Midway slows Tri-State upgrading

(EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the first article in a series concerning the airport facility situation.)

By GARY RAMSEY
News editor

Only $5 or $6 million and 2,319 feet will improve the Tri-State Airport to the degree where the area would have adequate air facilities, according to Charles F. Dodrill, president of the Tri-State Airport Authority.

According to Dodrill the upgrading of Tri-State Airport should have been done years ago, but the idea of a new Midway air facility has hindered the improvements.

The $5 to $6 million would include an extension of the runway to 6,500 feet, with 1,000 foot extensions on each end, and the installation of a glide slope.

In the past four years the Tri-State Airport has three fatal accidents to its record and Dodrill said, "I feel two of these could have been avoided with the improvements."

Dodrill said his own personal feelings on the Marshall tragedy are, "The pilot was low for two reasons. He wanted to use all of the runway possible and he didn't have a glide-slope."

Dodrill said these were his own personal feelings and he was speaking as a "pilot and not as a politician."

"If he had his controls set for descending, then I have my doubts he would have made it anyway, but if he was climbing I feel he might have," he said.

Eastern Airlines flies Boeing 727 Whisper Jets into Huntington and Eastern manager of sales and service Robert Dillard said, "The one-mile runway is the minimum qualification to land a 727, but the desired runway length is not less than 6,500 feet and 7,500 feet is more desirable."

According to Dillard, the hot weather affects lift and this will cause changes in load and fuel take-on as long as the temperature is above 60 degrees.

"The hotter it gets the thinner the air and the decrease in lift, as well as the consideration we are 800 feet above sea level," he said.

According to Dillard the Tri-State Airport has been trying to get funds to upgrade the airport for three years but Midway "had stopped all funding for the Tri-State Airport."

"I am in favor of the Midway and Eastern is too because of the better service we could give," Dillard said.

Peter Capadoni, airport manager, said, "Several applications for minor improvements have been slowed up because of Midway Airport."

"It would cost $5 million to upgrade the airport and as of June 30, 1970, we have spent $5,648,000 for land and improvements since the airport was built which would cost two and one half or three times this amount today," he said.

Dodrill said, "Tri-State airport can be improved to the status of adequate and safe with a minimum expense with the use of public funds."

According to Dodrill the attention on Midway has been going on for five or six years and "the sponsors have been unwilling to give funds for the upgrading of Tri-State."

"It will take 10 years to complete Midway Airport in the meantime we either make the improvements or go on operating with an inadequate runway and accept the risks," Dodrill said.

Air traffic official testifies he saw nothing till crash

By MARTI VOGEL
Managing editor

Neither the plane nor its flashing beacon lights were seen on the night of Nov. 14 by W. E. Stiltner, one of the witnesses at Monday's National Transportation Safety Board hearings at the Hotel Frederick.

Stiltner was on duty as air traffic controller at Tri-State Airport at the time.

He said he began looking for the plane after it reported it had spotted the inbound marker, located 4.6 miles from the airport. Visibility was listed at five miles. He said he had no reason to think visibility was any different from that reported by the weather bureau.

Stiltner did say, however that he saw the fiery glow on the mountain following the crash.

Three eyewitnesses to the crash of the chartered Marshall University football jetliner however, said they heard the DC9's twin jets suddenly increase their power just before crashing into the muddy hillside.

Hughie M. Arts, who lives near the mountaintop airport, said he heard the aircraft approaching in rain, fog and smoke the night of Nov. 14 and noticed it was flying low.

Arts said he looked back down, heard the jets suddenly intensify their power and then looked up again and "saw a brilliant flash," as the Southern Airs craft plowed into the hillside and exploded.

An official of the Bureau of Aviation Safety from Washington introduced records of the Southern pilot and co-pilot, evidence from which showed neither had ever landed on this milelong landing strip described by pilots as one "you have to be careful with."

