By SAM NEAL
Staff Reporter

More than $23,000,000 in new construction at Marshall is either recently completed, in the construction stage, or on the drawing boards.

"This is the most exciting time in the history of the institution to be a student at Marshall University," according to at least one faculty member. "The only other period I can think of when there was as much excitement generated was when Marshall achieved University status."

Construction recently completed on the campus includes a $365,000 maintenance building on 20th Street, and a $3.8 million Academic Center and Music Building on Third Avenue. The Music Building is still under construction, scheduled for completion in the summer.

Also under construction is a $1.8 million addition to the James E. Morrow Library and a $1.5-million four-story addition to South Hall.

Joseph Soto, vice president of business and finance, said that construction has been approved for $16 million in new or renovated buildings that has not started yet.

Included in this proposed construction is $6 million for a Twin Towers dormitory and cafeteria for men and women, $1 million for married student housing on the University Heights campus; $1 million for remodeling of Laidley and Hodges Hall dormitories; $4.5 million for a new Science and Engineering building; $3 million for a new University Center, and $500,000 for a new Communications Center.

Present plans call for the Twin Towers to be erected on Fifth Avenue between 18th and 19th Streets. The Science and Engineering building is scheduled to go up where the present Music Building is now located, with the new structure connected to the present Science Hall. The new University Center is to be built on Fifth Avenue between Elm and 17th Streets.

According to Mr. Soto, $11 million in revenue bonds will be sold by the State Board of Education for Marshall to finance the Twin Towers, University Center, married student housing at University Heights, and the remodeling of Laidley and Hodges Halls.

Legislative Proposals Are Listed

By LLOYD D. LEWIS
Editor-in-Chief

One board? Two boards? Three boards? What will it be?

Several proposals for a partial cure of West Virginia's higher education ills have been presented in the past weeks — and each one tends to confuse the public a little more. This is an explanation of these proposals — and what they will mean to Marshall.

First of all, there is the report to Governor Smith and the Legislature from the West Virginia Committee on Higher Education, composed of members of the State Board of Education, the West Virginia University Board of Governors, and the 21 state and private college and university presidents, including MU President Stewart H. Smith, who compose the West Virginia Association of College and University Presidents.

According to a detailed report dated Oct. 31, 1966, the Committee has submitted to the governor and Legislature five major moves which would be taken if this plan is adopted: (1) establishment of an 11-member West Virginia Board of Regents to oversee financing and administration of both public and private higher education in the state, (2) establishment of a Board of Governors of the state colleges, composed of nine members, (3) establishment of a nine-member board of governors for Marshall—to be explained further later, (4) retention of the present board of governors of West Virginia University and Potomac State College, and (5) retention of the West Virginia Board of Education to supervise the free public school system.

Specifically, the Marshall board of governors would have nine members appointed by the Governor with the approval of the State Senate. Terms would be nine years in length and not more than two members could be appointed from each congressional district, no more than five could be members of the same political party and at least four would have to be Marshall graduates.

The board, which would have Marshall President Stewart H.

MARSHALL UNIVERSITY STUDENT NEWSPAPER

Vol. 66

Wednesday, February 8, 1967

HUNTINGTON, W. VA.

No. 38

Oh!

Time?

Wonderful!

THERE'S ONLY one thing that could cause such consternation, anxiety, happiness on the face of a Marshall student. Lana Houchins, MU graduate, registered a wide range of emotions as she watched the Thundering Herd gain a BIG 96-81 victory over Toledo. So did everyone else! (Photos by Parthenon Photographer Doug Dill)

Herd's Win 'Team Victory'

A CHARGED UP Thundering Herd is led onto the floor of the Field House just before the Toledo game by Capt. Bob Redd. The cagers, before a standing-room-only crowd of 7,000, downed the previously-unbeaten Rockets by a 15-point margin. (Other stories, pictures Pages 6-7)

By TIM BUCEY
Sports Co-Editor

"It was a great team victory and all the boys did exceptionally well. I'm very proud of them all."

So said a coach whose team defeated one of the two undefeated major teams in the country and won its fifth consecutive game to move into a second place tie in the MAC race.

The victory has more rewards than just a win in the conference race.

"It gives us a lot of publicity nationwide and will help in our recruiting program," Ellis Johnson, head basketball coach, added.

"This is the biggest—or one of the biggest victories since I've been at Marshall. We now have as good a chance as anybody in the MAC race. If it wasn't for that one point loss at Ohio we would be in the driver's seat now."

"Marshall has a very fine team and could be a real factor in determining the outcome of this race," Toledo head coach Bob Nichols commented. "Everybody is still in the race with the exception of Kent State. I don't even know if Toledo is in the race," he added.

Nichols praised Bob Allen as a big factor in the game and also the shooting of George Stone.

Smith Gets Committee Proposal

By J. PRESTON SMITH
Staff Reporter

The proposed site for construction of a new stadium for Marshall is located between Twentieth and Twenty-third Streets and Third and Fifth Avenues, according to a recommendation submitted to President Stewart H. Smith, by the 17-man Site Selection Committee appointed last November.

Dr. Smith submitted the recommendations to the Urban Renewal Authority to make further study. Their study, findings and recommendations will be returned to President Smith prior to Feb. 15.

This preliminary study, if approved after a public hearing, will then be submitted to the government for a planning grant.

If approved, the stadium will be constructed north to south between Twenty-second and Twenty-third Streets with the remainder of the area to be used for parking facilities. There will be 12,500 seats on each side of the stadium. There will also be ample room at each end in case the construction of a horseshoe or bowl would be feasible in the future.

