MU BASEBALL STAR BOB LEMLEY
. . . A Cincinnati Reds "hope" for the future

Lemley's dream: the 'big leagues'

By ROGER HENSLEY
Sports Writer

From Little League to professional baseball is a long hard road, but how many Little Leaguers dream of someday walking that road?

For Bob Lemley, former Marshall star, the trip took some 12 years of constant competition to prepare himself to play the caliber of baseball found only in the big leagues.

While at Marshall, Bob earned three varsity letters in baseball and was named to the All-MAC second team his junior and senior years.

After graduating from MU last year, Bob signed with the Cincinnati Reds and was sent to their class A farm team in Sioux Falls, S. D.

"The main difference in college and pro ball is pitching and better defense," said Lemley, "You also have to make an adjustment to playing everyday."

At Sioux Falls the schedule consists of a 70-game season, most of which are crowded into the three summer months. The adjustment to playing everyday came easier for Bob than it did for a lot of others.

For the last few seasons he has been playing approximately 50 games a year including the 30-game schedule at MU in the spring plus an additional 20 games in the summer for Twentieth Street Bank of the Huntington Industrial League.

Baseball has played a major role in Bob Lemley's life. He played four years of Little League followed by Babe Ruth League and later high school ball at Huntington East, where he was selected to the All-State team his senior year.

Former East coach, Raymond Jordan, calls Bob, "the best player to come out of East in many years, what he lacks in hitting he makes up in hustle and he is a very good glove man."

Although he is happy to be playing in the Reds' farm system, Bob said, "It's my main aspiration to play for the Reds. I realize that it takes a lot of time, but I want a chance to try."

MU wrestlers to face Eagles

Marshall University's wrestlers will meet Morehead State University today at 6 p.m. in Memorial Field House in the last regular season match of the year.

MU's grapplers own an impressive 38-0 victory over the Kentuckians in an earlier match.

The match, which is the preliminary event to the Marshall-Toledo basketball game, is the last until conference tournaments Feb. 28 to March 1 at Toledo, Ohio.

When asked what kind of chance MU has in the tournaments, Coach Bill Cyrus said, "We're considered low team in the conference. We've only been out of the cellar a few times. We're not strong."

However, Coach Cyrus said, "The team has worked hard this year and although we don't have any strong contenders for a championship there's always a chance."

Tutoring program used by gridgers

By TIM BUCEY
Sports Co-editor

Unlike the majority of students, the football players' time is consumed by practice sessions and curfews which leaves little time for studying.

Because of this, athletes have a problem keeping caught up in their school work, so the football staff has set up a tutoring program for their players.

"We feel to have good football players, they have to have good grades to stay in school," Assistant Coach Jim (Shorty) Moss, who is head of the tutoring program said.

The subjects in which tutors are employed during one night each week include math, English, business, biology and Spanish.

The football staff takes an active part in the academic standing of the players, especially the freshmen.

"It's our business to know what a boy is doing in class," Moss related.

Every two weeks the players are issued cards to take to their instructors. The professors check the grade the student currently has in the class, his attitude, and number of class cuts.

"If the player is failing," Coaching Moss explained, "we find out why he is failing and recommend a tutor."

Faculty helps

"We have had a great deal of cooperation from the faculty in this program, which we appreciate very much," the coach added.

"The program is geared mainly for freshmen to get them over the hump in their first year, but there were approximately a dozen varsity players being tutored last semester," Coach Moss explained, "and more than half of the freshmen."

According to the coach, these tutoring programs are available in all the major universities.

"Most major schools hire a 'brain coach' who is in charge of all athletes in that school and is sort of a guidance counselor," Moss said. "We'd like to have one here to take the burden off the coaches, but there are things which we need more than that right now."

The tutors are students who are majors in the field and are looking for a little extra money.

Financing of the program comes from the athletic department.

Former Coach Charlie Snyder had a similar program in which it was mandatory for an athlete to meet during certain hours to study or receive help from tutors, but under the new system it is not mandatory but the athletes are encouraged to take advantage of the opportunity.

Tutors get extra money

Besides aiding the athletes, it has also given the tutors extra money and experience.

Judy Judd, Tacoma, Washington, senior, who was a tutor last semester accepted the job because, "I thought it might be good teaching experience, since I am in Teachers College and haven't done my student teaching, yet."

Miss Judd, who is an English major, said, "I usually work with one to three men at a time, but early in the semester there were as many as six or seven at the sessions."

One scheduled session

There is only one scheduled session per week for each subject, but Miss Judd said she usually works with the men three or four times a week, when they call for extra help.

"It's a very rewarding job, and I think I'm speaking for all the tutors," Miss Judd related. "These guys are all good to work with and they're willing and they cooperate. They don't ask us to do the work for them."

The football staff is the only staff in the athletic department that has set up this type program for its athletes.

Assistant Basketball Coach Larry McKenzie said, "We do not have a tutoring program per se, but there are certain professors who volunteer their services to aid our boys who may need help in certain areas."
