Students cast ballots today for officers, amendments

Voting will be today for class officers in three polling places from 8-4 p.m. The polling places are in the basement of the Student Union, the lounge of South Hall, and the first floor lounge of Smith Hall.

Any student properly registered may vote in any one of the three polling places. Only those students registered may vote.

Voting will be done by IBM card. Each voter will be given a card according to the constituency in which he is registered.

Students will also be voting on nine amendments to the Student Body Constitution on paper ballots.

Graduating seniors will be allowed to vote for these amendments, student body president and vice president and constituency senators. They may not vote for class president and vice president.

The constituencies and their allowed number of representatives are as follows:

Greek (Interfraternity) — four representatives.

Greek (Panhellenic) — two representatives.

Interdormitory (men)—two representatives.

Interdormitory (women)—three representatives.

Transient—16 representatives.

Unaffiliated—one representative.

A question was raised by the Student Court Tuesday night whether or not the transient constituency and the unaffiliated constituency should be one constituency instead of two.

According to the court, in a concensus read at the meeting, the amendment voted on last year that changed the election procedure to its present form provided for the transient and unaffiliated constituencies to be one constituency.

The registration forms this year have transient constituency listed separately from the unaffiliated constituency.

Nelson approves recognition for SDS

By SUZANNE WOOD
Editor-in-Chief

Recognition has been granted to Students for a Democratic Society by President Roland H. Nelson Jr.

The final decision came Tuesday, several months after SDS first submitted its petition to the Student Conduct and Welfare Committee which voted 5-2 to approve recognition.

Dr. Nelson said he had received a petition from 700 students favoring the recognition of SDS. He also has received several petitions from groups in the Huntington community which expressed their opposition.

"One views the letters and suggestions as indicating interest," said Dr. Nelson, "but internal matters have to be decided by those responsible for the decisions in the university community."

Dr. Nelson said both he and the committee had to consider two key questions: (1) Does SDS have legitimate purposes? (2) Do they agree to abide by the rules and regulations set up for university organizations?

Dr. Nelson pointed out that recognition of any campus group, including SDS, does not necessarily mean a sanction of the principles of the organization.

He noted that both of the requirements for recognition had been met by the local chapter. Some delay in Dr. Nelson's decision was due to time consumed in making a slight revision in the SDS constitution.

That section of the constitution makes a provision for a distinction between those affiliated and those not affiliated with the national SDS chapter.

The amendment reads as follows:

"Membership in the Marshall University chapter of SDS is limited to students faculty and staff of MU. Membership shall be divided into two classifications:

A. Members of the Marshall chapter who are also members of the national SDS chapter. Only members of the national chapter may vote on national questions.

B. Members of the Marshall chapter who are not members of the national SDS."

Dr. Nelson said there is nothing in the SDS charter which indicates to him the advocacy of illegal acts or violence.

He commented on SDS's being the object of criticism as anti-American and destructive.

"I don't think it's fair to single out SDS," Dr. Nelson said. "The facts are that fraternities, for instance, have been known to destroy property; other students have destroyed things. Does this make them un-American?"

Dr. Nelson said that every recognized group is expected to comply with the rules set up in the Student Handbook and is subject to the penalties which follow in case of a violation.

David Kasper, president of SDS, is doing his student teaching and was unavailable for comment. But Danie Stewart, Barboursville senior and a member of the group, expressed his feelings about the recognition.

"We feel we owe some responsibility to those 700 students to justify their confidence that we have something to contribute to the university," he said.

Honors Convocation Thursday

The seventh annual Honors Convocation will be Thursday at 11 a.m. in Old Main Auditorium, and will be followed by a luncheon in the downstairs of the University Dining Hall.

President Roland H. Nelson Jr., will be the principal speaker. His topic will be "Liberal vs. Professional Education—a Spurious Argument."

Approximately 400 students are to be honored at the conconvocation, according to Dr. Charles H. Moffat, chairman of the Honors Committee and professor of history.

These will include students who have earned credit in honors courses within their respective departments, and those who have been enrolled in the two Interdisciplinary Honors Seminars, said Dr. Moffat.

Students enrolled in the Departmental Honors Program are: Elizabeth Beale, Huntington senior, English; Mary Copley, Huntington senior, Bible; Louise Currutte, Ashland junior, English; Jane Henderson, Hurricane senior, English; Lynda Morris, Huntington senior, political science; Edith Maynard, Verdenville senior, social studies; Paul Patton, Huntington junior, sociology; Ginny Pitt, Huntington junior, journalism; and Kathleen Rowe, Ceredo senior, Spanish.

