'Preference poll closed case'--Dr. Miller

Marshall political science professor J. Melvin Miller said yesterday as far as he is concerned the controversy over voter preference polls conducted by his students "is a closed case."

Dr. Miller said "the matter has been thoroughly examined and both my role as a professor and that of the students has been made known in our basic commitment to the Democratic process."

The polls were criticized last week by First District Congressman Arch A. Moore Jr., a Republican gubernatorial candidate.

Dr. Miller told The Parthenon yesterday he plans to have two of his political science classes conduct another gubernatorial preference poll over the Easter vacation, but that the results will not be released this time to the news media as were the previous polls.

(See Letters to the Editor)

"Since the basic purpose is a learning experience for students and because of the misinterpretation of my involvement with the polls it will only be for a study project and no results will be made public," said Dr. Miller.

Looking back now on the previous two polls over the Thanksgiving and Christmas holidays, Dr. Miller said:

"Since the main purpose was learning, perhaps it would have been better had we not released these voter sampling results to the news media."

Both the polls released earlier showed Cecil H. Underwood was leading Mr. Moore.

Dr. Miller released to The Parthenon a copy of an open letter he sent to Mr. Moore yesterday and a copy of a telegram he sent Mr. Moore on Dec. 8.

The letter said in part:

"The purpose (of the polls) was to involve them (students) in the democratic process as a learning experience. The raw data was compiled and evaluated by students. I never handled any of the raw data. It is still with the student committee, and at no time did I influence or attempt to influence the students in taking these polls and analyzing them.

"However, as the professor of these young people, I do take the full responsibility for their poll, and APPLAUD THEIR EFFORTS WITH ALL MY STRENGTH. I have never called this a Marshall University poll, as it was entirely a work project for 155 of my political science students.

"A straw poll of 1,050 West Virginians in the three southern congressional districts may well be as wrong as the Gallup Poll prediction of the Thomas Dewey election in 1948. I urge you (Mr. Moore) to release the professional poll to which you refer."

On Tuesday Mr. Moore said the results of the polls conducted by the Marshall students were "in direct contradiction" to information gathered by professional pollsters acting on behalf of his campaign.

Dr. Miller further commented in the open letter to Mr. Moore in defense of his (Miller's) counsel to Mr. Underwood in the current gubernatorial campaign.

"There is much precedence for professors aiding the cause of great men," said Dr. Miller. He said Dr. Malcom Moos of Johns Hopkins University openly wrote speeches and worked for former President Dwight Eisenhower in his campaign for reelection. He said Dr. Kenneth Galbraith and Dr. Arthur Schlesinger Jr. of Harvard worked for former president John F. Kennedy in 1960.

Dr. Miller released a copy of a telegram he had sent to Mr. Moore last Dec. 8 inviting him to face the students who took the poll. He said Mr. Moore never answered the telegram.

"There has been no dishonesty on the part of the students or myself and your inference in this direction is shameful," added Dr. Miller in the open letter. "I hope that a professor still has academic freedom and that our West Virginia colleagues can live without this type of intellectual intimidation."

Dr. Miller said students in Political Science 101 and 201, conducted the polls. He said each student interviewed 10 people — one in each block in a 10 block area near the student's home.

Dr. Miller described the polls as "a fairly good cross section or straw vote indication of voter sentiment in 14 counties in the Third, Fourth and Fifth Congressional districts."

He said the polls were conducted in these areas because this is where the students lived.

"Stampede" awaiting reaction

What is "Stampede"? Why was it published? And what are its chances to stay alive at Marshall?

The 23-page experimental magazine, a so-called "exodus from mediocrity," circulated this week. It is an attempt to stimulate thinking and to tap the talents of students through candid presentations of ideas, criticisms, analyses, satires and just plain humor, according to the editor.

The first issue was financed by individuals in the community plus the thirty-five cent sale price. Public reaction will determine continuation of the publication, although a second issue is already being planned, according to editor Charles Kincaid, Huntington senior, who also edited "Angry I".

"Stampede," although not university-sponsored, is not an underground paper such as last year's "Bull Sheet." There is a formal format and there is no slide-under-the-door type of circulation. Kincaid does not foresee any university action to suppress the publication.

"Our purpose is to see what forms of communication are acceptable to members of the university community and then to stress these forms in areas of thought in future issues," Kincaid said.

The first issue was not written by journalism students.

"We just contacted people whom we knew had interesting ideas and an ability to put them in writing," said Kincaid. He also noted all articles are not necessarily reflective of the editor's viewpoints.

