MU expansion brings changes

There have been several changes on campus since the close of spring term — and many others are scheduled this summer.

The first floor of Old Main is most effected, as many long-time residents are moving to make way for holders of newly-created positions.

Jim Martin, information director, and his staff are being moved to the basement of Old Main where Buildings and Grounds workers have been busy building walls for information's new home.

Another Old Main office, that of career planning and placement, has been moved to the old Phi Mu house on Fifth Avenue. Vice President of Business Joseph Soto explained that the new placement office is needed so that small offices would be available for interviews and displays. Formerly that office has been spread out in several rooms.

There have been rumors that Teachers' College will be moved to the old Laboratory School, but Vice President Soto says all plans are presently premature.

Shawkey Student Union has also witnessed a few changes. What was the Student Government office now houses the Chief Justice staff. Student Government has moved to the second floor of the union where they occupy the old yearbook offices and the television room.

As the summer progresses, administrators who take their posts July 1 will take offices somewhere — most likely in vacated Old Main offices. Budget Director Joseph Peters is now working out of an empty office in Student Affairs. John Callebs, new director of development, is working out of his old faculty office and from the president's office.

MAC-MU confrontation is included in roundup

By GINNY PITT
Summer Editor

A Supreme Court hearing concerning the salary of Finance Director Joseph Peters, a confrontation with officials of the Mid-American Conference about MU's status in the conference, and the naming of the members of the new Board of Regents are in the offing for Marshall soon.

The State Supreme Court has scheduled arguments in litigation over control of salaries at state-supported colleges and universities for Tuesday.

The State Board of Education has filed suit with the court to compel Finance Commissioner Jack Miller to approve an $18,504 annual salary for Peters as finance director here. The Board approved the salary, but Gov. Arch A. Moore Jr. authorized only a salary of $15,000 a year. Miller then refused to approve payment of the salary the Board set.

Assistant Attorney General George E. Lantz has appeared on behalf of the board claiming that it "is vested with the sole statutory authority to create the positions of, and to select, the president or principal, the professors, teachers and all other employees" under its jurisdiction. He also contended the Board has the authority "to fix the appropriation made by the legislature" and "ample funds" are available.

A private attorney will represent Miller in the suit and Attorney General Chauncey Browning Jr. will represent the Board.

A committee composed of Olen E. Jones, assistant to the president; John Callebs, director of development, and Joseph Peters, finance director, has been appointed by President Nelson to answer questions posed by Mid-American Conference Commissioner Robert C. James.

The MAC has requested the report be submitted by June 30 replying to charges of "alleged irregularities" and lack of athletic facilities. The report of the committee will be presented to President Nelson by June 30. No information will be made public until after the MAC Council of Presidents receives the report.

Dr. Nelson has said he expects no decision on MU's status in the conference until "some time in July." An ultimatum to outline plans to improve athletic facilities and make them comparable to those at other MAC schools was included in James' request. At present, MU is the only West Virginia-supported institution of higher learning which doesn't own its major athletic facilities. Dr. Nelson commented that Marshall received "almost a mandate" to improve its facilities "as far back at 1966."

He added, "We can only offer what we can do two or three years hence. I don't know how the conference presidents will react to that."

The athletic facilities here have remained essentially the same for 13 years. Dr. Nelson cited "bad timing" as one of the problems the University must overcome in seeking major facilities in the near future. He said that Athletic Director Eddie Barrett felt upgrading Fairfield Stadium and a new track would satisfy the MAC for the time being. "If that is true, we can probably do that. We can upgrade the stadium in phases, then work from there," he said.

There is still no word from Governor Moore on the naming of the Board of Regents. He says only that they will be announced "shortly."

The 10-member board (the 10th member being the State Superintendent of Schools) will replace the West Virginia University Board of Governors in control of WVU and two-year Potomac State College and the State Board of Education in supervising Marshall and the eight

Research due for 8 students

Eight undergraduate and high school students are participating in a research program this summer sponsored by the Department of Chemistry.

Several local industries are sponsors, among them International Nickel, Ashland Oil, Dow Chemical and Allied Chemical. The MU Research Board is helping also.

Undergraduates participating are George Willard, Charleston freshman; Donald Craig, Barboursville sophomore, and Shirley Brinkley, Kenova junior. Area high school students who will do research are Robert Lewis and Sallie Olzer from Huntington High School, John Spain of Russell, Ky., Walter Webster from Marshall High School, and John Suffron from Chesapeake High School.