Others who will receive recognition will be students in the undergraduate colleges who have earned a 3.5 or better average during at least one of the past two semesters, said Dr. Moffat.

He added that special mention will be made of students who are members of departmental honor societies. This includes about 15 departments.

Also to attend the assembly are 19 nominees for the Woodrow Wilson Fellowship, 4 nominees for the Danforth Fellowship, and representatives from 20 high schools.

The Rev. Robert Cook, minister of St. John's Episcopal Church, will deliver the invocation and benediction, while music will be furnished by the Marshall Symphonic Choir.

The luncheon speaker will be Dr. Donald N. Dedmon, dean of the College of Arts and Sciences. His topic will be "Liberal Education—Revolution and Counter-revolution."

Those invited to the luncheon are students enrolled in the Interdisciplinary Seminars, the departmental Honors students, and the nominees for the Woodrow Wilson and Danforth Fellowships.

Donovan new IMPACT speaker

Dr. Bernard Donovan, superintendent of schools in New York City, will appear during IMPACT week, according to coordinator John Masland, Vent-nor, N. J., senior.

Dr. Donovan is scheduled to speak April 15 at 8 p.m. in Old Main auditorium. He replaces New York Times Managing Editor Harrison Salisbury who had to cancel his appearance because of a trip to the Far East.

In the New York City School system, Dr. Donovan has been coordinator of the summer high school program, assistant superintendent in charge of the School Planning and Research Division, executive deputy superintendent of schools and is presently superintendent of schools.

In other areas of education, Dr. Donovan is vice-president of the Research Council for the Great Cities School Improvement Program, a trustee of the Center for Urban Education, and has taught graduate education courses for prospective teachers in several New York colleges, universities and institutes.

Dr. Donovan did his undergraduate work at Maxwell Teachers College and received his master of arts and doctorate of education from New York University.

VOLUNTEERS NEEDED

The Student Government needs Huntington student volunteers to help with the leadership seminar to be held March 29. Students interested in applying should contact Jane Braley at the Student Government Office before Monday.

Daily Digest

Here's what's happening on campus today:

8 a.m.-4 p.m.—General election. Polls will be located in the basement of the Student Union, the South Hall lounge, and the student lounge in Smith Hall.

7 p.m. — Students are invited to an informal square dancing session with Dr. Michael B. Josephs' recreation class in the main gym of Gullickson Hall. Bring your tennis shoes.

8-10 p.m. — The Sands of Time will play for the mix at the Student Union.

9 p.m. — A film on Biafra will be shown at the Campus Christian Center. The film will precede the Great Decisions program featuring Dr. J. Harvey Saunders, assistant professor of history, whose topic is "Cuba—the Castro Decade."

'Crowd makes difference' --- Davidson

By ROBERT BORCHERT
Sports Writer

A bad crowd will hinder rather than help the play of a basketball player, according to Jim Davidson, one of the top stars of the Thundering Herd basketball team during the past three seasons.

Davidson, who came to MU as a sophomore, won a starting position on the Herd basketball team after a 29 point performance against Eastern Kentucky in 1966. In his three years with Coach Ellis Johnson's Herd, he has had good and bad experiences. The twelfth all-time scorer in MU basketball history, recalled a game this year when the fans booed him.

"It was a real, real bad experience. To me, it's the worst thing that's happened to me since I've been playing athletics. I know I got to the point where I felt that no matter what I did, I couldn't do the right thing. It got to the point that I started listening. I started hearing the comments from some of the fans, and I started having mental lapses in the games. I'd lose my man, and things like that. It's very distracting. This was something that I hadn't been accustomed to. It really hurt."

Q. What about the good side of the dark days?

A. I think it has helped. It made me more aware of game situations, and of the game. It gave me an insight into the game by getting the raspberries from the fans. Now if it happens again, it won't affect me as bad as it did before. You've got to take the bitter with the sweet, and if I had it to do over again under the same circumstances, I would.

Q. How do you feel about the racial situation on Marshall's campus?

A. Well, I haven't been confronted with too many racial incidents. I think that most kids at Marshall are pretty level headed. They can take people for what they are and not by the color of their skin. However, Marshall is a very conservative school. I have experienced a few stares, but you're going to get this any place you go. So, I would say, for me, I haven't experienced too many problems at Marshall. Everybody here has treated me fairly. If the problem of race was left up to the students, there wouldn't be any racial incidents. I know from my experience that most students can live together. We do it in the dorms, we eat in the same cafeteria, and we don't have any problems. I feel that the big problem with race or with racial prejudice lies in the fact that there is a lack of communication. People just don't know people.