Aiming for widespread appeal, the first issue of "Stampede" included everything from political cartoons to an original sociological study in Huntington to an analysis of and some suggestions for Marshall's "problems."

The University's financial situation is pictured on the cover with a drawing of President Smith wearing a "We Try Harder" button. There's a candid interview with Athletic Director Eddie Barrett in which he discusses the MU athletics picture, both present and future.

There are frequent interjections of off-color jokes and cartoons.

There's an attack on students' shallow thinking and their "distorted sense of values."

Does the magazine serve a purpose? Student response to the publication will determine that.

"But you'll never know if you don't try it," Kincaid says.

Brothers Four here for Winter Weekend

The Brothers Four will play for the Winter Weekend concert instead of Spanky and Our Gang, Mike Farrell, Huntington senior and student body president, announced to the Student Senate Wednesday.

Spanky and Our Gang were tentatively booked. However, they had not signed a contract and will appear on television the night of the concert.

The concert will be Feb. 24 from 8-10 p.m. in Gullickson Hall. Price of tickets has not been set, according to Farrell.

A resolution, presented by Sen. Diane Lentz, was passed to keep all offices dealing with pre-registration matters open during noon hour throughout the pre-registration period.

Senate approved Farrell's appointment of Jim Wooten, Beckley junior and business manager, and Gregg Terry, Huntington junior and 1967 Homecoming coordinator, to represent Marshall at the Block Booking Convention in Charlotte, N. C.

Also approved was Farrell's appointment of Sen. Jane Clay, Charleston junior, and Sen. Diane Lentz, St. Albans sophomore, as delegates to the Educational Reform Conference, sponsored by the National Student Association in Atlanta, Ga., Feb. 23-25.

In other Senate action, $30 was appropriated to help send four delegates to the Senior Class Conference at Western Michigan University, Feb. 23-25.

Sen. Gay Hill, Martinsburg sophomore, reported on the lobbyist group that went to Charleston Tuesday.

Mike Farrell urged that a lobbyist group be continued to show that MU has an interest in higher education and that WVU is not the only university in the state.

Sen. Jane Braley, Huntington junior, announced that Joseph S. Soto, vice president of business and finance, said that the plans for the new Student Union were final. Vice President Paul Matheny, Charleston senior, said that Mike Farrell, Jim Wooten and he would talk to Mr. Soto to see if student activity fees could be increased to help pay for the new Union.

Candidates to file early next week

Students interested in running for office in the March 20 Student Government elections must file in the Student Government office between 9 a.m. and 4 p.m. Monday or Tuesday, according to Pam Evans, Parkersburg senior and student election co-ordinator.

Twenty offices are to be voted upon: student body president and vice president; presidents for senior, junior and sophomore classes, and five senators from each class.

Filing fees range from $5 for student president, $4 for vice president, $3 for class presidents and $2 for senators.

Candidates must be full-time students who aren't on probation and hold a 2.0 overall average.

How long does a handshake take?

Tuesday at the state house could well be paralleled to the Bay of Pigs invasion, i.e. abortive and a fiasco. Tuesday the student government lobby group "invaded" the state house.

The expressed purpose of the visit as reported in Tuesday's Parthenon was, "try to build the image of Marshall University." The image presented was one of, "We'll be happy to take a back seat in higher education while the legislators drag their feet."

In the same story it was reported the group would meet with the governor. They met him, but how long does a handshake take?

The remainder of the time was spent with Mr. Paul Crabtree, executive assistant to the governor. The basic promise brought out in his talk was, "We've done the best we can, now it's up to the next governor." He made no apologies, but the lobbyist group stood mute with a look of "Gee we're sorry to impose upon you to speak to your constituents" on their faces.

Most questions presented by The Parthenon to Mr. Crabtree were answered by, "Maybe you'd better see him about that, or I wasn't aware that situation existed, or why do you ask?"

Members of the group did not probe or ask why certain situations existed, but accepted all Mr. Crabtree had to say with a knowing nod or pleasant smile.

In this vein the group is to be commended. They were polite, well dressed, good looking and presented a good outward appearance. But they did not present the image of, "We are concerned students from Marshall and we want the best for Marshall. Why aren't we getting it?"

The Parthenon found that the hardest question to get answered at the state house is the shortest question and wasn't used once by the lobbyists. That question is, "Why?"

Attempts at answering this simple question were awkward and sometimes frustrating. Those who attempted to answer it acted as if this question was asked infrequently, if at all.

