Series looks at coed dorm life

Are the regulations of women's dormitories at Marshall outdated?

Is MU far behind other colleges and universities of comparable size and in this area when it comes to women's dorm policies?

These and other questions concerning coed dorm life are delved into in a series of seven articles written by Parthenon reporter Ginny Pitt, Huntington sophomore. The series starts tomorrow in The Parthenon.

The series deals with coed dormitory life at Marshall and 27 other colleges and universities including the Mid-American Conference schools, 13 of the 15 four-year colleges in West Virginia and eight other Eastern institutions of higher learning.

Questionnaires distributed to Marshall and the 27 other colleges and universities housing a total of more than 50,000 women in dormitories on their campuses were filled out by the housing directors and deans of women and submitted to this study of dorm policies.

Participating institutions include:

Bowling Green State University, Kent State University, Miami University, University of Toledo, Western Michigan University, Ohio University and Marshall

University of the Mid-American Conference;

West Virginia Institute of Technology, Davis and Elkins College, Morris Harvey College, West Liberty State College, Shepherd College, Glenville State College, Salem College, Wheeling College, Concord College, Fairmont State College, Bluefield State College, West Virginia University and Alderson-Broadus College in West Virginia;

University of Virginia at Richmond, Duke University, Centre College of Kentucky, New York University (University Heights Center), Morehead State University, University of North Carolina, Denison University and Ohio State University.

On the Marshall campus 440 (53.8 per cent) questionnaires concerning policies and regulations were returned from the 818 women's dorm residents. Of the questionnaires approximately 50 per cent were returned by freshmen, 29 per cent by sophomores, 16 per cent by juniors and 4 per cent by seniors. One graduate student responded.

(A comparison of hours in the participating institutions and the views of residents concerning the hours at MU will be discussed in the first article tomorrow.)

MU-WVU tilt closer to reality?

Possibilities for a post-season basketball game between Marshall and West Virginia University have increased, according to the MU Athletic Director Eddie Barrett.

The increased possibility came as a result of WVU's failure to play one of the games in its holiday tournament. The idea of a game had cooled somewhat because it was realized that both teams had the NCAA-quota of games for this year.

The proposal to play a post-season game came as a challenge issued by The Parthenon last semester.

After the proposal had been issued for two weeks, a resolution was introduced in the Student Senate to voice support for the game.

Results of the study are expected to be presented to the Senate soon.

Proponents and opponents of the game have been voicing arguments since The Parthenon issued the challenge.

Arguments For Game

1. The game would increase and promote good relations between the two universities. They say a lack of communications exists between the institutions which the game would remedy.

2. The game would help both institutions financially. Barrett suggested that, if the game should come about, only 1,000 student tickets be allotted to each university. The remainder would be sold to general admission fans.

Arguments Against Game

1. WVU has everything to lose and nothing to gain by a post-season game, because Marshall does not have the prestige to carry a good crowd.

2. A game could not be played this year because both squads have full schedules. This has been disproved by Barrett.

CARTOON IS PAMPHLET COVER

... Urges support of board of regents plan

6-page pamphlet sent to State Legislature

The Marshall Student Government has sent a six-page publication to the West Virginia Legislature urging it to support the recommendations of the West Virginia Committee on Higher Education to be presented to the Legislature this session.

Mailed individually to each of the 133 senators and delegates, as well as the governor, State Board of Education members, and presidents of the state colleges and universities, the publication's purpose, according to the preface, is to "inform its readers about the far reaching implications which surround the resolution of the West Virginia Committee on Higher Education now before the State Legislature."

Recommended resolutions of the committee are:

(1) Establishment of a West Virginia Board of Regents which would have the power to make studies and recommendations relating to all aspects of higher education in the state, both public and private.

(2) Establishment of a separate board of governors for both Marshall University and the eight West Virginia state colleges, transferring those powers now belonging to the West Virginia Board of Education to these separate governing bodies.

(3) Retention of the present board now in existence at West Virginia University along with the West Virginia Board of Education.

Legislature eyes higher education

Bills affecting Marshall's position in the higher education scheme of the state were to be discussed in the legislature yesterday, according to President Stewart H. Smith.

