Office, dorm hours, cafeteria changes

Dean explains dorm rules

Dormitory rules for the self-regulated hours policy to be effected in the women residents halls in September were released last week by Mrs. Lillian H. Buskirk, associate dean of student personnel programs.

The rules, contained in the residence halls handbooks, are:

1. To protect persons and property, all University-owned housing is to be secured (locked from 11 p.m. until 7 a.m. Monday through Thursday; from 1 a.m. until 7 a.m. on Friday and Saturday; and from midnight until 7 a.m. Sunday.

2. A night attendant will be employed who will be responsible for identifying the returning resident before opening one officially designated entry door.

3. Residents are required to sign-out on the appropriate card if there is a possibility of their being out after closing hour. Occasional emergencies may necessitate a resident's call to the night attendant when the possibility of being out after closing hour could not be anticipated.

4. When the resident returns, she will show her identification card to the night attendant, be admitted, and sign-in on the appropriate card. In case of a lost or misplaced I.D. card, the student must have proof of identity, with a subsequent check of the hall occupancy list by the residence hall attendant, in order to be admitted to the building.

5. Any resident with self-regulating hours is required to sign-in before twenty-four hours have elapsed from the time of her departure unless special arrangements have been made with the Residence Director and the duration of the absence indicated on the sign-out card.

6. Any resident who signs-out overnight or for a weekend will indicate on the card a telephone number or the name of her roommate or other resident who will know how to contact her in an emergency, and, complete her sign-in upon her return.

7. Visiting guests of the same sex (Friday and Saturday nights only) must be registered with the Residence Director prior to closing hour. If the guest qualifies for self-regulating hours and will be out after closing hour, she must sign-out with her hostess, be admitted with her hostess, and sign-in with her hostess. Out-of-town or Marshall guests qualify as guests for self-regulating hours.

8. Residents with self-regulating hours are expected to attend corridor meetings at 11 p.m. on Monday's. In order to have full communication with-

MU cafeterias to be under new management in Sept.

MU cafeterias will be under the management of ARA-Slater college food service beginning in September. Management of the cafeteria, formerly undertaken by the University, will be completely handled by the Philadelphia-based firm.

Breakfast meat will be served four times weekly, and a policy of unlimited seconds will be in force for all food except premium entrees. There will be 20 meals a week, as the present system serves — breakfast, lunch and dinner Monday through Saturday and no evening meal on Sunday.

The firm plans three "Adventures in Dining" meals during the school year and says their resident manager will "break the daily routine by surprising students with both the usual 'monotony breakers' and his own, more unusual ideas."

A food preference survey will be made early in the academic year. The survey, covering a total of 200 food items, will be submitted to students on a voluntary basis. It will be tabulated on a computer to determine student preferences.

The ARA-Slater Service will work with the Athletic Department to provide "Training table meals" for athletes. Specialists will be consulted for suggested menus.

Opportunity for student employment is offered by the service. Employees will be trained and supervised, but meals will not be included as part of student wages.

MU offers counseling program

By JUDY BURNSIDE
and BRENDA GIBSON
Teachers College Journalists

Marshall University is about to be invaded by hundreds of incoming freshmen. Many of them will have problems, so great that counseling will be needed. How many of them will go through college not knowing where to seek help?

The Student Counseling and Testing Center, which was organized by Dr. Richard W. Waite one and a half years ago, is located at 1618 Fifth Ave. He feels that it has been "extremely successful" in dealing with the many types of problems college students encounter. "We see about 10 per cent of the student body," he said. Many of Marshall's students do not know this center exists.

Dr. Waite said there are three main objectives the center is trying to achieve.

1. Educational assistance. Students are assisted in working out schedules and solving other educational problems which arise.

2. Vocational problems. When a student is confused or undecided about which field he should choose, he is given a vocational test. The results of this type of test gives clues as to what interests the student.

3. Social and personal problems. Roommate adjustments, boyfriend problems, and parental demands are a few of the most prevalent problems.

Interpersonal relations — relating with other students, parents, and professors—is one of the main problem students face. Dr. Waite said, "Each student is an individual and must learn to relate to a meaningful person in his life."

Sociological implications also give rise to problems. For example, to a student who lives in the country, Huntington is a large city. To the student who lives in a large city, it is a small one.