The whole situation Tuesday showed a definite lack of planning on Student Government's part. There were no appointments set up with any legislators. The timing was off a mite also. The higher education bills had already been defeated.

If the alternate purpose was to lobby for the Marshall budget, this was not apparent as no questions were directed by the members to any official in this regard.

The high point of the day came after lunch, when the group was introduced to Delegate Armistead of Morgantown.

As it was with Mr. Crabtree, the lobbyists said next to nothing.

The lobbyists, with the exception of Paul Matheny and Frank Cummings, again missed the boat to ask some pointed questions about Marshall getting shortchanged.

At one point, Mr. Armistead said, "In 1961 I was told that if you give Marshall university status, we won't ask for anything ever again." The Parthenon, Frank Cummings and Paul Matheny were the only ones who showed any signs of being disturbed by that statement.

To the question by Mr. Armistead of "Which would you rather have, one good University or a lot of mediocre ones?" only Matheny, Cummings and The Parthenon came to Marshall's side. The rest just stood there.

In conclusion, it is the feeling of The Parthenon that the interests of Marshall were poorly served by the group, (with exceptions) and the planning was definitely lacking.

The Parthenon recommends that any future lobbyist group be made up of people who will speak up and defend Marshall, not just sit in the back seat of the educational bus and look pretty.

Letters to the editor

To the editor:

This is in regard to the Feb. 2 and Feb. 7 editions of The Parthenon in which Congressman Arch A. Moore Jr. tried to discredit a voter preference poll conducted by Marshall University students under the reference of Dr. J. Melvin Miller. I am solely responsible for the published results of the polls and not Dr. Miller. The student's papers were handed to me and I did all of the calculations. These figures were then turned over to Dr. Miller for publication and the figures published were the same ones I gave him. I still have the student papers to back up my figures for anyone who'd like to question them.

Results were found for the Third, Fourth, and Fifth Congressional Districts. The First District from which Mr. Moore comes and the Second District were omitted because I had so few votes that no accurate percentage could be found.

Dr. Miller never hid his views in class and he is a supporter of Cecil Underwood. However, he told me that it didn't matter what the results were as long as they were true. He made every effort possible to make this an accurate poll.

Congressman Moore said he could not find out any information about the polls, yet I know that Dr. Miller sent Mr. Moore, in a telegram, my telephone number. He told Mr. Moore that I could tell him all about it. The only phone calls I've received have been harassing ones and I don't know who's making them.

It appears to me that Mr. Moore has been over anxious about these polls. Eight candidates were included in the poll and he's the only one who's complaining. He was behind in the results so this looks to me like sourgrapes.

I hope the students who participated in the poll don't stand back and take this affront. Our teacher, Dr. Miller, tried to introduce us to an important phase of political science, the voter preference poll. No student on Marshall's campus should stand by and let their right to a good education be squelched by a bitter politician. I hope the student body will rise together to tell

Mr. Moore they don't like poor losers.

Marshall and the state of West Virginia can only hope to grow better when their students start taking an active role in the politics of the state. The future of West Virginia rests with its young people. It's time for them to accept their right and duty as citizens and to look into the government of our state.

M. SANDRA MEGA,
student chairman
Huntington senior

To the editor:

In this letter I wish to speak out against what I consider to be an outdated and even insulting school policy. This is the policy of sending a student's grades home to his parents without even sending the student a copy, which costs the student time and money to call about his grades.

Ever since grade school and junior high, students have been trusted to convey their grades to their parents.

Just because a student is not 21 years of age does not mean he is not mature enough to receive a copy of his grades, at least.

After all, the student is the one who works for the grades, and many students are the ones who are paying for their own education. Consequently, is it too much to ask that a student be sent a copy of the grades he makes?

Many students I have spoken to also feel the school's present policy should be changed. Remember — it's Marshall University, not Marshall High School!

Montgomery sophomore

Campus comment!

By DAN FIELDS
Editor-in-Chief

"Stampede," a new literary endeavor by a group of Marshall students, has arrived on campus with a little less force than the name implies.

Purpose of the "feature" publication is "to see what forms of communication are acceptable to members of the University community and then stress these forms in areas of thought in future issues of the magazine."

A truly noble purpose, but is it a successful one?

It begins by attacking The Parthenon for its lack of involvement in issues such as the draft, foreign affairs, segregation, etc. We welcome such criticism, because it is on constructive criticism that a newspaper thrives.

Marshall's campus has been in need of such a magazine for a long time. It needs an agency through which expressions of opinion and attitudes can be expressed freely and without fear of censorship.