Frank H. Abbott, 47, the plane's pilot, had flown 18,557 hours for Southern, 2,194 of which were aboard the DC9 that crashed and burned.

Capt. John M. Webb, the Southern pilot who flew the Marshall team, coaches and fans to Greenville, N.C., the day before the crash, testified he had noticed two minor problems with the DC9 and had filed a report on them after reaching Atlanta late the day of Nov. 13.

Webb said the craft's cabin pressure control circuit breaker "popped twice" on the flight. He said a fluctuating oil pressure gauge on the plane's right engine wouldn't stabilize and said another pressure amplifier was replaced.

Judicial board appointed

By CHARLES H. FERGUSON
Staff reporter

The Marshall Judicial Board has tentatively been appointed with seven appointees' names being sent to Student Body President Michael Gant from Dr. Donald N. Dedmon, acting president.

could not confirm any appointments at that time because he had not yet received a reply from any of the appointees.

The Judicial Board is to be composed of seven students and two faculty members, all of whom are appointed to a one-year term by the University president.

Gant submitted names of nominees to Dr. Dedmon, and the acting president appointed the members.

The appointees tentatively named in the letter to Gant included:

Leon K. Oxley, Huntington senior; Bill Redd, Gary junior; Linda Hatton, Ceredo freshman; Venida Lee, Williamson senior; Peter Rizzo, Huntington, N.Y. freshman; Jack Seamonds, Huntington junior, and Georgia Applegate, Beachwood, N.J. junior.

Faculty members named in the letter were Ronald Scudato, assistant professor of geology, and Phyllis H. Cyrus, associate professor of management.

Frank Julian, director of student financial aid, and acting dean of students, said Monday his office was trying to contact the appointees "to find out when we can get together." Julian said "we are tentatively shooting for an afternoon and evening meeting Jan. 3."

He said the first cases "very likely will be heard in January."

Julian added he is "glad the board has been named so we can get some cases presented and a decision made."

The Judicial Board will hear all administrative cases and this includes University disciplinary action against three men allegedly involved in bomb threat calls to Twin Towers Dormitories on Oct. 27. The arrested men were Larry Conn, 21, Kistler sophomore, William Beverlin, 18, Salem, W.Va., freshman, and a 17-year-old juvenile from South Charleston.

Conn and Beverlin, after preliminary hearings in front of Magistrate Andrew Kitchen, now face the Cabell County Grand Jury, and local authorities have dismissed the case of the juvenile because "the court felt he was not involved."

The men were arrested after an electronic device was put into use by the Chesapeake and Potomac Telephone Co.

Julian said the Judicial Board still will hold a hearing for the juvenile, although local officials have dismissed his case. Julian explained the University's Judicial Board can only reach a decision from a disciplinary standpoint and the board will decide whether or not to impose penalties on either or all of the men.

Julian said he did not know whether the board will hear the bomb scare cases or will hear other matters first.

Memorial reply tremendous-Gant

Letters and encouragement received by Student Government after the airplane crash of Nov. 14 has been tremendous, according to Michael Gant, student body president and Huntington junior.

"The response to the Student Government has been something tremendous in terms of persons who were in the memorial service and some people had written saying they were with us during our tragedy.

"Many people just wrote expressing their sympathy and saying their prayers were with us."

Gant said the three things that stood out the most were the three packets of letters he received. One packet was from a fifth grade class in Man, W.Va., a packet was sent in from seventh grade class from Wheeling, Cub Scouts from Huntington wrote and sent a $5 donation.

According to Gant, Miami University (Ohio), sent a contribution as well as West Virginia State. He said Ohio University broadcast the OSU-Michigan game on closed circuit television and sent the $1,500 to MU.

Emergency unit plans taking shape

BY ROGER DYER
Staff Reporter

Plans for improving services of the student health service are taking shape and some have been put into action, according to Dr. Russell P. Hall, director of student health service.

Details for an emergency vehicle for MU have been worked out including equipment needed to make it an effective unit. These plans have been approved and the selection of the equipment is now being made.