There is also a values conflict. The religious student comes to college deep in his faith. For the first time in his life he may begin to question his beliefs. This can be a source of great anxiety for the student. The counseling center is always ready to help the student solve his problems.

In regard to the college suicide rate, Dr. Waite said, "The students put themselves in stressful situations which the general population does not. The stresses and strains are obvious." There has been a very low suicide rate at Marshall.

In summing up the services of the Counseling and Testing Center, Dr. Waite said, "We do not give advice. Our goal is to help the students work out their problems. If we can't help them, we know where to send them."

An editorial

Objectivity is needed, but so are facts

MU's suspension from the Mid-American Conference and the subsequent firing of head coaches Perry Moss and Ellis Johnson and assistant football coach Pete Kondos has touched off a small-scale revolution among many students and townspeople.

A parade and public rally Saturday evening supported the coaches amidst signs and placards reading, "We demand the dismissal of President Roland Nelson" and "Coaches: stay — Nelson: go!"

Meanwhile, some students on campus were talking about a counter-parade and rally in support of Dr. Nelson.

The big question is why. Why are some supporting the coaches and why are some supporting the president? Probably the majority of supporters on either side can not state their reasons for the stand they have taken (with the exception of those who are using this incident to "get back" at Dr. Nelson for his approval of Students for a Democratic Society on campus and his refusal to be pressured into canceling part of the IMPACT '69 program).

The Parthenon does not pretend to know enough about the situation to take sides in the controversy sparked by the dismissals.

At this time the administration has made no positive statement as to the exact nature of the charges against the coaches, nor have they given any specific reasons for failing to do so. Since the coaches are claiming innocence of any violations, the administration's insistence that they are withholding the facts in order to protect reputations hardly seems valid.

The hearings in which Kondos, Moss and Johnson are appealing their dismissals are in closed session — even to the lawyers of the three men. The whole thing reeks of Star Chamber proceedings.

The Parthenon is well aware of the consequences of "trial by press" and will concede the administration's point that releasing information before the appeal might influence the committee's decision. But to refuse the coaches legal counsel, and to fail to let the appeal committee read the 142-page report that was submitted to the MAC (Dr. Cubby said Tuesday that the committee had not read the report) is incredible. How can the committee make any kind of judgment in the appeal unless it—if not the rest of us—knows all the facts?

Reaction by the community and many students as well as some faculty members has been disgusting. Flying into a blind rage that is based on nothing but emotional reaction and personal likes and dislikes is uncalled for and unappreciated by those of us who try to remain objective.

But it is hard for us to remain objective much longer when we receive only stoney silence in answer to legitimate questions.

What are the specific changes against the coaches? Why does the chain of responsibility apply to the head coaches but not to Athletic Director Eddie Barrett? How does everyone manage to be on vacation when situations like this erupt?

The Parthenon doesn't have the answer to give. But until Dr. Nelson makes some specific statement regarding the situation, until the appeal committee is properly opened to the coaches' representatives, and until the facts are made available to the public, we'll just have to keep asking.

Changeless faith in a changing age

By GEORGE RIGGS
Teachers College Journalist

EDITOR'S NOTE: Riggs, a Huntington senior, is a minister in the Church of the Nazarene. He will be entering the seminary in Kansas City, Mo., in the fall of 1970.

Who is God? Where is He? Didn't someone say he was dead?

These are some of the questions college students are asking. They are wondering if the Christian Church and its doctrines are still relevant in today's world.

Several ministers from the Huntington area were asked to comment on these and other questions which face the college student. These pastors were: the Rev. D. F. Hail of Central Church of the Nazarene; the Rev. Bill Miller, Methodist clergy at the Campus Christian Center; the Rev. Jim Burchett of Trinity Church of God; and the Rev. T. R. Sisk of Highlawn Baptist Church.

Another question frequently asked is: What about evolution—did man come from the sea or from God?

To answer this question we must cope with several problems. First, there is the law of cause and effect to consider. No effect can be produced without a cause. We as human beings, and the universe itself, are effects which must have a cause.

A further development along this line of thought has to do with the clearly observable order and design of the universe. The Bible says, "The heavens declare the glory of God; and the firmament sheweth his handiwork."

No rational man would think a wrist watch could come into being without an intelligent designer. How incredible is it to believe that the universe, in its infinite complexity could have happened by chance?