As of yesterday's Parthenon deadline, there were four proposals before the legislators which would recognize higher education in the state.

The proposal uppermost in the thoughts of Marshall supporters is one that would create a separate board of governors for Marshall.

A bill calling for a board of governors for Marshall has been introduced in the House of Delegates by Del. Jody Smirl, R-Cabell. Sen. C. H. McKown, D-Wayne, and Sen. Lyle A. Smith, D-Cabell, have introduced a duplicate measure in the senate.

Complications in Marshall's efforts to obtain a board arose over the semester break with the introduction of other bills which would reorganize higher education in other ways.

These proposals are:

1. The package bill calling for the creation of separate boards for the governors for MU and West Virginia University, a board for the eight state colleges, a state board of regents to supervise all the boards of governors, and a West Virginia Education Council composed of the board of regents and the State Board of Education.

2. The bill to create one state board of regents with advisory boards for the two universities and the state colleges, eliminating all boards of governors.

3. A bill establishing a state board of regents, eliminating the boards of governors. It is virtually the same as the preceding proposal, except that the office of the regents would be at WVU in Morgantown.

The House Education Committee, of which Delegate Kenneth Auvil is chairman reported out the package bill last Thursday with its recommendations.

On that day, the State Board of Education in an appearance before the House and Senate Finance Committees, outlined plans for a "board of regents" within the board under the leadership of Dr. Leslie L. Martin, new administrator of higher education for the board.

Not inviting President Smith to attend the hearings, the board requested four new administrators in the state office — a budget director employed at $18,000, a director of physical facilities at $17,000, a director of educational programs and a director of research at $16,000 each.

Dean asks suspension of charter

No word has been received from the grand president of Sigma Phi Epsilon fraternity, J. E. Zollinger, concerning the action to be taken against the University's Gamma chapter, according to Olen E. Jones, dean of student affairs.

In a letter to Mr. Zollinger of Richmond, Va., Dean Jones recommended that the chapter's charter be suspended for one year because of hazing activities to the pledge class.

Dean Jones also said that although Marshall and the West Virginia Board of Education prohibit hazing in any form, pledges were required to sit unclothed on cakes of ice while ice water was poured on them.

Other recommendations from Dean Jones to the grand president include a review of the situation next January, that the fraternity not be recognized by the University during suspension, the pin light of Sigma Phi Epsilon be removed from the front of the fraternity house, at 1661 6th Ave., the fraternity's alumni organize a committee to serve as a constructive reorganization element, the current pledge class be permitted to go active for the purpose of receiving instruction from the alumni committee, and a progress report be made to the dean of student affairs in September by the national office and the alumni committee.

Chapter Vice President Al Butto, Weirton senior, said that the chapter won't know for at least a week the action of the national office concerning the recommendations.

'Poetry wall'

DO YOU LIKE to write on walls? Well the Campus Christian Center has just the place for it. It's the "poetry wall" and the center encourages students and others to write poetry on it — masterpieces preferred. MU to invite new sorority to colonize early next fall

Panhellenic Council has voted to invite a new sorority on campus early next fall.

National sororities will be invited to visit the campus and be interviewed for colonization. The decision of which sorority to invite will be made by Mrs. Lillian Buskirk, associate dean of students, and Panhellenic Council. Dean Buskirk said, "These interviews will make it possible to select an organization compatible with the other sororities on campus."

The colonization will take place after the fall pledging of new members for sororities now on campus. This will enable the older sororities to pledge their smaller limit before the new sorority pledges the number of girls for a full organization.

The alumnae and national representatives of the sorority chosen will pledge the girls. After some training, the colony will become a full chapter of the sorority.

Dean Buskirk said, "I do not think we have enough sororities on campus to take care of the girls who have indicated an interest."

The decision was either to make the existing sororities larger or to have more sororities. According to Jane Meisel, Huntington senior and Panhellenic president, "It is pretty well agreed that most of the sororities cannot grow much and still work effectively as a sisterhood."

Prior to this decision, a petition was brought before Panhellenic by Sandra Malott, Huntington sophomore, and Karen Scarberry, Huntington junior, containing the names of approximately 400 girls who expressed an interest in another sorority being colonized on campus.

