Senate 'closed session' challenged

By LARRY SONIS
Staff Reporter

The legality of holding "closed sessions" of the Student Senate is being challenged in court.

At Parthenon press time, Bob Davie, St. Albans senior, was to have petitioned the Student Court yesterday to take two related actions against the Senate. "I feel that there could be no possible excuse for depriving the students of information about matters that are supposed to concern them," he said.

First, Davie is asking the court to issue a mandamus writ forcing the Senate to make public the proceedings of its last closed session.

The final portion of this meeting was ordered closed by Paul Matheny, Charleston senior and vice president of the student body, Sept. 27. The Student Government offered no comment on what was discussed.

Davie's second request is that the court ban all further "closed regular sessions" on grounds that they are ultra vires — beyond the Senate's power — and that they violate the intent of the Student Government Constitution.

To support his contentions, Davie is using sections from both the Constitution and the Student Government Manual. He alleges that private meetings, though not directly forbidden, are outlawed by the spirit of these documents.

Cites Constitution

According to Davie, the Constitution requires that all actions taken by the Senate be subject to the ultimate approval of President Stewart H. Smith. Davie maintains that closed sessions violate this provision by making it impossible to transmit Senate discussions to the administration. The phrase "all actions" includes all meetings, he said.

Another constitutional point cited by Davie is the clause which reads: "... student government in which students have a prime interest." This section, Davie claims, indicates that no matter should be hidden from the student body.

Stressing the role of the public, Davie stated, "The Student Government was never formed with the idea that it should be a paternalistic dictatorship, doing only what it feels would be best for the students."

Closed Meeting Clause

Davie also asserted that the authority to call a closed meeting is not within the power of the Senate speaker. As a basis for this argument, he is using the list of speaker's powers from the Manual. "There is no closed meeting clause," he said.

Davie's second point from the Manual is a duty of the Senate Publications and Public Relations Committee. The committee, he says, has the responsibility to publish a bi-weekly report of Senate activities.

Davie says that the intent of this provision is to give students a full account of Senate activities. "If the Student Government is working for the students, why should it hide what it is doing from them?" he asked.

The date for hearing the case was set after Parthenon press time Monday.

Initiative paying off

The Student Government Initiative Group has begun putting into effect its specific plans for taking part in the freshman election.

According to Paul Matheny, Charleston senior and student body vice president, the Initiative Group will pass out leaflets at a "candidates' rally" to be held Oct. 23 in Old Main Auditorium.

The group has designed a series of posters to be used in the campaign explained Jim Slicer, Huntington junior. He said the posters would appear in sequence until election day, Oct. 25. The first posters were erected Monday.

At a meeting held last week, the group hinted that it would expand its activities in the near future.

Slicer stated, "We need to consider our overall aims. How many students really understand the function of a modern Student Government on a modern campus?"

"We need to improve the broader Student Government activities as opposed to stopping with a specific election," Mike Rooney, York, Pa., senior and committee member, added.

Since the group began its attempt to stir interest, the number of candidates filing for office has increased sharply.

The Initiative Group is open to all interested students. It is now meeting in Student Government Office at 3 p.m. daily.

GOING TO INDIA

Dr. Ishwar S. Pradip, assistant professor of botany, will begin a leave of absence next semester. Dr. Pradip said he will be going to India, his native home, from which he has been absent for more than six years.

Coeds' clothing in dining hall subject of committee concern

By CHARLOTTE ROLSTON
Staff Reporter

"The clothing code should either be brought up to date, or be enforced."

This statement was made Oct. 4 by Dale Dandy, Charleston sophomore and Food Service Committee secretary.

He was referring to the campus ruling which states that students may not wear bermuda shorts to the dining hall. Coeds may wear slacks on Friday night and Saturday in the cafeteria.

"The committee's purpose is to bridge the gap between the administration and the students concerning the cafeteria," said Cathy Evans, Jackson, Ohio, junior and committee chairman.

The committee briefly examined the forms which had been sent last spring to the other Mid-American Conference schools concerning their food services.

"Marshall compares favorably, and in most cases better than other cafeterias in the MAC. We hope to present the evidence shown us as a result of the polls taken last year," said Dandy.

At a future meeting the committee plans to examine the forms more closely and present a summary of the questionnaires to the student body.

The next meeting is scheduled for 6 p.m., Oct. 19 in the conference room of the Main Dining Hall.

A&S faculty evaluation stirs some objections

By ROBERT FERGUSON
Staff Reporter

The question of academic freedom was raised during a meeting last week of the department chairmen and new faculty members of the College of Arts and Sciences, according to Dr. A. Mervin Tyson, dean of the College of Arts and Sciences.