We must then return to the accepted doctrine that life never arises except from life. Since this is true man can turn to the Bible and believe Genesis 1:26. "And God said, 'let us make man in our image, after our likeness . . .'" Man can now realize that he is the product of a living infinite God.

Another question has arisen recently: "Is God dead; and if not what proof is there of his existence?"

The Rev. Bill Miller replied, "Is God dead? Certainly many of our 'gods' are dead or are dying. 'Gods' such as narrow denominationalism, restrictive nationalism, and racial prejudice, seem to be dying. But God, the Creator, Sustainer, and Redeemer of the universe as affirmed by the Scriptures, is very much alive."

Yes, God is alive and his existence can be seen. Externally, He can be seen in his "handiwork": the Earth, the moon, the stars, and all the universe. Internally, He can be realized by all who will but believe "that he is and that he is a rewarder of them that diligently seek him." When this is done, man's changeless Creator becomes personal.

MU group backs Nelson's decision

A group of Marshall students today began circulating a petition supporting Dr. Roland H. Nelson Jr. in his dismissal of coaches Perry Moss, Ellis Johnson and Pete Kondos.

A spokesman for the group called the petition "a spontaneous reaction of horror to the community's response to the situation."

Students will solicit signatures in front of the Shawkey Student Union today, Friday and next week.

Appeals on 'rocky road'

By GINNY PITT
Summer Editor

The appeals of dismissed coaches Perry Moss, Ellis Johnson, and Pete Kondos are progressing slowly and on rocky road.

A seven-man faculty committee was appointed by the University Council to hear the appeals, but is being bogged down by unfamiliar procedure and technical details.

John Callebs, director of development and spokesman for President Roland H. Nelson who was on vacation at the time of the first hearing, said Tuesday, "This is the first time there's ever been a review committee necessary and that is why there are so many questions about how to proceed."

Members of the committee are Dr. Edwin Cubby, professor of social studies and committee chairman; Dr. Ben Hope, professor of speech; Ernest Cole, associate professor of business administration; Leo Imperi, associate professor of music; Dr. Bernard Queen, associate professor of education; Samuel Stinson, associate professor of engineering, and Dr. Harold Ward, professor of biological science.

Kondos waived his appeal Monday when his attorney was refused admittance to the hearing. Moss' hearing began late in the afternoon. He said later he made a statement denying charges against him and inviting those making accusations to come forward.

Dr. Cubby said the committee had not seen the 142-page report submitted by MU to the Mid-American Conference, nor were they aware of any specific charges against the coaches — other than as they are stated in the president's letters to each coach notifying him of dismissal. Dr. Cubby also said that Moss would not be allowed counsel during the hearing but could bring in witnesses.

Moss' hearing had not been resumed by Parthenon press time Tuesday. Johnson's hearing was scheduled for Wednesday afternoon and an attorney for Kondos indicated that he might reconsider his waiver of appeal if procedures were changed.

DR. DOROTHY HICKS
Physical Education

Dr. Hicks plans new programs

Dr. Dorothy Hicks has been appointed chairman of Marshall's Women's Department of Physical Education. Dr. Hicks is formerly of the Women's Physical Education Department at East Tennessee State University.

She said a few of her plans are to make the undergraduate physical education program stronger and better at Marshall. "Some curriculum changes could be made, but the school already has many good courses in the program," Dr. Hicks said. "The graduate program, however, needs to be strengthened and a more specialized focus given to the general approach now in the program."

When asked why she came to Marshall, she said, "I believe there is a great challenge and an opportunity to develop the physical education program here."

Dr. Hicks received her bachelor of science and masters degrees from the George Peabody College at Nashville, Tenn., in physical education and biology. She received her doctorate in education from the University of Tennessee and has done advanced work at the University of Pittsburgh.

She wrote the article, "Outdoor Education Through Camping," which was in the School Activities Handbook of Home-made Games and Instruments, East Tennessee State University, 1960.

Dr. Hicks has had professional experience at Dupont High School, Old Hickory, Tenn.; Central High School, Nashville, Tenn., and East Tennessee State University, Johnson City, Tenn.

Dormitory hours rules announced

in the residence hall this regular appointment must be observed. In the event an all-University event is scheduled to conflict with this regular meeting, the residents will be notified in ample time to reserve the 11 p.m. appointment for another night.