'Free university' to begin Monday

Classes of the "free university" are scheduled to begin Monday.

Approximately 125 persons are expected to participate, according to John Brandon, sociology instructor and prime mover for the discussion group program.

Mr. Brandon has termed the community response to the program as "tremendous." In fact, registration was so overwhelming for the informal, non-credit classes that they ran out of registration forms.

Of the 125 expected to participate, Mr. Brandon said about one-third are area residents while the rest are Marshall students.

Started by Mr. Brandon and several students, the program is designed to bridge the gap between the university and the community and fill the holes in the university curriculum.

The seminar size classes are scheduled to meet weekly. The Campus Christian Center will be used for organizational meetings beginning at 7:30 p.m.

Russian literature, oriental religions and civil disobedience will meet Mondays; American diplomacy, Tuesdays, and contemporary poetry, Thursdays.

Registrations will be closed after the first week of classes.

According to Mr. Brandon, the classes will be split into smaller sections of about 10 students each.

Under the plan students will devise their own study plans and instructors will be chosen from the class.

The only fee for the free university is $2 to cover cost of coffee provided during sessions.

The planners said classes will be held anywhere its members choose. This includes either off-campus or on campus depending on the administration and the choice of the students.

Mr. Brandon said the direction of the free university will depend entirely on student and community interest. There will be no regularly assigned instructor for classes. The students he said, will themselves become involved in the instructing of the course's theme if they wish.

Letter to the editor

Outgoing editor notes campus cooperation

To the Editor:

As past editor-in-chief of The Parthenon, I can say that the first semester of this school year was one filled with major news stories.

The president's resignation, firing of the head football coach, appointment of a new vice president of academic affairs, and many, many more. Most of these stories were printed first in The Parthenon, and that's the way it should be since The Parthenon is the voice of the Marshall student body.

Actually, the editor-in-chief has little to do with getting the news stories. His staff and reporters who are out covering the campus each day do the work, and as chief, he shares in the glories, disasters and responsibilities.

As past chief, I want to say The Parthenon has been and is the best student newspaper in the conference, and one of the best in the nation for comparable size universities.

The students, staff and faculty of Marshall have made it so. The cooperation shown Parthenon reporters and staffers by each and every individual on campus is what has made it the best newspaper. Without this cooperation, no matter who is at the helm, the paper will falter.

Through a previous arrangement, it was decided I would step down at mid-year and let a new editor-in-chief take over. This was done with my complete agreement and with the blessing of the Journalism Department and the new editor, Dan Fields.

Because there is a new editor, and because The Parthenon is growing (now publishing four days a week), the new staff will need the continued cooperation and support of everyone on campus.

I am sure The Parthenon, with your support, will continue to be the best student newspaper in the conference, and will achieve even greater stature in the months to come.

I intend to give the paper my continued support and I trust each of you will also.

SAM NEAL,
Former Editor-In-Chief
The Parthenon

MED-TECH MEETING

A meeting is scheduled for 11 a.m. Thursday for all medical technology students in Room 209, Science Hall, according to Dean A. E. McCaskey of the College of Applied Science. A film entitled "In A Medical Laboratory" will be shown.

Coeds sought to contend for annual queen

The Chief Justice is looking for an "all-around girl on campus," according to Carole Thabet, Huntington junior and managing editor of the Chief Justice.

Any sophomore, junior or senior coed who wishes to contend for the title of "Miss Chief Justice" may apply at the Chief Justice office in the Student Union. Applicants must submit an 8" x 10" picture and a completed application blank to the Chief Justice staff before Feb. 23.

The Chief Justice staff will select "Miss Chief Justice" and two attendants. They will be chosen on the basis of scholarship, extracurricular activities, honors, looks, and other qualities, said Miss Thabet.

Five finalists will be chosen. They will be presented at a dance held for the yearbook queen, who will be announced at that time, she said.

The dance will be March 23 at the Field House, according to Susan Mead, Irvington, N. J. junior and social chairman.

WMUL transmits 2 additional hours

WMUL-FM is lengthening its broadcast day by two hours, according to Carla Thompson, program director and Huntington junior.

