MU to resume negotiations with MAC

By GINNY PITT
Editor-in-chief

President Roland H. Nelson Jr. may attend the next Mid-American Conference Council of Presidents meeting to "request clarification of our situation" with the conference he told The Parthenon Tuesday.

Dr. Nelson said he expected the council to meet in December, and it is his intention to "go to them" to discuss MU and the MAC. The Thundering Herd was indefinitely suspended from the conference July 24 and was placed under one year's probation in football by the National Collegiate Athletic Association last week.

Dr. Nelson had said earlier that MU would "resume negotiations" with the MAC following the NCAA announcement. He also said they could not release any specifics of what he would say to the council at this time.

The Athletic Committee is presently screening applicants for the position of Athletic Director. Dr. Nelson said the appointment should be made by the end of November. Acting Athletic Director Charles Kautz is being considered as well as several other applicants. Kautz was appointed acting director after the resignation of Eddie Barrett on Aug. 17. Barrett has remained in the athletic department in an advisory capacity until the new director is named.

Dr. Nelson also said there was a "special request" in the MU budget for funds to upgrade athletic facilities. Although he would release no figures, the president said the request included plans for "immediate" upgrading of Fairfield Stadium and the construction of an intercollegiate track. These two projects would be considered Phase I of a 10-year long-range plan to improve athletic facilities. The budget is now in the governor's office, recommendations having been submitted from the Board of Regents. Neither the president nor the Board are releasing budget request figures until the governor sends his recommendations to the legislature.

Dr. Nelson also commented on the wooden crosses placed on campus Monday morning by members of Students for a Democratic Society. He said they would be considered as signs placed by any other group on campus expressing their ideas and would be left up "a reasonable length of time" to be determined by the Dean of Student Personnel Programs.

Homecoming voting, rally set

8 a.m. today voting starts for queens

By SALLIE KRIPPENE
Staff reporter

Election for Miss Marshall and her court will be today 8 a.m.-4 p.m. in the basement of the Shawkey Student Union. Fulltime students are eligible to vote by showing their activity and I.D. cards.

The queen and her attendants will be announced in The Parthenon Thursday.

Those seniors seeking the Miss Marshall crown are: Gail Kucek of Oceana, Carolyn Rader of Ripley, Gaynelle Rice, and Karen Cremeans of Huntington, Jani Howell of Huntington, N.Y., Judy Dee Farley of Pineville, Karen Lofland of Weirton, Gay Hill of Martinsburg, Pam Slaughter of Dunbar and Brenda Crookshanks of Milton.

Junior attendant candidates are: Linda Payne of St. Albans, Michaelle Burgess, Niki Garnett, Karen Hibbard, and Charla Summers, all of Huntington.

Other candidates are Patti Acord of Man, Yvonne Padilla of the Panama Canal Zone, and Joanne Weiss of Wildwood, N.J.

Sophomore attendant hopefuls are: Billie Jo Repass of Mullins, Marianne Kapinos, Nancy Sheppe, and Anna Woodall, of Huntington, Becki Dailer of Wheeling, Grace Moore of Buckeye, Viki Gall of Alexander, Va., and Chris Barth of New Martinsville.

Freshman attendant candidates are: Patty Zdranik of Monaca, Pa., Judi Frame of St. Albans, Patty Bently, Viki Simpson, Linda Sargent and Barbara Laishly all of Huntington, Jane Jarrett of Indiantalantic, Fla., and Stephanie Witt of Fayetteville.

Tickets for Homecoming activities may be purchased through Friday from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. in the ballroom of Shawkey Student Union.

THE HOMECOMING Queen's trophy is displayed along with those to be awarded to her attendants and award-winning floats.

D, F letters for freshmen

The academic deans have approved a recommendation by the Academic Planning and Standards Committee that only freshmen receive D and F letters. This applies to both first and second semester freshmen.

The reason behind this move is that freshmen should be informed as early as possible as to deficiencies in their work so that they can make improvements before it is too late. Upperclassmen will not receive mid-term grades because it is felt that they are mature enough to assume the personal responsibility, according to Dr. A. Mervin Tyson, vice president of academic affairs.

As in the past, the letters will be sent to both the students and parents.