An elaborate press box and athletic facilities as well as up-to-date concession stands and public toilet facilities is proposed.

The committee, appointed by President Smith, was chaired by Mr. William Powers, president of Huntington Trust and Savings Bank. Under the direction of Mr. Powers, groups were set up to study the program.

If the present recommended selection is used, students will be able to walk to and from the football games. The stadium will lie between two arterial highways, Fifth Avenue on the south and Third Avenue on the north, from which the traffic for the football games can be channeled into and out of the parking area, which will hold 2,500-3,000 vehicles.

This site will not interfere with either the underpass on Fifth Avenue or the underpass on Third Avenue, which has been recommended to the City Planning Commission.

One distinct advantage of this site would be that it will provide parking around the clock for University faculty and students.

This area is also one where property values have remained practically stationary for many years, and in fact, has previously qualified as an area for urban renewal.

The Marshall University Heights campus was the committee's choice for an alternate site. One thing favoring this location was the fact that it already belonged to the

Letters To The Editor

To the Editor:
At last the health and welfare of Marshall University students has taken a turn for the better. The investigation of the Health Clinic by our student government was a momentous step toward this goal. This inquiry was handled intelligently and skillfully, without the intent to unjustly criticize any of the clinic's staff or personnel. This probe produced many weaknesses of our present clinic and presented sound, constructive criticism. In the near future, Marshall will tentatively have a health clinic that will meet the growing needs of our enlarged student body. Our proposed new clinic will have two full-time nurses, x-ray technician and equipment, more varied medical supplies with a better system of medicine filing. The clinic will also be able to treat a much larger variety of ailments. These are just a few of the many improvements

Building Boom Alters Campus

In addition to the revenue bonds, Mr. Soto also said that Marshall is to receive some federal assistance for part of the proposed construction. A federal grant will help pay for part of the Library addition, the Communications Center and the Science and Engineering building.
Mr. Soto said that the entire construction program on the main campus, as it now shapes up, should be completed by 1970 or 1972.
Building construction on the Marshall Campus, however, is only a part of the growth story of the university. Since Marshall achieved university status in March, 1961, it has continued to grow rapidly.
In 1963 Marshall started its branch colleges in Logan and Williamson, completed West Hall in 1964, and started the "second campus," or University Heights, in 1962.
The growth financially has also been astronomical. This year, for example, Marshall submitted a $6.7 million budget to the legislature, of which $6.1 million has already been approved by the Board of Public Works.
This is a period of change, a period of excitement at Marshall. By 1972, the University will have a new physical appearance, more students, increased faculty, better facilities, and perhaps a new spirit in the student body.
Financial and physical growth are only a part of the whole picture.
As Mr. Soto said, "We have not mentioned a new stadium, field house, large auditorium, or recreational auditorium, but these are seen, perhaps through a glass dimly—but they are envisioned."

that our renovated health clinic will provide to the students it serves.
It might be mentioned that our adversary in the north has just started a similar project of investigation toward their health center. It seems that students up there are dissatisfied with the present system of medical service and want their student government to conduct an investigation of the health center and personnel. Sound familiar? Well, it just goes to show that our northern neighbor is not the leader in everything. Our student government has done a marvelous job investigating the Health Center and has put Marshall one step closer to becoming "The University" in West Virginia.

HARRY BRUNER,
Charleston Freshman

To The Editor:
To all the students who were required to make schedule changes last week, I offer my condolences for their suffering and my commendation for their perseverance. This letter of protest is dedicated to them.
During seven semesters at Marshall, both full and part-time, I have watched the post-registration procedure go from a state of disorganization to outright chaos.
In the area of schedule changes, our administration seems to have ignored the heavy influx of new students. The same old, tired system is used each semester. Students are faced, in my opinion, with unnecessary delays.
If a student needs to alter his class schedule, he must stand in line for hours to have a two-minute conversation with his academic dean. And, to make a bad situation worse, the lines extend through the first floor hall of Old Main, one of the busiest buildings on campus. Crushed toes and bruises are not uncommon in the hourly "banzai" charges to class.
Also, the deans' offices are closed from noon to 1 p.m., an hour when almost all students are free.
There is nothing more frustrating than to patiently stand in line for hours, then lose your place because you have to attend a class. A student who cuts a first week class meeting to stay in line will undoubtedly miss important information concerning exams, reports, etc.
After consulting, however briefly, with his academic dean, the student often has to fall in at the rear of another line in order to see the dean of another college who controls needed classes. This situation is particularly time-consuming for Teachers College students picking up Arts and Sciences courses. The seats in Old Main Auditorium are comfortable but the wait is aggravating.

With just five modifications, the present system could be made efficient, thereby eliminating most of the delays at a time when students need break periods to locate and purchase books, supplies, etc.
My suggestions include:
(1) Academic deans should designate additional personnel to assist them in approving schedule changes. Once these "helpers" are briefed on requirements, they would be assistant deans for one week. Department chairmen could fill these positions.
(2) Wednesday of the first week of each semester should be set aside for schedule changes. All classes meet Monday and Tuesday and by Wednesday a student should know if his schedule needs to be changed. Regular class meetings would be dismissed on Wednesday. With proper organization, the bulk of the changes could be made on that day.
(3) Deans and their "helpers" could alternate lunch periods to keep the lines moving all day.
(4) The deans should be located in campus auditoriums where waiting students could be seated. For example, Teachers College could be housed in the Academic Center auditorium. Arts and Sciences could use the Science Auditorium.
(5) Separate tables and seating areas, similar to "express lanes" in supermarkets, could handle students from other colleges who need only class admission approval. This "quickie" technique could also be used for students with only one change.
By using helpers, the deans would be available for conferences with late registering students and with those who have unusual problems.
Schedule changes are just as important as registration. They deserve equal consideration.
KEITH KAPPES,
Ironton senior