Q. How did you get along with Bob Redd and Bob Allen, and did they ever help you with basketball?

A. Bob Redd helped me tremendously. He is the type of player that would go out and really play a ball game. He was so dynamic and so moving that he hustled all the time. He was really somebody to look up to. I know that many nights when I didn't feel like playing, I'd go out and he would talk to me and really make me go. Bob Allen was the unsung hero of the team, as far as I'm concerned. Bob really made me go. That's why our fast break was so effective. I could bet out on the side and get down the court. I got a lot of lay-up shots mainly because Bob would hit the boards and get the ball out real fast. Like I say it takes a team effort, and with that team, we had it.

Q. So you feel that Allen and Redd more or less made the team hustle?

A. Yes. A ball club is like a family. We were close knit, and one player complemented the others. This is important.

Q. Since you have been playing basketball for MU, what are your feelings toward Coach Johnson? What kind of job has he done?

A. I feel that Coach Johnson has done a wonderful job. Two years he took us to Madison Square Garden for the NIT. You cannot forget those years. But every coach is bound to have a losing season. You can't blame Coach Johnson for that. Potentially, we were as good as any team we played this year.

Q. If you had to do it all over again, would MU still be your first choice of schools?

A. When I graduated from high school, I had 90-some scholarship offers. But due to the fact that my dad had a bad heart, and was very ill at the time, I didn't want to go too far away to school. I went to Concord College, in Athens, W. Va. Coach Johnson came up to recruit me, and so I came to Marshall in September of 1965. To me, coming to MU was the biggest thing that I could have done, the biggest break that ever came my way. If I hadn't entered school here, chances are I wouldn't have finished my college education. I probably would have just quit. Yes, Marshall would have to be my first choice.

Q. Have you had any pro offers, and are you now considering any, seriously?

A. Well, I haven't had any direct pro offers yet, but I've had some questionnaires from some teams. I've heard from the Atlanta Hawks, and I've also heard from the Seattle Super-Sonics. I also got a questionnaire from the Dallas Cowboys, the football team.

Q. Who's the greatest player you ever played against, and how did he impress you?

A. Well, I'd have to say Elvin Hayes, of Houston, the number one player in the country last year, really impressed me. I remember a couple of times I drove on my man, I was guarded by Theotis Lee, and got in for an open shot, put the ball up, and all I could see was Hayes' feet.

"He's 6-10 and he could really go. He's showing why he was the number one college basketball player in the pro ranks now, because he's leading the league in scoring."

Q. Which do you feel was your best game as a varsity player?

A. Coach Johnson felt the St. Peters game from this year was my best game. I thought that the (Continued on Page 3)

People are getting tired of hearing, "Wait till next year," every-time Marshall finishes last in the Mid-American Conference in every sport they participate in.

So MU president Dr. Roland Nelson, on request from the University Council, has decided it's time to step in and become actively involved in the athletic curriculum at Marshall.

Dr. Nelson will establish a committee to study: (1) Marshall's current athletic status; (2) the future athletic development over the next five to ten years, and (3) to determine how realistic Marshall's chances of succeeding in developing the athletic program are.

So far this season Marshall has finished last in every sport and the Mid-American Conference would be foolish to allow Marshall to remain in a conference in which they cannot compete or match the facilities of other conference schools.

But it would appear, judging from the freshmen teams of this season in track, basketball, football and swimming, that Marshall is on its way to becoming competitive, but their facilities are poorer than most small colleges in the country.

There are not many major universities around which do not have their own field house, stadium, or tracks. If Marshall can get the facilities, it would help one hundred per cent in recruiting athletes.

The four junior college players signed earlier this year by Marshall bring some impressive credentials with them and Coach Perry Moss expects them to be of some help to the Herd next season.

Two of the men were members of last season's National Junior College Championship team at Ferrum Junior College, Va.

The four players are Kevin Gilmore from Cook Junior College in Nebraska, Larry Brown from Pratt Junior College in Kansas and Jerry Stainback and Dave Griffin from Ferrum.

Stainback from Newport News, Va., was named to the Junior College All-America second team last season as a linebacker.

In two years Griffin and Stainback played at Ferrum their teams won 19 games and lost only 1, and both seasons they went to the National Junior College finals.