"Campus Security will man the unit and each officer will be trained in first aid by the American Red Cross," added Dr. Hall.

Plans to make structural changes in the health center are presently being studied by an architect to determine the best use of space and to allow the health service to be open longer hours than at present, even hours when the rest of the building is closed.

"When this is done the addition of more staff members will be possible," said Dr. Hall.

Two student assistants have been added to the staff recently and two more will be added in the future.

Dr. Hall stated that influenza injections are still available to students and may be obtained anytime the health service is open.

Operating hours are 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Friday and 9 a.m. to noon on Saturday.

Squad and coaches term debate hard work, fun

By RICHARD HENSLEY
Feature writer

RESOLVED: That intercollegiate debating, although involving hours of hard work, is fun.

This resolution would find only affirmative supports among members of the Marshall debate team. Squad members and coaches, gathered around the cluttered tables of the debate team's workroom in Smith Hall, radiated a contagious enthusiasm in their comments about debating.

"Many kids don't realize how much fun debate is," said Mary Stout, Marietta, Ohio freshman.

"I like debating because it presents such a challenge to a competitive spirit," added Steve Hayes, Huntington sophomore.

Hayes, Miss Stout and eight other students make up this year's debate squad. Other members are Paul Dick, Charlene Miller, Jessie Cook and Dave Enochs, all Huntington freshmen; Trent Crewe, Princeton junior; Bruce Tucker, South Point, Ohio, freshman; Steve Fleming, South Charleston freshman, and Joe Bundy, Bluefield freshman.

Dr. Ben Hope, professor of speech, is director of forensics and has directed debating activities at Marshall since 1947. Miss Jacqueline White, instructor of speech, is in her second year as assistant director of forensics.

A collegiate debater is not considered a "varsity" debater until he has participated in a designated number of events. The 1970-71 members of the MU team are all "novice" debaters and yet have won better than half their debates.

"Considering the fact that none of our debaters have had very much experience in intercollegiate debating they are doing very well," said Miss White.

Marshall has completed so far this semester at Morehead State University, Carlow (Pa.) College, Rio Grande (Ohio) College, Morris Harvey College Butler (Ind.) University and Marietta (Ohio) College.

The debate question is selected each year by a vote of members of the American Forensic Association, several honorary speech fraternities and some unaffiliated colleges. The question this year is: "RESOLVED, That the federal government should adopt a program of compulsory wage and price controls." This question is debated at all contests in intercollegiate debating.

A debate team consists of four persons—two affirmative and two negative debaters. A college or university may enter more than one team in a tournament, but a coach must be available with each four-debater team.

During the competition each team must debate three rounds. The affirmative debaters meet the negative side of a rival school while their own negative teammates meet still another school. The coach must, at the same time, serve as judge for another debate.

Both negative and affirmative sides are scored so the best record possible for the three rounds is 6-0. Each round of debate takes one hour during which each debater speaks twice.

Judges award a maximum of five points each to the debater for analysis, reasoning, evidence, organization, refutation and delivery.

Participation in eight rounds of intercollegiate debate makes a student eligible for membership in Pi Kappa Delta, national honorary debate fraternity.

Miss White points out that the debate team is no place for a student afraid of work. Debaters commonly spend as much as 100 hours in research for a single case. Practice debates are held in between the collegiate meet, and debaters tell of spending many hours, nights and Saturdays in the debate team room.

MU debaters admit debating can be hard work but say the traveling, the challenge and the fun make it all worthwhile. And the record indicates this year's team is representing the university well.

Arch rival Morehead Herd foe tonight

After a one point loss to LaSalle Saturday, Marshall will try to get back on a winning road tonight when it travels to Morehead, Ky. to take on Morehead State University.

The Eagles are led by last season's All Ohio Valley Conference forward Jim Day. The 6-8 senior averaged 22 points and 11 rebounds in leading Morehead to a 13-11 record last season.