'Stop the streak' march, rally scheduled Thursday

By SHEILA DAVISSON
Staff reporter

"Stop the streak!" is the motto being used by Frank Loria and Gene Breen, assistant football coaches, in a campaign to gain support and enthusiasm among students for the Homecoming game against Bowling Green this Saturday.

The coaches have been visiting the dormitories and meeting with representatives from sororities and fraternities to inform the students of the activities they have planned during the course of this week.

"We feel our effort can unify Marshall," stated Breen, "and in this way, we can break the streak. After all, football is 90 per cent mental and if we can get the support of the student body behind the football team, their pride and enthusiasm will be transferred to the players."

The coaches are sponsoring a "Yell Like Hell" night at 7:30 p.m. Thursday. They plan to start a procession beginning on Sixth Avenue which is to proceed down the street past the fraternity and sorority houses, continuing to the Twin Towers dormitory, and then on to the other dormitories on campus.

Marshall's band will lead the procession and they hope to have students join them at each house and dormitory. This procession will end up at Central Field for a pep rally. At the head of the procession, a dummy will be carried as a replica of Joe Green, Bowling Green's All-American football candidate.

A car with "Smash the streak" painted on it has been donated by the Cabell Auto Company and will be used at the rally. Sledge hammers will be available and for a small fee, students will have the privilege of smashing the car.

"What we hope to do is to get emotions expressed by the students and carry these emotions not only into homecoming, but into future games," said Breen.

Badges with "Stop the streak" written on them are being passed out and the coaches are attempting to encourage students to hang posters out their dorm

Students present petition to dean about cafeteria

Complaints about long lines of students at dinner time at Twin-Towers and South Hall cafeterias are being considered by University officials.

A petition bearing 1,050 students' names complaining about dining lines was presented Tuesday morning to Dr. Donald K. Carson, associate dean of student personnel programs. Presenting the petition was Joe Alderman, Bartley sophomore and Twin-Towers residence director.

The petition called for cafeteria hours to be extended 90 minutes in the evening. Present hours are 4:30 to 6 p.m. and the petition asked they be extended to 4 p.m. to 7 p.m.

Carson, who sympathized with the students, was scheduled to meet with Joseph Soto, vice president of business, to discuss the matter.

All students that eat in campus cafeterias must eat in the two dormitory dining areas now since the closing of the main University Dining Hall about two weeks ago.

"The lines are outrageous, simply outrageous," said Mark Joseph, Wheeling, freshman. "Both cafeterias are filled to the brim with students trying to eat in the small time allotted to them. It seems that the cafeteria could be more efficient in regulating the amount of people that dine there."

Parade supporting men in Vietnam is planned

Gov. Arch A. Moore has been asked by the Support Our Men in Vietnam Committee to lead a parade Nov. 10 and speak at a rally following the procession, according to William C. Atkinson, Logan sophomore and class president.

The parade is part of a national observance to show support for American servicemen in Vietnam and is sponsored nationally by Young Americans for Freedom, according to Atkinson.

Beginning at noon, the procession form at 4th Ave. and 16th St. and march to Huntington City Hall at 5th Ave. and 8th St. where a rally with speeches and entertainment will be conducted.

Besides Gov. Moore, the committee hopes to have Congressman Donald E. (Bux) Lukens, R-Ohio, to speak at the rally. Also participating will be the Sing Out, Up With People from Clarksburg, W. Va.

According to Atkinson, the MU observance is sponsored by independent students who ask the support of fraternities, sororities, Student Government, Huntington citizens and individual students.

Atkinson said Gov. Moore has not definitely accepted the invitation because he is waiting to see if President Nixon takes a stand on the issue. The Marshall senator said the governor wanted also to wait until citizens had taken the initiative in supporting the servicemen before the government stepped in.

The committee is seeking to have classes dismissed at Marshall and area high schools so students can participate in the activities. Area high school bands have been asked to march in the parade along with Marshall ROTC units.

"About 20,000 people are expected to participate in Charleston," he commented. "We haven't estimated a number here but hope to have a great deal of support."

Huntington City Council approved a parade permit for the group in action Monday night.