To The Editor:
Recently, Senator Tom Davie submitted his resignation to the Marshall University Student Government. Senator Davie had to resign because of personal reasons but he did a very commendable job while in office. Many times Tom stood up in Senate and spoke what he felt although he may have been alone in his thoughts. Here's hats off to an excellent job.
The senatorial position is now open to members of the freshman class. Any responsible and interested class member is urged to submit an application. Time is limited so do so immediately. Taking part in Marshall's Student Government offers rewarding experiences that the college student does not ordinarily encounter. The interest of the Freshman Class can be measured through the response of applications.

Leadership Seminar Planned March 31 At Jackson's Mill

"There'll be Some Changes Made" will be the theme of a leadership seminar March 31-April 2, at Jackson's Mill, according to Penny Tully, Summersville junior and program coordinator.
The seminar will be a weekend meeting of campus leaders, chosen to convey the opinions of the groups they represent. Each campus organization is entitled to send two delegates, said Miss Tully.
In addition, every student government commissioner, all coordinators, Student Court justices, and all past and present senators are eligible to attend, according to Miss Tully.
We hope to accomplish something concrete this year," Miss Tully added. Discussion topics include social and academic problems, such as the English Qualifying Exam and counseling policies.
Various discussion groups will meet Saturday, and a well-known speaker will appear that evening. A hootenanny or other entertainment has been scheduled later Saturday and will be followed by free time for parties, said Miss Tully.
Sunday morning devotions will be followed by an assembly, during which summation will be made by each of the group leaders.
Applications for the seminar may possibly be distributed this week, said Miss Tully. "We hope that all campus organizations will take advantage of the opportunity afforded by this conference." She requested that all applications be returned as soon as possible.

WE THE PEOPLE

By BECKY THOMAS
Feature Writer

The Student Court is presently an ineffective organization. Reasons for this situation are varied. Some of these problems are beyond the control of those involved, while others definitely can be remedied if the effort is made.

According to Tony Broh, Huntington senior and chief justice, the freshman election results were referred to the court by the Student Senate for verification or rejection. The court validated the election results in what has been its only decision this year, said Broh.

"The student body, and especially those interested in Student Government, have not taken advantage of the opportunity to bring cases to the court," he explained. "The court cannot function without cases and for obvious reasons cannot create its own cases," Broh said. The court must be petitioned. It cannot request cases even though the justices may question something that has happened. The justices must remain unbiased and free from prejudice.

The court presently is not meeting, said Broh, because there is nothing to do.

He added, "The court is set up and able to function at any time."

"One reason why so few cases have been brought to the court is that students may feel a student group may be less sympathetic than faculty or administration," said Broh.

John E. Shay, dean of students affairs, confirmed Broh's reasons by stating, "It has been my experience that student courts do not usually temper justice with mercy. They tend to be harsh."

"The court definitely is an ineffective organization at this time," said Dean Shay. He added that one reason for this may be: "Many discipline cases are not cut and dried. Emotional and other personal problems arise in many cases and educational functions as well as disciplinary measures are necessary."

Shay said that the necessity of a student court to find the accused guilty or innocent with no other alternative is one reason he rarely refers a disciplinary case to the court. He added that if a student asked that his case be referred to the court, the request would almost certainly be granted.

Presently a student in disciplinary trouble has the option of presenting his case before the three academic deans or the Student Conduct and Welfare Board. Dean Shay suggested that perhaps the Student Court should be added to the two other options.

He said another reason for his reluctance to refer cases to the court was the result of a former case in which a student was expelled from school. The expulsion was announced in The Parthenon. Although no name was mentioned the information soon leaked through some source other than the court, thus bringing great embarrassment to the student involved.

The incident could not have happened, according to the dean, if the matter had been handled by the administration, since its records are strictly confidential. Therefore, Dean Shay has been reluctant to refer cases to the court.

Another cause of the ineffectiveness of the court may be traced to a vacancy in the office of student prosecutor. The position has been vacant since the Dec. 12 resignation of Bill Evans, Huntington senior.

In his letter of resignation, Evans stated, "In working with the outlined purpose of the student prosecutor for a year and a half and two presidents, I have come to the conclusion that the position should be eliminated."

Evans' recommendation was followed and no replacement has been appointed, according to Larry Bruce, Huntington senior and student body president.

Evans suggested, in his letter of resignation, that the committee chairman or the commissioner involved in the dispute should defend his actions before the court rather than the prosecutor. He said that he feels that involvement of a third person complicates the situation even more.

The Student Government Constitution delegates to the student prosecutor the responsibility of representing the Student Government before the Student Court; investigation and prosecution of violators of the rules and regulations contained in the Constitution; and representation of the Student Government in all cases involving claims against or on behalf of the Student Government.

It is interesting to note that since Evans' resignation, not one of the committee chairmen or commissioners has brought a possible violation before the court, according to Broh. Perhaps if the position of prosecutor was reinstated to the full Constitutional requirements, the court could become more effective.

Broh has recommended that the student prosecutor be made an office subject to election by the student body, rather than appointment by the student body president. He also suggested making it the only elected cabinet office. "A position on the cabinet would bring the prosecutor into greater contact with the workings of Student Government," Broh concluded.