While Stampede has attempted this, it has fallen below par in many areas.

With the use of sex in many forms throughout the magazine, the publication may have defeated its intended purpose.

We are not "knocking" sex — that's what life is all about. But to use it as a drawing card for a "literary" magazine detracts from whatever class the publication may try to achieve.

To throw sex into a magazine haphazardly as one would sow wheat accomplishes nothing; moreover, it hurts the quality of the magazine.

A brief comment here: the line drawing by Ron Fowler was excellent. Even though sex, it was used with taste and added to the appeal of the publication.

Cartoons and articles on Vietnam and segregation, pressing issues that should be in the minds of college students, were presented with clarity, some wit, and some sarcasm.

We hope the next issue will be forthcoming soon, and wish the editors good luck in accomplishing their stated purpose. First times are rough times, so the next issue should be somewhat improved.

Marshall to face Toledo tomorrow

By T. M. MURDOCK
Sports Co-Editor

It's showdown time in the Mid-American Conference as the Thundering Herd takes on the Toledo Rockets 1:30 p.m. tomorrow at Memorial Field House.

The game will be televised on WSAZ-TV as the MAC game of the week.

Toledo, who is currently riding on top in the MAC title race, brings to town an explosive offensive ballclub.

Steve Mix and John Brisker have been the leading Rockets scorers. Both Mix and Brisker are averaging better than 20 points per game in conference action.

The Herd, fresh off of a win at Oxford Wednesday night, will be out to avenge an earlier loss

Miami win increases title hopes

A key defensive move by Dan D'Antoni, the 5-11 junior from Mullens, with seven seconds left, preserved Marshall's 69-68 victory over Miami University, at Oxford, Ohio, Wednesday night.

The victory kept the Herd's Mid-American Conference title hopes alive. Marshall is now 6-3 in conference play, moving up to third place behind Toledo (6-1) and Bowling Green (6-2).

Miami is now 2-6 and holds sixth place in the conference. Marshall is 12-6 overall and Miami is 7-9.

A long battle to regain the lead, which Marshall only held four times throughout the game, was climaxed by Bob Redd, Louisville, Ky., senior, with 1:34 left in the game. The Herd's captain made a 12-footer from the lane, which put Marshall on top 69-68, where it remained for the rest of the game.

After a Marshall time out, with seven seconds left Davidson took the ball out and passed to D'Antoni. In the last two seconds, D'Antoni was fouled by George Burkhart. He missed the free throw and Allen rebounded it as the clock ran out.

Locke, who later said he had called for a "two-man game—Snow and Foster" in the last seconds, kicked the scorer's table in frustration after seeing his team miss three narrow MAC victories on its home court.

Foster was top scorer with 28 and was high on rebounds with 19. Snow added 15 points, while Marshall had four scorers in double figures.

George Stone and Jim Davidson each had 18 points, Bob Redd added 15 and D'Antoni popped in 13.

Marshall's defense made up for a cold shooting night. The Herd shot 24 of 61 for 39.4 per cent from the field. Miami hit 53.1 per cent, with 26 of 49.

Marshall's defense managed to cause 18 Miami turnovers — 14 of them in the decisive second half.

The Herd's rebounds totaled 35, only one above Miami's 34, despite the height advantage. Allen, the MAC's top rebounder with a 13-plus average, got only six. Redd led Marshall's rebounding with eight.

Marshall's victory was only its third in 15 tries at Withrow Court since the Thundering Herd entered the conference.

to the Rockets. Since the Herd cannot afford to lose another conference game, the significant issue is that a win over the Rockets would still leave them in second place. However, Toledo must still play Bowling Green, Western Michigan and Miami.

George Stone, MU's leading scorer, will be trying to break out of a cold streak that has kept his shooting percentage down.

Team captain Bob Redd is on a scoring flurry as he has taken up part of the scoring slack.

Earlier in the season, Head Coach Bob Nichols said that his team was primarily a man-to-man defensive team. This still stands, but of late the Rockets have experimented with a zone defense.

When the Herd played the Rockets at Toledo on Dec. 30, they did not get a close look at 7-0 sophomore Doug Hess. If Coach Nichols goes to a zone defense against the Herd, Hess will probably be in the line-up.

Toledo's record in the MAC is now 6-1. MU, Bowling Green and Toledo are leading the conference in wins with six apiece. Overall the Rockets are 12-4 as compared to the Herd's 12-6 record.

MU is hitting at a 42 percent clip from the field. However, the Herd does lead the MAC in foul shooting accuracy at 78.7 percent.