The newest Marshall assistant Rick Tolley was influential in recruiting the two Ferrum transfers since he was head coach at that school two years ago.

"He said this was the place to come," Stainback related, "so I came."

Another recruit, Larry Brown, comes from a high school in Atlanta, Georgia, noted for its athletes. Brown was graduated from Archer High School which has turned out several football players, including Frank Pitts of the Kansas City Chiefs and Willow Williams of the New York Jets.

"When you go to my high school, you see all these famous people and you want to be just like them," the 5-10, 225 pounder said.

Before going to Kansas City Junior College, Brown was named to the High School All-America first team his senior year and following his two years in junior college the offers began pouring in.

Among the top schools he had offers from were Kansas State, Colorado, Iowa State, Cincinnati and many Negro schools in the South.

"I didn't want to go to a school that was a powerhouse and had its lineup set for the next two years. Marshall wasn't doing too good and I thought I could step in and help out," Brown explained.

In his junior college playing days, Brown was a linebacker and offensive guard but is unsure of where he will be playing here.

"There's a rumor that they anticipate me playing offensive line. It makes no difference to me," the stocky built footballer reported. "I just want to play where it will help the team."

Morehead ball game, was a real good ball game for me. I had real good ball games up at Madison Square Garden with the exception of the Houston game. However, I would say that the St. Peters game was my best all around game.

Q. What's your goal in life?
A. I really don't know. But some of my future plans are to teach, coach, and travel. Of course I'd also like to play pro ball if I get the chance."

Q. What is the most embarrassing thing that's happened to you on the court?

A. I would imagine that it would have to be the time that I hit a kid from Toledo, during my sophomore year. I'm still living with that. To this day, people ask me what I hit him with, a right or a left.

Q. What was it a right or a left?

A. I think it was a right.

Spring football practice set

"The purpose of a spring practice in football is the development and evaluation of our personnel," said head coach Perry Moss.

Spring practice will start April 14, with the first green and white scrimmage game scheduled for May 3. Practice days will be held Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday, and Saturday. The pads will go on the first day of the season, with sessions lasting for about three hours each day.

Moss said practices will start with the basics such as, offensive and defensive drills, agility drills, tackling practice and play practice.

Coach Moss said there will be 60 to 100 new players this year. The bulk of the team will be made up of last year's freshmen and junior college transfer students.

However, Coach Moss said there would be a few veterans back from last year.

Moss said that a new technique, the Houston Option, used in running offensive plays would be practiced in this year's spring round and possibly used in next year's season.

He said that from a personal standpoint he felt that the Herd will be much improved in every area next year. They will be bigger, stronger and in better shape in every way. The only thing the Herd won't have is a lot of experience, because the bulk of the team will be made up of sophomores.

Moss said the coaching staff is also trying to improve the quality of schedule the Herd plays. He said the current schedules, into the 1970's, are pretty well filled up. However, there are some openings, and Marshall is trying to get them.

Coach Moss said Marshall has three quality quarterbacks in Ted Shoebridge, Lyndhurst, N.

PERRY MOSS

J., freshman; Bob Harris, Cincinnati, Ohio, freshman; and Don Swisher, Pomeroy, Ohio, sophomore. Moss feels that having three young quarterbacks will be a great asset in the seasons to come. One of last year's quarterbacks, John Oertel, Mason City, Iowa, junior, will probably be moved to the tight end position, Moss said.

The coach said that last year the offense was much stronger than the defense, but this year, if anything, the defense will be stronger than the offense. However, he said both offense and defense will be much improved over last year.

When asked about the new proposed Board of Regents, to govern all the state supported schools in West Virginia, the coach said, "I feel that the Board of Regents will help Marshall University from the standpoint of admissions for athletes into Marshall, and hopefully there will be more money available for athletics."

The annual alumni game will be played May 10, in Fairfield Stadium. The coach said the eligible alumni have already been contacted.

'Carousel' roles filled by students and faculty

Marshall faculty and students sing, act, and dance their way into the musical comedy "Carousel" to be presented by the Musical Arts Guild at 8 p.m. March 20-22 at Huntington High School Auditorium.

Dr. Elaine A. Novak, associate professor of speech, directs the Rodgers and Hammerstein musical. Dr. Grant J. Klausman, assistant professor of music, serves as musical director for the show.

Dr. Eugene Q. Hoak, professor of speech, is scenery consultant, and William Denman and Jack L. Brown, instructor of speech have parts in the play.

Speech professor attends conference

Dr. Robert D. Olson, professor of speech and director of speech pathology and audiology, was invited by the American Speech and Hearing Association to participate in a recent national conference in New Orleans, La.