The court has three basic areas of jurisdiction.

First, the court shall determine offenses against the student body and fix punishments for offenses referred to it. This would include disciplinary cases referred to the court by the administration.

Secondly, the court shall be a court of appeal for minor judicial groups, such as dormitory councils, Pan-Hellenic Council, Inter-Fraternity Council, Independent Student's Association, and the Freshman Court.

Third, the court shall settle Student Government controversies. If anyone should feel that he has been wronged by any agency of the Student Government, he may petition for redress through the Student Court.

Better understanding of the purposes and powers of the Student Court may lead to a better and more effective University.

'Inhabitable' Conditions In Hodges Hall

THIS IS ONE of the reasons that Marshall is glad to have gotten approval of an $11 million revenue bond sale. The sale of revenue bonds will be used partly to renovate and add to the men's dorm.

receive ratification of the student body earlier this year, has been revised and will be re-presented to the Senate in two weeks, according to Frost.

The constitution has been in committee since its defeat this fall. If the Senate approves the document, said Frost, it will be placed on the spring election ballot for student body approval.

"Winter Weekend" has been ruled out due to a lack of time and difficulties in planning, according to Frost. Frost said that the Field House could not be secured for a reasonable date for the event and other difficulties were experienced in trying to hire a band. He said the possibility of a spring weekend is being investigated, but the possibility of such an event taking place is remote.

Medical Honorary To Sponsor Films

Dr. Ralph M. Edeburn, professor of zoology and pre-medical adviser, announced that Alpha Epsilon Delta, honorary pre-medical society, is sponsoring a series of films dealing with the health related fields which will be shown each month in Science Hall 211.

The films, "Transvaginal Anesthesia", "Technique of Splenectomy", "Plastic Repair of Finger Injury", and "The Urological Examination" are of special interest to pre-medical students. A schedule of the showings is posted on the pre-medical bulletin board between Science 211 and 213.

Alpha Epsilon Delta, whose objectives are to stimulate excellence in pre-medical education, and to serve as a liaison between colleges and professional schools is taking applications for membership.

A student who has been in college at least three semesters, and who has a 2.8 average or better is eligible for membership. If interested contact one of the members or Dr. Edeburn.

and student body president, reported at Wednesday night's Senate meeting in South Hall that the lobbyist group will probably travel to Charleston again this week.

Bruce also announced the resignation of Tom Davie, St. Albans freshman senator, and Betty Theis, Huntington senior senator. Bruce said that applications for replacements for these two senators are presently being filed in the Student Government Office. Any interested freshman or senior may apply, said Bruce. The appointments will be made by the respective class presidents and ratified by the Senate.

Jack Kessick, Huntington junior, introduced three resolutions to the Senate last Wednesday. The first resolution voiced non-support for the anti-nudist bill proposed in the State Legislature. Kessick argued that, "No one has the right to tell anyone else who they can strip in front of." After lengthy and heated discussion, the resolution was defeated.

Kessick's second resolution commended George Rorrer for his coverage of Marshall sports in the Huntington newspaper.

The third resolution was a recommendation to the Athletic Department to schedule a Marshall game against a major team to be played in the Charleston Civic Center next year. The second and third resolutions were passed.

Gregg Terry, Huntington sophomore senator, introduced a motion to terminate Student Conduct and Welfare Board limitation of social functions held by campus organizations. The motion was to be considered by the board at its next meeting.

The student directories have been delayed again, according to Jackie Moss, Charleston senior and commissioner of information and publications. A new list of names is being made and will be sent to the publisher as soon as possible. The new directories will not be available before next month, said Miss Moss.

Stadium Would Be Nearer Campus

University and there would be no expense involved in acquiring the property. However, it is so far from the campus that it would necessitate transportation for students getting to and from the University.

Also, the accessibility of this site, from a standpoint of getting roads in and out of that area would make the cost prohibitive.

The student representative on the Site Selection Committee was Dick Smith, Huntington junior and commissioner of Student Government Affairs.

"I found it quite a responsibility to be the only student on a committee of 16 men named by President Smith," Smith said. "It was my duty to contribute all ideas for the students of Marshall."

"I primarily expressed the fact that I did not think that our stadium should be used for high school games," he added. "Students of Marshall want a top grade football field not one trampled from the high school game played the night before."

Study Reveals Inferior Status

Although Marshall's budget is larger this year, per capita appropriations are actually smaller than last year's, according to a study released Monday by President Stewart H. Smith.

A recent study by the Joint Committee on Government and Finance and the Commission on Interstate Cooperation showed that Marshall received $577 in per capita appropriations for personal services in the 1966-67 fiscal year, compared with $590 last year. This is lower than the average $659, and ranks seventh in the state with West Virginia University on top, receiving $804.

Ranking next to last in tenth place for current expense appropriations, Marshall received $49 per capita. Last year the sum was $54. The average appropriation now is $77 for current expenses with WVU again leading with $113.

Trailing lamely in last place, the per capita appropriations for repairs and alterations is only $17, a drop from the $20 allocation last year. Marshall still lags far behind the average, which is $29.

Snugly settling in last place again, Marshall received $26 per capita for equipment, far below the average $44. This is only a small drop from last year's $27.

The study shows that Marshall University, the second largest higher educational institution in the state, ranks last or near-last on per capita appropriations.