His running mate at forward is Jerry Hueseman, 6-6, while center position is either 6-8 Alonzo Cole or 6-11 Royce Woolever. Jerry King and Eddie Conley are holdovers at the guards.

In reference to Marshall's loss to LaSalle College at the Palestra in Philadelphia, the easiest and most used excuse for the loss of an athletic contest played away from home has always been to place blame on the referees.

However, what if the person blaming the officials is a sports writer who reports for one of the home town newspapers.

"I want you to know that your guys were purloined," said a reporter for the Philadelphia

Enquirer. "But," he continued, "I can't say that it's the worst officiating I've ever seen, because it's happened too many times here before."

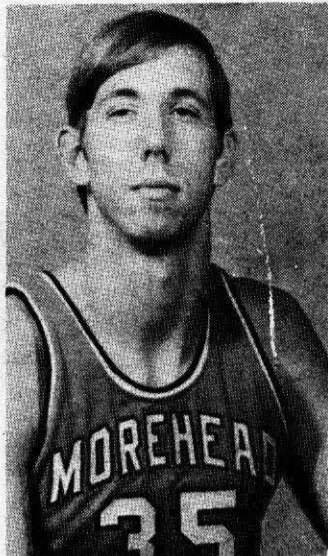

But, despite the referee's interference in the last four minutes of the ball game, the Thundering Herd still came within one full-court press of defeating the Explorers.

With only seconds remaining on the clock, MU threw a double-teaming press at LaSalle. However, it failed when a Herd cager missed his assignment and both Ken Durrett and Ron Kennedy were left alone under their basket. Durrett scored the clinching lay-up unmolested.

Both teams played a ragged ball game offensively and defensively, with La Salle winning the battle of turnovers 24-22.

However, the category La Salle iced the game in was rebounds. While MU could muster but 39 rebounds, the Explorers recovered 56 missed shots.

MOREHEAD FORWARD

Salle's attempts.

Even though the Herd hit on the same number of baskets as La Salle, the Explorers controlled the board to the extent that they took 12 more shots than the Big Green.

This resulted in La Salle shooting 38.8 per cent from the floor, while MU shot 45.6.

Ken Durrett was La Salle's leading scorer, hitting 13 of 27 field goal attempts for 27 points. Bob Fields also chipped in with 20 points.

Three cagers scored in double figures for the Herd; Russell Lee, 21, Blaine Henry, 20 and Dave Smith, 13.

In the game deciding statistic for La Salle, Ron Kennedy pulled down 16 rebounds and Ken Durrett 13.

For the Herd, Dave Smith led with 14 rebounds and Russell Lee with 12.

A visible disgruntled Stewart Way, basketball coach, would not comment on the officiating, but he did voice his thoughts on the play of La Salle's alleged All-American Ken Durrett.

"If Durrett is an All-American, Russell Lee must be All-Universe," commented Way.

WMUL plans early newscast

WMUL-TV is planning an early evening newscast beginning in January, according to Terry M. Hollinger, general manager.

Hollinger said WMUL-TV will concentrate on "campus news" and "news behind the news. By developing this approach," Hollinger continued, "we should be able to add something to news coverage in the area."

He said the idea of a daily newscast on WMUL-TV was that of Stephen Gill, Coluden junior and news director WMUL-FM.

Under the present plan the news department of WMUL-FM which is composed entirely of students will be responsible for preparing and delivering the 15 minute television newscast.

Marshall swimmers break even in meets

By LARRY HURLEY
Staff reporter

Marshall University swimmers broke even over the weekend, defeating Morehead State University Friday, 63-50 but losing Saturday to the Eastern Kentucky University Colonels 72-40.

In the season-opener against Morehead, Marshall broke five school records and three Gullickson Hall pool records in recording its first win.