Some objections were raised during a discussion of a policy of teacher evaluation which was introduced by former Dean J. Frank Bartlett about five years ago.

This policy provides for a number of visits to the classroom of each new instructor by the head of that instructor's department.

The objecting parties expressed the feeling that these visits infringed upon the teacher's academic freedom. On this matter, Dean Tyson said, "Teachers new to a situation, or new to the profession, are naturally concerned about the effectiveness of their teaching methods as well as their own mastery of the subject matter. In the interest of reaching the highest possible level of academic standards at Marshall, I feel that cooperative endeavor involving department chairmen in a supervisory capacity is highly desirable."

Also in this area, Dr. Tyson said that, since the program's effectiveness depends on a pleasant and cooperative relationship between the instructors and chairmen, any teacher who feels that his freedom is being infringed upon may refrain from participating in the program of visits.

Secret Senate session should be forbidden

Student Senate President Paul Matheny may be placed in an embarrassing situations soon. Two weeks ago today, Matheny closed the latter half of a Senate session to all but senators and the Senate adviser.

When he stipulated that the records of that closed meeting were to be withheld from public view, that made the session a secret one.

Yesterday afternoon, the closed session was to be challenged before the Student Court on two points.

Bob Davie, a St. Albans senior, is petitioning the court to issue a mandamus writ which would force the Senate to disclose the minutes of the session.

He is also asking the court to ban any future closed regular sessions on the grounds they are beyond the Senate's power and violate the Student Government Constitution.

Although it is for the court to decide on whether Davie has a case, we feel that he most certainly has. A closed secret session is not only detrimental to the students themselves, but also to the body politic which constitutes the Student Government.

How can the senators expect the confidence and support of the student body when they shroud themselves with this air of secrecy?

We do not feel the Senators should be forbidden from ever having a closed session. If they wish, to, however, they should not take any action which involves any segment of student life.

If they wish to congregate in private, and discuss private matters, all well and good. But the students have a right to know anything which affects them.

The initiative has been taken, but it is necessary for the student body—the body that should feel outrage at closed sessions—to add support to the challenge.

Student Union defacement a tragedy in several ways

The defacement of the Shawkey Student Union is a tragedy not only because of the money that will have to be spent to correct it, but because of the facts which the act unearths.

The mutilation shows there are some people who have not developed the mentality required of a college student, and who lack the maturity to think before they act.

It shows there are some who are totally inconsiderate of others, because such an act reflects not only on the people who committed it but upon the entire institution.

Because the act cannot be pinpointed to any one person, or persons, we cannot pass judgement on those involved. We do not know for what reason the act was committed, or what motivated the offender.

He (or she) should know the seriousness of the offense, however, and should keep this in mind if ever spurred to commit such an act again.

The official school policy says that anyone who mutilates school property must pay for the repairs and is also subject to dismissal from the University.

Is such a childish act worth the consequences that could result?

Letter To The Editor

To the Editor:

Once again an MU football contest has been anything but enjoyable. In rapid order I will outline what I mean.

1. The students once again proved they have little interest in the University. The field announcer asked those in attendance to join in a chorus of the Alam Mater. The silence was deafening.

2. The head cheerleader practically had to beg students to cheer. There were very few who responded.

3. Students again filed out of the stadium before the final gun had sounded. They could have had respect for the players by staying, but this is apparently asking too much of them.

4. What do the powers that be have in mind when they open only ONE gate for fans to leave. What do they want us to do, go through the bars? Open at least two more gates and avoid the crush that occurred Saturday night.

It's about time this campus woke up, and started thinking like a University. President Smith was certainly accurate when he said not enough students put the University first in all they do. Marshall is on the move, but it can't go anywhere unless the students are behind her.

FRENCH CLUB MEETS

The first meeting of the 1967 French Club will be tomorrow at 4 p.m. in room 107 of the Academic Center. Everyone is invited to the meeting which will feature lectures on France by Miss Gloria Carter and Mr. Thomas Wallace. Miss Carter will speak on her two years of living in France and life in the city of Orleans. Mr. Wallace will present an illustrated talk with color slides entitled "Summer of '66 in France."

Marshall 40 years ago

By BARBARA HENSLEY

Students at Marshall College were rated below the standard median of students in other colleges, 40 years ago, according to an intelligence test given to students in the Department of English by Professor W. H. Franklin, head of the department.

Culminating the scholarship program for 1926-27, Dr. Morris P. Shawkey presented prizes of $50 in gold to three students, one each from the three lower classes.