Long lines big cafeteria gripe

An editorial

4 p.m.--I decided it was time to go and get in line for dinner. I know the cafeteria doesn't open until 4:30 but if I don't get in line now, I'll have to wait an hour to get inside the door instead of 30 minutes.

This is ridiculous.

4:15--The line is now backed up to the mail boxes, and that's just on the inside. I hate to think what it looks like on the outside.

4:25--They made the mistake of opening the door in order to let the line on the inside begin to form. I moved up six inches. Why can't they start serving just five minutes early?? What difference could five minutes make? The difference between life and death, if I don't get some food.

4:50--I've pushed my way into the final line. The mess right there by the lady with the counter is unbelievable. There are ten people trying to get into a single line. Everybody from out and in are pushing and it's chaos, pure and simple.

5--Would you believe it? I finally got my food. One hour after I go into the line I got served. I've waited so long I'm not even hungry anymore.

Does this sound like a piece of fiction? Take it from me and everyone who's eating in Twin Towers cafeteria that every word of it is the truth. It's not even exaggerated. I timed it last night.

The main cafeteria has been closed because the sanitary board said they had to. Everyone who ate there figured that was coming some day. So, it finally happened. Now there are 2,000 people trying to eat in a cafeteria made to feed 1,000. And it's overcrowded.

There could be one simple solution to this problem. Either open the cafeteria sooner, or leave it open longer. As it is now, everyone goes down at 4 so that they can get in, eat and get out by the time the cafeteria closes at 6. If the students felt that they had more time, then they might not all rush down to be there when the doors open and the congestion might be relieved.

Waiting on replacements for food also takes up some time. If they run out of something and don't have any handy, then the line has to wait for it to come from the kitchen. Keep those goodies coming.

The food is better this year, this is true. But what good does that do when you can't get it to taste it?

Actor to headline Convocation

Alexander Scourby, noted actor of stage, screen, radio and television will be featured in Convocation 11 a.m. Thursday in Old Main Auditorium.

He will present a dramatic program entitled "Dearest Fanny--The Romance of John Keats."

Hailed by critics for his distinguished performances, Scourby is a man of all media. He has performed both on and off-Broadway in "Hamlet" and other famous plays.

Hollywood claimed him for such films as "Giant," "The Silver Chalice," "Ransom," "The Glory Brigade," and "The Big Heat."

He has narrated such NBC-TV Project 20 programs as "He Is Risen," "The Coming of Christ" and "The Law and the Prophets." His one-hour narrations of National Geographic TV color specials have also won "rave" reviews.

The New Yorker, in commenting on his extensive recording work for the American Foundation for the Blind, remarked that Alexander Scourby "rates as high as with Talking Book fans as Sinatra does with the popular-ballad public."

Scourby has also recorded the Bible, both Old and New Testaments, for the American Bible Society.

He is married to Lori March, well-known to television viewers for her leading role in the daytime serial, "The Secret Storm."

Band to satirize MU's situation in half-time show

The Big Green Marching Band has a "satiric view of the Marshall situation" in store for the Homecoming game audience this Saturday, according to Robert R. Clark, associate professor of music and band director.

Built around the theme "Support Your Local Marshall," the band will emphasize the lack of support the University has received in recent years.

"We will start off with a salute to the most important "Marshall," John Marshall, and follow with 'I've Got Plenty of Nothing,' as the band forms a dollar sign on the field. Our transition number between songs is 'You've Come A Long Way, Baby,'" Clark said.

"I Can't Get No Satisfaction" is the idea behind the number planned by the majorettes. The band show will conclude with 'Don't Fence Me In,' directed towards the Board of Regents members.

"We think these numbers typify Marshall's condition today," commented Clark, "and we hope this theme will improve things in the future."

The band will also perform in the Homecoming parade Saturday at 10 a.m.

"Okay Swami — now conjure up a cold case of Falls City Beer."

Falls City Brewing Company, Louisville, Kentucky

By TIM BUCEY
Sports editor

Head football Coach Rick Tolley was not kidding when he said, "We're going to do everything in our power to win this weekend."

Tolley's theory is if the Herd is going to break its streak and thus prevent tying of the NCAA record for the longest non-winning streak, it will be up to the entire student body to help.

