Student Union Center For Social Activities

By RON HITE
News Editor

One of the most frequently heard comments among students on campus is "I'll meet you at the Union," because the Student Union is the center of social activity.

New students will find the Student Union one of the busiest places on campus and also one of the best places to meet people and make new friends.

Mixes will be on Wednesday, Friday, and Saturday nights, except when Artist Series are held on those nights. Mixes following football and basketball games will cost 25 cents per person.

Usually, admission to mixes will be by showing the student I.D. card at the door.

On Friday nights there will be a movie preceding the mix. Admission to the movie is 25 cents. Most of the movies will be in color and cinemascope.

Game rooms are available for student use which have pool and billiard tables, ping pong tables, cards, chess and checkers.

The Student Union will sponsor 25 intramural contests this year, under the direction of the International Association of Student Unions. Winners of the contest will receive an expenses paid trip to a selected city for final competition. Last year the finals were in Gettysburg, Pa.

The second floor of the building contains the Chief Justice Office, meeting rooms and a music room with radio and television.

Student government offices are housed in the west end of the building.

MEETINGS PLANNED

Freshmen who attended either the first or second term summer school who have not been assigned permanent advisers should report to the office of their academic deans on Thursday, so that they might register Friday. Every student will need his registration ticket.

OLDEST BUILDING

Old Main, the oldest and largest building on the campus, was built in sections between 1868 and 1908. It houses the auditorium, administrative and service offices, classrooms, faculty offices, and the University Bookstore.

January, 1967, Target Date For New Building

By TERRI GOTHARD
News Editor

Under construction on the southwest corner of campus is the new classroom-office-music building. The seven and one-half story classroom and office building and a three-story music building are due for completion and occupancy by January, 1967.

The music section and classroom building will be joined by a student lounge and will extend from Old Main Annex along Third Avenue to the corner of Sixteenth Street.

The Annex, built as a temporary structure during World War

II, will be torn down after the new building is completed. The total cost for both sections will be approximately $3.7 million.

The completely air-conditioned music section will include a recital hall seating about 500, a band and orchestra rehearsal room, a choral rehearsal room, separate rooms for small ensembles, a music library and listening laboratory, five classrooms, student lounge, two faculty lounges, 37 practice rooms, 20 studio-offices, and storage rooms. Each room will be acoustically treated for the specific music function planned for it and the whole building is designed specifically to hold noise to a minimum.

When commenting on the new building, Dr. C. Lawrence Kingsbury, chairman of the music department, said, "The new facilities will make possible an expansion of both graduate and undergraduate offerings in music which would have been impossible in the present building." The music department is presently, and has been for years, occupying a converted store building.

The new classroom and office building, approaching near skyscraper heights at seven and one-

An Editorial

Editor Welcomes MU Class Of 1969

Welcome class of '69. Your college life has just begun. Use the coming years to your advantage. They are your years. Have fun with them. Have new experiences. But don't forget the reason for your being at Marshall—to learn.

You will find that MU has some activity that each individual can enjoy—whether it be fraternity or sorority, band, dramatics, or simply lounging in the Student Union.

Do politics interest you? Student government offers the budding politician his or her chance. You will have your election for freshman senators soon.

Open to all faiths, the Campus Christian Center is available for study, meetings, and counseling. Also located in the Center is 'The Summit,' a coffee house.

Social life is abundant at MU—take advantage of it—but don't let it take advantage of you. Study hard and plan your time so you do not have to cram before an exam—cramming doesn't work.

Marshall University is a major college in athletics—take advantage of this opportunity. Your ID card will admit you into every home game football, basketball, or whatever your sport is.

Marshall finished second in the Mid-American Conference last year in football and a magazine has picked Marshall as the winner this year. The Thundering Herd should look better on the courts this year also. Joining the varsity is one of the most outstanding group of frosh basketballers in MU history.

Take advantage of the Artists Series, Forums, and Convocations offered to you. A tremendous program has been scheduled for you this year by Professor Curtis Baxter, program director.