These students were selected by department instructors after nomination by high school teachers.

According to Dr. Edward S. Hanrahan, department chairman, more than 40 students applied for the program.

Instructors will assist the students in research projects during the 10-week program. Participants will receive a $400 scholarship.

four-year state colleges.

The regents will receive $50 a day and expenses for time spent on board business. They will name a chancellor who will head the board's staff and carry out policies and orders of the board. There has been speculation that Dr. James G. Harlow, president of WVU, or one of three others connected with WVU might be named to head the board. Dr. Harlow has declined WVU comment on the speculation as have the other men, former president Paul Miller, Vice President Harry Heflin and College of Law Dean Paul Selby.

The regents are due to take office July 1. Moore has been strongly urged to name them in advance so that they may consult with the outgoing Board of Education concerning supervision of the colleges and universities. The Board of Education has scheduled a meeting for Monday which could allow such a consultation to ease the transition.

In other news since the close of classes May 30:

—Experiment in International Living will sponsor 12 visitors to the MU campus from India Monday through July 1. The visitors arrived in this country May 24 and are living with different families to help them adapt to our customs. They will arrive here by bus Sunday for a program including tours of area businesses, points of interest and participation in classes on campus. Robert P. Alexander, director of career planning and placement, is coordinator of the program.

—John Calles, associate professor of social studies, was appointed director of development May 27. He replaced Acting Director Hugh Stilman at a salary of $18,600 annually. Calles said in a news conference after his appointment that his job would involve fund-raising and program development and coordination. He will be responsible for coordinating all federal aid programs and personal contributions to the university. Calles will continue teaching at least one class in the fall. He joined the faculty in 1965 and received his bachelors and masters degrees from WVU.

—The State Board of Education upheld previous policy May 26, refusing to extend the employment of six faculty members forced to retire this year. Dr. Louis Jennings, professor of Bible and religion, told the board that for the past 10 years faculty members reaching age 65 have had their contracts extended for one year on approval of department chairmen and deans until the mandatory retirement age of 70. Jennings charged failure to follow this practice was too abrupt a change for the faculty and asked the board to waive President Nelson's recommendation for one year to allow reconsideration of certain faculty members and to allow faculty time to adjust to the change in interpretation of the policy.

—A dispute between two furniture firms concerning furnishing the Twin Towers dormitories arose May 29 when the Legislative Commission on Purchasing Practices and Procedures disclosed an investigation of the contract for the furniture which a firm here contested. The contract was awarded the Capitol Business and Equipment Co. of Charleston. Bud L. Moser, president of The Budd Co. in Huntington, charged that "numerous unapproved alternates" were accented to bring the Capitol bid below that of the Budd Co. offer.

The original bid by Capitol has been approved by the Governor. The first shipment of furniture will be arriving by the last of June, according to Housing Director Warren S. Myers.

MISS MARSHALL RIDES IN STYLE
... During Homecoming festivities

Miss Marshall looks at year's reign

Just before graduation, Miss Marshall of 1968-1969 looked back upon her year's reign with a mixture of sadness and happiness.

Laura Jennings of Huntington commented: "It was really a big honor at Homecoming. It's still an honor, but it's hard to describe now. I forget about it until people remind me.

"It's hard to believe it's actually over. The year went by so quickly. It seems the longer you're here, the faster each year passes by."

Laura plans to work for an adoption agency in the Boston area next fall.

"It takes two years experience or a master's degree to get with a good agency and I am anxious to go to work so I'll take the first alternative. The only bad part is getting used to the idea that I'm not coming back to school next year."

She plans to return next year at Homecoming when she will surrender her title to the next Miss Marshall.

"I hope next year's queen enjoys it as much as I did. It's been one of the happiest experiences of my life."

Graduation was a sad day. "After you graduate, you and your friends usually go separate ways."

Holley, Koury, Gertz named all MAC

When it comes to baseball, Marshall pitcher Paul Holley can be described in one word: stingy!

In this case, however, Holley's frugal practices on the mound have paid big dividend for the hard-throwing lefthander. Fellow Mid-American Conference players and coaches—though, at times, frustrated by his reluctance to allow them to score runs—were so impressed with Holley's league-leading earned run average that they accorded him first team honors on the all-conference squad.