Dr. Homer H. Dubs, head of the Department of Psychology, was seriously injured, and four other Marshall professors received minor injuries, when the Ford touring car, owned and being driven by Dr. Dubs, collided with a Chevrolet sedan on the Charleston-Huntington Road.

Charles (Jackie) McKown, captain-elect of the 1927-28 Big Green basketball team, vice president of Kappa Alpha fraternity, and secretary-treasurer of the "M" club, was elected president of the senior class of 1928 at a meeting following the weekly assembly.

Ray Walker, member of Phi Tau Alpha fraternity, was unanimously elected president of the Interfraternity council for the current year, at a meeting held at the Beta Sigma Delta house on Fourteenth Street.

Fourteen members of the freshman class were valedictorians of their high school classes, according to a check made and announced by Dean J. B. Shouse of the Teachers' College.

A tentative cast for the Harlequin Club's presentation of Martin Flaven's "Children of the Moon" was announced by Professor E. Turner Stump, head of the Department of Speech, who directed the play.

Child unit is planned

By CHARLOTTE ROLSTON
Staff Reporter

Plans are now being formulated for a Parent-Child Center (PCC) for the Cabell-Wayne-Lincoln county area.

According to Dr. O. Norman Simpkins, professor of sociology, the federal government has allocated $7,000 to be spent in setting up the PCC program. The program will involve 100 children under the age of three, and their families. Those selected to take part in the program must meet the standards set up by the Office of Economic Opportunity.

"Since this program deals with such young children, it is necessary that the parents take a large part in the planning of this project," said Dr. Simpkins.

Various Marshall staff members and members of local civic groups will aid the parents in the planning of this program.

Dr. Simpkins emphasized that the program will be whatever the people in these areas feel will do them the most good.

He said a day care center may be established to allow mothers to continue their education.

The plans for the PCC must be submitted to Washington by the latter part of January. If the plans are approved, Huntington will be one of 36 cities in the country to have such a project.

Dr. Simpkins explained that the PCC is a pilot program, and that Congress has already allowed $175,000 in the budget for each of the 36 cities for the first year.

"Huntington was chosen as one of the 36 cities, partly because of the success of the Community Action Agency. This is the only region in Appalachia trying the PCC program," said Dr. Simpkins.

"If this program is successful here and in the other cities, it may become a general program and be established all over the country," he said.

New walks replace old

Many campus sidewalks were replaced this summer by the Buildings and Grounds Office at a cost of $7,000, according to C. Steve Szekely, Buildings and Grounds superintendent.

Most of the sidewalks were replaced because they were too low and became covered with water when it rained.

The ones replaced include sidewalks on 16th Street from Old Main to the corner of Third Avenue, those in front of the Music Building and the Academic Center, and one from the Women's Gymnasium around Prichard Hall, Hodges Hall, to Main Cafeteria.

Construction was begun in June and was completed just before fall classes opened.

Day in the life of a reporter!

At times it's difficult to get information about Marshall activities and events.

For example, a Parthenon reporter telephoned the Buildings and Grounds Office and spoke with Supt. C. Steve Szekely.

Here's the way the conversation went:

Q. Could you please tell me how the parking situation is now?

A. Just about the same.

Q. Are all permits out?

A. Just about.

Boron research scheduled here with grant funds

James E. Douglass, associate professor of chemistry, said he would use a $30,300 grant from the National Science Foundation to study certain compounds of Boron for theoretical purposes.

Mr. Douglass explained that the money would be given to the University and that he would delegate its usage. Most of the money goes for graduate research assistants and secretarial help. Mr. Douglass added that one piece of capital equipment, a controlled atmosphere box, would have to be purchased for the study.

U. S. Sens. Robert C. Byrd and Jennings Randolph and Rep. Ken Hechler made the announcement of the grant Monday. The grant is for 24 months and is officially designated as a study of "Bisamine Complexes of Boronium Ions."

Klinestiver says self-treatment risky

A warning to all students against the self-treatment of illness has been issued by Dr. Donald G. Klinestiver, director of student health services.

Dr. Klinestiver reports that many students are treating themselves with any drugs they have on hand, as well as giving them to friends.

"These students handing out antibiotics in the dorms and elsewhere certainly have no capabilities to handle reactions that may occur in drug administration," Dr. Klinestiver said.

"Allergic reactions to antibiotics and other drugs are not rare," he continued. "People can die from drugs."

According to Dr. Klinestiver, a common misconception in this part of the country is "if you've got it, a shot will cure it." He said that people do not differentiate between bacterial illnesses and viruses.

"The common cold contains some 300 identifiable viruses, none of which are affected in any degree by antibiotics," he explained.