The broadcast day was lengthened from 5-10 p.m. to 3-10 p.m. because of numerous suggestions for new programming, she said.

Classical music is still our highlight, she said, but WMUL-FM will also feature programs on folk music, jazz, and popular music, in addition to an international music program.

Play tryouts set today, tomorrow

Wanted: 41 women.

That's how many are needed for the cast of the next production of the Marshall University Theater entitled "The Women".

Tryouts will be today and tomorrow at 7 p.m. in Old Main Auditorium, according to Dr. Elaine Novak, associate professor of speech.

Dr. Novak said there are 41 female parts and no male roles.

The play, written by Clare Boothe Luce, will be presented March 13, 14, 15 and 16 in Old Main Auditorium.

Frosh scoring lead captured by Bradshaw

Bernard Bradshaw, the 6-6 forward from Versailles, Ky., took over the scoring lead among Marshall freshmen players with a 21.1 game average. David Smith, who has held the scoring lead most of the season, dropped to second place with a 20.9 average, but is leading the team in rebounds with an average of 21.1. Bradshaw is second in rebounds with a 9.0 average.

Rebound and scoring averages are:

	Games	Points	Rbd.
Bradshaw	9	21.1	9.0
Smith	9	20.9	21.1
Henry	9	18.7	4.3
Pommerenck	9	8.3	7.9
Turnbow	9	6.7	8.1
Pierce	9	4.1	3.2
Bradbury	8	3.8	1.6
Harshbarger	9	2.8	3.4
Blankenship	5	1.2	0.6
Lehman	7	1.1	0.3
White	6	0.8	2.3

Overall, the freshman team is averaging 88.0 points per game while opponents are scoring at a 73.2 clip.

COACH MOSS MEETS THE PRESS

... As his wife looks on

Herd beaten by Broncos, title prospects appear dim

The Herd went down to defeat Saturday at the hands of Mid-American Conference contender Western Michigan at Memorial Field House. It could cost MU the MAC crown.

Western's Reggie Lacefield was spectacular, scoring 34 points and grabbing 17 rebounds, leading the Broncos to a 96-92 victory. Gene Ford scored 23 points, and Clarence Harville came off the bench to play a key part in the second half that saw Western overcome a five point lead.

George Stone led the MU scoring with 33 points and Bob Redd netted 23. Jim Davidson and Danny D'Antoni were also in double figures with 17 and 15 points, respectively.

The outlook seemed bright for the Herd before the loss, as the Big Green ripped off four straight victories. On Jan. 10, Marshall bombed Morris Harvey, 101-93, despite some fantastic shooting by the Eagles. They shot 68% from the field, hitting on 43 of 63 attempts.

Bob Allen had the biggest night of his career, scoring 27 points and nailing 22 rebounds. George Stone hit for 26 points. The Herd hit 50.5 per cent of their shots, apparently coming out of a shooting slump.

Against Ohio University on Jan. 13, Marshall beat the Bobcats at Memorial Field House. The Herd jumped off to a 14-4 lead and the rout was underway.

D'Antoni scored 26 points to lead the Big Green to its third MAC win.

On Jan. 20 at Memorial Field House, Marshall avenged one of its earlier defeats, downing Eastern Kentucky and leaping Garfield Smith, 86-71.

Going into the contest, Smith was one of the nation's leading rebounders, averaging 23.4 per game. The Herd held Smith to 16, and out rebounded Eastern 64-49.

Stone led MU scoring with 30 points, and D'Antoni added 20. D'Antoni played an excellent defensive game, holding Bobby Washington to eight points. Washington was averaging 18 points per game.

Marshall traveled to Ohio University last Wednesday and defeated the Bobcats again, 82-73.

All starters hit in double figures, with Allen scoring 18 to lead the way. D'Antoni scored 16, and forced the Bobcats into 10 turnovers.

Marshall's overall record now stands at 10-5, and its MAC mark is 4-3. The Herd next game is top-ranked Houston, at Madison Square Garden in New York Thursday.

COACH ELLIS JOHNSON and his assistant, Stewart Way, keep tabs on things at the Western Michigan game Saturday night. The Herd lost to the Broncos, 96-92.