This season's sophomore dominated squad, which was not used to losing after going undefeated last year, suddenly finds itself with the possibility of being the team that set the nation's major college record for the longest futility streak.

The fact of the matter is this team lost only six of those 27 and just happened to come along at an inopportune time. There are some seniors though who have suffered through all but one of the 27 games without a victory. Among them are Calvin Ball, Larry Cater, Richard Dardinger, and Tim Deeds.

OUT TO PROVE THE TEAM IS BETTER

Tolley is out to prove the team is better that it thinks it is even though it has been beaten in the first six games.

He is going about it in a way no other coach during the streak, has ever done or ever bothered doing.

The coach and his staff on Sunday, Monday and Tuesday nights, visited the dorms on campus hoping to instill some spirit in the fans to help get the players up for the Homecoming game.

Players showed up at practice sessions Monday with signs "stop the streak" on their jerseys and helmets; coaches are wearing armbands, and the dressing room is littered with the same slogan.

Signs on the doors to the coaching office read, "We're not giving up, Don't You!"

A pep rally is scheduled for Thursday night on campus and is expected to be something out of the ordinary, at least for a Marshall pep rally.

Dormitories are making signs to be hung out the windows to prove that on the Marshall campus the Buffalo is not extinct.

GETTING THE TEAM UP

Besides instilling life into the fans, Tolley is also getting his team "up" for the game. At Monday's practice he termed this Saturday a do or die game, stressing this would be an all-out effort to stop the streak.

"We've shown signs of winning before and we know we can," the coach said.

Following practice Monday, one player reported, "We had a good practice. We're psyched."

The Herd has tried everything else since the streak began to win and it just seems odd that no one thought of this before. It seemed to help the basketball team of a couple years ago when the Field House was continually filled.

ENOUGH SEATS?

Another thing which should possibly be taken into consideration if this thing goes over big is--will there be enough seats for students? Throughout the season a large number of students have turned out for the games and it may be advisable to open another section to students if it is feasible at this late date.

Knowing there will be plenty of seats in the student section would no doubt motivate more students to attend.

Let's hope Marshall shows the people of this state, WVU and the MAC -- when the going gets tough, the tough get going!

Wright runs to victory

KA Psi wins in grid action

By PHIL MILLER
Sports writer

Bob Wright, Williamson junior, literally ran Kappa Alpha Psi to victory over the Zeta Beta Tau Ones Monday on Central field in the National league East's first grid-game of the week.

Wright ran the ball for two touchdowns and one extra point for the Kappas and Tom Coleman, Beckley sophomore, scored on a 35-yard run for a final KA Psi touchdown.

Scoring for the losers were Warren Rose, East Rockaway, N.Y., senior, on a pass from ABT quarterback Dana Rawlings, Nitro senior, and Bill Bayart, Ironton, Ohio, freshman, who scored the extra point creating a final score of Kappa Alpha Psi--19, Zeta Beta Tau--7.

Central field also hosted the Silverfish and Hodges Hall in the final National league game of the day. Quarterback Mike Yeagle, Portsmouth, Ohio, senior, utilized his passing abilities so that Mike Leesburg, also a Portsmouth senior, could score the only touchdown of the game causing a final score of Silverfish--6, Hodges Hall--0.

American league football action featured the Sigma Alpha Epsilon Ones defeating the Pi Kappa Alpha Threes on Intramural field with a score of SAE--13, Pi Kappa Alpha--6.

Quarterbacking the SAEs for their second straight win was Corky Layman, Huntington senior, who ran the ball 20 yards for their first touchdown and passed to Tod Bloss, Huntington sophomore, for the extra point.

down of the game.

Intramural grid action for the day ended with the Teacher's Corps romping Phi Kappa Tau, 14-0.

Coed hockey team beaten by Marietta

Woman's hockey team lost 7-0 Saturday to Marietta College at Marietta, Ohio. The team's record is now 0-2 with one game left to play.

Coach Ella Stull, physical education instructor, said at the end of the first half the score was 2-0 but the second half "we fell to pieces."

Miss Stull said a major problem was attracting those students from New Jersey and Pennsylvania who have playing experience.

The team's final game will be Nov. 15 against Concord College at Marshall.