9. All students who participate in self-regulating hours are expected to demonstrate their maturity and consideration of others by:

- Abiding by all of the residence hall regulations with the exception of the closing hours or any regulations which apply to closing hours.
- Maintaining a quiet atmosphere within the residence hall regardless of the time of day or night. Special care must be made by late returnees to refrain from disturbing other residents.
- Returning to the residence hall in a sober and responsible condition.

10. Infractions of the self-regulating hour policies and regulations, as well as the regular dormitory procedures, will be treated as dormitory disciplinary problems.

HOURS AND SPECIAL PERMISSION FOR FRESHMAN WOMEN

The University has established a policy to continue institutionally regulated hours for freshman women which are intended to allow a period of time to adjust to living away from home; to become oriented in the new environment; and, to learn to deal with the many freedoms and choices they will encounter.

Special permissions for weekends, or self-regulating hours, may be granted only by the parents according to the following procedure:

1. The freshman after her arrival at her assigned residence hall, will furnish the residence hall director with a stamped envelope addressed to her parents in which will be inserted another stamped envelope addressed to her residence hall director.

2. The residence hall director will insert an explanatory letter to the parents and two permission cards. One card will be completed and signed by the parents to give the resident permission to have weekend permissions for visits or travel, or, the other card when completed will give the freshman permission to participate in self-regulating hours. The parents return only one card of their choice to the residence director in the envelope which has been provided.

3. Freshmen women may begin their special permissions only after receipt of the parents' chosen permission card sent directly to the residence director.

4. Freshmen women who do not have parental permission for self-regulating hours will be given special approval for three one-hour extensions of their closing hour for each semester. These one-hour permissions will require the same special sign-out procedure as indicated for self-regulating hours. They may not be taken as a three-hour permission for one night nor as a cumulative late minutes accommodation. (See the "grace period" which is allowed for late minutes—item 6 under Infraction of Closing Hour Regulations)

5. Guests of freshmen may qualify for self-regulating hours under the following conditions:

- If the hostess qualifies for self-regulating hours and the guest is either an upperclassman or a campus freshman who has qualified for self-regulating hours.
- If the guest is a non-student visiting a freshman who has parental permission for self-regulating hours.

6. Freshmen women will be governed by the policies and standards as stated in the following section. Those freshman women who have qualified for self-regulating hours will be required to observe the same procedures and regulations as those specified for upperclassmen.

Coach Shaw resigns; praises MU thinclads

Track Coach Jack Shaw has resigned his position at Marshall for another post at the University of Pittsburgh.

Shaw was track and cross-country coach this past school year and led MU to a better than usual season.

On Marshall's future in track, he says, "Marshall's got to be smart. It has to get a good coach and it has to have a track, but it's easier now. They have a team to work with."

He will become an assistant in track and cross-country at Pitt and will head the field events program under head coach Jim Banner. Shaw will coach the freshman team in cross-country.

"I got a track," said Shaw when asked of his new post. "It was a chance to step up into the big time, a chance I couldn't afford to pass up."

"I tried here at Marshall, but it just didn't work out. I've enjoyed my stay here and learned a lot. The kids are great and they have worked hard. All they really need now is a track."

Many of the young men Shaw has worked with this past year have called his home in Kane, Pa., expressing their feelings of his departure.

Shaw previously worked as assistant coach at Ohio and Western Michigan Universities. He is a graduate of Muskingum.

During his tenure as track coach, Shaw's team scored three points in the MAC Championships in Kalamazoo, Mich., in May . . . the best in recent years.

In their '69 season, the Herd's thinclads broke seven school records in seven different events, including four by Bill Hill, Wheeling junior.

Shaw was responsible for signing three men to grants-in-aid for the coming year. Douglas Jones, a sprinter from Fairborn, Ohio; John Arellin, a distance runner from Tyrone, N. M., and Chuck Marshall, a distance runner from Ruffsdales, Pa., signed letters of intent to MU, but it isn't known if they will enroll.

Seniors give

The wheels have been set in motion for the opening of the 1969-70 Senior Commitment to Marshall campaign. The purpose of this campaign is to encourage every senior to support Marshall financially and morally.

New MU housing facilities to be completed by Sept. 1

University Heights' new housing facilities will be finished by Sept. 1, according to Warren Myers, director of housing.

Completion of the three-building project was delayed because of a sewage contract. The director says that now that the contract has been settled and that work is continuing smoothly.