Bob Allen, MU's center, still leads the conference in rebounding. In eight games he has pulled down 108 rebounds for an average of 13.5. For Toledo, Mix and Brisker are averaging 10.1 and 8.5 respectively.

The Toledo offense, as compared to the run and shoot offense of the Herd, is a conservative high-low post.

Herd defeats O. Wesleyan

Marshall wrestlers swept six of nine matches, Wednesday night in Gullickson Hall to beat previously undefeated Ohio Wesleyan, 18-11.

In the first home meet for the grapplers in quite awhile, Marshall fans saw Ohio Wesleyan take an early lead when undefeated Art Keown defeated MU's David Greathouse in the 123-pound class.

But the determined Marshall team charged back and won the next six weight divisions. Bill Archer ignited the charge and tied the score when he defeated Ed Lively 10-1.

Continuing the charge, Ron May, John Mahood, Charles Smith, Richard Aiello and Bruce Wallace scored five straight decisions to put the Herd ahead 18-3.

Wesleyan won the last two matches, one by a fall, making the final score 18-11.

The Herd wrestle at home again when it feets Cincinnati, Wednesday at 7 p.m. in Gullickson Hall.

"Let's go for a swim" must be MU swimming coach Bob Saunders' best loved phrase.

Coach Saunders will be busy playing the role of salesman today as he introduces a young swimming prospect to the facilities of the MU campus.

The young man's name is Doug Hartman, Silver Springs, Md. native. He will be accompanied by his father during his stay through Sunday.

"He (Hartman) is a very versatile swimmer," said Coach Saunders. "He's the type most coaches like to have. He can compete in any number of events."

Hartman's swimming times, according to Coach Saunders, are more than good enough for him to compete in Mid-American Conference meets.

* * *

Several weeks ago at the National Coaches Convention in New York City, a resolution was adopted by the NCAA enabling freshmen eligible for varsity sports other than football, basketball and baseball.

At the time of the announcement, it seemed to a number of coaches, that this resolution was the great gift handed down by the big coach in the sky. But as stated that was several weeks ago.

It seems that the NCAA can pass resolution after resolution but it is up to the individual conference to vote on whether to use it or not. Thus, by all appearances it looks as if the MAC is taking quite a while to contemplate on should we or shouldn't we.

The saying of "follow the leader" could very well apply to this situation. Is the MAC waiting to see what the Big Ten is going to do? Horrors, vanish the thought!

The freshmen ruling would certainly help the MAC. What could be gained by not adopting the ruling? Nothing soluble other than the fact that MAC schools can already compete with anyone else, thus, extra strength is not needed.

* * *

It's nearing that time again when all the trees turn green and the birds begin to sing louder and the sounds of spring are in the air. Especially the sounds of "PLAY BALL."

Yessiree, spring baseball practice has started. Jack Cook, MU baseball coach, is not putting his veteran dominated squad through the paces.

Seemingly, Coach Cook's schedule is about set — that is, except for one open date.

"We sure would like to play West Virginia University," quipped Coach Cook.

Kentucky-MU cagers meet tomorrow night

The Marshall freshman team will take on the University of Kentucky frosh, which has compiled a 5-8 record this year, in an 8 p.m. game tomorrow at Memorial Field House.

The Kentucky freshman team is composed of four players with grant-in-aids, including Bob McCowan, a 5-10 guard from Dayton, Ohio; Larry Steele, a 6-6, forward from Bainbridge, Ind.; Steve Schmitt, a 6-10 center and Greg Starrick, a 6-2 guard from Marion, Ill. The other probable starter is Jim Harris, a 6-2 guard or forward or Buck Jones, a 6-1 forward.

McCowan, the shortest man in the starting lineup, is leading the team in scoring with a 20.8 average. The small guard had his best performance of the season Monday night when he poured in 41 points against IBM, an independent team.

Schmitt is the leading rebounder with a 17.9 average and also has a 17.7 scoring average. Starrick is second on the team in scoring average at 19.5, but missed three games due to a knee injury. Steele is third in scoring with a 17.9 average.

The Kentucky frosh's five wins have come against the University of Kentucky Law School, Jerry's YMCA, the Alabama Freshmen, the Bellermarion frosh and IBM.

Their losses have come at the hands of the University of Cincinnati, 84-82 and 84-74, Jerry's YMCA, 89-87 and 106-88, Vanderbilt, 100-99, Notre Dame, 101-75, Dayton, 77-68 and Tennessee, 76-72.