This is a time of great progress for the school, both in physical and professional development. When you graduate, the campus will have doubled in size. Many new buildings will have been constructed. The enrollment will have reached figures estimated to be 8,000. When you are seniors you will be able to say to the incoming freshmen—I remember when. . .

Model A' Go Go

Fashion Show Is Set For Saturday Morning

"Marshall A' Go Go" is the title of a fashion show to be presented Saturday in Old Main Auditorium.

The show, which will begin at 10 a.m. is sponsored by the Panhellenic council and each sorority will have girls participating as models. The girls will do all the work involved themselves.

The Smart Shop of Huntington is furnishing all clothes to be used during the show.

According to Paige Lawrence, publicity chairman for the show, the girls hope to make this an annual event. All proceeds from the show will be used for a scholarship fund; however, it is still undecided as to who would receive this.

The entire event will include about 75 fashions including everything a college girl would need to complete her wardrobe.

Tickets will be sold on campus during orientation week. Booths will be set up and tickets can also be bought at the door. The price will be 50 cents for both adults and children.

This show is open to the public.

Two New Positions Established

By JOHN E. SHAY
Dean of Student Affairs

Two titles long familiar to Marshall students have disappeared as a result of the reorganization of the University's student personnel staff. The designations Dean of Men and Dean of Women have been dropped. In their place are the titles Dean of Student Affairs and Associate Dean of Students.

Former Dean of Men John E. Shay, Jr., has been moved to the position of Dean of Student Affairs. Mrs. Lillian Helms Buskirk, Marshall's dean of women since 1946, now has the title Associate Dean of Students. They have been joined by James R. Vander Lind in the new position of Associate Dean of Students. Dean Vander Lind comes to Marshall from Ohio University, where he was head resident of Grosvenor Hall. He is a candidate for the Ph.D. at Ohio University.

These changes reflect the national trend of American colleges and universities in dealing with students. Dean of Men and Dean of Women are considered too paternalistic. Furthermore, providing separate administrative staffs for men and women is cumbersome and inefficient. It is also unrealistic. For example, Dean Buskirk has never confined her wise and friendly counsel to women students. It is a misnomer for her to be considered as dean only of women.

The new Office of Student Affairs deals with all matters between the student and the University except business and academic affairs. Dean Shay, Buskirk, and Vander Lind invite every student to visit them whenever the deans can be of service. The Office of Student Affairs is located at the east end of Old Main on the first floor.

Emergency Loans Obtainable From Financial Aid Office

Students who have received financial aid for the academic year of 1965-1966 should contact George O. Fraley, financial aid officer. His office is located in the Office of Student Affairs in East end of Old Main.

An interesting note to freshmen as well as upperclassmen is that the Financial Aid Office has loan funds available to students for emergency purposes. Unlike other loans and scholarships, emergency loans may be applied for at any time and the amounts may range from $11 to $100 for a period of 30 to 60 days.

It should be remembered that a period of 48 hours is needed for the processing of emergency loans, and that a service charge of 25 cents is made in order that the funds may be kept perpetual.

The Student Aid Executive Committee has already awarded over 600 loans and scholarships to students enrolled for the fall semester. Also, the federal government approved College Work-Study Program to eligible students has provided more loans than would otherwise be available.

Library Expansion Bid Is Expected In January

By MIKE GAINER
Staff Reporter

Due to the continual increase in enrollment, Marshall University has been faced with many problems concerning the expansion of its present facilities—one of the most immediate is the need for a larger library.

During the past summer architects, from the firm of Dean and Dean of Huntington, expected to submit in January, a bid of $1.8 million for an addition to the present structure.

Meanwhile, the James E. Morrow Library, named for a president of Marshall in the 1870's, provides more than 140,800 books, 1,500 periodicals, and newspapers, as well as microfilms, pamphlets and other library material for student use.

Services available on the first floor of the library are the public card catalog which is an alphabetical index to the resources of the library by author, title, or subject of a book. The circulation desk is where you will secure your books by presenting call slips for the books you need. The open-shelf reserve book room, Room 105, contains many books used for special assignments.