The new facility has 42 units. Fourteen are two-bedroom apartments and the others have one bedroom. The units will be air-conditioned and furnished with draperies and essential furniture.

Storage space of approximately 144 square feet will be provided in the basements for each tenant. Coin-operated washers and dryers will be available in each of the buildings.

Rent for the single bedroom units is $90 per month; the two bedroom units are $100 a month. All utilities are included in the rent price.

Priority on occupancy will be given to students already living at University Heights. Decisions on allocation of the new units will be made by the middle of August, according to Myers.

Occupants will need linens, carpets or rugs, cooking utensils, and personal items to decorate the apartments.

Cut income taxes with trusts funds

By GARY W. SWEENEY
Staff Editor

Want to know a way to save for college costs and cut taxes at the same time?

Parents can now take advantage of a simple device that can whittle down their income tax bill as savings accumulate, says an authority on family finances, Prof. Irving Schreiber.

Professor Schreiber, editor of the "Financial Planning Work Book," said the simple device is the Uniform Gifts to Minors Act. This act has now been adopted (with some slight variations) in all states.

Say that mother and dad have been banking $5 a week against college expenses for 15 years, putting it into a savings account paying 5 per cent interest, compounded quarterly. They'd pay income tax over the years on $1,890.11 of earned interest, at ordinary income rates.

However, if the parents gave the money to Junior or Suzy, who in turn placed the money into a custodial account under the Uniform Gifts to Minors Act, the earned interest would not be taxed to the parents, but to the child. Most likely, the child would not have enough additional income to put him in a taxable bracket. Therefore the entire amount would not be taxed.

Not only do the parents reduce their own tax burden, but they can continue to claim a child as a deduction, since they are still providing his support.

When a custodial account is established, whatever assets go into it can never be reclaimed by the parents, and by law they become the sole property of the minor when he reaches age 21.

Schreiber said that setting up a trust generally requires the assistance of a lawyer, while establishing a custodial account is generally as simple as signing your name. "When a modest sum of money is involved," writes Schreiber, "a custodianship is more feasible, but when securities of substantial value are involved, it is generally better to establish a formal trust."

Slaatte lectures in Michigan

Dr. Howard A. Slaatte, chairman of the Department of Philosophy, will lecture Aug. 15 to staff and students of psychiatry at Traverse City State Hospital in Michigan for the third successive year.

His lecture, "Psychobiology's Near Break-Through to the Mind," is being currently considered for publication in the journal "Existential Psychiatry" published by the American Ontoanalytic Association of which Dr. Slaatte is a member. It will also be incorporated into a book, "Frontiers in the Philosophy of Science," on which Dr. Slaatte is presently working, backed by a Benedum Foundation grant.

'Room within a room' finds audio problems

Marshall University and the Huntington area have a new ear for listening. The Speech Department has employed Mr. Vincent Lustig, an audiologist, and a completely new soundproof testing room under his supervision.

This "room within a room," as described by Lustig, pinpoints the structure of the facility which is the only one of its kind in Huntington. The heartbeat and digestive sounds can be heard within this noise-tight compartment.

Room construction was completed in three days, but technical arrangements are still incomplete. Lustig said the room should be functional by September.

Children or adults with suspected audio problems may be referred to Marshall's clinic by a medical doctor, state agency such as the Department of Welfare, or self-referral by appointment through the Speech Clinic.

The room is for community treatment as well as for research and testing purposes.

New MU library additions readied for possible fall use

A long-awaited dream is about to come true for Harold Apel, librarian. In 1965 ground was broken for the new additions to the library; now the chances are good that the Collegiate Library on the second floor will be opened in the fall.

Materials have been on order for two years for the new divisions of the library. The chairs

4-H DELEGATES

Marshall University's All-Star committee of the 4-H Club will be well represented this weekend at the 50th anniversary conference of the Alpha Chapter, West Virginia 4-H All Stars at Jackson's Mill.

During the conference, Peggy Morton, Rainelle senior and state officer, said the Marshall club will honor two University alumni by presenting them with honorary membership in the campus club. The honorees will not be made public prior to presentation.

and the new catalog cases are now here. Study shelves and metal shelving should be here by late August, according to Apel. The furniture will arrive in semi-knock-down form and the companies will have men to assemble it upon arrival.

While walking in the Collegiate Library, Mr. Apel said, "It takes time to finish a project such as this, but it is well worth it when one can see the completion so near."