3 Students Elected To 4-H Conference

Three members of the Marshall University 4-H Club have been selected as delegates to the State College 4-H Conference this weekend at Jackson's Mill. They are Diana Edwards, Elizabeth junior, Harold Bailes, Clay junior, and Sharyn Wells, Palistine junior.

The conference, with a theme of "Youth Today", is the first college meet to be held since the Marshall club passed a resolution last spring urging the State 4-H Office to sponsor such activities for the eight college and university clubs in the state.

The event will open on Friday with dinner and close Sunday at the noon meal.

"I expressed the fact that I felt Marshall students would be willing to support the new stadium as long as they know it will belong to Marshall," Smith said. "We don't want the State of W. Va. telling us what to do with it."

"I felt that the site which was selected would be easier for students to attend the games," he added. "Students shouldn't have to catch a bus or cab to get to the game, when they could walk if it was close to campus."

The 17-man committee was broken down into three groups in order to make recommendations on these items: (1) recommend a suitable site; (2) recommend the size and type of stadium needed and (3) determine the approximate cost and recommend methods of financing.

Early in January, 1966, the committee reviewed several sites which

CG's Again Help At Accident Scene

Cadet Capt. Robert F. McClanahan, Chesapeake junior, congratulated the Counterguerrilla Company this week for lending a helping hand. For the third time, the CG's came upon a traffic accident and helped with first aid, rerouting traffic, and assisting city police.

McClanahan said the cadets were returning from the Memorial Field House after attending an MU basketball game on Jan 14. Four members of the ushering detail, traveling in the same car came upon a traffic accident at Third Avenue and 23rd Street, near the Chesapeake and Ohio grade crossing.

The cadets parked their car and took charge of the situation. Cadet Sgt. Arley Abraham, Williamson sophomore, administered first aid to victims of the wrecked vehicles, while Cadet 2nd Lt. Rodney Barker, St. Albans junior, Cadet Pfc Robert Bible, Beech Bottom freshman, and Cadet Pfc Robert Condon, St. Albans freshman, directed traffic around the wreck. The CG unit asked local residents to call the police and an ambulance.

After police arrived, the CG's continued to keep traffic moving in two lanes until the wreckage was cleared.

The Police Department congratulated the CG's for their help, as did Cadet Col. John C. Wideman, St. Petersburg, Fla., senior, and Col. Henry C. Bowden, professor of military science.

APPLICATIONS DUE

Final applications for the selective service student deferment test are to be in the mail by this Friday. Applications and an addressed envelope may be obtained in the student affairs office. The tests will be given March 11 and 13 and April 8 at the Academic Center, Science Hall, and Old Main.

it thought would be acceptable for the stadium. These sites were reviewed with certain criteria in mind. The first consideration was proximity to the campus; since the stadium is to be built for the students, it should be within walking distance for them. The fact that the stadium will be maintained and owned by Marshall eliminates any other site but one on campus.

The second consideration was for the traffic flow. The third consideration was parking. Sites that were reviewed were as follows:

- (1) The projected Urban Renewal Area north of Third Avenue between Twelfth and Eighteenth Streets.
- (2) The area between Sixteenth Street and Fourteenth Street running between Third and Fifth Avenue.
- (3) A site immediately east of the flood wall on Route 2 lying south of the highway.
- (4) A site east of Twentieth Street north of Third Avenue towards the flood wall, the buildings on which are now standing empty.
- (5) The Marshall University Heights location, and the location that was finally selected. The site that was recommended meets the criteria that was established in selection of the site.

Dr. Allen Asks Grant Of $50,000

The Claude Worthington Benedum Foundation Board of Directors will meet March 6 to study awarding of grants for the coming year. Marshall has applied for $50,000 to be spread over the next two years.

Dr. J. Stewart Allen, vice president of Academic Affairs, made the application to the foundation.

"In the past, the Benedum people have been beautifully generous and most fair with Marshall University," he said.

Since 1963, the Claude Worthington Benedum Foundation has made grants to support research by the faculty of Marshall. The amounts awarded by the foundation have grown from $7,500 for the first summer to $30,000 for 1965 and 1966. The money available to the Marshall University Research Board has likewise increased during the same period.

"As a result of the very real encouragement given by the Foundation, research at the University has grown both in volume and significance," Dr. Allen reported.

In submitting the application for $50,000 for the next two years, Dr. Allen also pointed out that the foundation, through its grants to the University is also helping the state of West Virginia educate its young people.

Novice Debate Team Places Third At Marietta College

Marshall's novice debate team placed third in the novice division of the Marietta College debate tournament Saturday.

The competition included 15 West Virginia, Pennsylvania and Ohio colleges.

The topic of the debate was: Resolved, that the United States should substantially reduce its foreign policy commitments.

Nida and Evans argued affirmatively and Gartin and Bailes argued negatively. Each team won three debates and lost one.

Nida was awarded the trophy for best affirmative debater.

The varsity team consisted of Lowell Adkins, Huntington senior, and Mike Engle, Charleston senior, affirmative debaters, and Robert Wilkins, Huntington junior, and David Kasper, Clayton, N. J., sophomore, negative debaters. Each won two debates and lost two in the varsity division.

Department Given Mass Spectrometer

The Ashland Oil and Refining Co. has donated a mass spectrometer and supporting equipment, valued at $20,000, to the Chemistry Department, according to Dr. John H. Wotiz, professor of chemistry and chairman of the department.

The spectrometer is an electronic instrument used in determining the mass of substances by using a powerful magnet.

A problem of placing the spectrometer arose because the instrument must have a level base and be placed in an air-conditioned room.