Services available on the second floor of the library are of a reference nature, such as encyclopedias, dictionaries, atlases, periodical indices, newspapers, and periodicals. Also at the periodical desk you may obtain back issues of periodicals.

Librarians will be on duty at the reference desk at specified hours. The hours from Monday through Thursday are from 8 a.m. to 12:30 p.m.; 1 to 4:30 p.m.; 6 to 9:30 p.m. Friday, the hours are from 8 to 11:30 a.m., then resume at 12:30 to 4:30 p.m. Saturday hours are from 8 a.m.

In addition to receiving help in finding information and using the reference collections, students may use various research machines such as the Dagmar Super, the library's most recent acquisition. This machine, a precision microfilm reader, may be used for both 35mm and 16mm rollfilm, as well as aperture cards, strip film, etc.

Since there has been a rapid increase in the portion of research documentation recorded for permanent storage on microfilm, it is easy to see why this machine is an important addition to the library.

Books from the general collection, found on the first floor, are loaned for a two week period. A charge of 5 cents per calendar day is assessed for each overdue book beginning with the day after the book is due and continuing until the book is returned.

A four-day grace period is allowed for the return or renewal of books; therefore, no overdue charge of less than 25 cents per book will be collected.

Hours that the library are open are as follows: Monday through Thursday, 8 a.m.-9:30 p.m.; Friday and Saturday, 8 a.m.-5 p.m.

Tradition Is Part Of Marshall Campus

Customs and traditions are a part of every American college campus, and Marshall, too, is aware of tradition.

When a freshman arrives at the university, he is almost immediately directed to the bust of John Marshall and the old Beech Tree. He is told that John Marshall was a representative of equality, democracy, and individual freedom, some basic principles and ideals in which we strongly believe today. The beech tree standing in front of Old Main symbolizes the tree of life, he finds, and it represents the growth of Marshall, from a small academy to its present university size.

As the freshman continues his tour of the campus, he may note the ODK Victory Bell, situated next to the Music Building. This bell is traditionally rung by Marshall students after each victory, whether it be in the field of sports or an academic endeavor.

Proceeding toward the Student Union, he may sight the brick and cement ODK Circle in the lawn in front of the tennis courts. The circle was presented by Omicron Delta Kappa to the campus. Organizations sometimes meet here; individuals may stroll through, or sit for awhile, or even attempt to read the time by use of the sundial within the circle.

The freshman may be confused by the names of the various buildings located on campus. Most of them are named for people closely associated with the school in years past. The James E. Morrow Library, Hodges Hall, and the Shawkey Student Union are named for past presidents of Marshall, John Laidley, for whom Laidley Hall is named, was a man instrumental in Marshall's founding.

Northcott Hall was named for

G. A. Northcott, a distinguished citizen of Cabell County; the Albert Gallatin Jenkins Laboratory School commemorates a Confederate hero of the War Between the States. Prichard Hall was named for Lucy Prichard, an educator at Marshall, and more recently named Gullickson Hall honors "Swede" Gullickson, a member of the faculty for many years and still a familiar face on the campus.

Marshall is fond of tradition and enjoys repeating yearly events. During Freshman Week all freshmen must wear their name tags and beanies. The freshmen are also expected to always be able to recite some history of the school, sing the school song, and be generally knowledgeable about the institution. Thus, freshmen enforcers roam the campus making certain that the freshmen are not overlooking their responsibilities in these areas. If a freshman does not answer an enforcer's questions correctly, he may be taken before the Freshman Court to be tried for his offense. This court has traditionally never lost a case.

Another custom is the freshman and upperclassman tug-of-war, which is always held during the half of a football game early in the season. If the freshmen win, they may discard their beanies; if they lose, on they stay for a while longer.

Homecoming is a tradition which even alumni enjoy. The campus buzzes with anticipation and activity weeks ahead. Fraternities spend long hours building beautiful floats for the parade, and sororities decorate their houses. The signs welcome alumni and predict defeat for the opposing football team in the day's game. In the afternoon, old friends mingle at open houses. The day is completed with a dance featuring a name band and a presentation of the Homecoming queen and her court.