However, Dr. Klinestiver noted that antibiotics are extremely useful in the treatment of bacterial diseases such as strept throat, pneumonia and certain types of bronchitis.

"To make my point," Dr. Klinestiver continued, "influenza, the common cold, and 80 per cent of sore throats are all viral in origin and not affected by antibiotics."

An average 60-80 patients are seen daily by the doctor in the Student Health Center. Colds are the most common complaint, according to Dr. Klinestiver. The number of students using the Health Services declined this past September in contrast to the same months in 1965 and 1966.

Dr. Klinestiver attributed this in part to the fewer number of people taking advantage of the flu shots this year, although the American Public Health Association has recommended them.

Flu shots are available to the faculty and full-time students at no charge at the Student Health Center 9-12 a.m. and 1-4 p.m. weekdays, and 9-12 a.m. Saturdays.

MARSHALL'S MARCO waves to an enthusiastic crowd of around 5,800 people at last Saturday's football game between the Thundering Herd and Xavier University. The crowd witnessed a determined Marshall squad fall 7-0 to a strong Musketeer defense and penalty losses.

TENSE MOMENT! Cheerleader Vickie Lambert, Parkersburg sophomore, can hardly stand the suspense as the Thundering Herd drives toward a TD in the second half of the Xavier game.

Strong Xavier defense downs Herd

A strong Xavier defense and a penalty-aided touchdown defeated a determined Marshall 7-0 Saturday night at Fairfield Stadium.

Led by the running attack of Bill Waller, Xavier ran its record to 3-1 while handing Marshall its fourth loss in as many starts.

"We looked much better; the offense moved the ball. We just got a couple of bad breaks," said Coach Charlie Snyder.

The bad breaks started half-way through the second quarter when the Musketeer's Al Ippolito punted from the Marshall 49. A holding penalty against the Big Green gave the Muskies a first down on the 33.

Only Score

On the next play, a most questionable "piling on" penalty set the Muskies up at the Herd's 19. One play later Waller zipped over for the only score.

Charlie (Choo-Choo) Jones back after missing two games with a broken hand, boosted the Herd in ground gaining. Jones gained 89 yards in 27 carries but it was not enough to spur the Big Green offense on.

"I think Serdich did a fine job for his first start at quarterback. Serdich got the offense to move the ball," said Snyder.

Defense Stronger

Serdich, starting his first game at quarterback, could not get the Herd going in the air. The Muskies' defense picked off three of Serdich's passes while only completing one of nine for 12 yards.

"My defense is getting stronger every week and I feel that Marshall played a good ball game," said Xavier Coach Ed Biles.

Xavier's defense held the Herd to 109 yards rushing and nine first downs.

The big offensive punch was Waller who picked up 149 of the Musketeer's 175 yards that was gained on the ground.

Penalties were a big factor for both teams. Penalties led to one touchdown for the Muskies and Xavier had one touchdown called back.

"It was a well called game but I feel that the two penalties might have made a difference in the outcome of the game," Snyder said.

Best performance

Marshall's defense gave its best performance of the season by allowing the Musketeer's only 12 first downs.

"I think that Marshall has a good ball club. We knew their defense was good from the scouting reports," said Biles.

The Thundering Herd plays the next three games away with Miami University their first foe next Saturday at 1:30.

Collision course

Six teams: no defeats

Kappa Alpha and Zeta Beta Fraternities clashed last Thursday in an intramural football contest with the KA's coasting to a 23-0 victory.

Only six teams remain undefeated in men's intramural football.

They are, flight one, Pi Kappa Alpha; flight two, Fire, and flight three, Sigma Alpha Epsilon.

Two teams, both undefeated and heading for a showdown in flight four, are Sigma Alpha Epsilon "4s" and Sigma Phi Epsilon. Rowley Hall remains the leader in flight five.

The tournament, beginning around Oct. 23, will consist of the two top teams from each flight. The teams will be competing on a single-elimination basis. In tournament play, the teams will be paired out of their flight.

Jim Shepherd, George Riggs named 'players of the week'

GEORGE RIGGS

JIM SHEPHERD

Offensive tackle Jim Shepherd and defensive back George Riggs were named "lineman of the week" and "back of the week" for their performances in MU's 7-0 defeat against Xavier Saturday.

Shepherd, a junior letterman from Wellston, Ohio, received the award for the first time.

Head Coach Charlie Snyder commented on Shepherd's play.

"Jim did a good job of blocking for us. He held his own on pass plays when we needed it."

Riggs, a sophomore from Toronto, Ohio, was also chosen for the first time.

"He played a very good defensive game," stated Coach Snyder. "He did an excellent job on punt returns."

Riggs returned three punts for 26 yards. He also was credited with two tackles and two assists.