Holley, the Big Green's lone first-string selection, posted a 3-1 record, allowing less than one run per game. His final ERA was 0.90, best in the MAC.

Second team honors

Joining Holley on the all-star squad were teammates Gil Koury, a centerfielder, and third-baseman Roger Gertz, both named to the second team.

Koury, Wheeling sophomore with two years of eligibility remaining, registered an impressive slugging percentage, including five doubles and two home runs in route to a .253 batting average. Gertz, Logan senior, hit a .291 and collected 10 runs in Marshall's 27 games.

Cook satisfied

The Big Green's winning coach, Jack Cook, who in three years has posted a 43-31-1 record, praised his selectees.

"Holley deserved to be on the first team," Cook said. "He pitched two shutouts, led the league in earned run percentage, and had an earned run average of just one run for all games."

According to Coach Cook, both Koury and Gertz made heavy offensive and defensive contributions to Marshall's 14-12-1 record.

Cook also expressed satisfaction with his team's performance during the past season.

"We finished third in the conference for the second year in a row and we were in the running for the championship until the final weekend of the season. We lost a three-game series to Ohio University—the team I considered the best in the league—that could have given us the title. And we lost those games by a total of four runs (2-0, 6-5 and 5-4). Against the kind of opposition we face, that's a pretty good year."

Future looks bright

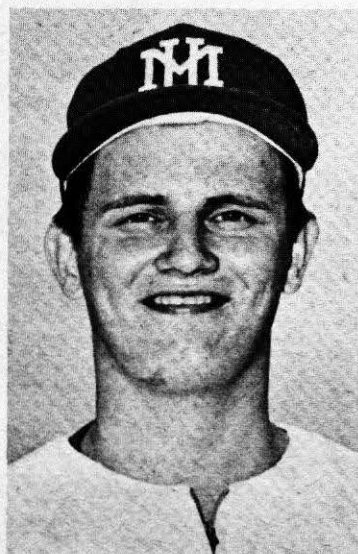

Since assuming head coaching duties, Cook has had seasons of 11-12, 18-7, and 14-12-1 and has lifted the fortunes of MU baseball significantly. He remains optimistic that his teams will remain a contender in the future.

"Of course, we hate to lose Holley and Gertz, as well as many other fine senior players, but we have some good players returning and have some good recruiting prospects.