The Fiscal Facilities and Planning Committee decided to place the instrument on the first floor of Science Hall in a room that meets the specifications.

A Great Night For MU Cagers, Fans

"CONGRATULATIONS, UCLA — you are now the nation's only undefeated team." Members of THE Group, in the foreground, go wild as the Herd pulls a second-half runaway against the Rockets from Toledo, then one of the nation's two undefeated teams. MU out-scored Toledo by seven per cent on field goals, while taking an 11 per cent lead in free throws. It seemed as if George Stone couldn't miss, as he compiled 31 points — his high for the season. (Photos by Parthenon Photographer Doug Dill)

THE EXTRA ARM just above Bob Allen's head, (50), belongs to a Toledo forward who got caught up in a "squeeze" play with Bob Redd and Jim Davidson. Toledo's superstar Steve Mix (51) seems fascinated as the Herd speeds up their run-and-shoot tactics. Mix, a fine sport, attended a Toledo reception on campus after the game.

HIGHER AND HIGHER goes varsity cheerleader Charlee Donaldson, Pittsburgh, Pa., junior. So goes the home total on the scoreboard, as the Herd defense comes to life, out-rebounding the Rockets, 49-43.

CALLING TIME OUT near the end of the game, Coach Ellis Johnson confers with his reserve unit. Heading for his first winning season since he took his post, Johnson has reason to be happy. All five starters return next season.

Game Seating Is Rearranged

Seating continues to be a nagging problem at Marshall home basketball games.

A new plan for the seating arrangements at the Field House during home games has been announced Sunday by Marshall Athletic Director Whitey Wilson.

There will be no more general admission tickets sold and the previous general admission seats upstairs will be reserved seats. Also the general admission bleachers upstairs on the west end will be for Marshall students only.

At last Saturday's Marshall-Toledo game many students found themselves standing in the aisles or doorways. Many complained about being turned away as early as 7:15 p.m. because of the Field House being too crowded.

In the search for seats tempers tended to be short in many cases. In one such case a middle-aged man pushed his way through a group of students and sat down in the student section, while insulting a coed. A near fight resulted but the gentleman was removed by police officers.

NUMBER TWO MAN in the MU-Toledo stats was Bob Redd (32), with 20 points and 12 rebounds. Redd's repertory of moves kept even the referees in the dark on a few plays.

STUDENTS WHO WAITED in line until 7:05 p.m. Saturday didn't get to see the game. Fire marshals refused to allow them into the Field House. Athletic Director Whitey Wilson said the turnout was the largest ever for a Marshall athletic event.

Players Comment On BIG Win

'Biggest Game I've Played In,' Redd Says

"WE COULD BE AHEAD BY SIX OR EIGHT, but we're giving them the easy bucket," says Coach Johnson during halftime in the locker room. In a rare privilege, The Parthenon photographer and sports co-editor were allowed into the locker room by Coach Johnson. "We can win this ball game . . . you have to work harder on defense," the coach told his players, who were down by two at the half.

Nichols Lauds Allen, Stone

"Marshall played very well for 40 minutes, especially in the second half," the coach added.

The 98-61 win marks the biggest margin of defeat the Herd has laid on an MAC opponent this year and was the first time a Marshall squad has beaten the Toledo club in 16 games.

In the locker room at halftime, Coach Johnson stressed defense to his players. "We could be ahead by 6 or 8, but we are giving them the easy bucket," he told the players. "They are lobbing the ball over our heads on passes, so you'll have to watch that."

Before going back to the court the coach added, "We can win this ball game. We haven't played our best ball yet and you'll have to work tougher on defense."

The Rockets have been noted for their offensive, rather than defensive ability. They are leading the conference in scoring but only the Thundering Herd is below them in defensive average.

When MU played Toledo in December, the Rockets hit for more field goals than in any other game this season. In that game, won by Toledo 103-91, they hit 41 of 77 goals, but Saturday the Rockets could only hit on 33 of 84 shots.

George Stone, Covington, Ky., junior, poured in 31 points for the Herd—the highest point total for any Marshall player this season. The previous high was 29 set by Jim Davidson, Logan junior, Bob Redd, Louisville junior, and Stone.

Bill Backensto was the leading scorer for Toledo as he bucketed 30 points, followed by Steve Mix, who dumped in 27.

Stone now has 390 points on the season, 57 points shy of his total points in 24 games last year. He has led the team in scoring eight times this season.

In the first half the Rockets jumped to a 6-0 lead before the Herd got rolling and finally pulled within one point at 14-13 and 16-15.

With six minutes left in the first half, Toledo led by 10 points at 32-22, but the Herd surged within two at half by scoring 15 to the Rockets' seven in the final few minutes.

Davidson was the only player in foul trouble at the half with three personals. Redd and Allen had two each.

Coming into the second half the Herd quickly tied the score at 37-37 and the game was tied again at 39-39.

With 18:30 left in the game Bob Allen hit on a foul shot to make the score 40-39—putting Marshall ahead to stay.

Jim Davidson fouled out of the game with 14:07 left and was replaced by Orville Stepp, Inez, Ky., junior, who had scored 18 points in the losing cause at Toledo. The 6-0 forward netted nine points and grabbed four rebounds.

With the score 77-65 and 4:27 remaining, Allen committed his fifth personal foul and was replaced by Parkie Beam, Ashland, Ky. junior.

A scuffle broke out between Parkie Beam and John Brisker with 2:17 left as Beam claimed Brisker shoved the ball at him, and Beam shoved it back. Both benches emptied and before it was over Jim Davidson had knocked out Willie Babione with one punch.