Saturday, MU broke another record, but was overpowered by Eastern Kentucky, which smashed seven pool records. In Friday's action, Tom Gardner, Cincinnati, Ohio, freshman, set the 200-yard butterfly record with a time of 2:07.6, beating the previous pool record of 2:14.4.

A record time of 2:12.9 by Bob Schmitt, Cincinnati, Ohio, freshman, broke the 200-yard backstroke record.

Dave Beakes, Clarksburg junior, and Greg Broxterman, Cincinnati, Ohio, sophomore, set records in the 500-yard freestyle and the 200-yard breaststroke events, respectively.

Beakes time was 5:21.3, and Broxterman's time was 2:25.8.

Marshall also broke the 400-yard medley relay pool record, with a time of 3:51.4.

Mike Howard led Morehead while placing first in two diving events. Larry Ridgeway won the 200-yard freestyle, and Bob Abell finished first in the 100-yard freestyle.

Marshall swimmers found the going a little tougher in Saturday's meet, placing first in only one individual event and one relay event.

Greg Broxterman, Cincinnati, Ohio, sophomore, smashed the 200-yard breaststroke record set Friday, with a time of 2:25.5.

However, the Colonels broke records in the 400-yard medley relay, the 1000-yard freestyle, the 50-yard freestyle, the 200-yard butterfly, the 100-yard freestyle, the 200-yard backstroke and the 500-yard freestyle events.

Coach Bob Saunders said after the Morehead meet, "We met an improved and balanced team. They were stronger in the distance events than we expected, and they had a good sprint swimmer."

"Our distance swimmers came through for us as well as the butterfly event. Broxterman turned in an excellent time in the breaststroke, and Pratt gave us two good anchor legs in the relays."

He added, "I'm greatly pleased with the new records, for they give us respectable times. They will definitely help recruiting."

Coach Bill Mack of Morehead said, "We're young and coming along, but we need more work. Marshall is real tough, and I hope they have a successful season. There is good swimming here at Marshall, and I enjoy competing here."

Marshall returns to action Jan. 8 against Ashland College in Ashland, Ohio. The meet is scheduled to begin at 7 p.m.

Little Herd beat again

Marshall University's Little Herd is having a hard time getting started this year. MU lost to Rio Grande College in Gallipolis Thursday night and fell again Saturday night to the University of Dayton at Dayton for their fourth straight loss this season.

Rio Grande College came from a 27-27 score at half time to top the Little Herd by four points.

Rio Grande's four starters; Mike Bates, tops with 20 points, Doug Hart with 15, Marvin Hale with 14 and Calvin Carmichael, with 12, scored 61 of Rio's 68 points.

Marshall's scoring was dispersed among eight of their players with 6-9 center Andy Frederiksen scoreless. Three players reached double figures; they were Jerry Stritholt with 18, Lyle Monroe netting 11, and Greg Imperi shooting for 10 points.

In the Saturday night romp at Dayton, the Little Flyers led at the half, 56-42, and finally beat Marshall, 96-64.

Starling says he's candidate

By DAVID CRANCE
Staff reporter

Assistant Athletic Director Edward M. Starling told The Parthenon he "certainly" is a candidate for athletic director.

"I most certainly am," said Starling when asked if he was a candidate. He said he has not been attending the Athletic Committee meetings since he felt his position as assistant athletic director and his candidacy created a problem of ethics.

The Athletic Committee has been meeting every day in its search for athletic personnel to replace those killed in the air-tragedy at Tri-State Airport Nov. 14.

"We are screening applicants," said Dr. Hunter Hardman, chairman of the Athletic Committee. "We have applications for all positions. The process is being conducted as fast as possible. We are also conducting interviews."

Dr. Donald Carson, assistant to Marshall's acting president said Monday everyone submitting an application for a position is being given equal consideration.

Dr. Carson also said "Dr. Dedmon met with the Athletic Committee recently to go over his concerns and expectations."

Dr. Hardman said, in reference to the possibility Sam Huff, ex-pro football star, would be interviewed for the head coaching position, he had no formal contact with him so far.