Many traditions of the campus are begun and continued by the Greeks. Greek Week is a favorite time when social organizations on campus exchange diners, hold fireside chats, compete in the Greek Olympics, and have a spring dance and picnic. Pi Kappa Alpha, a fraternity, annually holds "Pike's Peak", a contest among the sororities, during which the girls compete in games involving luck, fun, and skill. The winner's trophy, now held by Sigma Kappa, is a revolving one, and is passed from winner to winner each year.

In the spring, a weekend is set aside for the honoring of our parents. Parents are given tours of the campus and a special theatrical production is presented for their benefit. The highlight of the weekend is the Mother's Day Sing, always held on Sunday, in which the sororities and fraternities participate in competition. Last year the winners were Sigma Sigma Sigma and Sigma Alpha Epsilon. Fraternity and sorority serenades are also popular in the spring and fall.

The entire seventh floor will contain faculty offices and a faculty lounge and terrace will share the eighth level with open-air painters from the art department. In addition to art, the departments of speech, journalism, history, language, sociology, and mathematics will be housed in the new building.

Construction of the new building will be financed under a Marshall building program authorized by the 1963 Legislature. Tuition fees are being retained to build a fund of $3.7 million.

A special activity card for the use of the spouse of a full time student may be purchased in the cashier's office, in Old Main. The price of the activity card is $20, it covers athletic events ($12.50), assemblies and forums ($1.50), Artists Series ($5) and ID Card ($1).

NAMED FOR OFFICER

Albert Gallatin Jenkins Laboratory School was dedicated in 1937 and named in honor of a distinguished Confederate cavalry officer who was a native of Cabell County. Providing kindergarten, elementary, and high school education, the school serves as a laboratory for prospective teachers enrolled in the University.

CHIEF JUSTICE HONORED

Marshall University was founded as Marshall Academy in 1837 by a group of Cabell County citizens. According to tradition, they met first at the home of John Laidley, who chose the name "Marshall" in honor of his close friend, Chief Justice John Marshall, who had died two years earlier.

GRADUATE SCHOOL

The Graduate School, authorized in May, 1948, grew out of a program of graduate work in six departments which had been established in 1938. Courses leading to the degree of Master of Arts or Master of Science are now offered in nine major fields with ten additional departments offering work in a minor field.

Grid, Cage Coaches Optimistic

Success Will Depend On Sophs

By HARRY FISHER
Sports Editor

Sophomores hold the key to a bright year for Marshall University for the 1965-66 football and basketball campaigns.

In football, head coach Charlie Snyder will try for his third consecutive winning season. After a 5-4-1 season in 1963 the Big Green turned in a 7-3 record last year and a second place finish in the Mid-American Conference.

Marshall lost many of its key men via graduation including the whole defensive unit except for three positions. Lost were four out of five all-MAC choices from last year. The returning lettermen from 1964 are: ends George Kasonovich and Dennis Miller; tackles Bill Bobbitt and Don Dixon; guards Fred Anderson, Ron Minard and Clyde Owens; center Tom Good; quarterbacks Howie Miller and Alex Sansosti; halfbacks Ray Henderson, Mickey Jackson and Gary Marvin; and fullbacks George Cyrus, Gene Gattrell and Andy Soucha.

Miller Returns

Back for the third year to lead the Big Green is Howie Miller, 1963 passing champ in the MAC. Along with Miller in the offensive backfield, Marshall will count on speedster Mickey Jackson and Andy Socha at the halfback positions and Gene Gattrell at fullback. Ray Henderson, defensive back, also will be counted on to help out in the offensive backfield.

The offensive line will be built around returning lettermen Anderson, Bobbitt and Miller. Others who will probably see action in the offensive line are Dave Arritt, Bob Thorn and a host of sophomores.

Marshall will also be counting on three junior college transfer players; Walter Cartron, halfback, Vic Ferreri, guard and Donald Carr, end.