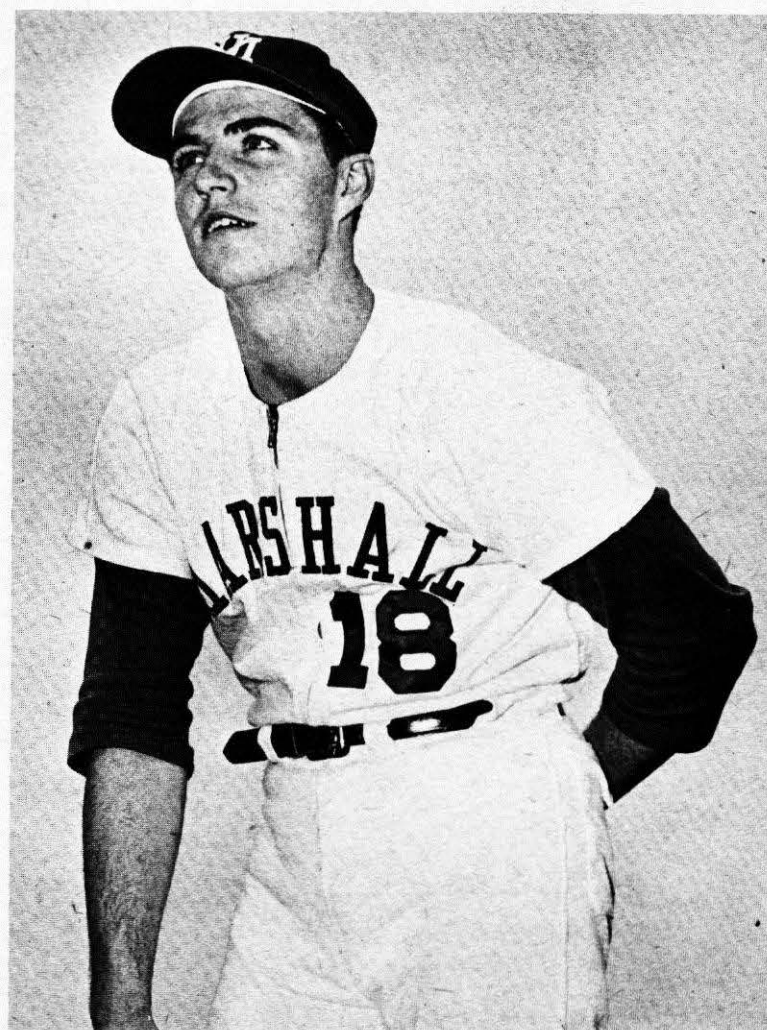

"Right now, our biggest problem is locating some strong pitchers. But we're looking over some players from as far away as Florida and hope to have some of them signed in the immediate future."

Recreation scheduled for summer students

If you're among those students who have had to desert their favorite swimming pool or tennis court for the classroom this summer, you can be assured there is a means of escape.

A schedule of open recreational activities has been arranged by Ronald Crosbie, instructor of physical education and intramural director. Activities include swimming, basketball, softball, tennis, the weight room and "exer-genie" exercises.

According to Crosbie, open recreation for both students and faculty will be observed from 3:30-5:30 p.m. Monday through Thursday, and from 6:30-9 p.m. Tuesday and Thursday at Gullickson Hall.

The swimming schedule will run from 4:15-5:15 p.m. Monday through Thursday, and from 7-9 p.m. Monday through Thursday nights.

Tennis courts will be open daily except for those times that they will be in use by physical education classes, Crosbie said.

In addition, any persons or organizations interested in team softball or basketball competition are to contact Michael Allen, graduate assistant in charge of directing the schedule of summer intramural activities. He may be reached in Room 104 of Gullickson Hall.

Crosbie also announced that trophies and plaques won during the past school term will be available Monday at the intramural office.

Piano concert Tuesday night

Melvin Stecher and Norman Horowitz, duo-pianists, will be featured at 8:30 p.m. Tuesday in a Marshall University Summer Concert in Old Main Auditorium. The concert is free and opened to the public.

In addition to the concert presented by the Marshall Artists Series, the duo-pianists will conduct a piano workshop Wednesday. Sessions will be conducted from 9:30 a.m. to noon in Smith Music Hall. The workshop is sponsored by the Department of Music and the West Virginia Music Teachers Association.

Ticket Manager Jim Hodges has been appointed assistant business manager for Marshall's Athletic Department, according to an announcement by Athletic Director Eddie Barrett.

Hodges, whose appointment is effective immediately, will continue to serve as ticket manager Barrett said. The 1965 MU graduate has been a member of the Athletic Department staff since August 1, 1967.

Barton certified

Robert M. Barton, assistant Athletic Trainer, has been accredited as a Certified Corrective Therapist. Announcement of Barton's accreditation was made by the American Corrective Therapy Association of Los Angeles.

Two state champions sign MU

Six athletes from four states have signed grants-in-aid to attend Marshall.

Two of the new recruits, John Arellin of Silver City High School in Silver City, N. M., and Charles Marshall of Southmoreland High School in Ruffsdales, Pa., are state track champions.

The remaining four will join Coach Bob Saunders' swim team. They include John Zook, a middle-distance freestyle swimmer from Whetstone High School in Columbus; Greg Broxterman, a breast-stroke specialist from Moeller High School in Cincinnati; Jeff Pratt, a freestyle sprinter from Columbus; and West Virginia native John Carenbauer, a freestyle sprinter from Central Catholic High School in Wheeling.

Arellin, 18, was the New Mexico state champion in the half-mile in 1968 with a time of 1:55.6. He stepped up to the mile this past season and finished second in the state meet in 4:21.

Marshall was the Pennsylvania state two-mile champion in 1968 and the runnerup in 1969 in a time of 9:23.0. He also took second place in the state cross-country meet, completing the event in 13 minutes flat.

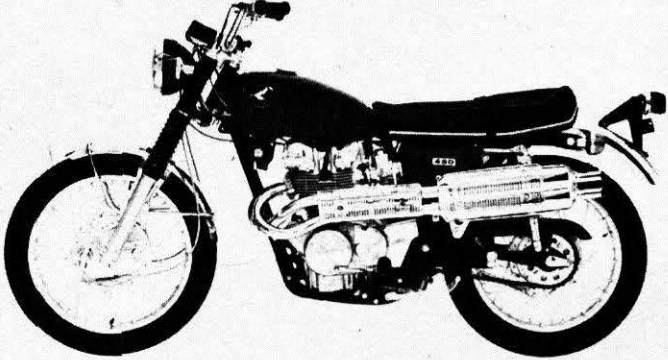

Coaches Shaw and Saunders are enthusiastic about their new recruits.