The Robe, men's leadership honorary, sponsors the Thundering Herd's lineman and back of the week selections.

New women's sport called speed-a-way

A new women's intramural sport called speed-a-way has developed on campus.

Speed-a-way is a combination of football, soccer and basketball and will take the place of women's football. It is sponsored by the Women's Recreation Association.

The game possibly will be played on Tuesdays. Dormitories, sororities and independent organizations such as the Jones and Marshall Houses, will compete.

Individual practice sessions will be set by each group. Any girl interested should contact her dormitory counselor.

RITES CONDUCTED

Funeral services were to be held yesterday for Mrs. Adah Green, 88, of Elkins, mother of Dr. N. Bayard Green, professor of zoology.

Mrs. Green died Sunday morning in an Elkins hospital.

How about a new sweater and a free date?

100% WOOL SWEATERS

5⁴⁷

The date isn't really free, but it works out almost that way. If you buy one of these great looking sweaters this week you'll save from $2.52 to $5.52 — for your date of course! A huge assortment of V-necks, crew-necks and cardigans usually costing $7.99 to $10.99, now all only $5.47. That flat gets it, doesn't it?

Grad unit role eyed

To date, Marshall is not actively participating in the Kanawha Valley Graduate Center in Charleston operated by West Virginia University, according to President Stewart H. Smith.

Dr. Smith said, however, that three members of Marshall's faculty are teaching courses there.

"From the beginning we have indicated our interest, approval and desire to become a part of the center, and we have always felt it should be a jointly-operated graduate center with Marshall and West Virginia University being partners in the endeavor," Dr. Smith said.

Partnership Sought

"We are still stressing the point that we feel we should be a partner with WVU in this venture," he continued.

Concerning participation in the program, Dr. Smith said, "I am one member of a 25-man ad hoc advisory committee for the Graduate Center; however, that committee has met only once, and that was after the center was already in operation. As far as I know, that is the only participation Marshall has in the program."

The Kanawha Valley Graduate Center was started last year when the state legislature amended the section of the West Virginia code dealing with the establishment and operation of graduate centers.

Code Provisions Cited

The amended code reads, "The (West Virginia University) board of governors is hereby authorized and empowered to continue the operation and maintenance of any graduate centers it has heretofore established, either by itself or in cooperation with other universities or colleges, and to establish, maintain and operate such other graduate centers either by itself or in cooperation with other universities or colleges, at such place or places within the state as it may deem advisable . . ."

In addition to enacting this legislation, the legislature also voted $350,000 to WVU for operation of the center.

While there has been no official interpretation of the new legislation, the wording itself seems to indicate that WVU has the prerogative to say whether it will operate the center alone, or whether it will invite other state colleges and universities to participate.

JANSSEN PLANS ARTICLE

Dr. Raymond E. Janssen, professor of geology again this year will write an article for the yearbook of the American People's Encyclopedia. Dr. Janssen has been writing the article on geology since 1950. It deals with events and discoveries in the field of geology.

Chessmen find funds source

Marshall's championship chess team will receive its needed funds from the Office of Development and Alumni Affairs, according to Jim Kirkpatrick, Elkins sophomore and president of the chess club.

Under the agreement, the alumni office will hire the chess players to work in the alumni office at $1 an hour. When the men have worked a total of 100 hours, the Office will donate an additional $100, Kirkpatrick added.

He said that the team would begin working this week.

The team is eager to have more students, Kirkpatrick said. Freshmen particularly, as well as other interested students, are being sought.

Radio gear hidden

Dr. Stephen D. Buell, director of Educational Radio and Television and speech professor, has come up with a variation of the old saying "Hit 'em where they ain't."

It might go, "Hide it where they ain't."

That's one way of describing how Dr. Buell hopes to reduce the theft of equipment from WMUL radio headquarters in the Science Building.

Ten speakers, valued at $89.90, were recently stolen. Previous thefts over the past 10 or 15 years have cost the University between $1,000 and $1,500, according to Dr. Buell.

"We're going to move a lot of stuff where we can keep our eye on it," said Dr. Buell.

Dr. Buell said the equipment would be moved out of the Science Building during the present semester, but he's not saying where.

"The fewer people that know where it'll be, the better," he said.

Young GOP club to meet tomorrow

State convention plans will be discussed when the Young Republicans Club meets at 3:30 p.m. tomorrow at the Student Union.

Bill Evans, Westlake, Ohio, senior and president of the West Virginia College GOP, said the Marshall group hopes to have delegates at the state convention Friday and Saturday.

The two-day gathering will be at North Bend State Park near Parkersburg.