Sophs On Line

Sophomores could account for seven or eight positions in the defensive line-up. Along with Good, all-MAC linebacker last year, Owens and Marvin, the following sophomores should see action: Tom Wilkinson, Mike Keener, Paul Dotson, Tom McLaughlin, Glen Smith, Jim Maeker, Bob Hale, John DeMarco and Charlie Rine.

Defensive backs include Henderson, Jackson, Marvin and Cyrus.

During spring practice, the most improved players, according to Coach Snyder were sophomores Curt Keesee and John Land, junior Mike Keener and senior Dave Arritt.

Head coach Charlie Snyder, along with Forrest Underwood and Charles Kautz and new coaches Charles Chauncy, Chuck Stobart and George Belu are hard at work with the team and are impressed with the prospects for another winning season.

Picture Is Good

It will be hard for Ellis Johnson, starting his third season as head basketball coach at Marshall, not to feel somewhat optimistic about this 1965-66 basketball team.

Johnson will have six lettermen returning from last years squad. They are Tom Langfitt, George Hicks, Jerry Katz, Bill Whetsell, Keith Blankenship and James Odum.

Langfitt, the only junior selected to the all-MAC team has been the team's leading scorer for the past two seasons. In his sophomore year he averaged 15.5

points a game and last year finished second in the MAC averaging 22.4 points a game. During his last year at Marshall, Langfitt should become one of the top scorers in the history of the school.

Board Strength Noted

Under the boards Johnson will depend on 6'4", jumping jack, George Hicks, last years leading rebounder. Jerry Katz, and two sophomores, 6'7" Bob Allen and Bob Redd, will be counted on for added rebounding strength.

Johnson will depend greatly on sophomores Allen, Redd, Orville Stepp, George Stone and Joe Dawson, up from last years undefeated freshman team. Stepp averaged 29 points a game and Redd, Stone and Dawson all averaged around 20 points a game for the Little Green.

With a good crop of freshmen prospects, new head freshman coach Jody Sword should be in a good position to keep up the yearling's winning ways.

The basketball season looks very bright for both the varsity and the freshmen this year.

ROTC Program Trains Men To Be Leaders

By WILLIAM CAREY
Staff Reporter

The Army Reserve Officers Training Corps, according to Lt. Col. Patrick H. Morgan, professor of Military Science, exists to develop college educated officers for the active Army and the Reserve components. It enables selected young men to prepare for positions of leadership in either a military or civilian career of his choice.

Col. Morgan continued that the ROTC program gives the young man an opportunity to earn a commission as an Army officer at the same time he works toward an academic degree. Therefore, earning a degree and a commission concurrently takes a minimum of time or effort in addition to that required to obtain a degree. Also those who plan a civilian career may fulfill their military service obligation as an officer.

The professor of Military Science says that freshmen enrolling in ROTC will find it is no additional burden. Cadets attend classes two hours per week and drill one hour per week. The drill period is 11 a.m. each Tuesday. Two semester hours credit toward graduation will be granted for these classes, and normally, all students are deferred from military service obligations as long as they remain in the ROTC program.

Col. Morgan explained that freshmen enroll for the basic course, MS I the first year and MS II the second. In the basic course, cadets learn how to use the M-1 Rifle, attend leadership laboratory periods, participate in drill and parade ceremonies, study American Military History, and the basic principles of Infantry Tactics.

In the advance course, MS III and IV, junior and senior years, cadets study subjects such as leadership, military teaching methods, tactics, exercise of command, operations, logistics, military justice, and administration.

Cadets may be permitted to take other academic courses as substitutes for attendance at ROTC for which full academic credit will be given.

The Colonel emphasized that all cadets in the ROTC program are eligible to participate in the following campus activities: the annual Military Ball, Cadet Rifle Team, Perishing Rifles, Drum and Bugle Corps, and the Counter-Guerilla unit.

During the past academic year 270 Cadets were enrolled in ROTC, and 23 received commissions. Col. Morgan expects the enrollment for the next year to increase proportionately with the additional increase in the University's enrollment, which will be approximately 10 per cent.

The ROTC staff of four officers and four enlisted men will remain.

Further information on ROTC may be obtained from the Department of Military Science, Room 218, in Gullickson Hall.