"However," Dr. Hardman said, "We do expect to interview him though no definite time has been set." Early reports said Huff would probably be interviewed after the Christmas holidays. Dr. Hardman indicated this was probable.

Dr. Hardman also said the current athletic staff "is of course considered along with all the other applicants. We are open for recommendations from anyone and we have been receiving calls from all over the country."

The Marshall football players signed a petition last week requesting assistant football coach Carl G. Kokor be given the position of head coach.

Kokor said he was aware of the petition but stated emphatically he is not a candidate for the position under any circumstances.

Kokor has thrown his support for the position to acting head coach Red Dawson.

Dawson said he is a candidate for the position of head football coach.

CCC schedules week activities

A candlelight service, an arts and crafts sale, and groups meeting for Contact and luncheons are among the many activities this week at the Campus Christian center.

The Catholic Community will hold Mass at 4:30 p.m. Monday and Tuesday with Father Robert T. Scott, Catholic campus pastor, conducting the services.

A candlelight service was held 11 p.m. Monday with Rev. George L. Sublette, Baptist campus pastor, coordinating the service.

"Joy of Christmas" was the theme of this program, according to Reverend Sublette, with a quiet service of traditional songs and symbols "which still find a deep meaning in the hearts of all of us."

The program began with the theme found in Philip Brooks' "O Little Town of Bethlehem," "In Thy Dark Streets." This was followed by a "Declaration of 'Who We Are'" and then a "Declaration of 'We Seek to Know Joy.'"

"Darkness of the Year" was the next topic which featured pictures of activities throughout the past few months on campus and within our nation.

"O Come, O Come Immanuel" was sung with a conclusion of shared experience in worship akin to communion.

An arts and crafts sale will be held from 11 a.m. to 5 p.m. Tuesday and Wednesday at the center as an approach to the Christmas Holidays.

Crafts sale at CCC

An Arts and Crafts sale will be held at the Campus Christian Center today and Wednesday, 11 a.m.-5 p.m., according to Gilbert Wilson, Kingwood sophomore.

The sale will be of goods from overseas, including Africa, India, and South America. Also for sale will be Appalachian goods, including quilts and moccasins.

The overseas goods came by way of the Methodist Mission Valley, who will receive the profit from the sale of their goods.

VICS, Volunteers in Community Service, helped acquire the Appalachian goods, which were made by an elderly group in this area. This group will also receive the profit from the sale of their goods.

Center dedication suggested

The Student Advisory Committee (SAC) and various representatives of the University community have agreed on procedures for memorialization of the new student center, according to Dr. Constantine W. Curris, director of student personnel programs and SAC advisor.

Dr. Curris said the committee and invited representatives agreed the matter would be referred to the Student Center Policy Board in early January. "This board will study the procedures for dedicating the new student center to victims of the Nov. 14 air tragedy which claimed the lives of most of the Marshall football team, coaches, athletic staff, and several prominent supporters," Dr. Curris explained.

He said the board "will probably be composed of one or two staff members, one or two faculty members, and five or six students."

Other discussion at the SAC meeting Thursday centered around security on campus.

Dr. Curris said discussion "pertained especially to the residence halls and parking areas around the dorms."

Following the meeting he prepared a letter to Joseph S. Soto, vice president of business, calling for "markedly

Novice debate team places second

The Marshall novice debate team "A" placed second in overall tournament competition with 16 other colleges and universities Friday and Saturday at Marietta (Ohio) College.

Bruce Tucker, South Point, Ohio, freshman, won second place in affirmative speaker competition.

Team "A", consisting of Tucker and Mary Stout, Marietta, Ohio, freshman, for the affirmative views and Charlene Miller, Huntington freshman, and Steven Fleming, South Charleston freshman, for the negative views of the debate topic, won five and lost one debate.