Patterns of training individuals in the area of speech and hearing rehabilitation, in order to meet the manpower needs, was the topic of discussion for 80 representatives of colleges and universities.

"In West Virginia there are more than 18,000 children with speech and hearing problems," said Dr. Olson. He further explained the need of 71 additional therapists in order to treat this many children.

He said there is a possibility that some sort of program might be set up in West Virginia which would make it mandatory to provide services for students with speech and hearing problems. However, this would involve a bigger budget than is now available.

Two groups gain committee's nod

Student Conduct and Welfare Committee has voted to recognize Black United Students (BUS), and a new fraternity Theta Xi. Recommendations for recognition of the organizations will be submitted to President Roland H. Nelson Jr.

BUS, a local campus organization of about 15 black students, hopes to generate interest in the Community Action tutoring program to help youngsters, according to BUS president John Shellcroft, Ashland, Ky., junior. A tutoring program concerning black students' problems also will be set up.

Theta Xi must colonize in order to become an active chapter on Marshall's campus. Interested members will meet with nearby active chapters to plan and organize the color. When a substantial number of pledges are obtained, the colony will apply to national for active recognition, according to Dr. Harold Willey, acting dean of student affairs.

"Carousel," featuring the music of Richard Rodgers and lyrics by Oscar Hammerstein II, is the story of a carnival barker, Billy Bigelow, who meets and marries a young country lass, Julie Jordan. Complications arise that finally lead Billy to an attempted robbery of wealthy Mr. Bascombe.

He then commits suicide and returns to earth when his daughter is 15 and graduating from school. Billy gives her the help she needs to face life.

Tickets are $1 and can be purchased from any member of the Musical Arts Guild or at the door.

Blood Drive set for Tuesday

Marshall University Student Government will sponsor the semi-annual Blood Drive in Shawkey Student Union Tuesday. The drive will run from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. and will be administered by the Red Cross.

Robert Gregg, Huntington senior and student coordinator for the drive, commented on the purpose of the blood bank.

"This blood can be given free of charge to any MU student, employee or the immediate families," said Gregg. Marshall University gets back 70 per cent of the blood given at the drive."

Gregg stated that trophies would be awarded to the campus organization and ROTC unit which has the best percentage of members giving blood.

"This is a change over last semester," said Gregg, "This time you must give blood to get credit for it."

Kappa Alpha Order was the winning organization last semester.

"Participation in the past semesters has been very poor," emphasized Gregg. "The most we have ever gotten is slightly over 200 pints."

According to Gregg, this does not compare to the 500 pints which Morehead State University students produced last year.

Gregg concluded, "We encourage everyone to give."

CCC election March 26

Election of officers of the Student Executive Committee at the Campus Christian Center (CCC) will be March 26.

Offices to be filled are coordinator, vice coordinator, secretary and treasurer. These officers make up the Committee of Four, the core committee in the student commission.

The student commission determines the by-laws of the CCC and is responsible for planning, executing and evaluating the programs of the Center.

Registration to vote will be March 17-23. Anyone who is a part of the university community may register.

A slate of nominees was submitted Sunday at the commission meeting by a nominating committee.

Names may be added to the slate. Persons wishing to run must obtain 10 signatures on a statement affirming his right to run for a specific office.

Persons on the slate are Robert Goodrich, Moundsville freshman, coordinator; Gary King, Charleston junior, vice coordinator; Nancy Alexander, Nitro sophomore, secretary, and Jules Bellagia, Niagara Falls, N. Y., freshman, treasurer.

A session to review the Campus Christian Center's role on campus will be April 10 at 7 p.m. The old and new commissions, representatives from residence halls, university groups, church college groups, and Greek units will discuss the challenges of the church on campus.

June 1 date is set for commencement

Commencement exercises for MU graduates will be held 2 p.m. June 1 at Memorial Field House and baccalaureate services are scheduled for 10 a.m. the same day.

According to Luther Bledsoe, secretary of the Commencement and Honorary Degrees Committee, there will be no limit set on invitations to either exercise but there will be no reserved seats. The number of students receiving degrees is not known yet.

Announcement of the Commencement and baccalaureate speaker and recipients of honorary degrees will be made next month.

$125 GIFT RECEIVED

The Department of Speech Pathology and Audiology received a gift of $125 from the Junior Department of the Huntington Woman's Club. The money was used for the purchasing of a tape recorder to be used in clinical work.