Pointer!

Frosh recruiting seen as problem

By DAN FIELDS
Editor-In-Chief

One of the biggest problems facing Marshall's new head football coach, Perry Moss, is in the area of recruiting.

And Coach Moss realizes that the battle for freshman players will be an uphill struggle.

"It's like playing catch-up ball," Coach Moss said, "except we can't catch up."

Moss was approved by the State Board of Education three weeks ago to become the Thundering Herd's new football mentor. He replaces Charlie Snyder who was re-assigned after an 0-10 season by President Stewart H. Smith.

Snyder is presently serving as associate dean of student affairs.

Coach Moss, who began working immediately on the problem of recruiting, also hired two new assistants to help him with the job. They are Jim "Shorty" Moss and H. B. "Deke" Brackett. Moss, (no relation to Perry), is now in the field recruiting while Brackett is working in the office.

The new head coach explained that recruiting is hard enough without the problem of having such a late start.

"We have to get a lot of information on the boy before we even start recruiting him," Moss said. "If he looks like a good player, we then have to look at his high school grades and his American College Testing score. If these are satisfactory, we check out his football ability, his interest in Marshall, and then, if he meets these standards, we try and recruit him."

Moss said the prospective player must have a projected college grade of 1.7, and that this is the main area of most coaches' concern.

"We are presently working on 300 names of football players which have been sent in by alumni, coaches and friends of Marshall," Coach Moss said.

Although an area within a radius of 60 miles around the University is being covered extensively by the recruiters, Moss is also flinging wide his net to include a four-state plus area.

Moss said he has assistant coaches in New York, Pennsylvania, northern Ohio, and will send feelers into New England states.

"You are able to win because you have good personnel," he said. "We want only the BEST West Virginia boys, since we admittedly have a history of losing when we get only the mediocre ones."

"We have to probe these areas of recruitment with the trial-and-error method to see where we can get our best players," he continued.

Coach Moss said he and his staff are still in the organizational stage, and it will take time to "get things moving," maybe as long as eight weeks.

Three aides to Moss get board's OK

Two former professional football players and a former professional coach have been approved by the West Virginia Board of Education as assistants to new head coach Perry Moss.

They are Herbert Benjamin (Deke) Brackett; James M. (Shorty) Moss, and Samuel Orville Weir.

Mr. Brackett, a University of Tennessee graduate, has served as assistant coach at his alma mater, at the Citadel, Hampden-Sydney, Arkansas, UCLA, the Charleston Rockets and the Orlando Panthers.

Mr. Moss, no relation to the new head coach, is a graduate of Huntington East High School and West Virginia University.

Mr. Weir has played with the New York Jets, the Houston Oilers, the Charleston Rockets and the Orlando Panthers. Holder of a master's degree from Arkansas State University, Weir has taught and coached at North Little Rock Junior High, Charleston Stonewall Jackson High, Arkansas State University and Maynard Evans Junior High in Orlando, Fla.

Matmen lose 3-way match

Marshall's wrestling team took it on the chin in a triangular match at Blackburg, Va., last Saturday, finishing third.

The Herd lost to Virginia Tech, 24-9, and was defeated by Georgia Tech, 20-13.

Bill Archer was the only MU grappler not to taste the sour effects of defeat. Archer wrestled his Georgia Tech opponent to a draw, and decisioned Georgia Tech's Wayne Singleton. Archer wrestles in the 137-pound class.

Marshall's three winners in the Georgia Tech match were John Holtzworth in the 123 pound class, Ron May in the 145-pound class and Steve Foster in the heavyweight division.

The Big Green also grappled to two ties, with Dave Greathouse and Archer gaining the stand-offs.

Archer, John Mahood, and Ted Simpkins all defeated their opponents in the Virginia Tech match. Mahood wrestles in the 152-pound class and Simpkins in the 167-pound class.

Ticket schedule

Student tickets for Saturday's Marshall-Bowling Green basketball game will be issued tomorrow beginning at 7:45 a.m. on the first floor of Old Main and at the Athletic Department in Gullickson Hall. The ticket schedule for the Toledo game, Feb. 10, calls for tabs to be issued Feb. 7-8, at the same time and place.