Marshall "B" team, with Paul Dick, Huntington freshman, and Trent Crewe, Princeton junior, presenting the affirmative views, and David Enochs, Williamson sophomore, and Malinda Plymale, Huntington sophomore, had a record of two wins and four losses.

The tournament was won by West Virginia University's "A" team.

Students featured in music recital

Soloists for a music recital Wednesday at 8:15 p.m. in Evelyn Hollberg Smith Recital Hall will be Barbara Rowe, mezzo-soprano, and Wanda Lynn Cole Napier, pianist, both Huntington seniors. The performance is for fulfillment of requirements for an A.B. in music education.

Miss Rowe a student of Mrs. Jane B. Shepherd, professor of music, will sing classic selections by Bach, Brahms, Duparc, Debussy, Pergolesi, Strauss and Tchaikovsky. Works of later composers to be sung are Birnthen, Davis, Niles and Templeton. Mrs. Napier will play the Chromatic Fantasy and Fugue by Bach, Concertstuck (Opus 79) by Weber and the Scherzo from Fantasy Pieces (Opus 6) by Griffes. She is a student of William R. Davidson, associate professor of music.

At Marshall, Miss Rowe has been a member of A Capella Choir. Mrs. Napier is a member of the MU band, Symphonic Choir, Choral Union and Delta Omicron, music fraternity.

The recital is open to the public without charge.

Plans made for summer in England

The fourth literary tour of Great Britain, including visits to England, Scotland, Ireland and Paris, will be conducted June 20 to July 27, 1971.

Two three-hour courses will be offered for undergraduate or graduate credit, according to Dr. Jack R. Brown, chairman of the Department of English. ## 18 year olds may register to vote 18 year old West Virginians may be allowed to register as voters before 1971. Secretary of State John D. Rockefeller IV advised West Virginia county clerks yesterday that they may permit persons between ages 18 to 21 to register conditionally as voters before Jan. 1.

Rockefeller's memorandum to the clerks said the 18-21 registrants would not be entitled to vote before Jan. 1 and suggested their records be kept in a separate "conditional registration book" until the U.S. Supreme Court rules on the constitutionality of 18-year-old voting as provided under the Federal Voting Rights Act of 1970. Issuance of the memorandum followed a receipt of an opinion, requested by Rockefeller, from Asst. Attorney General Dennis R. Vaughan Jr.

Vaughan noted the 1970 voting rights amendments take effect Jan. 1, 1971 and said he believed the intention of Congress, "in making this act effective some six months after passage, was to give to the states the opportunity to implement the law by way of conditional registration of those persons 18 years of age who are otherwise qualified to vote.

Rockefeller previously had advised county clerks not to accept 18-21 age group registrations until after the law takes effect Jan. 1. At the time he issued that memorandum, Rockefeller said today, no elections were scheduled in West Virginia before Feb. 15.

But he said some local elections now have been scheduled earlier than Feb. 15. He said he therefore asked for the attorney general's opinion to determine whether 18-21 age group registrations could be accepted earlier than Jan. 1 to allow the registrants time to register and vote in the forthcoming elections if the law is validated in court by then.

Hometown news offered

In an effort to keep students informed on "what's happening back home," the Special services Program to aid Appalachian students has subscribed to 27 different newspapers in West Virginia. The papers arrive daily at the counseling and Testing Center, 1618 Fifth Avenue, next to the School of Business.

"We have subscribed to the hometown papers of all our project students so that students will be up to date on current news at home, and not lose contact with their community," commented Morford.

Seven papers that have been subscribed to, but as yet have not been received are: Beckley Post Herald & Raleigh Register; Greenbrier Dispatch (East Rainelle); Hamlin Democrat; Logan Banner; Mullens Advocate; Wellsburg Daily Herald; and West Virginia News, (Ronceverte).

The Counseling and Testing Center is open from 8 a.m. to 4:30 p.m., Monday through Friday, according to Morford, and those students who hometown paper is not listed, should inform the center, so subscription can be arranged.