Following the fight the Herd jumped to its biggest lead of the night at 92-70, and Coach Johnson put in subs.

Matmen Defeated

The Miami University Redskins overwhelmed the Marshall matmen Saturday in a dual match by a score of 33-5.

Miami swept to victories in every weight class except in the 160-pound class, which it forfeited.

Richard Aiello, who had been undefeated in seven decisions, lost to Bill Beachum in the 167-pound class—which is above Aiello's regular weight class.

The Herd goes against Ohio University in Gullickson Hall gym at 7:30 p.m. today.

Sports Co-Editor

"It was definitely the biggest game I've ever played in. There was nothing we could do if we'd lost this game."

These were the comments of a happy Bob Redd, Louisville, Ky., junior, in the dressing room after the Thundering Herd had come from behind to hand the Toledo Rockets their first defeat in 14 games.

"Personally, I am proud because we knew we had to do it and we did," Redd added. "Believe me, there was a lot of pressure on us out there, but I felt we were going to win. Everyone on the team had a positive attitude and no one was wasting energy. I really thought we were better than they were."

Bob Allen, the 6-9, Port Huron, Mich., junior who pulled down 16 rebounds before fouling out, agreed it was the most important game of his career. "Any time you beat a team with a 14-0 record it has to be a thrill. If we lost we would have been back with the rest of the pack, but now we're tied for second place with a chance to overtake Toledo."

"If we lost that game we would have had to just sit back and cross our fingers hoping three teams could knock off Toledo," George Stone, Covington, Ky., junior, said. "That loss hurt them. Toledo still has to play Miami, Ohio, and Western Michigan away which could also hurt."

Most players seemed to agree the difference between the earlier loss to Toledo and last week's win was the added experience.

"We weren't working together earlier in the season, but Saturday we had a good team effort and a good defense," Allen commented. "We were also up more for this game."

Dan D'Antoni, Mullens sophomore, felt the big difference was Bob Allen staying in the game longer. "At Toledo, Allen had four fouls in the first half which hurt us. Bob Redd also played a better game Saturday."

Redd was the runner-up in scoring for the Herd as he poured in 20 points, and was second in rebounding with 12 grabs. Allen was the game's high rebounder and was third in scoring with 14 points.

Most of the players agreed this wasn't the best game they've played this season.

"It had to be one of our better games, but maybe not our best," Allen said.

In general, the cagers felt their best effort thus far was against Loyola, a game which they won 97-81.

The remainder of the contests on Marshall's schedule are all conference games.

"If we beat Bowling Green, I don't think we'll lose another league game," Redd commented. "Two losses should win the MAC. We're back up against the fence now, but I think someone else is going to beat Toledo. We have two more games with Miami so something has to give."

D'Antoni and John Mallet, Wheeling sophomore, also agreed that to win the conference championship the Herd can lose no more than two games, but they also hastened to point out that Toledo has several road games remaining, including an encounter with Ohio, which is always tough on its home court.

"The remainder of the teams on our schedule are going to be tough to beat," D'Antoni warned.

Bob Allen is also looking for some tough games from Miami, Bowling Green and a road game at Western Michigan. "The team that wins will have no more than two or three losses. Any team on a given night is capable of beating another team in this well-balanced league."

Since Marshall beat one of the two undefeated major teams in the country, will the other teams be up when they play MU?

"I suppose so," Redd said. "I hope it does get a lot of teams up against us. Then we'll know we beat them while they were at their best, and we'll know we've really done something."

The Thundering Herd once again stormed back in the second half and tied the game in the first 14 seconds of play.

The players now realize that an NCAA berth or an NIT bid are riding on each game.

"I think we've got a pretty good chance for an NIT bid, if not an NCAA which goes along with the MAC championship," D'Antoni said.

Bob Redd said the Herd should have a good chance for a NIT bid with a 17-7 record.

Herd At Kent Tonight

The Thundering Herd invades Kent State University at 8 p.m. today to do battle against the Golden Flashes in another Mid-American Conference game.

Kent State, which opened up the season this year with a young and inexperienced team, will try to match speed against the Herd's height.

"I suppose it sounds hokey to some people," said Golden Flashes Coach Frank Truitt, "but teamwork and spirit can carry you a long way. When you lack height you must concentrate on other areas; you must have the unselfish player who will pass to the open man as many times as he shoots; you must hit the good shots and good shots come from teamwork."

"We are very inexperienced," continued Coach Truitt. "There are only two seniors on the team. However, we have improved greatly in the last month."

The Flashes, 0-8 in the MAC and 2-15 overall, will be trying to pull an upset over the Herd in the Kent Memorial Gym. Doug Grayson, who last year showed a great scoring touch with the freshman team and has proven his ability thus far in the MAC, could possibly be a big factor in tonight's game.

"He's not the greatest thing since sliced bread," commented Coach Truitt, "since he has a lot to learn. However, I feel that he has really helped our ball club."

Coach Truitt also expressed his views upon the pre-season polls of the MAC.

"I just don't believe too much in this poll-thing in basketball," said Coach Truitt. "It applies too much pressure upon the teams at the top. When a conference is as balanced as the MAC is this year, you can't go by polls."

Bowling Green and Ohio University, chosen by various pre-season polls as the top teams in the MAC, are in fourth and fifth place respectively.

An Editorial

Too Much Excitement Could Defeat Cagers

It is probably safe to say that Saturday night saw the most enthusiastic and excited crowd packed into the Field House since the days of Greer and Byrd in 1957-58.