Veterans Club elects officers

The Veterans Club has announced the election of the following officers: president, Richard Newman, Huntington sophomore; vice president, Richard Bailey, Oceana sophomore, and secretary-treasurer, Robert Steurer, Parkersburg freshman.

The club has received an invitation from Man Kato State College to attend the first annual convention of Veterans clubs in May at Man Kato, Minn. The club will hold rush during the regular rush period. Tentative plans have been made for a dance to be held during that time.

Symphonic Choir concert set

The University Symphonic Choir will complete its annual winter tour with a concert at 8:15 p.m. Friday in the Smith Music Hall. Admission is free, according to Dr. Paul A. Balshaw, assistant professor of music.

Featured works will be "Born Today" by Sweelinck, "Six Folk Songs" by Brahms, and "The Blue Bird" by Norman Dello Joio. The Symphonic Choir was founded in 1950 and is composed of 40 singers selected by competitive auditions from within the student body.

Board acts on MU faculty

Two new faculty members and four leaves of absence have been approved by the West Virginia Board of Education. The new faculty members are Giovanna Lucia Bisato, assistant professor of psychiatric nursing, and Roscoe Hale Jr., assistant professor of education.

Leaves of absence were granted to Dr. Bernard Queen, assistant professor of education; Wood Sisarcick, instructor of mathematics; Jack Jervis Jr., assistant professor of education, and Alfred W. Blatter, assistant professor of music.

Student assistants gain more pay

The hourly pay rate for all student assistants and work study student assistants will be $1.15 per hour, effective Thursday, according to Joseph S. Soto, vice president of business and finance.

Students assistants are permitted to work a maximum of 50 hours per month, while work study assistants are permitted to work not more than 15 hours per week.

Addition completed

THE GRAND EXODUS from Hodges Hall to South Hall, has begun. The recently completed top four floors are now open and ready for occupancy. The eight floors will house 483 men students.

Capitol display

EXPLAINING DETAILS of a display being exhibited in the rotunda of the State Capitol in Charleston is Charles Dinkins, programs director, and Stephen D. Buell, professor of speech. The display, prepared by Mr. Dinkins, is operated by the Junior Leagues of Huntington and Charleston and will be on display during the entire legislative session.

Fall opening likely

Special library shaping up

The collegiate library will open this fall, according to Harold W. Apel, librarian.

This library, located on the second floor of the library building, should help alleviate the stack permit problem. It will have shelf space for 50,000 volumes. Upon opening, 20,000 volumes will be placed on the shelves.

"This library is especially designed to meet the needs of incoming freshmen and sections of especially large classes," Mr. Apel said.

The first floor will also house 10,000 reference volumes on an open shelf basis.

Pneumatic tubes and book conveyors will be used to speed the acquisition of books in the collegiate as well as the general library.

Pneumatic tubes will transport call slips to different floors, and book conveyors will carry these books back to the desks.

The opening of this section of the library will necessitate additional personnel. This will be handled through reassignments and more student assistants.

Mr. Apel said the work on the library, planned to seat approximately 425, should be finished by this summer.

2 new editors named for student newspaper

Dan R. Fields, Lavalette senior, and Jim Johnson, St. Albans senior, have been named editor-in-chief and managing editor of The Parthenon for the spring semester.

Fields, a 1964 honor graduate of Wayne High School, served three semesters as managing editor of The Parthenon. He worked at the Charleston Daily Mail as a reporter the past two summers under the newspaper internship program. Fields served as a police reporter last summer and is presently employed as a part-time copy editor by the Huntington Publishing Co.

Johnson, a 1960 graduate of St. Albans High School, served four years in the Marine Corps and began studies at Marshall in September, 1964.

He has been a news editor on The Parthenon for the past year and worked for WSAZ-TV as a reporter under the internship program.

Sam Neal, Huntington senior, was editor-in-chief last semester and for both summer semester last year. He is now employed as a reporter for the Huntington Publishing Co.

The Parthenon will publish four times a week this semester on Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday and Friday. Deadline for stories and photos will be 10 a.m. on the day preceding.