The Little Herd has an 8-2 record and has won seven of its last eight games.

Redd requests 'cheer at top of your lungs'

"I ask you to cheer at the top of your lungs and express yourselves in the most avid manner . . ."

This is the plea issued yesterday by Bob Redd, Louisville, Ky., senior and captain of the Marshall basketball team, regarding tomorrow's Toledo-Marshall basketball game.

"As many of you know, Toledo is coming to town," said Redd. "I know that all my teammates, the coaching staff, and most of you students are behind me when I say 'We want to beat Toledo.'"

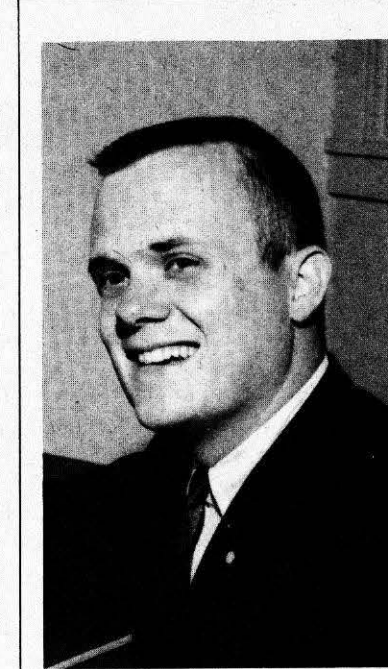

"The winning aspect of any game is important, but more important is how we win. I want to win this game with dignity and I am sure we can. But this will take a joint effort from both the team and the student body.

"When Marshall visited Toledo we played under game conditions that I would never like to play under again. I ask you to cheer at the top of your lungs and express yourselves in the most avid manner, but I also appeal to you—the student body and alumni—please do not allow yourselves to drop to the level of the fans I witnessed at Toledo."

Redd further said he dislikes hearing booing.

"Just yell as loud as possible, because it helps us."

The natural look in beauty care begins with the eyes. Well dressed eyes are just as important as the fashions you wear.

The most popular look this year seems to be a soft subtle one, accented by wide innocent eyes. The theme for all make-up is BARE.

The first step in creating a special effect is to stroke white brush-on shadow over your entire eyelid and close to the brow.

For depth, brush on a warm brown shadow above the eyelid crease and blend it in with the white shadow.

Choose a light shade of colored shadow for the eyelid.

Accentuate your eyes with a line of brown or black liner as close to the lashes as possible.

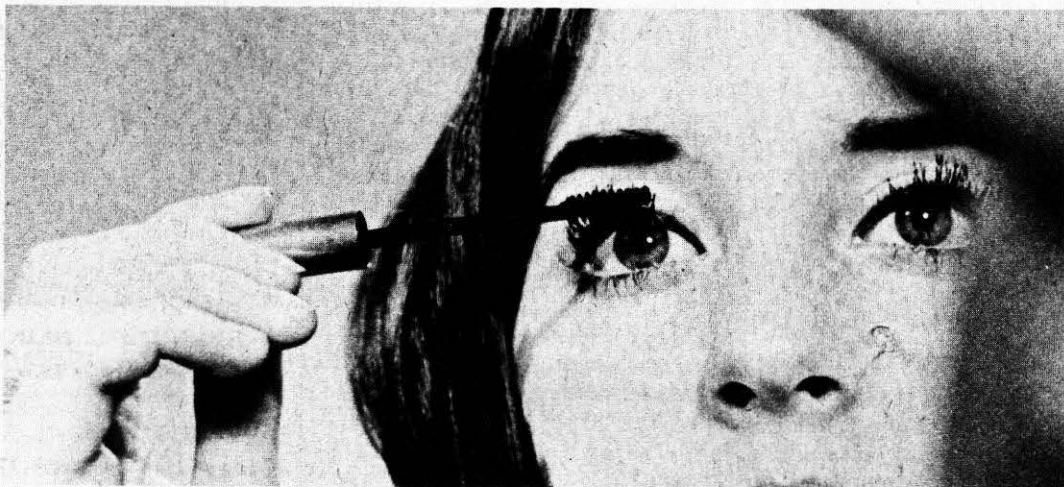

For a new effect try lining with pencil the inside of the eyelid between the underneath side of the lashes and next to the eyeball.

Eyelashes can also be made to look thicker by brushing on mascara then adding powder and brushing on more mascara. Wait until the coat of mascara dries before adding more mascara. This will prevent it from smudging on your cheek.

If your lashes are straight, use a curler to turn them up before applying mascara.