"A crowd like that does make a difference," Dan D'Antoni, scrappy 5-11 guard, told The Parthenon as he dressed after the game.

"The crowd gets you excited. That's what you want — excited, but not nervous," he added.

But when a fight broke out near the Toledo bench late in the second half, the excitement and enthusiasm turned a shade of deep red. For five minutes the thrill of the Herd's superior ball-handling and soaring field goal average was forgotten in the thrill of a slugfest.

How the fight started will never be completely clear, since no one saw it from more than one point of view. Nor is that important. Ten cagers playing their hearts out before 7,000 roaring fans are prone to lose their composure under such pressure. Coaches, referees and teammates traditionally control such incidents.

But who controls the fans — like the ones who spouted anger that echoed down behind the scorekeepers' table — "Kill 'em! Get in there!"

The referees have full authority once the game begins. If the fans urge the players to keep up a fight, the referee can end the game. If, in his opinion, the event has lost its positive elements of sportsmanship and education, he can call no contest (the leading team wins); or he can call a forfeit (the trailing team wins).

If the same thing happens against highly-talented and revenge-minded Bowling Green, who would have the lead if the game were called?

Our amazing basketball club is in a very responsible position now. So are its fans. Failure to THINK could lose a conference title, or gain a tainted victory.

High School Officers Tour Campus

STUDENT OFFICERS FROM 47 high schools visited the campus last Saturday as guests of the Student Government. The students got acquainted with Marshall and with the University Student Government. Dick Smith (lower right), Huntington junior and originator of High School Student Government Day, is taking the students on a tour of campus.

Dr. Smith Favors Separate Board

Smith as its chief executive, would become effective July 1 if the Legislature okays it and would meet at least four times a year. Members would serve without compensation, but would be paid expenses.

Authority of board would include supervision of financial, business and educational affairs of the University and all other authorities now under the State Board of Education involving Marshall. All Marshall property would be transferred from the Board of Education to the new authority.

Governor Smith previously announced support for the separate board for Marshall but only last Friday came out in support of yet another plan which would make the State Board of Education the supreme authority over all education.

Verl W. Snyder, the governor's administrative assistant on education, said he has developed a plan which is designed to be a compromise between the West Virginia Committee on Higher Education's plan and the present organization of higher education.

The plan calls for State Superintendent of Schools Rex Smith to be the commissioner of higher education and the Board of Education's chief officer. Under the board would be an assistant superintendent and board of governors for the eight state colleges and also an assistant and separate board for the two universities, MU and WVU. Another assistant would supervise the State Department of Education.

The present State Board of Education would be divested of its higher education functions and supervise only public schools. Marshall and the eight state colleges are now governed by the board of education, while WVU and Potomac State College are under the West Virginia Board of Governors.

Another bill introduced in the Legislature Jan. 25 creates a board of regents of 11 members which would have control over all higher education in the state. The regents' authority, which would include control over the boards of governors of Marshall, West Virginia University and the state colleges, would include responsibility in three major areas: (1) making studies and recommendations respecting all higher education in the state, both public and private; (2) allocating specific functions among state colleges and universities and (3) submitting requests for them.

Of the 11 members, four would be presidents of the Marshall board of governors, the WVU board of governors, the State Board of Education and the state college board of governors. The other seven would be appointed by the governor with approval of the State Senate.

Another still more complicated idea has been brought forward by the West Virginia Education Association, which advocates a board of regents to control public education, another to control higher education, and a so-called coordinating commission over both of these.

President Smith, who is a member of the steering committee of the State Committee on Higher Education, is naturally in favor of a separate board of governors for Marshall, as well as a board of regents for higher education all over the state.

"Over 40 states have found that individual coordinating boards are the best system for larger institutions of higher education," Dr. Smith said Monday. "Our committee has had experts from Kentucky, Ohio, Pennsylvania, and other states to come and explain their systems to us.

"After long and thorough study, over the last two years, we have summed up these recommendations in the two-volume study we presented recently to Governor Smith and the Legislature," he continued. "These are not phony ideas; we think they are the best for the State of West Virginia.

The president, who has been working on these proposals since 1961, explained that all 40 of the committee members agreed unanimously on the plans."

Of the other plans submitted to the Legislature so far this session, Dr. Smith said they "are not the result of any extensive research or careful studies of the issues involved."

$287,160 Available To Students Through Foundation's Budget

The Marshall Foundation's budget this year will include an increase of $14,828 to make available a total of $287,160 for student loans, said R. J. Payor, president of the Foundation.

He also said that the Financial Aid Office has loaned Marshall students $805,435, and of this amount $89,159 came through the Foundation.

Some of the highlights of the Foundation's activities for the past year according to Payor are:

1. The total amount of grants received and disbursed amounted to $244,929.

2. From the Scholarship Development Fund, 59 scholarships totaled $5,450.00.

3. Matching funds of $13,884 with the government's $125,000 made $138,884 in loans available to students.

The total amount generated in 1966 was $389,303.

In the president's annual report Payor recommended that the Foundation:

1. Mount a drive for funds during 1967.

2. Seek more grants from all sources.

3. Appoint a committee to examine all areas of fund solicitation and methods to be utilized.

4. Employ a full-time Development Director with or without Legislature support.

5. Develop a format for obtaining as much unrestricted funds as possible.

6. Appoint a committee to develop a publicity and public relations program for constant exposure of the Foundation to the public in the work which the Foundation performs.

7. Retain an independent accountant to audit the books.