"I feel that Arellin and Marshall are two of the finest distance runners ever to enroll at Marshall and they should help our track program considerable," Shaw said.

"Excellent prospects," said Coach Saunders of his quartet of swimming recruits. "And," he added, "with freshmen eligible to compete in swimming in the Mid-American Conference next season, they should give our team a real lift."

GRADUATES AND GUESTS LISTEN TO SPEAKERS
... in humid Memorial Fieldhouse

1,301 degrees awarded

Governor Arch Moore and Rabbi Arnold S. Tank of Temple Emmanuel in Greensboro, N.C., spoke on campus rebellion and the trend of college youth toward protest at the June 1 commencement and baccalaureate services.

Governor Moore told the 1,301 graduates and guests at the 132nd annual commencement that, "Irresponsible young people who loot and take over college campuses do a great disservice to the cause of youth."

He deplored campus disturbances and also urged graduates to stay in West Virginia.

"We have come from an age where every boy can become President, to the age where every boy thinks he's President," said Rabbi Tank.

Graduates and guests found the heat of Memorial Fieldhouse, scene of both services, a problem as the lines of graduates filed to the front to receive degrees.

Three honorary degrees were presented at commencement exercises. They went to Sol Hurrok, internationally-known impresario, who was granted a doctor of humane letters degree in absentia; a doctor of laws degree was given to Gov. Moore, and West Virginia native Brigadier General Charles Yeager, the first man to fly faster than the speed of sound, received a doctor of science degree.

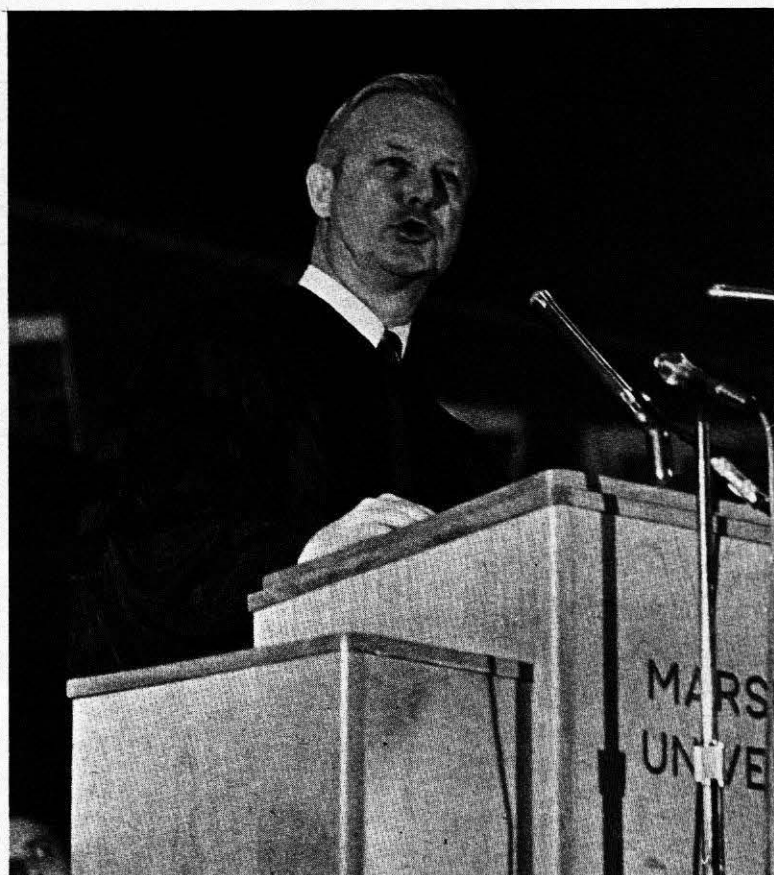

Recipients of Distinguished Alumnus Awards, presented the evening before commencement at the 32nd annual Alumni Day Banquet, were Dr. Carl Hoffman and Harry F. Moate Jr. The Alumni Service award went to George Van Zandt.
